Couldn't run it alone, could you?

You wouldn't want to try. Who knows better than you how much co-operation it takes to keep a farm running smoothly? All hands working together - that's what makes profitable farming possible. And cooperation works wonders other places, too. On your party-line telephone, for instance. Everybody working together, thinking of the other fellow's needs, being thoughtful and courteous - that's what makes service better and faster for everyone.

FEESERSBURG

We hope the following bit of information doesn't start an "Alice and Ralph" fight among the husbands and wives living on farms, but the Agriculture Department said last Saturday that farm women are better educated than their men. A survey indicated that the gap is widest among younger farm folk. In this class women are said to average over one year more schooling than men of the same age. There appears to be an educational lag of about 20 years between farming areas and the cities. Neverthe-less a substantial and steady progress has been made in the education of farm people in the last 30 years. In 1930 a survey showed that the average education of farmers was 8.5 years of schooling compared with 10.5 today. In the 30's we doubt if a college graduate could have been found any where in the United States earning his living by farming. Today there are a great many farmers with college degrees and needing them too, in making a success out of the business of farming. Whether the woman or the man has the most education is not the important question today. The important thing is that at least one of them has enough to cope intelligently with the farm problems that confronts all farm families in '55. Since the farmer and his wife work as a team and all their resources pooled anyway more education in one balances the lesser education of the other. There just isn't any reason to quarrel about it—just make use of it.

We can't help wondering if the citizens of Carroll County are not a bit different from folks in other localities. It seems that our county is always making the headlines because it is mixed up in some controversy. I don't know whether we are just obstinate or just have the knack of projecting ourselves into stupid situations. I am referring to the dilemma in which the members of our school board and the Superintendent of Schools find them-seves in regards to the distribution of Bibles in some of the class rooms in our county schools. It is not this writer's intentions to say whether religious instruction in our schools is od or bad. For, some time back the Supreme Court decided that issue and made it a law. It seems to me that laws are made to be upheld, especially by those in a position where their attitude is in the public spot-light and what they do and say carries so much influence. We have not heard our school boards side of this controversy, but we think that, judging from the facts at hand they have been guilty of at least poor judgment and that they owe it to themselves and the public they serve to tell their side of the story. It is too bad that things of this sort are ever allowed to arise in our schools for it makes a deep impression on young and inquiring minds—sometimes the impressions are not the kind that liberal parents want their children to acquire. The little stream in front of our house is at flood stage today after the inch of rain we received yesterday. Unfortunately little of it found its way into the ground, but ran off the fields into tiny streams and on into the sea. Baltimore is sure to reap the enent by having its dams and reservoirs get a goodly portion of the rain, which will help their diminishing water supply for a time. The rain also took with it the snow and ice, which afforded many skaters and sledders so much fun during the past week.

If you haven't disposed of your

Christmas cards and want to, send them to Mrs. D. K. Butler, of 2733 Ordway St. N.W. Washington, D.C. Mrs. Butler makes them into scrapbooks for children in hospitals and in- | ning.

As if there aren't enough fights now to make one's fur fly, someone has come up with the suggestions that keepers of cats be forced to pay fees for tags the same as for dogs. If this ever becomes a law, we will have to go out of business as there are anywhere from ten to twenty cats around the barn to keep down the rats. Since the cats have about exterminated the rats we feel they pay for their board, but paying taxes on them would be just too much.

At least for another year the car owner will not have to worry about an increase in the cost of tags thanks to the state legislators. Once upon a time a car could be classified as a time a car could be classified as a luxury but not any more. Due to the change in living habits a car is as much of a peopsity of the change in living habits a car is as Mr. and Mrs. Richard Crouse. much of a necessity as the famiy washing machine. So its time the law makers looked in some other direction when it comes to raising revenue.

