LENTEN MEDITATION

Holy Season Observed by Christians

The Psalmist of old asked the very searching question, "What is man, that thou are mindful of him?" Anthropologists, physiologists, psychologists and sociologists have all contributed something toward the answering of this question, "What is Man?" But the cross alone tells us what we need to know about man, about God and about the meaning of our existence.

The cross tells us that God is mindful of man because he is first and foremost a child of God. For this reason the cross places infinite value on human kind. Man means enough to God to be worth dying for, and that no matter how low he may fall there always remains something within him so valuable and worth saving that it merits the agonizing suffering of driven-in nails and poured-out blood.

As Christ has suffered on the cross in man's behalf, the child of God should ever be challenged to humility and repentance. Being made in the image of the divine, mankind should never lose his sonship with God.

The cross tells us of a loving God, who so loves the world so as to give His only begotten Son for man's redemption. This is the answer to the deepest cry of man's soul. More than anything else man needs to know that God loves him. It would be a rather easy thing to convince a man that God could be a cold-hearted judge who unerringly would execute wrath and judgment. But to tell that same man that God loves him so deeply that he wants to forgive his worst sin is a more difficult task. How often it is so trying to convince people of the truth. The cross is God's instrument which shows his redeeming love. To a last and hate-filled world the cross says, "God is love".

The cross tells us the essential meaning of our existence. It reminds us of the fact that we can well afford to be "crucified to the flesh" as the apostle St. Paul puts it. The cross challenges us to understand that as children of God we are created for greater ends than can ever be fulfilled and attained in this world of uncertain and insubstantial materialities. The Roman spear that lifted the sponge to the lips of Jesus seemed to be the symbol of the greatest power in the world at that time. But now, as the spear lies broken and trampled in the dust, the cross remains as the symbol of the greatest power of the ages. The cross seeks to convince us that man was created not primarily to serve the Kingdoms of this world, but rather the eternal Kingdom of God and his Son, Christ. The poet stated it well as he said:

"O where are kings and empires now?
Of old that went and came?
But, Lord, Thy Church is praying yet,
A thousand years the same."

The answer which the Cross of Calvary gives us once again in this Lenten Season to the question, "What is man, that thou are mindful of him?" is in the little gospel which declares, "God so loved the world, that He gave His only begotten son, that whosoever believeth on Him should not perish, but have everlasting life".

CRUSADE FOR CHRIST

The Taneytown Evangelical United Brethren Church is having a week's Crusade for Christ each night beginning Sunday, Feb. 27, to March 6th, at 7:30 p. m. The message each night will be brought by the Rev. Floyd Ankerberg and the music is under the direction of Mr. Dan Widlika.

Rev. Floyd Ankerberg is now serving as an evangelist in the Youth for Christ movement. He is the vice-president of the Eastern Regional district and is located at Chicago. Serving the Baptist church in Chicago for several years with great success before entering the work as an evangelist in the Youth work, in 1950. Rev. Ankerberg travelled to several countries and on one occasion he was mistaken for a Vatican agent in Poland and he was grilled by the police for four hours before his release. He has been in the Taneytown church on several Sunday mornings after serving the Youth for Christ services on Saturday nights in Hampstead.

Mr. Dan Widlika, Cleveland, Ohio, is a song leader and evangelist in the Youth for Christ movement. He has spent two years traveling in Europe among the German young people and refugees from Eastern Europe. He is a trombonist and plays a guitar. He is doing chaplaincy work in local county jail in Cleveland. On Saturday nights he leads the singing for over 500 youth who gather for the services. He comes highly recommended as one who has consecrated his life to help young people to a higher living standard.

The public is invited to attend these services as they are lead by young men who have consecrated their lives in helping others to a higher Christian way of living.

RED CROSS MEMBER-SHIP FUND DRIVE

Get-Together Meeting for the Workers in Firemen's Building

A Get-together of the solicitors will be held in the Firemen's Building on Monday night, March 7, at 7:30. A Pep Talk will be given and supplies distributed.

The strength of our community is the seed of Red Cross success. Red Cross is a part of life of peoples throughout the world.

Half the Nation's Red Cross Budget is spent on Military men, Veterans, Servicemen and V. A. hospital patients. But the most of the budget is used locally for many projects, including safety education, swimming instructions, home visits. Money is also made available for disaster relief and blood donor programs.

