EARLY CHRISTMAS MAILING URGED

Postmaster Burke Urges the Cooperation of His Patrons

The hearty cooperation of the public in preparing and mailing Christ-mas cards and parcels constitutes an important factor in facilitating their expeditious dispatch and delivery. The Postal Department advises early Christmas mailings to assure delivery of your parcels and greeting cards before Christmas Day. Therefore, all mail for distant states should be mailed well in advance f Dec. 10th, and for midwest and local deliveries not later than Dec. 20th. It is requested that the public cooperate with this tremendous task by making their mailings as soon as possible, thus avoiding unnecessary delay and disappointment. Send your holiday greetings as first-class mail to obtain the many advantages which this service affords.

First class mail may be sealed and contain written messages, also it is dispatched and delivered in preference to mail of a lower class. All mail should be plainly and completely addressed to include street and house number and rural route number where applicable. Your return address should appear on all mail, because in case of undelivery, it may be returned to the sender. Unsealed Christmas greeting cards sent as third-class mail with no writing enclosed are charge-able with two cents postage. All patrons including those residing on rural routes having a quantity of cards are asked to tie them in bundles with addresses all faced one way so as to facilitate their expedient hand-ling in the Post Office. The Post Of-fice will be open for window service from 8:00 a. m. to 6:00 p. m. daily except Sundays. ARE YOU THE PARENT OF A RETARDED CHILD?

If so you are not alone! In the State of Maryland there are 10,000 mentally retarded children, and of these Carroll County has its share. Too long these children have been the forgotten ones, the neglected ones, but all over our country there is an awakening of the public to the needs and rights of retarded children. As Pearl S. Buck expresses it, "There is a great new dawn awaiting these youngsters—who are God's most innocent children." This new dawn' is primarily being brought about by the parents of these children for it is they who best know their plight and their potentialities. A group of interested persons and parents have formed the Carroll County Association for Retarded Children so that the needs of the children in this vicinity can be met. The next meeting of this association will be held on Wednesday, December 1, at 8 p. m. at the Carroll County Medical Center. Original plans a year ago called for four floors but continued growth of the society indicates eventual need of the enlarged building with approximately 105,000 square feet of floor space. The society, with nearly a ouarter million members throughout the nation, recently passed the half-billion-dollar mark of life insurance billion-dollar mark of life insurance in force and sales this year are expected to total nearly $100 million, says Mr. Granrud. WHERE IS GOD?

Where will I find God, you ask? In church, or in the sky? . . . Do not make it such a task— There's just one place to try: Not upon a mountain peak, Or deep within a wood; Deep within yourself you seek For all that may be good, There you may find evil, too, (And if you don't it's odd!) But there's good inside of you-And all that's good—is God. -Carl C. Helm

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Liverdun, France

To the Editor: The Yearly October fest in Munich, Germany started on Sept. 18 at noon when the first barrel of beer was tapped. On the 19th, a two hour parade of colorful floats, dancing, bands, whip cracking, Bavarians in their native dress with their famous yodeling, the dress with their ramods yodering, the beer wagons drawn by gayly decorated and well groomed horses from the five old and famous beer halls of Munich. The oldest beer hall, the Lawrenbrau, began brewing beer for commercial sale in 1474.

The beer halls were so tightly jammed we were only able to go completely through two, each taking one and one-half hours. Amusement, riders and side shows are of a wide variety. It amazes one to see the spirit these people put into their celebration. Even if you can't speak German, you aren't lost, as so many speak English and just make you happy to join them.

To explain his philosophy of government Bernard Baruch recently retold the ancient story of The Flying Horse—of the King who sentenced a man to death. The man begged a reprieve, saying he'd teach the King's horse to fly within a year. He was spared on condition that the horse would be able to fly by the year's end, or the man would be put to death. Later, the man explained: "Within a year, the King may die, or I may die, or the horse may die. Further: die, or the horse may die. Further-more, in a year, who knows? Maybe the horse will learn to fly."

