BANQUET HELD

Teachers and Officers Dine at Trinity Lutheran

The annual Covered Dish Social of the Teachers and Officers of Trinity Lutheran Church was held on Tuesday evening. Mrs. Ernest Dunbar, acting as hostess, greeted the guests as they arrived. At six-thirty, those assembled sat down to a bountiful supper, served by a committee of the Mite Society. The tables were beautifully decorated with red and white candles and a centerpiece of red and white flowers. Napkins also carried out the suggestion of Valentine's Day.

At the head table were seated Dr. Frank Fife, President of Maryland Synod, Rev. and Mrs. Glenn L. Stahl, Henry Reindollar, General Superintendent who also acted as toastmaster, Mr. Merwyn Fuss, Mrs. Elwood Baumgardner, George Naylor, Mrs. Robert Clingan, Jr., Daniel Nail, Glenn Bollinger, Wm. Hopkins, Jr., and John Skiles. The blessing was asked by Pastor Stahl, group singing was led by Mr. David Smith, with Miss Hazel Hess as accompanist.

After the supper, Dr. Fife gave a short talk setting forth some reasons for and some against being a Sunday School teacher. Two songs were then delightfully sung by Miss Jane Gilds, accompanied by Miss Hazel Hess. Henry Reindollar, as General Superintendent gave some valuable ideas regarding our Sunday School and suggestions for its growth. Others who spoke briefly were Mr. Clyde Hesson, Mrs. Elvin Bair, Wm. Hopkins, Mrs. Betty Sell, Mrs. Nadine Riffe and Miss Belva Koons. Pastor Stahl held a panel discussion on Mistakes in Teaching. Mrs. Elwood Baumgardner spoke for the teacher and George Naylor from the view point of the pupil. A skit by Mrs. Robert Clingan, Jr. entitled "Teaching a Sunday School Class" brought out the ideas of the two previous speakers. Pastor Stahl suggested 1. That the teacher should know himself. 2. That we should know the pupils we are teaching. 3. Know the material in the light of its relationship to the church. 4. Acquaint yourself with collateral material. Surround yourself with the atmosphere of learning. Questions and suggestions were given by several of the teachers which created discussion which was both helpful and interesting. A vote of thanks was given the committee who had planned and served the meal.

Mrs. Claude Derr, chairman, Mrs. Luther Luckenbaugh, Mrs. Cleve LeGore, Mrs. Paul Bankert, Mrs. Geary Bowers, Mrs. Bessie Freet, Mrs. Margaret Nelson, Mrs. Maurice Baker, Mrs. David Smith, Mrs. Walter Hilterbrick and Mrs. Mary Shorb. There were sixty present.

ALEXANDER HONORED

Andrew D. Alexander, senior student at Oklahoma A&M college from Taneytown, Md., has been listed in "Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges." Alexander's recognition was based on his outstanding leadership, scholastic achievement and activities on the campus, according to Dr. J. N. Baker, dean of students at A&M.

Alexander is an agricultural journalism major and has served as social chairman of the Student Union Activities board, treasurer of Religious Emphasis week, reporter for Block and Bridle, vice-president of Aggie Society, advertising manager of the Oklahoma Agriculturist magazine, social chairman for Alpha Gamma Rho social fraternity, and is a member of Alpha Zeta and Blue Key. He also won top honors on the A&M meats judging team which won first place in collegiate competition at the International Livestock show, Chicago. He was a Danforth scholar as a freshman.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Alexander of Taneytown.

FREQUENT TANEYTOWN VISITOR TO RECEIVE DISCHARGE FROM ARMED FORCES

Sgt. William Livesay, Radio Tech. Aberdeen Proving Grounds, spent the week end with his aunt, Mrs. Nelson Bell and visited his friends and other relatives in and near Taneytown. Sgt. He will receive his discharge in Dover, Del., this week and after a visit with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Livesay, Blackwater, Va., will report for work with the TV Radio Station, Johnson City, Tenn., where he has a position as engineer. Good luck and best wishes, Bill, from your friends and relatives in Maryland.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE MET

The Taneytown Chamber of Commerce held its regular meeting on Monday evening in the Firemen's building.

Officers for the Chamber were installed.

Mr. Ernest W. Dunbar was the speaker and showed pictures of his recent trip to Europe.

A WEDDING RECEPTION

A wedding reception was held Sunday at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Rohrbach, George Street, in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Larry Graybill, who were recently married. About 70 guests were present to wish the happy couple their best wishes. Delicious refreshments were served. The bride and groom received many lovely gifts.

MOTHERS MARCH

ON POLIO

Drive Will Be Held Monday Evening

On this Monday evening, Jan. 31 between the hours of 7 and 8 p. m. the 4th Mothers' March will take place. So please remember to turn your porch light on or put a light in your window. If you have neither of these please get in touch with the worker on your street and if she should be missed you call her or 5971 and someone will call for your donation.

Any organization who wishes to contribute to the March of Dimes and have not done so, make your checks payable to: March of Dimes and mail to Francis E. Lookingbill before Feb. 15th as all money will be turned in on this day.

Following is the list of Mothers' March workers. Please check who the woman or mother is for your street and give your donation to her as she will have the official scroll.

Fairground Ave., Mrs. June Eyer; East Balto., Mrs. T. O. Brown; Mrs. Jean Harman; Mill Ave., corner Mill Ave., and Geo. St. to Square, Mrs. Raymond Haines; George St., Mrs. Ruth Fowler; Middle St., Mrs. Carroll Wantz; York St., Mrs. Romaine Motter; Fairview Ave. and Commerce St., Mrs. Richard Etzler; Frederick St., Mrs. Thomas Baker; West Balto., Mrs. Lorraine Wilson; Mrs. Neal Powell; Saubles, Mrs. Frank Wargny; Carroll Heights, Broad St., Franklin St., and Robert Mills Rd., Mrs. Arthur Garvin, Jr.

"The light on your porch that evening will be the signal to the mother marching in your neighborhood to stop at your house and receive your contribution," said Mrs. John S. Gardner, chairman of women's activities in Maryland.

"The light on your porch," she continued, "will be the light fighting polio. Perhaps you've given once to the 1955 March of Dimes, but stop and think of the thousands of American homes in which children must walk with the aid of metal leg braces and crutches, and give again. The March of Dimes is always there, giving aid to the polio patient, providing financial help for hospitals, nurses, therapists and equipment."

Mrs. Gardner also pointed out the research programs now being conducted by the March of Dimes but stressed the fact that, before a polio vaccine is available, more Americans will be hit by polio.

"Even if the Salk polio vaccine is proved effective against paralytic polio," she said, "there are others for whom the preventive will come too late. It is these people whom we must remember."

Meanwhile, former U. S. Senator George L. Radcliffe, State chairman of the March of Dimes, said that reports coming in from the various counties indicate successful drives throughout Maryland.

"Volunteers," he reported, "are full of ideas for promoting the campaign and many committees throughout the State are functioning well."

March of Dimes films have been distributed to motion picture theatres throughout the State, and theatre collections are now in full swing, according to Wilbert M. Brizendine, March of Dimes chairman for the Allied Motion Picture Theatre Owners of Maryland and chairman of the Theatre Committee for the drive.

Maryland teen-agers, too, have joined the 1955 drive led by Miss Phyllis Leftwich, State chairman of Teens Against Polio and "Miss Maryland of 1955."

"Youth, organized for the first time on a national basis, is officially represented by a new volunteer group," Mr. Radcliffe said. "This means increased participation of teen-agers in the two major programs of the March of Dimes—polio prevention and patient aid."

Teens in every Maryland County have banded together in sales of "Fight Polio" balloons and lapel emblems in the form of a crutch. In addition, individual teen-agers and teen organizations have planned March of Dimes benefits, which range from "record hops" to "white elephant" sales.

Sports events, sponsored by local organizations, are also bringing in March of Dimes funds. In Baltimore, a wrestling match, sponsored by the Loyal Order of Moose, was held last week with proceeds going to Baltimore County and Baltimore City.

This year, leaders in every community of the State are cooperating in the campaign," Mr. Radcliffe said. "However, let's make the job in 1955 a better job, for we all know it's a bigger one."

LIONS CLUB MEETS

Prof. Paul King, Littlestown, was the speaker at the meeting of the Lions Club held at Taney Inn Tuesday night. Raymond Perry, 1st v. president was in charge of the program. The group singing was led by Homer Myers. "A Hobby of Mine" was the topic King spoke on, concerning the life of the honeybee. A new member, Lewis Baer, was installed at the meeting.