Every Day Fire Strikes Some 800 American Homes

NEW YORK-This very day fire will strike some 200 American homes. Hundreds will be badly damaged, many will be totally destroyed. An untold number of persons will die, suffer painful burns, or be maimed for life.

Does this sound alarming? It does, but there are figures and statistics to make it even more

Statistics of the National Board of Fire Underwriters show that in the five year period 1948 through 1952 an average of 284,000 homes were struck by fire every year, that there were 10 per cent more dwelling fires in 1952 than in 1948-274,000 in 1948, 300,000 in 1952 and that the resulting property loss from all the million more fires in the United States in that same five year period increased over 14 per cent from $715,074,000 in 1948 to $815,134,000 in 1952. In 1953 fire losses amounted to $864,863,000. The number of dwelling fires in 1953 totalled 294,737.

The death toll for the five-year period mentioned above is estimated at 55,000—an average of 11,-000 a year.

Most fires in the home are caused by carelessness—by such thoughtless acts as tossing away a lighted match, cigarette, or cigar, allowing rubbish to accumulate, overloading electric wiring, leaving children at home alone.

The combination of matchessmoking and misuse of electricity account for close to 50 per cent of all fires of known origin. The smouldering cigarette that is dumped into an open trash can, or that drops between a chair's upholstery, or onto the bed is a chief cause of fires that destroy homes and take lives.

Fewer Catastrophes In First-Half 1954

NEW YORK-Catastrophic accidents-those killing five persons or more-took less than half the number of lives in the United States during the first six months of this year than in the comparable period of 1953.

This year's half-year total was slightly over 500 deaths.

In general, the trend was toward decreases in catastrophic deaths from tornadoes and civilian aviation, railroad, and water transportation accidents; and towards a slight increase in similar deaths in military aviation and in dwelling and apartment fires.

The greatest decreases in catastrophic deaths were in civilian aviation and in tornadoes. Only 21 fatalities were recorded in civilian aviation this year, while last year's toll was 172. The first-half deaths from major tornadoes last year mounted to more than 400; this year there were less than 10.

The largest single catastrophe in the first half of this year was the flood in Southwest Texas, which cost 23 lives.

Early Account Book Reflects Mining Heydey

LOS ANGELES—The daily life of an early California silver mining town during its heydey is reflected in an old account book acquired by the University of California at Los Angeles.

The book was kept by the manager of a general store in Panamint City in Death Valley. Daily entries covering the last four months of 1874 show living things weren't cheap, probably because all supplies had to be hauled more than 275 miles by wagon train from the town of San Pedro.

Prices: Coffee, $1 a tin; catsup. $1 a bottle; soap, 25 cents a bar; a 100 pound sack of flour, $10; a wheelbarrow, $8; and a keg of powder, $18.

Tobacco was selling for $1 a packet and some miners doing particularly well blew themselves to hand-rolled cigars at $4 a box.

Weasel Shares Food With Intended Victim

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich.-A weasel at Grand Rapids public museum made friends with his expected dinner.

A white mouse was placed in the weasel's cage as a special treat. Three days later the mouse was not only alive, but sharing the horsemeat given to the weasel for between-mouse snacks. Museum attendants say the weasel normally likes mice to eat. He devoured a previous gray mouse offering. They think perhaps it is the white color of the mouse that stops the weasel from making a meal of the rodent.

Machines Plus Farmer Ingenuity Spells Sure Success For Modern Farm

The modern farmer, through the use of machines and his own ingenuity, is gradually eliminating backaches, once commonly associated with farm work.

A good example may be found out in Odgen, Utah, where Henry DeVries built a machine which takes the constant bending out of the task of thinning beets.

Mr. DeVries took four wire wheels and a transmission from an early model automobile, a three-horsepower gas motor and some two-inch steel pipe to construct a beet thinning machine on which the five DeVries brothers ride along a couple of inches above the ground, seated comfortably on salvaged mowing machine seats. With a normal crop, they can usually thin six acres a day with ease. Ordinarily, a man with a short handled hoe, working long hours, can thin an acre a day, but he's constantly bending over.