The silhouette to watch carefully is the one that hugs the torse to the hips and then breaks into a flare. Choose an underskirt which has a smooth yoke from waist to hips with shirred ruffles or stiffened tiers to keep the skirt

Designers use a yoke to give a flat line to slim the figure and to avoid the bunchiness that can ruin the effect of the dress.

New Materials One of the most versatile underskirts for fall is a tiered style of stabilized nylon tricot, a satinylooking stiff fabric. Styled with a figure-hugging nylon tricot yoke it has three tiers of stiff fabric gradually gaining width.

Vegetable Meals Should Be Varied

Vegetables are too valuable a food for any homemaker to permit them to get into "the same old thing" class. You don't have to prepare vegetables in a different than ordinary way every time you cook, but doing it once in awhile will keep the family interested in vegetables.

Pop your corn cut off the cob into fritters, just for a change. Add some nutmeg to spinach or some oregano to tomato dishes, or spice red cabbage for something

CORN-PEPPER FRITTERS (Serves 6) 2 cups cooked, cut corn

2 tablespoons sugar ½ teaspoon salt cup cream 2 eggs, beaten

1/4 cup chopped green pepper 11/2 cups sifted flour 11/2 teaspoons baking powder

Combine corn, sugar and salt; add cream, eggs, green pepper and then add combined flour and baking powder to corn mixture. Beat well. Drop by teaspoonfuls into greased skillet. Cook slowly until puffed and browned. Serve hot with tomato soup (canned soup diluted with a bit of water or milk, heated).

SPICED RED CABBAGE (Serves 6-8) 2 tablespoons mixed spices quarts water teaspoon salt pounds red cabbage, shredded tablespoons brown sugar 4 tablespoons vinegar 3 tablespoons butter

Place spices in small bag. Heat water and salt to boiling. Add cabbage and spices and cook 30 minutes. Drain. Dissolve sugar in vinegar, add butter and combine with cabbage, then serve at once.

SHORT STORY

Reference Letter By Sally S. Eads

CORINNE stood at the front door, watching for the postman. Surely this afternoon, she would get a letter from her cousin Bill Craig in answer to one she had written to him asking for reference on Dallas Cowan.

In the living room, she could hear her father grumbling to her mother about what to do with the two hundred hillside acres, Uncle O - Minute John had left to them. "I can't quit | Fiction my business and undertake to farm that land," he was saying.

"Oh, well. quit worrying," her mother advised.

Her father put on his glasses and picked up the newspaper. And Corinne's mind went back to the letter she was expering and Dallas Cowan.

She had known Dallas for more than six months, and he had begged her almost from the start to marry him. "Give me a chance to make you happy, Corinne. You know I love you," he had told her. "I believe you, Dallas," she said, "but let's wait until we're sure.

"But I need you, now, to encourage me and help me to find the chance I'm looking for. I'll make good, I know I will." he had coaxed. He had sounded insecure and young, but she believed in him, and she loved him. The very thoughts of Dallas gave her a thrill that nothing else ever had. She only wanted the assurance from Bill Craig that Dallas was all she thought he was, and Bill wouldn't let her down.

"Here comes the postman!" yelled Corinne and darted out the door to meet him.

"Here comes the postman!" yelled Corinne and darted out the door to meet him. "Here's the letter I was expecting," she told the postman. She held it for a minute, remembering what the girls at the Farm Bureau office had said about Dallas: "He's a lazy dreamer. Doesn't like his office duties." Well, she knew better. He only needed a chance to fulfill his dreams.

'We shall see what Bill says," she told herself.

"Dear Corinne," the letter beban. "So you're in love with Dallas Cowan? Yes, we were classmates in college, both majoring in agriculture. I hate to say this, Corinne, but the boy's a dreamer. He just wanted to sit and stare out the window, dreaming of apple orchards in bloom, with bees humming among the bloom. He couldn't or wouldn't get that dream out of his head. Otherwise, he's a nice fellow. Sorry, I couldn't give Dallas a better recommendation, but . .

Corinne's eyes were blurred with tears. She set down in the porch swing and the letter slid to the floor. Just then, her father came out and seeing the letter and thinking it might contain bad news, picked it up and read it. Then he laughed.