All should be interested in the fact that the budget has been reduced again this year. It will require a great deal of time on the part of YOUR Solicitors, so be ready with your membership fee when they call. If you are not contacted at your home, please send your membership fee to Mr. Murray Baumgardner at the Birnie Trust Co. Co-operation on the part of all will make the burden light.

The Key Club meeting held on Feb. 16, was a very special one indeed. Ladies day was the title of the theme. LETTER FROM SENATOR HOFF

Reports Activities of General Assembly

To the Editor:

Dear Sir:

CHEMICAL TEST FOR INTOXICATION

(H. B. 41) Bills relating to the administration of a chemical test to drivers suspected of being under the influence of alcohol have been introduced in prior sessions of the Legislature but have always been defeated.

The Bill introduced this year to accomplish this purpose (H. B. 41) has already passed the House of Delegates and is now before the Senate Judicial Committee.

From "off the record" remarks made by a number of the members of the Senate it appears that the Bill will be bitterly fought when and if it reaches the Senate floor.

The Bill provides for the chemical analysis of either blood, breath or urine of one suspected of being intoxicated. If the ratio of alcohol to blood is less than 0.05 percent the person is presumed to be sober. If between 0.05 percent and 0.15 percent there would be no presumption of either sobriety or intoxication. If a person has over 0.15 percent alcohol in his blood he will be presumed to be intoxicated.

Under the Bill, as amended, no one is compelled to take or submit to a chemical test against his will.

If the Bill passes all police vehicles would be furnished with kits that would enable samples of a suspect's breath to be taken in a balloon and tested according to recognized methods.

Proponents of the Bill anticipate that its passage would decrease the number of drunken driving cases.

COSTLY CHICKEN-TRACKS

Readin' and Rithmetic have been pretty well drilled into most of us—but how about your Ritin'? If you're the average product of American schooling, it's pretty bad, and you probably wonder at times if others can read it.

In fact, neglect of the Second "R" has been so widespread over the years that a new organization has been set up in Washington, D. C., to improve the hieroglyphics of us moderns. According to this Handwriting Foundation, their efforts are primarily essential and incidentally cultural.

Illegible messages, they say, are costing business thousands of dollars every day. Illegible love-letters are blasting romances. Undecipherable shopping-lists cause husbands to bring home butter when bread is wanted. Our failures at calligraphy cause young ladies to wait on the wrong corners for young men, and vice versa; greeters to turn up at the wrong railroad, bus or air terminals or on the wrong day; merchants to ship the wrong quantities of the wrong goods to the wrong customers, and pharmacists to spend hours on the phone asking doctors just what they want put in their prescriptions.

To cope with this formidable problem, the Foundation has announced a 14 point program aimed at working with three groups, educators, businessmen and the general public—which would seem to mean us. Comprehensible script, if the Foundation can help us achieve it, will save millions of dollars, millions of hours, broken hearts, broken homes, perhaps even broken heads. Additionally, we expect life will be neater, we will organize our thoughts more logically in less time, enjoy greater success and suffer less frustration.

Maybe the best way to start is to take pen or pencil in hand and see just how bad our handwriting really is.—U. S. Press Association.

GRASS ROOTS OPINION

BEDFORD, IND., DAILY TIMES-MAIL: "We believe that economic manipulation by government, through budget, tax and monetary policies leads to more and more centralized power in the hands of Washington—and a constant loss of liberty and individual rights to the private citizen."

WEST POINT, MISS., DAILY TIMES LEADER: "Any strong nation of free workers can survive the ordeal of going broke, and can even when the tide of fortune again turns its way. But paste this in your hat: No country is strong enough to make a comeback when the people lose their sense of personal responsibility—and their fundamental respect for the system that underlies all economic progress—the private property system—under which all men have the same opportunity."

LAMBERTVILLE, N. J., BEACON: "The Tax Foundation . . . reveals the fact that a $4,500 a year man works two hours and 23 minutes of his 8 hour day to earn enough to pay his taxes . . . It seems to us that facts presented in this understandable way will do more to alert the people to the evils of big government and all it represents. Furthermore, we must never forget that we never get anything for nothing."

Sponges

BY TONI WOODWARD—ANS
A SHORT TIME AGO, few women dreamed that the man-made cellulose sponge would enjoy a future as bright as its decorative colors, or that it would so quickly replace the dishrags, scrub cloths and other clumsy, dust-carrying equipment.