V. F. W. NEWS

Special Observance This Week

In hundreds of communities in the United States, and in some foreign lands too where VFW operates, people by the thousands are joined together in paying tribute to the works of the Veterans of Foreign Wars during this special week.

We are the oldest of all the large veteran organizations. Our founding was 'way back in 1899—56 years ago—shortly after the shooting stopped in the Spanish-American War.

The men who returned from that war found that, apparently the government and the people had forgotten them.

So they organized to campaign for themselves and thus was born the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States.

Today when a veteran returns from war he has the advantages of hospitalization, medical care, opportunities to finish an interrupted education, also employment assistance, compensation if he is disabled, a pension if he is entitled to it. And his dependents are well taken care of, too.

Literally millions of our comrades-in-arms in the various wars seem to take the position that the many benefits now accruing to them and to their dependents came about automatically, with no effort on anyone's part. They fail to assign the credit to the forces that have been at work for them over the years.

Apathy on the part of the veteran—his failure to recognize that all the benefits came through organizations and were not, by any means, "automatic"—his failure to appreciate that there are forces at work day and night, making possible these various benefits.

These non-belongers are referred to by some as "free-riders"—"free-riders" because while they contribute nothing to the effort yet they share with the organized in all the privileges organizations have made possible for the veteran and those dependent upon him.

Some people refer to "veterans" organizations as selfish groups primarily interested in veterans.

The Veterans of Foreign Wars is proud of its achievements in many fields.

The Veterans of Foreign Wars and its Ladies' Auxiliary, provide benefits for thousands of individuals who are "not" members of our organization.

Direct benefit to neighborhoods—also to schools, churches and other organizations—and to individuals not affiliated with the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

If you are a veteran receiving veterans' benefits, show your appreciation by joining a veterans' organization.

The VFW in this community is Monocacy Valley Memorial Post 6918, Harney, Md. Small in membership, but strong in faith in God and the Veterans of Foreign Wars. We are proud of our achievements in the past few years. With our new home and plans for expansion in the near future.

In observance of National VFW week this post will have open house Jan. 29th, 1955. The members of this post extend an invitation to you, the public to be their guests. We also extend a special invitation to other organizations to meet with us at any time to discuss any activities for the benefit of the community.

The members of this post and its Ladies' Auxiliary again invite you to be their guests, Saturday, Jan. 29th, 1955.

THE AUTO SHOW!

"June in January" and "Spring is Bursting out All Over"—that is truly it down in the Fifth Regiment Armory in Baltimore for 1955 Automobile Show which opened on Saturday and will remain until this coming Saturday.

There is nothing that is more fascinating to this Columbian than an Auto Show. This year tops all other years as to decoration and individuality!

Seeing last year's show, I thought there simply could not be any further advancement. The entire Armory was "Breath Taking" with its very colorful display with all the Wisteria around. Looking upward it appears like the sky, in all pastel shades of blue. It is truly the last word in beauty and perfection! Congratulations to the new President—a local auto dealer, Mr. Joseph J. Rochitz!

There were about 150 new models including 18 different American makes and a number of Foreign makes.

Many Models were shown in three tone colors and all colors as to real Pastels! One car appeared as a candy colored affair. "Ford" showed the one called, Fairlane" which was a light lilac with white and the same color scheme interior.

The "HUDSON" seemed to be more progressive in year's time than all other makes although they have always been noted for the beautifully substantially built car.

The "Mercury" Station Wagon was something really to gaze upon and even other auto dealers admitted to me in the interviews that the "Mercury" Station Wagon is "TOPS"!

Along the row were the old cars of the years of 1900—"Maryland"—(never heard of that one until this year), then came the 1903 "Willys" the "Hupmobile" of 1909—Ford with a 1915 Model and "Locomobile" of 1915 and of course a Model which was a scream of the Buick of 1905 all by itself! All makes were about 3 inches wider and lower built. The Pastel colors appeared to be brighter shades than last year.

Chrysler appeared still beautifully built and powerful but the colors were most hideous which detracted from the wonderful make.

An old company was advertising oil and had a Rhode Island Chicken actually running to make a "home run" by pulling at a bat and the ball being thrown then on the board landed the food in the pit and the chicken would immediately go after it! That was called, "KNEW HOW"! Cute?

The License plate this year is most attractive Red Numbers on a white background! Most all headlights are different this year by being fully canopied on the top to throw all the light forward instead of upward. That is a big feature.

The Dodge car had a very special feature—the entire front part of the hood covered with a very wide piece of Chromium.

When one gazes at the models of yesterday, it does not seem possible that anyone rode in them yet that was the very beginning as anything and everything else in life—nothing stands still!

Very few blacks were shown in the new cars in fact they appeared dull and drab in comparison to the new cars. (Regardless of their high lustre).

It was bringing back the old black cook stove to the white and modern gas or electric one of today which glamorizes any kitchen regardless of the size of the room. It really is more color this year at the Armory than ever before! Some of the Chevy Models are completely new.

I could write on and on about the cars and show! If you have not visited an auto show begin this week and after you see it all once you will not miss one year in the future. It is down right educational!

Returning stopped by the "Hillendale" market centre and I entered the huge, lovely, new Murphy five and dime. As I walked up the aisle, I heard hurrying footsteps behind me and suddenly I heard my name and there was that nice young man who was the assistant Buyer in Westminster four years ago! He is the Buyer and Manager now of this new enterprise. The many questions that I asked and to top one off was—"How is Caruso?" He was the one who sold the Canary to me while he was in Westminster and then I told him that we now have another, "Mario Lanza!" (also bought at Murphy's on Harford Road!)

Imogene Coca always says, "Ain't this a small world?" That was it meeting that nice young man and here's hoping he will be one of the real big Guys some day!

See you next week. D.V. and whatever you do as soon as you read this Column run right down to that glamorous Auto Show! So long! And be careful when you drive! I am,
Faithfully,
YOUR OBSERVER.

NO SUBSTITUTE FOR LOCAL PAPER

The surest way to develop the local community and create permanent prosperity is to encourage the building up of steady payrolls.

Information that shows the individual his interest in productive enterprise is indispensable to the sound solution of questions that encourage the establishment or growth of industries and business.

Just as industries bring business to every store, so do they make possible advertising and subscribers upon which the local newspaper depends, and herein lies the interest of editors in the problems of industry.

That this philosophy is sound and has a direct bearing on the prosperity of every community, every business and every individual is evidenced by figures released by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States covering the period from 1940 to 1950. They show that for every 100 new industrial workers in nine counties surveyed by the Chamber, retail sales zoomed $360,000, personal income $590,000, and bank deposits $270,000.

An increase of 100 industrial workers meant 174 new jobs in other lines of work, 112 more households and a population increase of 296—new purchasers of all manner of goods and services. The survey covered a ten year period and was designed to measure the impact of new industry on local business.

The problems of industry are the problems of the people. They involve the welfare of the publisher, who is the spokesman for the people and every business in the community.

People rely heavily on the home town paper. No other agency is substitute for it. From politics, deaths, births and editorial comment on public issues, local and national, to household recipes, the grass roots press informs its subscribers.

It is the newspaper that people live with, sit down with, and study. Its editorials help its readers formulate their own conclusion on current issues—not necessarily in agreement with the editor. It is therefore logical that editors should take the lead in discussing issues which involve production and payrolls—bread and butter for all.—Industrial News Review.

GRASS ROOTS OPINION

WEST POINT, MISS., DAILY TIMES LEADER: "TVA rates are 'cheap' only because those of us who are TVA customers are subsidized by the rest of the nation. We should look beyond our own pocketbooks to see that there is no fairness to it. The authority pays no interest on its huge investment, pays no federal taxes, and makes only small token payments in lieu of taxes to state and local governments"

CARLSBAD, N. M. CURRENT-ARGUS: "Rather than boast about how much federal expenditures mean to the state, we should bend our energies to see that a more firm footing for prosperity is laid—in tax-paying industry instead of tax-eating federal pap."

ABILENE, KAN., DAILY REFLECTOR-CHRONICLE: "West Germany and the free world join in extending congratulations and best wishes to Chancellor Konrad Adenauer on his seventy-ninth birthday. After World War II and the years of disgrace under Hitler all of Germany was in ruins—spiritually as well as physically. It was Adenauer who moved among the wreckage—rebuilding the spirit of his people along democratic lines. Germans and free men everywhere are grateful for what he has done."

SHORT STORY

SHORT

First Fish

By Patricia Harsh

"FISHING is an art, boy," Bennie had heard Uncle Bill say that at least a million times, he guessed. But he still hadn't learned the art. At any rate, he still hadn't caught his first fish.