"Daddy, are you crazy?" Corinne asked. "No, no." He thumped the letter and laughed again. "Here comes Dallas Cowan." He hurried to meet the young man. "Son, I hear you're a potential orchard man. You dream of having an orchard of your own. Is that right?" Dallas' face turned red. "I have read a lot about orcharding, and I want an apple orchard. But I haven't the money to pay for the land, or trees, or the bees for pollenation," he confessed. Daddy slapped Dallas on the shoulders. "Boy am I lucky! I understand you and my daughter want to get married. Well, I have inherited two hundred acres that is just right for an orchard. I will give you folks this land for a wedding present, and will add money to pay for eight thousand trees and two hundred hives of bees. But, son, it will mean work."

Dallas looked at Corinne, hopefully, and back at her father. "I shall enjoy the work, sir, but Corinne hasn't said yes." Corinne stood up, smiling through tears. "I'll say YES right now," she told him. And when she thought Dallas would take her in his arms and kiss her, he said, "Darling.

FEESERSBURG

We would like to begin our column We would like to begin our column this week by mentioning the fact that a citizen of the world celebrated his 80th birthday this week. We are of course writing about Sir Winston Churchill, prime minister of Great Britain who is considered by many the greatest. Englishman that ever the greatest Englishman that ever lived and by many more as the greatest man alive today. We think he is the only man living with enough political knowledge and experience in international diplomacy to steer the world of people into an era of peace-ful existence. Sir Winston is half ful existence. Sir Winston is hal American and half English which ac counts to some degree for his erratic behavior in his younger days. His wisdom and effective speaking style may come from the fact that all his life he associated with the high and the mighty, the low and the meek. He has seen six Kings and Queens of England mount their thrones and depart. He lived to see England reach the pinnacle of a world power and lived to see America relieve her of that position. Through the turmoil of war and the disillusionment of peace, Sir Winston somehow has managed to keep his humor and sanity, which in the 20th century is not a small achievement in itself. He has survived so much, that we are inclined to be-lieve he is a "Man of Destiny". We know that history and the map of the world would read and look a lot different today if Winston Churchill had not lived so long. To those of us who have lived at the same time as the Prime Minister, we have been exposed to a brilliant mind and and an inspiring character. Truly we have walked with the greatest. The question most families ask themselves these days is: "Can my family afford good health"? How to get adequate medical care for the average American at a price they can afford to pay is one of the hottest domestic issues now shaping up. No domestic issues now shaping up. No one has to be told that medical care has become a real burden for the average wage earner. The Nation's health bill per year stands now at 12 billion dollars. About 90 million Americans have some kind of health or hospital insurance—75 million have none and only 4 million have anything like full insurance protection. Those like full insurance protection. Those who need such protection most have the least of it. Chief reason: ina-bility to pay. Proposals for solving bility to pay.

the problems fall into two major

Those for a national categories. 1. Those for a national system of health insurance based on the social security principle, blocked so far as "socialized medicine" by the 1. Those for a national American Medical Association.

Those to provide a government subsidy for private insurance companies, voluntary health and hospital insurance plans and group health schemes. These, too, have been opposed by the American Medical Association and were killed this year by the Administration. Both political parties are now committed to the principle that all Americans should have access to good health care, regardless of income. Since this principle cannot be supplied without some form of public subsidy, the insurance companies themselves will be forced to accept the governments plan or come up with a petter one. A full pledged national a better one. A full pledged national health insurance plan is in the off-ing, to provide the American family the kind of medical care the government provides for the Armed forces, members of Congress, veterans and merchant seamen. When and if this comes about the American Medical Association and the insurance com-panies can blame no one but themselves. The AMA has done nothing but raise it's fees and fix it so that one can't even go to the corner drug store for Boric Acid without a doctors prescription. Recently I walked into a drug store and asked for a 2 per cent solution of silver nitrate to put into a cow's eyes. I was told that a doctor's prescription was necessary. This is one of the man reasons why the public is becoming more and more disgusted with the AMA.