American homemakers apparently are sponging off everything in sight, and leading this sponge parade into America's homes is O-Cel-O, Division of General Mills, Inc., which this month celebrates production of its 200 millionth O-Cel-O sponge.

Today, women have found the sponge to be one of their most helpful household assistants and their demands have built it into a 25 million dollar a year industry that is still growing.

Each day women discover dozens of ways to use sponges because they're effective cleaning-papers that resist wear and tear. Homemakers have already put them to work cleaning and polishing dishpans, kitchen and bathroom fixtures, furniture and more. It's a glamour item, too—soft in the bath, and even an efficient way to apply neutralizer for permanent wave.

Mrs. Pickens announced that two new members have been accepted into the chapter, Mrs. Samuel L. Bare, Jr. and Mrs. George D. Osborne, Jr. The Regent read the February message from the Pres. Gen. Mrs. Gertrude S. Caraway and an article on "National Defense" by Mrs. James C. Lucas. It was announced that The William Winchester Chapter now had fifty approved members and was entitled to another Delegate to National Congress to be held in Washington, D. C. in April. Mrs. Allen F. Feeser was elected to serve as delegate with Mrs. Edgar G. Barnes and Mrs. Frank Hurt, alternates. The corresponding secretary, Mrs. Allen Feeser, was requested to send our Vice Regent, Mrs. James T. Marsh, a letter of sympathy in the death of her brother in Kansas. The business meeting was adjourned.

Mrs. Hurt read an interesting article referring to the change made in our pledge of Allegiance to the Flag when the phrase "Under God" was added. Representative Raybaut, of Michigan introduced a bill which was passed by the House of Representatives in 1953. A similar bill was introduced this year in the Senate by Senator Homer L. Ferguson, Michigan. The Amendment was signed by President Eisenhower on Flag Day, 1954. Mrs. Hurt introduced the guest speaker, Miss Elizabeth Simkins, Librarian, Western Maryland College, who reviewed Carl Sandburg's most recent book of "Lincoln—Prairie Years and the War Years", in an interesting and charming manner. She ended her review with a tribute to Lincoln by Representative Homer Kock, of Kansas, February 12, 1923. Quote, "There is no new thing to be said about Lincoln, as there is no new thing to be said of the mountains, or of the sea, or of the stars. He was a mountain in grandeur of soul, he was a sea of deep undervoice of mystic loneliness, he was a star in steadfast purity of purpose, and service. And he abides".

Following the program refreshments were served by the hostesses, Mrs. Cover, and Mrs. Reese assisted by Mrs. Wilbur M. Shreeve. Mrs. F. Donald Shriner presided at the table. Miss Anne Christ was a guest.

WITH OUR ARMED FORCES

Robert F. Sentz, fireman, USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. William S. Sentz, of Frederick St., Taneytown, Md., is serving at Norfolk, Va., aboard the battleship USS Wisconsin, which returned this month from Caribbean exercise "Operation SpringBoard".

While on the training cruise, the Wisconsin sailors engaged in general drills and battle problems.

A short visit to Port au Prince, Haiti was granted the men for liberty and sight-seeing tours.

Originally torpedo tubes on Navy destroyers were mounted in the bow. Now they are mounted in a battery which can be trained so that the whole ship need not be turned toward the target.

The Marine Corps includes three Marine Divisions and three Marine Aircraft Wings.

A Marine assault helicopter will carry 26 fully-equipped Marines at a speed well over 150 miles per hour.

COST OF WELFARE SERVICES IN 1954

The Carroll County Welfare Board at its monthly meeting prepared a report to the County Commissioners showing the expenditure of their department for 1954. The total expenditure was $196,683.67 received from County, State and Federal Governments. The greatest increase came in the cost of supporting dependent families and for people who are permanently and totally disabled. Old Age Assistance did decrease during the year but this still accounts for two-thirds of the people helped.

The cost of administration has increased over the previous year. The Board felt the cause of this lay in the fact that the agency has been asked to increase services to children in adoptive or foster care, services to neglectful families, and to children returning from the training school.

The report prepared by the Director, William H. Koelber, showed the following expenditures and average monthly caseload for 1954:

Old Age Assistance $89,275.87, 283 individuals.

Old Age Burials $500.00, 5 individuals.

Aid to Dependent Children, $37,384.09, 33 families.

Aid to Blind $3,534.59, 7 individuals.

Aid to the Permanently and Totally Disabled $18,943.99, 40 individuals.