Bennie had been up at day-break that first day. He was going to catch a fish for breakfast. It was four hours later, long after breakfast, that his small figure, looking even smaller came into the house dragging one foot after the other with great effort.

They didn't have to ask. It was written plainly on his dust streaked face.

"Well, shucks," Uncle Bill said. "It takes time, Bennie boy. You can't learn the first day."

He bought dozens of magazines on the art of angling, the proper type of equipment, and all the finer points of becoming a successful fisherman. He had boasted to the boys at school that he would send them pictures of his strings of fish.

"Strings!" Bennie kicked at a rock by the river. "I'd give anything for just one fish."

"Strings!" Bennie kicked at a rock by the river. "Heck, I'd give anything for just one fish."

Uncle Bill had been busy, but he had taken time out to show Bennie just how to approach a pool, how to bait the hook, and how to drop the line into the water making only the smallest ripple.

He had handed the pole to Bennie once, after he felt the first timid nibble. "You try your luck, Bennie," he had said. But Bennie knew. The jerking on the line had come too soon.

"Take your old fish," Bennie had cried as he turned and ran from the river bank. Later he came into the house and apologized. Salty streams had washed the dust off Bennie's cheeks and Uncle Bill and Aunt Peg knew that Bennie had been crying secretly, under some tree away from the house. A twelve-year-old boy doesn't cry, so they pretended not to notice.

"Here, Bennie, take this pole of mine and try your luck." Uncle Bill brought out his own special outfit. Bennie felt a lump crawl up into his throat. He knew how much Uncle Bill valued his pole.

"No thanks, Uncle Bill," Bennie said. "I guess I'll give up fishing for a while." He shoved his hands into the pockets of his blue jeans and dragged his feet over to look at the horses.

The next morning Bennie again shouldered the fishing pole and with but little spring to his step, he started out toward the river. "Bennie," Uncle Bill called. "You try that little pool by the old mill. The one under the willows where it's nice and quiet. That may be just the spot."

It was nearly dinner time when Bennie came running up the lane to the white house. He was trying to be calm, but his face was shining and his eyes sparkled. He held up a good size fish and grinned all over.

Aunt Peg took the fish and told Bennie she would fix it for his dinner. But not until after Uncle Bill had taken a picture of a proud boy and his first fish. While Bennie was washing up, Uncle Bill whispered to Aunt Peg. "Now don't you ever let on that you know I put some fish in that pond. It would break the boy's heart to know I kinda tricked him."

After dinner, the most delicious dinner Bennie could ever remember, he helped Aunt Peg clear up the kitchen. He came close to her and said in a loud whisper, "Aunt Peg, don't tell Uncle Bill, but I didn't fish in the pool he told me to. Heck, I've tried it a million times. There's no fish there. But I wouldn't want him to think I didn't take his advice. You know what a good fisherman he is."

Aunt Peg dried her hands on her apron, gave Bennie a warm hug, "I promise, honey," she said. "Everyone has secrets sometimes."

WOMAN'S WORLD

Hair Conditioner Will Bring Life To Drab, Dull Hair

ONE of the items on every woman's list of things to do currently is "something for the hair." The season is a new one and calls for something special in the way of a hairdress. Perhaps it should be shortened, perhaps just shaped. A new permanent? Perhaps.

At any rate, hair during the Fall and Winter is not just one of those things you let fly around aimlessly. There are holidays and festi-

Your hair can be shimmering, soft and lovely in just a few minutes thanks to a lanolin discovery which conditions and beautifies at the same time. To use it, you simply spray it on and brush.

tivities ahead which have no place in them for hair that looks as though it just came out of a clothes dryer.

Absorbable Lanolin

Hair may have become dry from being out in the sun or because of harsh treatment, wind, rain, bleaches or just simply not proper care. When such things happened formerly, it usually took months for the hair to return to its natural sheen and manageability.

Now you can spray on a hair conditioner after shampoos and when you groom the hair daily to turn it truly into your crowning glory. The ingredient that makes this preparation so good for the hair is lanolin, and lanolin in a form that can be absorbed by the skin so it does the most good. There is no greasy residue left on the hair.

This preparation is not a dye but it will intensify and heighten the natural color of the hair. You can carry the container in your hand bag as well as keeping it on the dressing table because it's applied inconspicuously, just by spraying from a pressure container and quickly brushing through the hair.

Groomed Look Important

Though prevailing styles have the hair fairly short and casual, good-looking heads look well groomed. Some of the styles bear some resemblance to the Italian cut, but they're modified and no longer look messy or helter-skelter.

Keep Cookie Jar Full of Surprises

Cookie jars as well as lunch boxes packed with cookies should occasionally be completely new and surprising. Cookies are delightful tidbits and give enchantment to many an otherwise dull day. Why not try something new?

SPICY PRUNE COCONUT SQUARES

(Makes about 16 squares)
1/2 cup shortening
3/4 cup brown sugar, packed
1 egg
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 1/2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 cup chopped, cooked prunes
1/2 cup shredded coconut
Melt shortening, stir in sugar, add unbeaten egg and vanilla and beat until well blended. Sift flour with baking powder, salt and cinnamon. Blend into first mixture. Turn into greased 9-inch square pan and sprinkle with coconut. Bake in a moderately hot (375° F.) oven about 25 minutes. Cool in pan then cut in squares.

PRALINE COOKIES

3/4 cup sweetened condensed milk
1/2 cup brown sugar
2 tablespoons butter
1 egg, beaten
1/4 cup flour
1 cup chopped nut meats
1/2 teaspoon maple flavoring
Place sweetened condensed milk in top of double boiler. Cook over rapidly boiling water until thick, from 4 to 8 minutes. Remove from heat. Stir in butter, blending well. Cool slightly then gradually stir in beaten egg, flour, nutmeats and flavoring, mixing, well. Drop by spoonfuls on a greased cookie sheet, about 2 inches apart, and spread into 2-inch circles. Bake in a moderate (350° F.) oven until edges are a golden brown, about 15 minutes. Remove quickly from baking sheet.

Get Mother Out Of The Kitchen For A Real Family Holiday

by Ann Brookfield

Time was when many a husband—the old-fashioned type of husband, that is—had an annoying habit of reminiscing about the Good Old Days. "Oh, the delicious old-fashioned holiday dinners Mother used to cook!" he'd begin. And his wife would feel the Holiday spirit ebbing.

"Oh the spicy smell of Grandma's cookies when the frost was on the pumpkin," he'd persist. Then he'd wonder why his spouse seemed so suddenly busy in the kitchen, vehemently banging pots and pans and slamming the oven door.

The modern husband, thank Heaven, knows better. He knows how the whole family can have a traditional Thanksgiving or Christmas dinner—complete with the gleaming silverware laid out on the best tablecloth; the full menu, from turkey to pumpkin pie, served on the best china—without having Mama lift a finger or wash a dish.

No, he doesn't go into the kitchen and cook it himself. That isn't necessary when there are so many really good restaurants nowadays who take as much special care with the serving of holiday dinners as you would in your own home. Most of them serve these festive meals not only on

THE day or days, but during the whole holiday season, so you can go when it suits your family schedule.

When it comes to choosing a restaurant, you'll want a place where the service will fit in with the festive mood of the day. It needn't be an expensive restaurant. There are plenty of moderately priced places where you can be sure of good food, courteously served at an appropriately-set table.

Think back over the restaurants where you've dined during the past year. Mentally score them on these points:

1. Food (Was it good?)
2. Table setting (Was silverware clean, undamaged, matched? Plates, cups and dishes clean and unchipped? Table linens fresh? Enough spoons and forks to go around?)
3. Service (Was the waiter or waitress cheerful and prompt?)

If you know any restaurant that scores a hundred percent on these questions, it's bound to be a good choice for a holiday outing. You'll be glad you gave it some advance thought. After all, when Papa is spending his hard-earned money, it doesn't make sense to pay for shabby service.

An observing resident of Taneytown says that among its inhabitants, there are 32 widows, 11 widowers, and 4 bachelors.

Geo. C. Naylor, of Ladiesburg, purchaser of the Yount property, expects to remove to this place about the middle of March. It is understood that he will open business of some kind—possibly a grocery.

The snow of Tuesday night, while not a deep one, caused more blockaded roads than any snow this winter, due to the very high winds which continued until Thursday. The 4:30 p. m. train on the N. C. R. of Wednesday did not get through until Thursday morning and all day Thursday the train service was practically discontinued, while the Rural Carriers could perform no service.