Legend has it that a farm woman once set a dish heaped with boiled hay before her menfolks. They complained bitterly. "Why, how did I know you'd notice? I've been cooking for you men for twenty years and in all that time I haven't heard a word to let me know you weren't eat-

thoughts are turning to the Christmas holidays. It seems that once the first of December appears on the calendar, Christmas just rushes at us. We hope this year to turn back the clock a little and keep Christmas more like it use to be kept. For one thing the gift giving had just gotten out of hand.

We had been spending too much time on hunting for suitable gifts, wrap-ping them and getting them off that we didn't have time to really get into the spirit of the holiday until it was almost over. This year it is going to be different for we have declared a moriatorium on gift giving just to see how it works out. We want to spend more time listening to Christmas mu-sic, reading the Christmas story and the Christmas Carol by Dickens. We want to attend more Christmas programs in other churches than our own and visit with old friends and neigh bors. We want to recapture the oldfashioned Christmas once again without the commercialism. We are going to try and we will let you know how

Mayor Perry Announces S-D Day

Mayor Raymond J. Perry today proclaimed Wednesday, December 15th as "S-D Day"—or "Safe Driving Day"—and pledged the full support of the city government in making the project a success. He urged all citizens to do their utmost to keep Taneytown entirely free of accidents on December 15th.

"S-D Day" is sponsored by the President's Action Committee for Traffic Safety in cooperation with various national organizations, and State and local officials. It is day to demonstrate that traffic accidents can be reduced materially when all motorists and pedestrians do their part.

Following is the Mayor's proclamation:

"Whereas the President of the United States has asked all Americans to unite in a Nation-wide demonstration that traffic accidents can be avoided if all motorists and pedestrians do their part; and

"Whereas, the Governor of our State has asked all of the communities in Maryland to support this worthy effort;

"Now, therefore, as Mayor of the City of Taneytown, I hereby proclaim December 15th, as 'S-D Day' in this community, and ask all citizens to drive and walk on this day so as to keep the entire 24-hour period free of traffic accidents."

In pledging support for the program Mayor Permander.

In pledging support for the program, Mayor Perry said:

"This is an opportunity for every citizen to join in a common effort against a common enemy: the traffic accident toll. He can help as an individual, and as a member of groups with which he is associated: his church, his PTA, his club or fraternal society, his union, his association—any and all individuals and organizations can and should participate actively.

"Most of us are not aware how serious the traffic accident problem has become, or how much it concerns everyone of us. Yet, there probably is not a man or woman in this community who does not have a neighbor, a friend, or a member of his family who has been injured in a traffic accident at some accidents, or a member of his family who has been injured in a traffic accident at some or a member of his family who has been along time.

"It may sound unbelievable, but it is true, that last year there was an injury in traffic in the United States every 24 seconds. A total of 1,350,000 persons were injured to the point where they were disabled beyond the day of the accident. The price we paid for these accidents, in terms of medical expense, property damage and other costs was roughly $4 billion.

"A problem that takes a toll of these proportions is one that we simply cannot let go unchallenged. That is one of the reasons for 'S-D Day'. This day is designed to make us realize, among other things, that the place to attack the traffic problem is right here in our own community. And, the responsibility rests upon each individual—not 'the other fellow', but you and L."

The Mayor pointed out that experts from all over the country have been studying the traffic problem for many years, and they have worked out certain basic steps which can bring about safety on our streets and highways. "But", Mayor Perry commented, "none of these proven methods can be successful unless there is public support for them. So, I am hopeful that 'S-D' Day,' and the activities which lead up to it, will help us all to realize that traffic safety is something which we must strive for continually. "On this day—Wednesday, December 15th—let us all do the very best we can to give our attention to these things:

"1. Observe the letter and the spirit of all traffic regulations.
"2. Be courteous to every driver and pedestrian—practice sportsmanship.

He had volunteered in May of 1917. But an injured knee, the result of his last game of college football, had disqualified him.

"That knee never bothers me," he told the medical lieutenant who was examining him.

Mr. Bradbury sat at his desk and inspected the tip of his unlit cigar.

"If I let you in with that knee of yours, they'd court martial me," the lieutenant answered.

The day after Pearl Harbor, Mr. Walter Bradbury tried it again.