Guiding the machine is a simple operation performed by the man riding nearest the front, who steers with one foot. The engine transmits its own power via a belt to the car transmission, thus making possible several speeds. Which one is used depends upon the field and the operation. The machine is used on head lettuce as well as beets and will run all day on a gallon of gasoline.

At the end of each row, the five riders get off and, using a steel tongue, turn the machine around and head back down the field.

The DeVries have been using the machine for six years and consider it essential to the working of the 100-acre farm which supports all of the brothers and their

3-Way Castorbean Hybrid Ready Soon

Production of three-way castorbean hybrid seed for planting by farmers has become a commercial possibility of the near future as a result of new advances in the breeding of this crop by U.S. Department of Agriculture and cooperating State agricultural experiment station plant scientists.

Three-way hybrid seed production, say the scientists, would eliminate much of the hand work in seed fields that now comes with the production of single-cross hybrid castorbeans. The key to the process is in the development of plants that have only female flowers. This eliminates much of the removal by hand of the undesirable pollen bearing plants from the mother rows.

The basis for the three-way hybrids is the discovery by scientists of the Agricultural Research Service and the Oklahoma and California Agricultural Experiment Stations that crossing of the male-sterile variety Nebraska 145-4 with certain other selected pollinator varieties will yield plants bearing 100 per cent female flowers. The seed from this cross is used to produce the mother plants in three-way hybrid seed

One of the advantages in the castorbean hybrids that farmers now plant is their high yields as compared with the yields of openpollinated varieties, but there is the disadvantage of the hand labor necessary in hybrid seed production. Use of the three-way hybrid technique would materially reduce this labor.

The Closest Bond

Lesson for February 13, 1955

"WHAT do you mean by conversion?" said a business manto a preacher. "You are always talking about it. I know what conversion means in my business-I had to convert a plant from war time to peace time production. But what's conversion in religion?"

If the minister were smart, he would take up the business man's own illustration. Conversion in the personal life is just what it is in a factory, a change of the personal life, a re-tooling, turning out something different from what used to be turned Dr. Foreman out. Before conversion a man may be, so to speak, in a state of war with himself, with his fellow men and even with God. After conversion he has peace of conscience, he lives at peace within and without.

Born Again

The word "conversion" is used in different Christian circles to mean somewhat different things, or to be more exact, the word as some use it covers a long period of time, while with others it refers to one instant only. That is, "conversion" as Christians use the word can mean a long, indeed life-long process of change, or it can mean the very start of that long process. Now one of the favorite Bible expressions to describe the beginning of the new life is "turn." It is as simple as that. Anybody who ever drove a car or sailed a boat, rode a mule or even walked, knows what turning is. Children know it. You are headed in one direction and then you head in another. That's what conversion is. You are headed down the devil's road and then you turn off on to God's road—and they do not end at the same destination! But of course there is something that happens on the inside that makes the traveler want to turn; and this happening-on-the-inside is what we call the New Birth. God brings the seed of the new life but we have to take over from there. The New Birth is God's part, conversion-turning-is our part, of the new life in Christ.

Sign of Life

No farmer can create seeds, no scientific agronomist can put life into seed that is dead. But the farmer has to put the seed into the ground, he has to keep the weeds out, he has to do whatever that particular crop needs to nurse it along till harvest time. How does he know that the seed is alive? Only one way to tell, the farmer would say. Does it come up? Does it grow? So in the Christian life, no one can look directly into a human heart and say, "Here is new life." But a truly converted, live Christian can be known by the signs of life. The jailer at Philippi described in Acts asked "What must I do to be saved?" and was told, "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ." No one could see him believing. No camera has yet been invented that will photograph the action of the human spirit or the Divine Spirit. But between midnight and morning there in the jail house that jailer gave good evidence that he had really believed, and that the Holy Spirit had really begun to change the direction of his life. Before midnight he had been a hard cruel man. Now we see him trying to undo the harm he has done. He unselfishly shares what he has, he is baptized as a sign of his new life, he is a happy