Conover—Shoemaker.—On Thursday, January 19th, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Grier Shoemaker, was the scene of a very pretty wedding, the contracting parties being their eldest daughter, Miss Marion M. and Mr. Claude C. Conover. Miss Edna Hesson of Baltimore presided at the organ and at exactly 12 o'clock the happy couple entered the parlor to the strains of Lohengrin, attended by Miss Mae Hill, cousin of the bride and Mr. Charles Conover brother of the groom and were made man and wife by Rev. H. P. Sanders, pastor of Piney Creek Presbyterian Church.

Young—Fringer.—The home of Mr. and Mrs. Tobias H. Fringer, near Walnut Grove, was the scene of a very pretty wedding, on Tuesday evening, January 24, 1905, when Mr. Charles W. Young, of Wakefield, was united in holy matrimony to Miss Sarah B. Fringer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Worthington Fringer, of this district. The ceremony was performed under an evergreen wedding bell, by Rev. W. E. Wheeler, the bride's pastor. The wedding march was rendered by Miss Mary Fringer, and the attendants were Misses Daisy Haugh and Effie Fringer, and Messrs. James Rodgers and Birnie Fringer.

D. A. R. MEETING

The William Winchester Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, Mrs. Wesley A. Pickens, Regent, met on Friday at 2 p. m. at the home of Mrs. Wilbur M. Shreeve, Farm Content, Westminster, Md.

Miss M. Louise Matthews, Chaplain, led the members in prayer followed by the pledge of allegiance to the flag and the National Society pledge, "Perpetuate the Spirit of America". Following the reading of the minutes and the treasurer's report, excerpts from the President's General's message were read by the regent, Mrs. Pickens. An article from a current magazine, "Are We Raising our Sons to be Too Soft", was read and discussed. The article raised the question of 1. "Why is our American youth failing to measure up to the military standard of physical strength and endurance" and 2. "Why have some developed an attitude which makes them difficult to train."

Miss Gertrude Carroway, National President, N.S.D.A.R. will be present at the State Conference which will be held at the Sheraton Belvedere Hotel March 31st and April 1st. Delegates elected are Mrs. Wesley A. Pickens, Regent, Mrs. James T. Marsh and Mrs. Allen F. Feeser. Alternates are Miss M. Louise Matthews, Mrs. Wilbur Shreeve and Mrs. Samuel L. Bare. These dates fall on Thursday and Friday and all members are invited to attend the conference.

Mrs. Wesley A. Pickens and Mrs. Allen F. Feeser were elected Delegate and Alternate to the National Congress in Constitution Hall, Washington, D. C., in April.

Mrs. Feeser, Chairman of the Good Citizen's Committee announced that Miss Ruth Ann Runkles, a senior at Mount Airy High School has been named the county Good Citizen. The winning essay, on Benjamin Franklin, was selected from 16 submitted by students from the eight senior High Schools in the county.

Mr. Francis Gates, Principal of Robert Moton School, will again cooperate with the Chapter Americanism Chairman in conducting a scrapbook contest in the school. In former years this contest has gained the interest of many students and the winning books were displayed in the Davis Library. Americanism awards will be presented to the outstanding boy and girl in the Junior class.

All members were invited to attend the Feb. meeting of the Terra Rubra Society C.A.R. at the home of Miss Susan Bare, West Main Street, on Saturday, Feb. 5th, at 1:30 P. M.

Mrs. Edgar G. Barnes, State Registrar, gave an interesting talk on, "Find your Ancestors", stressing the importance of collecting and recording family history whenever it is possible. Many sources of information might furnish facts necessary to complete family histories or lines. Some of these are family bibles, wills, copies of old wills, quit claim, court litigation or land grant records, deeds, military records, tombstones, burial records and many other permanent records such as school, baptismal or church records.

Mrs. John Armacost, mother of the hostess, Mrs. Grace Leroy and Miss Anne Crist were guests attending the meeting. Refreshments were served in the dining room by the hostess assisted by her mother, Mrs. Harry C. Reese, Jr., presided at the table.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Herbert Cover, Feb. 11 at 2 p. m. Miss Elizabeth Simkins, Librarian Western Md. College will be the guest speaker.

There is not the least flower but seems to hold up its head and to look pleasant, in the secret sense of the goodness of its heavenly Maker.—Robert South.

The men of the Lutheran church have completed the Religious Census of Carroll County in the territory allotted to them.

FEEESBURG (A Voice From Carroll)

Last week we wrote in this column that it appeared that the crows had deserted Carroll County and we were wondering what had happened to them. We are glad to be able to report that we have found them and if any farmer has a nice corn field he wants consumed unaided except by crows, all he has to do is journey to the Eastern shore and invite the black feathered pests to return to Carroll.

It seems the nimble witted birds finally took the hint, with the aid of some artillery in the hands of hunters, and found themselves a secluded island named White Poplar in the Chesapeake Bay. There are so many crows there that at roosting time the trees are black with them. Many years ago Poplar Island was a favorite haunt for crows but they finally deserted it for more fruitful feeding places in the counties. This year, once again they have returned to the island. Maybe the counties are becoming too thickly populated (with people) or the farmer, using corn-pickers no longer leaves his corn sitting in shocks most of the winter for the crows to feed on. What ever the reason, most of the crows have given Carroll and Frederick counties the cold shoulder this winter.

We have been informed, for what reason we don't know, that Americans use the telephone 188 million times per day. Some good Americans never use a telephone while others never use anything else. A telephone is a wonderful convenience, but I don't think it was ever meant to take the place of a visit. Those persons are on a party line with four to six other families, but quite a few persons think they have the exclusive rights to the line. Consideration for the rights of others should be the one necessary requirement, that the Telephone company should exact from each subscriber before installing a party line.

The new model cars like shiny new pennies are beginning to look pretty much alike. It is difficult to tell one model from another this year and they are all long, sleek and positively beautiful. The fantastic combination of colors sometimes is really more than the eye can take, but they are easily seen on the highway which is an important safety feature. But we wonder why they (the manufacturers) keep stressing more power in the engines when we do not have the roads now to take care of any greater speeds. Yes, I know, the argument is that you only are supposed to use it when you need it but according to some drivers they always need it even on a blind curve. Anyway—the new cars are beautiful to look at and beautiful to drive. Now all we need are a few beautiful highways to go with them and plenty of sane drivers to use them.

As if teachers and school authorities don't have enough already to contend with we see where they are having quite a controversy in Washington, D. C. over the types of clothing students should wear to school. There are a great many persons who oppose a school uniform or standardization in school uniform or work order in dress, but it has worked out well in schools where it was required. Boys and girls go through a stage where they wish to look alike and act alike. They do not often seek individuality which is one of our best insurance policies. The business meeting was in charge of the president, Mrs. Allen Morelock. It was reported 19 Christmas boxes had been packed for shut-ins. Announcement was made of the World Day of Prayer service which will be held in Grace Lutheran church, Westminster, Friday, Feb. 25, at 8 p. m. It was also announced that our own church will be open during the same day. The secretary, Mrs. Denton Wantz and treasurer, Mrs. William DeGroft reported. MAKING SAFE THE WAY

An old man going a lone highway, Came at the evening, cold and gray To a chasm vast and deep and wide. The old man crossed in the twilight dim

The sullen stream had no fear for him, But he turned when safe on the other side And built a bridge to span the tide.

"Old man," said a fellow Pilgrim near "You are wasting your strength with building here, Your journey will end with the ending day.

You never again will pass this way, You've crossed the chasm deep and wide, Why build you this bridge at eventide?"

The builder lifted his old gray head, "Good friend, in the path I have come" he said, "There followeth after me today A youth whose feet must pass this way,

This chasm that has been as nought to me, To that fair-haired youth may a pitfall be,

He too must cross in the twilight dim, Good friend, I am building this bridge for him".

ALUMNI TEAMS TO SEE ACTION

The Taneytown High School Alumni Boys Basketball team will be quite active the coming month, with seven games already scheduled for the next two weeks. The team, coached by Myron Tracey, has been playing much-improved ball lately now has a 4-4 record. 3 of those 4 losses have been less than 4 points. The team has scheduled a home game for every Wednesday night in the local High School Gymnasium through March.

The girls' team which has been undefeated for several years are finding trouble in scheduling games, due to the scarcity of opposition. The girls will play the preliminary against Union Bridge Alumni at Elmer Wolfe Feb. 7 and again at home on Wednesday, Feb. 16. The schedule for the next two weeks reads:

Feb. 1—Carroll Co. Athletic Association at Westminster. Feb. 2—Hampstead Alumni (Home) Fraternity.) Home. Feb. 4—Quincy Orphanage, at Quincy Wolfe, (Girls and Boys). Feb. 9—Hanover Legion Reserves (Home). Feb. 10—Black and Decker (Home) Feb. 16—Union Bridge, Boys and Girls. (Home).