"You're too old," they told him. And now, as he watched the local American Legion Post parading down the street, he was so tense with frustration that he could hard-

After the parace had ended, (Mr. Bradbury sat at his desk and inspected the tip of his unlit cigar.) Presently there was a knock at his door and he said, "Come in." Ralph Carpenter, the head auditor, entered the president's private office and stood uncomfortably before the desk.

"Yes, Ralph?" Mr. Bradbury

"It's about George," Ralph Carpenter explained. "I wonder if I could have the rest of the week

"Is anything wrong?" Mr. Bradbury asked quickly.

'No, sir," Carpenter replied. "It's just that George is graduating from State College this week. He got straight A's and he's been chosen to give the Valedictorian speech. Naturally, he wants me to come down for the ceremony."

State College was the same school Mr. Bradbury had attended, the school his own boy, Donald, had entered last fall. And now Carpenter's boy was graduating while Donald was quitting school because he had flunked his exams, because he was a failure.

The only thing he had to be proud of was that Donald had made a fine athletic record in high school. Everyone said that Don was sure to be varsity material when he entered State. That, too, had ended in disappointment.

Mr. Bradbury looked up at his chief auditor. "All right, Ralph," he said. "Take as much time as you need and enjoy yourself."

Ralph Carpenter fidgeted uncomfortably as though there was something he wanted to say and did not know quite how to say it.

"I was thinking," he murmured, "that perhaps you would like to come with me. I understand your boy is a State too.'

'He was at State," Mr. Bradbury corrected. "The whole town will know it pretty soon so you might as well know it now. He flunked his exams."

"I-I don't know what to say, sir," Ralph Carpenter mumbled. "If there's anything I can-"

He was interrupted by a knock at the door. "I'll go now," Carpenter said.

obviously glad of an excuse to "Wait," Mr. Bradbury said. He turned in his swivel chair and called, "Come in."

The door was opened by one of the junior clerks. He handed a telegram to Walter Bradbury and left the room without speaking.

Mr. Bradbury tore open the telegram. He read it through three times and then his lips parted in a smile. "It's from Don," he said, "and I think, Ralph, maybe I'll go down to State with you after all." "Good news?" Ralph Carpenter asked cautiously.

"Very good news," he said, spreading out the telegram and reading it again, "Don has enlisted in the navy."

He leaned back in his chair and lit his cigar. In a way, Mr. Walter Bradbury felt very proud. It was like getting a second chance -a chance to serve his country.

WOMAN'S WORLD

Clever Decorations Are Often Simple, Inexpensive Ideas

EYE-CATCHING decorative ideas are often the result of imagination more than money. If you study some of the following tricks which have been used, they'll probably lend themselves to your home or may tickle the imagination to something equally effective for your particular use.

There's nothing static about today's furniture, for example. You may take old pieces or unfinished pieces and work them out to look really expensive and stunning.

Need a chest for dining room, bedroom or hall? Start with an old or unfinished piece and cover Bedspread and draperies in this entirely new effect are called Fiesta. Three rows of self-tone bullion fringe are used on both bedspread and drapes. Eleven distinctive colors are available including emerald, brass, rosepink and charcoal. Made with rounded corners, the spread is completely washable (colorfast and pre-shrunk), lintless and requires no ironing.

with a paper in a Chinese motif. The top can be finished plain or antique, and paper and all may have a final coat of clear-satinfinish varnish for easy wear, easy

Cabinet Decor Another idea is to combine a chest with a hanging shelf. These can be unfinished pieces or pieces with old finish removed painted to match the woodwork in the room. Drawer fronts can be covered in wallpaper left from the walls. The hanging shelf against the wall will look as though it is part of the chest with such a treatment.

If you feel you can't swing a paintbrush around you'll like the idea of using decals for your chest decoration. Many colorful ones are available, appropriate in any room in the home with whatever style of decoration is best for you.

Here's an idea that's practical for chests as well as other pieces of furniture such as bookcases or cabinets. Finish the outside of the piece in natural, then paint insides of bookshelves or doors or drawers in paint to go with the room color.