Everything New

One of the points most often brought up by critics of Christianity from the outside is that Christians seem not to be different from any one else, or not different enough to matter. There is a good deal of truth behind this. All churches have their share - some congregations seem to have more than their share—of members who have never been converted. Their lives are in the old worn-out pattern of the world, there is nothing new and vital and different about them. Let us come down to brass tacks. What is there that ought to be and will be new in a Christian's life? Certainly the center of his life will be different. What Paul calls the "old man" asks invariably about anything he does, 'What's in it for me? How will this help me to get ahead of other people?" But the "new man in Christ" learns to ask, "Is this what Christ would do?" The 'earning sometimes comes hard, but it brings the deepest happiness known to man. #### Thinking About Central Heating? Forced Air Furnace Is Compact Unit

For any farmer planning to install a central heating system in his farmhouse for the coming winter, the forced warm air system bears investigation.

The modern forced warm air furnace is a compact unit and presents a minimum of problems for location and installation in an existing building. The lack of necessity for a centrally located furnace allows the unit to be installed in an out-of-the-way corner of the basement, in the attic, in a crawl space under the house, or even in a closet on the first floor. Forced circulation of heat insures even temperature levels throughout the house no matter where the furnace is located.

The forced warm air furnace makes possible the control of temperature, air movement, humidity, and cleanliness of the air, factors which affect winter comfort in the home. Fiberglass filters, usually placed near the return air duct in the furnace, do the job of cleaning the air. A humidifier in the forced air furnace adds to the needed moisture to the air as it is being circulated through the furnace.

One feature of the modern forced warm air system which has contributed greatly to its popularity in recent years is its adaptability to summer air conditioning: If there is a modern forced air system in the home, the way is prepared for the addition of a blower-equipped summer cooling unit at any time in the future. Adding a separate cooling unit that will use the same distribution system as the furnace represents the least expensive method of obtaining year 'round air conditioning in a home with an existing heating plant.

New Liquid Bandage For Animals Sprays On

A new liquid bandage reported by the American Veterinary Medical Association may solve the long perplexing problem of keeping a bandage in place on a large ani-

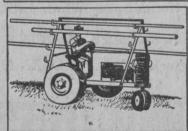

The AMVA says the bandage, when sprayed over a wound, quickly dries to a tough, adhesive, transparent film that stays in place for prolonged periods.

The film is applied in layers, both to afford extra protection and to make stripping-off easier after healing is completed.

In experimental usage, veterinary clinicians at Washington State College used the new bandage to cover injuries and surgical wounds on steers, cows and horses. Slight infection was reported in only two of a dozen cases treated, and healing was complete in every instance.

Veterinarians say the bandage will be particularly useful in treating udder lesions in dairy cattle, since it is easy to apply and will permit milking, washing, and other processes without risk of contaminating the injury.

One farmer who tired of lugging irrigation pipe around on a bulky wagon bolted an A-frame on each end of his tractor, with a spreader bar between. Curved iron brackets enabled him to carry 800' of pipe from one location to another with compara"A good example of what industry has done to stabilize employment is reflected in the increased number of salaried employees. Yet political freedom does not ensure the complete freedom for which all men yearn. One may be a citizen of a country whose laws are exemplary, and yet he himself may be in bondage to enslaving appetites or seemingly hopeless illness. # drive safely on the highways

Millions of dollars have been spent to impress on the American people the importance of highway safety, but careless drivers still drench the highways in blood and fill the hospitals with the maimed. We have inaugurated a long-term highway safety campaign to arouse you, the people of Maryland, to take personal action to halt this carnage. Don't be a Death Jockey when you ride the road . . . the odds are against you.