Let's Think by G. H. ENFIELD

A TEMPLE PSALM

Psalm Fifteen may be called a temple psalm for it had to do with worship at the ancient Jewish Temple in Jerusalem. The chants are divided into three parts.

The first chant was the question by the worshippers at the Temple gate: O Lord, Who shall sojourn in thy tent? Who shall dwell on thy holy hill?

The officiating priest from within chanted the answer in a series of ten requirements. This decalogue (verses 2-5b) halted the worshiper at the entrance to the Temple, and permitted a self-examination to determine whether he possessed those virtues which qualified him to worship Jehovah in spirit and in truth:

He who walks blamelessly, and does what is right, and speaks truth from his heart; Who does not slander with his tongue, and does no evil to his friend, nor takes up a reproach against his neighbor; in whose eyes a reprobate is despised, but who honors those who fear the Lord; who swears to his own hurt and does not change; who does not put out his money at interest, and does not take a bribe against the innocent.

After this assurance of the basis of true worship, the worshippers entered the Temple, chanting the closing line of the Psalm:

He who does these things shall never be moved. "Shall never be moved" because these spiritual qualities must be cultivated; they are not inherent naturally. Their purpose is to motivate action in human relationships.

After twenty centuries of Christian living and teaching, a multitude have not risen as high as the loftiness of these Old Testament ideals, or the ancient Jewish morality.

Two significant words are used in reference to money in the English translation. In the KJV, the word usury is employed. In the RSV, the translation is interest. The latter word conveys the true meaning. Usury means an excessive rate or an illegal rate charged for the use of money. This was not the idea the psalmist had in mind.

In this ancient period, only those who were in destitute circumstances would borrow money, and that would be used to purchase the bare necessities of life. On this ground it was regarded as wrong and sinful to charge interest of one already in such adverse circumstances. A literal interpretation of this phrase in our day would make moral perils of a host of otherwise noble people.

JUDGE BOYLAN SPEAKER FOR P.T.A. AT TANEYTOWN

Judge James E. Boylan, of Westminster, Md., will be the speaker at the regular meeting of the P.T.A. of Taneytown Jr.-Sr. High School, on Tuesday evening, February 1. Judge Boylan, whose work in Carroll County has been outstanding will address the P.T.A. on the subject of "Juvenile Delinquency." All parents and persons interested in youth welfare are urged to be present at this meeting. Grades 11 and 12 will be responsible for furnishing refreshments. Mr. Darrell Nelson is president of the group.

Far Away Places Not Remote for Ham Operators

WASHINGTON—Most of the continents of the world are in unofficial contact these days, linked by a homemade radio network that leaps oceans, crosses political boundaries and joins cities, farms, and man's remotest outposts.

For the enthusiastic "ham" operator, a trip around the world is only as far away as the antenna on the roof.

According to a recent count, there are 117,427 licensed amateur stations under U.S. jurisdiction, operated by an estimated 100,000 hams, some of them owning more than one transmitter. Their largest organization, the American Radio Relay League, celebrates its 30th anniversary in 1954.

Within this country, the flourishing hobby is a vital means of communication whenever hurricanes, floods, snowstorms, explosions, or other emergencies strike. Armed forces, Red Cross, civil defense, and Civil Air Patrol each recognize the value of amateur radio operators and enlist them in well-trained networks. The Military Amateur Radio System alone has over 3,000 members.

On a worldwide basis, American hams easily exchange messages with their counterparts in distant countries with varied dialects. Language barriers mean little, since the International Morse code can be used. Even stations within Russia have acknowledged by mail that American broadcasts were picked up.

One amateur in Peru, Indiana, received an award for having relayed 18,000 messages between lonely servicemen at Arctic weather stations and their families.

No Seasickness On Waikiki Boats

HONOLULU—Hawaii visitors don't have to be swimmers to take to the water at Waikiki.

Along with the flying fish and kawahawa birds, anyone can enjoy skimming the waves beyond the reefs in Catamarans—double-hulled boats so steady the largest of the Waikiki fleet offers to refund ticket prices at the first feeling of seasickness.

Three of the swift boats carry passengers out beyond the surfboard riders to deep blue water and long-distance views of beach hotels and Honolulu's mountain valleys.

Most passengers climb aboard in their bathing suits, and choose fast spray-filled rides when the crew calls a vote on whether the trip should be a gentle, dry one or an all-out try for a speed record.

Ten or 12 knots is an average catamaran speed, but Hawaiian cats have been clocked at over 30 knots.

Thirty-five and forty feet long, the boats carry as many as 20 passengers. Guests start out on the deck or in the cockpit, but when the wind's right, adventure-some youngsters are allowed to straddle the bow of the hulls in seagoing ride-em-cowboy style.

New Equipment Makes Saratoga More Powerful

BROOKLYN—The first sections of the most powerful marine propulsion equipment ever built were lowered recently into the U.S.S. Saratoga. With the same amount of fuel, the new equipment will enable the Saratoga to travel much farther than it could with World War II type equipment.

Because of the use of high pressure and high temperature steam in the turbines, the Saratoga will operate with the greatest efficiency ever attained in a large naval vessel.

The propulsion gears are also of a new design and are 50 per cent lighter overall than had they been built to World War II standards. Notwithstanding their size and rating, the saving in weight alone allows increased ship's capacity for thousands of gallons of aviation fuel and increased cruising radius of the ship.

Here's One Voter Who Believes in Secrecy

CHARLOTTE, N.C.—Some folks carry the theory about a "secret ballot" too far, believes Mrs. R. O. Fortenberry, Mecklenburg Board of Elections clerk. She reported a man telephoned her to inquire, "Am I registered?"

"I'll see," she replied. "Where do you live?"

The man gave an address and Mrs. Fortenberry selected the appropriate registration book.

"What is your name?" she asked.

"That," said the man, "is information I wish to withhold."

A week later she was in serious condition after a brain operation to remove a blood clot that developed after she fell out of a hammock.

WOMAN'S WORLD

Hearty Appetites Are Easily Pleased With Oven Dishes

WHEN sharp winds blow and the family comes home to dinner with hearty appetites, that's the time to feature those so-good dishes right from the oven.

If you're looking for an easily prepared dish that has ingredients in it to delight the family, you'll enjoy these frankfurter pinwheels. They're very tempting served with a pickle sauce, a good teammate with this type of meat.

Frankfurter Pinwheels (Serves 4)

- 4 frankfurters, finely chopped
- 1 (10 1/2-ounce) can condensed cream of mushroom soup
- 1/2 cup chopped parsley
- 1/4 cup chopped canned pimientos
- 1/4 cup sweet pickle relish
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon pepper
- 2 cups biscuit mix
- 1/2 to 3/4 cup milk

Combine frankfurters, 1/2 cup soup (reserving remaining soup for sauce), parsley, pimientos, relish, salt and pepper; mix thoroughly. Combine biscuit mix and milk; mix according to package directions. On lightly floured surface, roll dough into rectangle 1/4-inch thick.

Spread with frankfurter mixture. Roll, jelly roll fashion, and cut into 1/2-inch thick slices. Place, cut side up on greased baking sheet. Bake in hot (425°F.) oven 10 to 15 minutes or until biscuit is lightly browned. Serve with:

PICKLE SAUCE

- Remaining cream of mushroom soup
 - 1/2 cup milk
 - 1 tablespoon butter
 - 1/2 cup sweet pickle relish
 - Salt and pepper to taste
- Combine all ingredients and mix well. Heat to serving temperature.

It's Easy to Solve Make-Up Problems

Every woman has one or several problems which make-up must solve. There are those who wear glasses, those with prominent jawlines, others with too thin or too thick lips. What is to be done for each?

The answer to modifying all these problems needs something special in the way of make-up. First learn what make-up can do for the problem, then practice in front of the mirror to achieve the desired effect. Do this critically and a few attempts will give you success.

Eye Make-Up

Girls who wear glasses, especially when they first start wearing them will notice that eyes are not as prominent as they should be in lending their full beauty to the face. Glasses do form a film over the eye color, as well as the lashes, and this must be accentuated.

Here's a conservative make-up suggestion for eyes which may be used by teen-agers as well as those past their teens. Keep lashes in focus by making them fuller, thicker and prettier by dipping a white cotton ball into powder and press on closed lids before applying mascara.