Cozy Kitchens

Problem windows above the kitchen sink which don't take to draperies or curtains will become an asset if you mount colorful plants there. Train the plants to grow up and across the top of the windows by taping the vine or stems in the direction desired.

A kitchen corner with a table can become attractive with a good color combination. Paint table and chairs a bright blue, for example, and cover the chair seats with cushions in a cherry red. For the wall nearest the table, have narrow shelves to display plates, figures or a collection of salt and pepper shakers.

If plants are your hobby, install glass shelves by screwing ratchet strips to the sides of the casing and thus make it a diplay for your greenery. If desired, use wood shelves cut as wide as needed and support them with screw eyes.

Desserts Essential To Most Meals .

Desserts are essential to menus because they add the smooth, filling touch. The sugar and starch, or carbohydrate, as it's called by nutritionists is essential to diet to give a feeling of well being.

PEACH-CREAM CRISP (Serves 6) 1 No. 21/2 size can peaches, sliced

34 cup quick-cooking oats ½ cup brown sugar ½ cup flour 1/3 cup butter or substitute

Arrange peaches in greased 8inch round pan. Combine sugar, oats, flour and butter. Spread over peaches. Bake in a moderate (350°F.) oven about 30 minutes. Top with additional peaches. Serve warm with whipped cream.

SUNDAE TARTS (Makes 5) 2 tablespoons butter 12 marshmallows 1/4 teaspoon vanilla 3 ounces crisp rice cereal Combine butter and marshmallows in top part of double boiler. Melt over hot water. Add vanilla and blend well. Pour in cereal and toss well. Mold in small buttered pie pans. Chill. To serve fill with scoops of ice cream, drizzled with chocolate sauce.

SILVER SPRINGS As Seen by Pastor Owen

When we planned the summer trip to Florida we asked a number of people who had been to the state to tell us the most important places to see. Each one mentioned many places but everyone said "Silver Springs!" It is located on the interior of the state slightly north of center. Here is one place which shows that Florida is already a year-round tourist resort. For Silver Springs was crowded in August and business was thriving and the filled boats were humming. Here another observation became evident also, namely, that many of the most attractive tourists resorts are not on the seacoast but in the inter-

Silver Springs is said to be the largest spring in the world. It partakes of the nature of a geyser, however. As a natural river wonder in the south it becomes an easy match for Niagara Falls in the north and The Grand Canyon of the west. The peculiar wonder here is that a big river gushes up from nowhere out of a hole in the ground and flows swiftly away toward the sea. The first nine miles of the river is thru a tangle of moss-hanging jungle. The famous stream which is well named "Silver River!" is big enough and deep enough for pavigation enough for navigation.

The river comes from a series of holes in the ground called wells. Up thru these wells the crystal clear water rushes in great profusion. These holes range in depth from about 30 to 80 ft. The bowl of the largest one is 300 feet in diameter. This one is given the romantic name of "bridal chamber" from the legend that a lover went to his death to join his flance buried therein. You are supposed to see their petrified bodies embraced on the floor below. In another of the wells nearby you see a skeleton of a dinosaur, the huge pre-historic reptile, and a sunken boat supposed to have been lost by LaSalle. The sparkling water is so clear that you readily see the bottom everywhere and the many underwater formations and life. A large pavilion is located at the head of the river where tickets for the glass bottom boats can be se-

A series of three boat trips by which to see the underwater fairy-land, is the main attraction. These series of three boat trips by boats are driven by electricity to avoid H program. the disturbing noise. The first boat trip is a tour of the wells from which the water comes. These wells usually filled with fish, have fancy names to describe their wonder. In addition to the Bridal Chamber, mentioned above, are such names and polyce. ed above, are such names as Devil' Kitchen, Garden of Eden, and Catfish Hotel. The latter is black with big catfish. You can easily see abundant fish everywhere thru the glass bottom.

They come up and eat out of your hand. For this is a fresh water stream where fishing is prohibited.

I asked the guide if the catfish made their permanent home in Catfish Hotel. He said, yes, that they may wander a short distance away but they came back home. That seemed to be true of all the wild life. Then the guide threw in a firm ball of food to guide threw in a firm ball of food to the catfish to demonstrate a replica of the Harvard and Yale foot ball game The big fish lined up in two teams and went after the ball. Finally one big fellow seized the ball and broke out nto the clear and raced for the touch down where he gobbled up the ball as his reward for the victory.

The second boat trip was in a kind of submarine with glass sides and will meet at the home of Jack and bottom under the water. Here the underwater pictures can be taken.

tile life could be seen along the way The most conspicuous were the tur tles on the logs, row after row. The most interest was the tribe of wild monkeys in the jungle along the river They would come out on the limbs overhanging the river and act as good ball players in catching everything thrown to them. These monkeys are not native to Florida, but they thrive here in a jungle similar to their native haunts in the old world. The guide pointed out the place where some of the African Tarzan pictures and many of the underwater movies were made. The first European to visit Silver Springs was said to be DeSoto. Ponce deLeon and LaSalle, explorers of Florida, also visited the place and were captivated by its wonders. Local legend claims that this was the supposed Fountain of Youth for which Ponce de Leon searched, although many other places make the same

In 1845 James Rogers bought Silver Springs for $100. Now it could not be bought for a $ million. Today something like a million tourists per year visit the place. And it is not a cheap place to see. These come from all over the world.

Where all this water comes from is a mystery. Geologists try to explain it. But when you read their explanations, which are complicated and not always convincing, you are still left in mystery. Nearly a billion gallons of water per day rushes up out of a hole in the ground. Where does it come from?

A number of other interests of unusual merit are also found at Silver Springs. One is the famous Reptile Mr. and Mrs. John D. Young, who Institute operated by Ross Allen. It is said to be the largest in the world ganize our Group. and to contain almost every reptile known. Tours thru the reptile pens and animal cages, are conducted every the rattle snakes in his venom laboratory. That seemed easy to do. But he refused to let me try it. Then he hooks the fangs over a glass into which the poison flows In one pen he picked up a big python about 8 feet long. He said that the snake was harmless and called for the volunteer to come in and handle it. I volunteered and had my picture taken with the python around my neck and in my hands. After this a small boy volunteered. He was so small and the snake so large that he had to wrap the creature twice around his neck before the boy could hold the snake in his hands for the picture.

You leave Silver Springs with a happy memory that you have seen one of natures greatest wonders.

Out of Depths

Lesson for December 5, 1954

THE worst trouble is not what most people think. When you say "if the worst comes to the worst," what do you mean? You usually mean that if it comes to Josing your job, or if we are defeated in war, or if you lose your health, or die. The inspired men who wrote the Bible did not think such events were good; they did not pray

Breaking With God But what happens when a man cannot feel that he is on God's side? How does it feel to know God is against you, not for you? How does it feel to be on the other side of a wall from God? Some of the Psalmists had been through an experience which we call by the simple name of Sin. Now sin is not merely single acts, it is the whole dark business of breaking with God. Sin is the state of things when a man and God are no longer partners. Sin is losing the one support a man can count on in time of trouble. If the worst comes to the worst, it is not death or pain or failure that is most to be feared, it is being loose and lost in the world without God, God never breaks with a man unless the man has broken first. But when a man has as good as acted as if there was no God at all; when he has as good as said to God, "Go your way and I'll go mine"; when he has done what God does not want done and failed to do what God wants done; when he has refused God's help, refused to associate with God's people, refused even to speak to God, what can God do with such a man? He could blast him out of existence in a twinkling, or he could compel his obedience; but God does not operate that way. In the simple, chilling words of St. Paul (Romans 1) Ged "gives up" such a man. He lets the man go his own way.