Select glass frames to follow the natural eye brow line. Darken and fill in the brow if necessary. Feather rouge on with light strokes to blend it well up and under the rim of the glasses. Rouge helps intensify the color of the eyes.

Fade Out Jawline

Square or heavy jawlines can be faded by using base or powder slightly darker than the one ordinarily used on the face. The one shade darker base lends a shadowing effect.

The trick in doing this is to learn to blend the two shades together so well that no demarcation line calls attention to your trickery.

Lipstick Magic

Lips that are too thin must have more fullness penciled or brushed in to make the lips luscious. This is most easily done very carefully with lip brush. Be certain to fill in the portion that is not lip as generously as possible so that you can't tell the difference. Lip lines should be as clean as it's possible to make them.

SHORT STORY

The Pledge

By F. L. Rowley

NO ONE in Hillcrest knew what it was that prompted Red Peepers to divorce himself from that well-worn hip flask. No one, that is, except Sheriff Giles, and he had promised Mrs. Bodkin to keep quiet about the whole embarrassing affair. Not that Mrs. Bodkin would have anything to do with Red Peepers. As far as I know she's never spoken to that gentleman either before or after the Hillside Open-Air Masquerade—yet she was mainly responsible for effecting the much talked about cure.

3-Minute Fiction

Mrs. Bodkin had beautiful hair. Her hair was a favorite topic of conversation at most social gatherings. She'd been congratulated dozens of times on the gleaming black ringlets that circled her queenly brow. Hair styles would come and go but not for Mrs. Bodkin. She looked exactly the same today as she did on that day eight years ago when Peter Bodkin had proudly carried her across the threshold.

Sheriff Giles gasped that hot afternoon as Mrs. Bodkin entered the picnic grounds:

You look lovely, Mrs. Bodkin,

He was about to raise the second glass to his lips when his eye caught a flash of white in the meadow.

with that long gown and that thingamajig in your hair—you should win first prize!"

"Thank you sheriff!" said the good lady, beaming. "You look pretty good yourself in that Indian getup. Why, you even have moccasins and a little hatchet—how cute!"

Sheriff Giles wandered off in search of a cider barrel.

"Hey sheriff!" cried a would-be Napoleon from the other side of the orchard. "I just saw Red Peepers down by the creek—he's got a bottle of his spirit friends with him. Going to lock him up?"

"Leave him be!" said Giles good-naturedly. "He wouldn't be noticed in this crowd anyhow." Then he saw the cider barrel. It was on a stump near the old rail fence. He was about to raise the second glass of cool cider to his lips when his eye caught a flash of white in the meadow. This was followed by a flash of brown—Murphy's prize bull. Mrs. Bodkin, one hand on top of her shiny locks, was skipping across the meadow with the eager bull in her wake.

Giles to the rescue! He leaped the fence and raced after the bull. Then it happened! Mrs. Bodkin, skirting a thicket under full steam, lost her hair! Her precious locks, dangling from a thorny red-haw branch, looked more beautiful than ever in the warm sunlight. The bull stopped—this was a new one on him. Mrs. Bodkin covered her bald head with both hands. When she saw Giles approaching she let out a scream and headed for home.

Giles ran to the bush, chopped the wig free with his little hatchet, and made off over the hill in pursuit of poor Mrs. Bodkin.

The bull stood there shaking his head.

About this time Red Peepers began to hear noises. He'd scooped up quite a snootful of the strong stuff and had a good seat for the usual parade of animal friends—but noises bothered him. Rising uncertainly from his precarious perch on the creek bank he turned slowly around. Then he blinked. Then he grasped a sapling for support.

For there—in broad daylight—an Indian was pursuing a screaming woman along the crest of a hill. In one hand the redskin held a hatchet, and in the other—here Red blinked twice—a scalp of black hair. This was too much! Red Peepers pulled the worn flask from his pocket. He looked fondly at it for a moment—then he tossed it quickly into the creek.

Sheriff Giles overtook Mrs. Bodkin before any real harm was done. He swore that he'd carry her secret to the grave.

Now Red Peepers is a new and respected citizen of Hillcrest. He didn't tell anyone except Sheriff Giles about what happened at the creek that day.

MARYLAND WILDLIFE

Prepared by the MARYLAND GAME & INLAND FISH COMMISSION

MUSKRAT

(Ondatra zibethia. Derivation, "ondatra" from Indiana word and Latin "zibethia," meaning alluding to a musky odor.)

RANGE: Muskrat found in shallower parts of all waterways and marshes of Maryland. Greatest population in Dorchester County.

BREEDING: Male probably mates with more than one female; 3-13 blind and naked young born about 29 days after breeding; February 15 earliest record of mating. First litter appears March-April; last of 3 which is usually largest litter, appears in late summer. Young animals (known as kits) born early in year breed following fall.

HABITS: In marsh areas of counties bordering Chesapeake Bay builds house of marsh plants over water run or gut; under water entrance, cone-shaped, 6-9 feet in diameter at bottom rising 2-3 feet above water-line, contains 1-4 rooms or compartments, occupied by one or more families. Along small streams in Western Maryland burrows in banks and makes home. Does not hibernate, most active at night, stores up roots and other material for winter, all food washed and rewashed. Partly webbed hind feet aid in swimming as does long, scaly, nearly naked tail flattened on sides serves as rudder; swims under water even in ice.

MANAGEMENT: Food largely plant materials as roots of aquatics, pond lilies, sedges, bullrush, cattails, three square grass, splatter dock and vegetables of all varieties; also shellfish such as freshwater mussels, fish, frogs and other small aquatic animals. Stabilizing and controlling water levels on marshes and control burning of marsh vegetation for production of preferred food is most important management practice, which also benefits waterfowl.

VALUE: Not classed as game animal but most valuable of all wild fur bearers. Maryland produces more than any State except Louisiana, however, Maryland pelt is far superior. Meat sold as-marsh rabbit.

it's easy to put this much sugar into one cup
BUT HOW WOULD YOU MIX IT IN 5,330 CUPS?

a problem of the same proportion is facing most feed companies in mixing about 1/3 oz. of stilbestrol into one ton of cattle feed

The Food and Drug Administration in its approval for use of stilbestrol has set about 1/3 oz. per ton as the right amount for this powerful growth stimulant. That means it is added in the proportion of only 1 part to 90,000 parts. It must be mixed so that cattle get just the right amount... too little stilbestrol in their ration won't produce maximum gains... too much in their ration can prove toxic. Yes, it is a big mixing problem for most feed companies—but not for Purina, with its exclusive Micro-Mixing process.

MICRO-MIXING is accurate to the 1/10,000,000 part!

Modern mixing equipment plus the technical skill of Purina engineers, laboratory technicians, and mill employees makes such a mixing job routine for Purina. Purina's Micro-Mixing is a quality control process that assures you every bite is mixed just right. Every animal gets its fair share when you feed Purina Steer Fatena or Beef Chow with stilbestrol added. That means that you go to market with a much more even bunch of cattle.

NOW AVAILABLE at your Purina Dealer's—

Our Nature And Need

Lesson for January 30, 1955

WHEN the Christian church talks about "Man" we mean all men. Following the Bible—and science too, for that matter—we believe that the human race is one race, not two or several. A child who is old enough to get out of his front yard knows that human beings come in different varieties, and a grown person who has been around the world at eye-level with the people who live on the ground, knows much better than Dr. Foreman the child does, what a bewildering lot of varied types the human race is. Nevertheless we Christians believe that each one of us has something in common with all men and women, living and dead. The caveman whose fingerprints 30,000 years old are still to be read, Caesar and Hitler, Saint Paul and the loafers in the grocery store, the Queen of England and a black cannibal in the rain-forest, these are all part of one human race. In spite of all the differences, can anything be said of all of us which is true of all of us?

God's Design for Man

The story of creation, however you may interpret it, includes certain truths about man which are of the greatest importance. One is that man is here on this earth not by accident but by the intention and will of God. Man does not casually emerge into a world and a universe to which he is badly suited. He is rather placed by God in a world which has been made, ready for him as a place to live and love and achieve. Another truth is that man is expected to become master of this earth, not to be mastered by it. And a third most important truth of all: Man is created in the image of God. Theologians, one regrets to say, have quarreled a great deal over the meaning of this. Leaving all quarrels on one side, the least we can say the "image of God" means is that in some way man reflects the nature of God. Man has a capacity for knowledge, for aspiration, for love, for fellowship with God, such as no other created thing possesses. This may or may not mean that the first human beings on this earth were in any way perfect. It may or may not mean that the image of God has been totally defaced at the present time so that there is not a trace of Godlikeness left. But it surely means no less than that by God's intention for man-kind there is something Godlike in each man.

Man Against Himself

A second truth about man—all men—which is enormously, vitally important, is that all men are sinners. That is to say, not only does no man fulfill all the good possibilities God has in mind for him, but men in their very nature are corrupt, twisted, they want what God does not want, they want what they themselves would not want if they knew what they were doing. A sinner is bent on doing the very things that will destroy him. As we view the world today we can see this is true on a vast scale. As a modern poet has expressed it, man is the sightless rider on a blind horse galloping as hard as he can go to the edge of the bottomless pit. Against all the optimisms which suppose that if you leave men alone they will come out all right, the Christian church affirms that if you leave men alone they will come out wrong. We have brains enough, maybe, cleverness and genius enough, take us by and large, to get out of our troubles. But we don't have patience, unselfishness, wisdom, love or self-sacrifice enough. Individually and as a race we are in a mess, and the name of it is Sin, and the end of it is Destruction.

Why We Need God

Men want many things. But what we most need is God. We need God to show us what he has in mind for us. We need him to show us what we ought to be. We need him to show us what is wrong with us, and where, to show us where we missed the road and how to come back to it. We are in this constant struggle between our best and our worst. We are our own worst enemies and if no one comes to our rescue, our worse selves will destroy our best selves. We need to be changed; and only God can change us. We need power.

Science Uncovers Well Preserved 'Glass Bugs'

WASHINGTON—Vast numbers of "glass bugs," fossilized insects, spiders and mites of 25,000,000 years ago, are being recovered from ancient lake bottom deposits under the Mohave Desert.

The lake bottom mud eventually became layers of shale. Within this shale, Geological Survey workers found nodules of limestone, about the size and appearance of walnuts. When these nodules were dissolved in formic acids at the U. S. National Museum, it was found that much of what remained consisted of insects and other creatures in perfect state of preservation.

The insect fossils look as if they were cast in milk glass. Each nodule contained as many as a dozen specimens. Almost invisibly minute, delicate hairs on the legs remained just as they were in life.

The specimens are all minute. They evidently were either creatures which actually lived in the lake or flew in great numbers just above the surface. As they died they dropped to the bottom and became buried in the mud. Then the transformation to "glass" apparently took place quite rapidly, to judge from their perfection.

The discovery opens up a whole hitherto unknown fauna, says National Museum entomologists. They were all insects, spiders, and mites of the Miocene geological period, about halfway between the appearance of modern forms of life on earth and the present.

Insects are about the first forms of animal life known on land. They first appear in fossil records during the Devonian period in England.

Bad Garden Soil May Cause Disease

CHICAGO—Garden soil, particularly if taken from around chicken houses, may be the source of a form of lung disease once considered rare and fatal.

Two physicians and two scientists reported in the Journal of the American Medical Association a case of the pneumonia-like disease, histoplasmosis, which resulted from inhaling the dust of infected soil. The patient suffered severe headaches, sore throat, general aches, and fever not long after sifting soil bought for his garden. He said the soil was dry and contained chicken feathers. It was later proved to contain the disease causing fungus.

A neighbor who used the same soil in her flower beds suffered a similar illness, but soil tests taken several months later did not show fungus. Both patients recovered with apparent after-effects. Epidemics of the disease have often been associated with inhalation of dust in abandoned houses, dusty silos, storm cellars and chicken coops. Chickens are probably not the source of the infection but areas frequented by chickens may favor development of the fungus, says the report.

Grandfather Pays $100 For Each Grandson

HUNTINGTON, W. Va.—Ed. S. Reeser, Sr., had four grandchildren—all girls, so he established a policy of paying $100 premiums for grandsons, offering the reward to his three sons several months ago.

In quick order, the wives of son Joseph S. Reeser, Coral Gables, Fla., and son Robert L. Reeser, Huntington, presented grandsons and collected $100 each.

The third son, Ed. S. Reeser, Jr., wired from Pittsburgh, "It's a girl again." Reeser senior presented the Reeser juniors a $25 consolation prize.

Family Pet Brings Most Anything Home

LOS ANGELES—Mike, a year old part boxer belonging to Mr. and Mrs. William Collick, likes to lug home bones, old shoes and other odds and ends.

Recently the dog carried home in his mouth a tiny egg from nearby Echo Park Lake, Mrs. Collick reported.

She put the egg in a warm box over a water heater. The household now has another pet—tentatively named either George or Georgette—a black and yellow duckling which popped out the next day.

Tough Customer

TORRANCE, Cal.—Sales resistance? This customer had it.

Melvin Silver, shoe salesman, showed a customer several pairs of sandals. The man said he would check other shops and return. He came back later, looked at more shoes, but did not make a choice. As Silver turned to put the shoes away, he said, the man slugged him over the head with a blunt object.

MARYLAND WILDLIFE

Prepared by the MARYLAND GAME & INLAND FISH COMMISSION

RUFFED GROUSE

(Bonasa umbellus)

RANGE: From Minnesota to New York and Massachusetts, and in mountains of Tennessee, Maryland, Virginia, Pennsylvania and southeastern states; six subspecies found from Alaska to Nova Scotia. More plentiful now in Garrett, Allegany, Washington and Frederick Counties; formerly numerous in other Maryland Counties.

DESCRIPTION: Upper parts buff or rufous, general effect brown, with some black; neck with large tufts of glossy black feathers from which it obtains the name "ruffed"; excepting for these tufts which are smaller on the female the sexes are alike; weight about 1½ to 2 pounds; length about 17 inches; fan tail with black band when spread out.

BREEDING: Nests on ground in forests generally near open areas. Lays from 8 to 14 pale brown eggs; incubation about 23 days; young can run almost as soon as hatched as can most all gallinaceous birds, such as Bob White quail.

HABITS: The best known characteristic of this great game bird is its habit of drumming; this sound is made by beating the air with the wings and not by striking them against the log or stump upon which the male bird is standing; it is the call of the male to the female, although he does drum at times other than during the mating season. Grouse are believed to be polygamous; the mother grouse is adept at feigning injury and enticing enemies from her young.

MANAGEMENT: Susceptible to poultry diseases and should be kept off areas frequented by domestic chickens; encroachment of civilization and destruction of forests probably has done more to reduce its numbers than hunters; the species can be benefited by increasing food supply which consists mostly of acorns, beech nuts, buds, fruits and some insects.

VALUE: Unlawful to sell grouse, hence it is valuable primarily for sport and its beauty, although those taken by the hunter provide a large amount of delectable food.

Actually—I Love Ironing

YOU CAN PUT HEAPS OF LOVING CARE INTO THE IRONING of your dear husband's shirts—and it can still be a chore! But—with a little special laundry lore, the ironing of a man's shirt can become a joy, and you'll marvel at the winged speed of your iron! It's all a simple matter of giving a plus to homemade starch—so easy, so very worthwhile!

Here's the basic recipe; which is just right for collars and cuffs of men's shirts: In a large bowl, measure ¼ cup of cold water. Add a ¼ cup of dry starch. Mix starch and water to a paste, and drop in one cake of the blue wax ironing aid. Pour in a quart of rapidly boiling water, and stir until smooth and a clear, pale blue-um-m-m, note the fresh fragrance, too!

If, before you start this new ironing plan, you note that the soleplate of your iron needs cleaning, rub with the finest steel wool you can find—going in one direction only, from front to base. Once cleaned, this specially prepared starch helps to KEEP the soleplate clear and clean.

Here's another time-saving ironing hint: Use starch hot; it penetrates the fibers better. Rubber gloves will protect your hands. Then, squeeze out every bit of excess starch... try rolling the starched sections of the shirt in a Turkish towel, then kneading for a minute or so to assure removal of starch from surface of material. This prevents unpleasant "shine" and "spottiness" on starched garments.

Try these suggestions—and you'll admit: "What a wonderful difference! Actually—I love ironing." (ANS)

Daily Cuticle Care is Important To the Appearance of Your Nails

By TONI WOODWARD—ANS Features

A LITTLE ATTENTION TO YOUR CUTICLES between manicures will make the manicuring job easier and quicker, and you will be a lot better pleased with the results. In fact, no matter how much time and care you devote to the manicure, you are likely to be disappointed with the appearance of your nails if you have allowed the cuticles to become hardened and over-grown.

Your cuticles will always be soft and manageable if you will remember to rub a little baby oil around the base of the nails two or three times a day, after washing your hands. To keep the cuticles shapely and prevent hangnails, at least once a day push the cuticles back with the rounded end of the nail file or an orange stick. A once-a-week soaking in baby oil will work wonders too.