Without Hope So long as a man is unaware of his sin in God's sight, he can be pretty gay. A good many jolly people have gone the broad road to destruction. But once a man begins to see that there is a break between him and God, once he realizes what he has done, he enters the most terrifying experience it is possible for human beings to have. For now he knows ... and how can he mend it? How can be come back? If God were his friend he would not fear any enemy, any trouble, any disaster. Even death would only bring him to the presence of his heavenly Father. But what if he has thrown away and despised the friendship of God? What if death only brings him face to face with the condemning judge? A man who has become aware of what sin is, what his own sin is, knows that unless God can do something about it, he is without hope in this world or the next. It is of no use to believe in the victory of eternal love if he himself has been fighting on the wrong side. Even if he makes a complete turn-about this very day, what about all the worse-than-wasted days before? He has done the damage, he has let loose evil in the world. Unless God comes to his rescue he is truly lost; but what claim has he on God? Why should God bother with him, a man who has never bothered about God? 'Thou Hast Delivered My Soul'

Those who have known and loved God best have thanked him for many blessings; but like the Psalmists of old, the greatest blessing and the one which underlies all others and makes them bright, is the forgiving love of God. God's forgiveness is not at all the same thing as looking the other way as a careless policeman might when a driver runs through a red light. It is not God's saying that it really makes no difference. It is God's unconquerable love reaching across the gulf between himself and us who have sinned. Three things we need to remember about this: one is that God's forgiveness is never forced on any one, never promised to those who do not turn from their sins to God. One is that when a man has known the real forgiveness of God he shows it in a changed life. (Based on outlines copyrighted by the Division of Christian Education, National Council of the Churches of Christ in the U. S. A. Released by Community Press Service.)

ANSWER ME. O LORD, LEST MY ENEMY PREVAILS

Psalm Thirteen

How long time does seem how slow seemingly is help in coming, how unconcerned apparently is one who should be interested, how far distant unnecessarily is a friend, when one is depressed, oppressed, and sees no avenue of escape, except through the intervention of the one in whom he had put his trust!

The impatience of the Psalmist is hinted in the fourfold "How long" of the Psalm. How long, O Lord? Wilt

Thou forget me for ever?
How long wilt thou hide thy face from me? How long must I bear pain in my soul, And have sorrow in my heart all the day?

How long shall my enemy be exalted over me?

personal enemy is the occasion for this lament. Like a spoiled child, the Psalmist wanted attention, he was frightened. He as much as said, Lord, want you to notice me. I need you. I want you to come to my rescue. He complained in the face of what he thought was God's negligence. There are those who must be heard immidiately. There are those who seem to think the primary use of the Lord is to get them out of trouble even when they are not aversed to getting into trouble.

The Psalmist was in spiritual agony. He was experiencing growing pains of soul. His enemy appears to be getting the better of him, and David was feeling the bitterness of it. He was tasting some of his own medicine, and it was distasteful. He would have the Lord sweeten the situation

Do you believe that the Psalmist was impatient, and taking the Lord to task for his neglest, or was his suffering unbearable that he could endure no longer, or was he fearful that his enemy might win over him?

As in a dying breath, Lord, do not let my request fall on deaf ears. Come quickly lest I become exhausted, and my enemy shall be exalted over me. "Consider" me, "answer" me, "lighten me" cries the soul to God. Side with me, put a glow of light in my eye, and a gleam of hope in my heart, that my adversary won't have reason for rejoicing. I shall die unless I find help in thee.

Then in a radiant moment as though new strength possessed him, there was the enunciation of a note of appraisal of God, of the anticipation of victory, and the exclamation of a song of thanksgiving and rejoicing. But I have trusted in thy steadfast

A lucky guy and handsome, I, With hair so thick and curly;

And hardly ever surly,, If I could lose Those AM. blues From getting up so early.

A minor favor, surely!) I'd just as soon Sleep on till noon (And even that's too early!)

If I could choose my hours of snooze

"Heavy-duty" grade brake fluid is put in new cars on the assembly line and service manuals recommend the car owner do likewise when additional fluid is required.

The so-called "moderate-duty" variety of brake fluid is normally O.K. if it states on the label-"Meets or Exceeds SAE Specification 70R2." However, heavyduty fluid provides the motorist with an important additional margin of safety. It, too, should meet the standards set by the Society of Automotive Engineers. Otherwise the motorist is inviting brake failure, according to Du Pont automotive authorities. Sub-standard fluid may boil, freeze, corrode parts. Many accidents are traceable to these causes.