Your pedicures will benefit from the same daily cuticle care, and here is a tip that may be helpful if your toenails present a ridged appearance. To conceal the ridges, apply an undercoat and two overcoats of polish. Allow each coat to dry at ordinary room temperature before applying the next one. Place cotton balls between the toes to separate them and prevent smearing polish.

No matter how you shape your fingernails, it is best to cut the toenails straight across the tops, curving them down just a little at the corners.

Achievement Pays Off for Maryland 4-H'ers

MERITORIOUS achievement records in the 1954 National 4-H Beautification of Home Grounds, Leadership, and Meat Animal programs have brought state honors to four club members from Maryland. A 19-jewel watch was awarded to each. The winners and some of their major achievements are:

The State award for all-around accomplishment in the 4-H Meat Animal program in 1954 went to Elizabeth Anne Prough, 18, of Sykesville. Learning the best methods of feeding and management, Elizabeth Anne began her project with four crossbred hogs. Elizabeth Anne later bred purebred Berkshires. At the Eastern National Livestock Show in 1952, she won top awards. Elizabeth Anne has found that her beef cattle and swine projects have been profitable. Her leader is William M. Allenberg.

In recognition of her accomplishments, Thomas E. Wilson presented her with a 17-jewel pocket watch award.

Two 4-H Club members in Maryland have been named boy and girl winners in the 1954 Leadership program, for outstanding guidance of club and community projects. They are Carl Weant, 21, Taneytown, and Doris Bollinger, 21, Reisterstown.

In his five years in 4-H activities, Carl has specialized in poultry and dairy projects and spraying techniques.

As an expert in tractor maintenance, he was selected to attend the Regional 4-H Tractor Conference this year. He is a Junior Leader and has been accepted into the 4-H All-Star group.

A 4-H'er for five years, Miss Bollinger has found leadership of the local 4-H group most rewarding. She took over the club two years ago when the leader became ill, and has since built it into an active, successful group. She is proficient in all phases of cooking and housekeeping. She is helping her younger brothers and sisters on their 4-H projects.

A 19-jewel wrist watch was presented to each by Edward Foss Wilson, Chairman of the Board, Wilson and Co., Chicago.

For greatly improving his family's homestead surroundings, J. Allen Moore, 19, of Frederick, has been named State winner in the 1954 4-H Beautification of Home Grounds program.

He started a home beautification project in 1950. He remodeled the house and painted it. Old fences were removed, the yard was graded and shrubbery removed. He helped install electricity in a tenant house, leveled and reseeded the lawn and put up a new fence and planted shrubbery.

In 1953 the family moved to a new farm. He first helped to remodel a house of 11 rooms, put down new flooring, installed electric pumps, hot water heater and shower stall, and built in cabinets. He built all the cabinets by himself with hand tools. He also painted and roofed the buildings and built a colored block patio.

He helped to reinforce the frame of the barn, built new barn doors, and cleaned the yard, and planted grass and shrubbery. He helped to build a pond, a rock wall, and filled in a roadbed.

Mrs. Charles R. Walgreen of Chicago rewarded J. Allen's efforts with a handsome 19-jewel wrist watch appropriately inscribed.

WOMAN'S WORLD

It's Easy to Give Wooden Floors Bright, New Surface

TAKE a good look at the wood floors in your home. Are they looking scratched and worn? If they are, you'd be surprised at the nice resurfacing that can be given them without removing any of the wood with professional sanding.

Wear rubber gloves for this job as you will be working with steel wool and heavy detergent suds. Keep the room well ventilated since you'll use both alcohol and shellac.

Thorough Cleaning

Using a bucket of water, add enough detergent to give lasting suds. Apply this solution to the floor, scrubbing with steel wool to clean dull areas, stains and scratches.

It's best to clean one small area at a time and as soon as you finish that area, wipe off any remaining solution. Do not use too much water as this will warp the wood.

Two ovens in a medium sized (36-inch) range make meal preparations twice as easy especially when ovens differ in size and have separate and automatic heat controls so cooking can be done at different temperatures simultaneously. This gas range brings two oven benefits to smaller kitchens along with separate broiler, service drawer, clock and timer, simmer-save burners and seamless oven linings with removable bottoms for easy cleaning.

The floor should then be wiped with clean warm water to remove any detergent as well as to pick up any pieces of steel wool. Dry well with a cloth.

Alcohol Softens Scratches

Thorough cleaning leaves scratches and scuff marks prominent. With a clean soft cloth dipped in alcohol, go over those spots which are prominent because of scratches or scuff marks.

Alcohol softens the effect of these as well as cleaning the floor thoroughly in preparation for the shellac. Let it dry thoroughly before shellac is applied.

To paint the floor with shellac, use long even strokes that run along with grain of the wood. This should be permitted thorough drying, about eight hours, before waxing.

Wax Beautifies

Pour a pool of polishing wax on the floor, then rub, preferably with a long handled applicator to get a thin, even coat all over the floor. When the wax is thoroughly dry, use an electric floor polisher on it to get a good finish which will bring out the beauty of the wood.

Polishing wax on floors beautifies as well as offers the most protection against dirt, grit, heel marks, etc. On busy floors it should be renewed about once a month.

Floors which are not used too often will do well with waterless wax base cleaners.

Old-Fashioned Pie Is Favorite Dessert

An old-fashioned pie is a wonderful dessert. Not only is it among your guests, but it can be prepared in advance to save last minute fussing when you're entertaining.

Pecan pie has been palate pleasing for a long time, and for those who like the sweetness of the pie "cut," there's nothing nicer than this variation where coffee is used to flavor and modify the sweetness of syrup and pecans. It will be one of your very best desserts after you've tried and served it.

Coffee Pecan Pie (Serves 7)

- 3 eggs, beaten
- 3/4 cup unsulphured molasses
- 3/4 cup white corn syrup
- 1/2 cup double strength coffee
- 2 tablespoons butter
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 1 cup chopped pecan meats
- 4 tablespoons flour
- 1 8-inch unbaked pie shell

Pre-heat oven to moderately hot (375-F.). Combine eggs, molasses, corn syrup, coffee, melted butter, salt and vanilla. Mix thoroughly. Combine pecans and flour, add to liquid mixture and pour into unbaked shell. Bake 40 to 45 minutes in moderate oven or until firm.

Cool the pie before cutting. Garnish with whipped cream or ice cream, if desired.

ASSOCIATION FOR RETARDED CHILDREN TO PLAN SUMMER CAMP PROGRAM AT FEBRUARY MEETING

The Carroll County Association for Retarded Children will hold its next meeting Thursday evening Feb. 3, at 8 p. m., at the Carroll County Medical Center. At this meeting plans will be formulated for a summer day camp for retarded children of school age. The Association requests that parents of retarded children, who are interested in this program, attend this meeting or, if unable to do so, contact Mrs. James R. Langdon, Westminster 519J, and tell her they are interested in having their child attend. The Association is also interested in having present at this meeting teachers with experience in working with retarded children, kindergarten teachers, and those with camp experience in order that they may hear about the program and participate in the planning. The Association will be needing a professional staff to carry out this program.

Tentatively, the Association plans a five day a week camp which would function from 10:00 to 3:00. There is a definite need for a camp of this type in Carroll County. It should be taken into consideration that these children need trained supervision. The average child can run to a public playground or pool and look after his own needs with responsibility—the retarded child needs to be taught to do this, and it is only through training in groups that he can learn this. Prior to this the retarded children of Carroll County have not had the opportunity to belong to a group and learn organized play. While brothers and sisters of these children have been free to roam in the neighborhood and enjoy public facilities and all the joys of summer vacation, the retarded child has had to stay at home. This camp program offers to these children the opportunity of enjoying sport and recreation which has been denied them.

The Association cordially invites to this meeting on Feb. 3 individuals, as well as members of service clubs, who might be interested in helping with this program.

An Invitation

We extend a cordial invitation to you and your family to attend an Open House which your Massey-Harris dealer, J. H. Ommert, 112 E. Baltimore, Taneytown, Maryland, has planned for you.

The program will get underway at 7:00 P. M., Thursday, February 3, 1955, in the Taneytown Opera House. There will be movies, door prizes and refreshments.

At this time, you will have the opportunity to see for the first time, what is new with Massey-Harris for 1955. Items that spell more economy and ease of operation, which we know are so important to this great business of farming and to you in your own operation. Several company men will be in attendance to explain the new machines and answer questions.

We are looking forward to meeting you at the Open House Program.