General Public Assistance $6,662.47, 16 individuals.

Foster-Care (not including $4,728.96 support payments from parents) $6,334.70, 20 children.

Total cost of assistance $162,635.71.

Administration $34,047.96

Total $196,683.67.

County share $45,138.68

State share $55,862.86

Federal share $99,682.13.

THE BIBLE

There never was found, in any age of the world, either religion or law that did so highly exalt the public good as the Bible.—Francis Bacon.

The Bible is the learned man's masterpiece, the ignorant man's dictionary, the wise man's directory.—Mary Baker Eddy.

Just as all things upon earth represent and image forth all the realities of another world, so the Bible is one mighty representative of the whole spiritual life of humanity.—Helen Keller.

The armament of the U.S. Navy destroyers included three rapid fire, breech loading rifles and two or three Gatling guns.

There are more Navy personnel serving in destroyer-type vessels than in any other category.

What are the chances of a refund? Well, your tax will probably be less because of the reduction of approximately 10% in tax rates since last year, but you have been getting the advantage of this refund.

Be sure to read the official instructions. You can also get help from the Internal Revenue Service, which urges you to consult only qualified advisors.

You May Get a Refund

If you find that more tax has been withheld from your wages than you actually owe, you will be entitled to a refund of the difference. The sooner you file your return, the sooner you are likely to get your refund.

With the many changes of the new law there is even greater danger of mistakes this year unless you read the instructions and prepare your tax return with great care.

This is a good reason for starting long before April 15. Here's another:

FEERSBURG
(A Voice From Carroll)

This week we again celebrated George Washington's birthday. There were all sorts of doings in his honor—parties, speeches and plays, portraying scenes from his life. We have a sneaky feeling that Washington would not have cared too much for all the fanfare if he could have returned in person to view it and we also have a guilty feeling that he would have cared less for what we have done to the country he loved so well. Washington was a man that liked rolling hills, uncluttered views of the Potomac and beautifully tilled tobacco fields. If he could stand today on the porch at Mt. Vernon and look about him at the changes, he would not like what he saw. His beautiful country estate is bisected by super highways filled with noisy traffic. His tobacco fields have disappeared and the slaves that made farming so profitable have disappeared too. Mt. Vernon itself is over run with tourists and the lovely Potomac river that Washington knew is now a cesspool of refuse and garbage. And if he thought crossing the Delaware at night in a boat was rugged, he would think that episode kid stuff once he tried crossing Washington, D. C., in 4 p. m. traffic. No, our way of living today would not suit the "Father of our Country" because he liked quiet and peaceful living and that is something our generation doesn't go in for.

This week is also "Brotherhood Week". In these seven days we are to remind ourselves to love our fellow men as we do ourselves and to remember that we are our brother's keeper. But not just for seven days nor seven weeks, but for always—for our lifetime. Allan Nevins writing in the magazine "This Week" sums the meaning of brotherhood in one short paragraph: "As we pass from youth to maturity, our sympathies ought to broaden, not contract. Troubles and bereavements are inseparable from life. When they come, we hunger for sympathy. And if they do not also teach us sympathy for the troubles of others, then we are dunces under life's schoolmastership."

It doesn't look like spring is very near today but don't let this gray, rainy Tuesday fool you, for spring is close at hand and before one can find the garden tools we will all be having the urge to dig and scratch. We have the new seed catalogues out now, poring over the beautiful pictured hybrid petunias. Last year was the first time we ever succeeded in raising our own petunia plants and the success went to our head for now we can't wait until its time to try our luck again. There is nothing more beautiful and more rewarding than a bed of the colorful flowers. Last year we had petunias blooming until Christmas on the south side of the house.

The other day we had our first good look at Mr. and Mrs. Opossum. While gazing out the kitchen window we saw something in slow motion ambling across the lawn. At first we thought it a grey cat, but it was too slow for a cat so we looked again and finally saw it was a opossum. He or she was fat and clumsy, rolling from side to side on its short legs like a sailor with too much sea-water. It was heading west toward a field across the road and kept in a straight line until it gained its objective and out of sight. It is no wonder that so many are killed on the highways as they move to slow to get out of the way of traffic. It isn't often that one sees these animals during the daytime.

We have finally been told the awful truth about the potential killing power of the "H" bomb. Especially about the part weather has in the "fall out" devastation. All of us realize now, if we didn't before how little protection there is against a bomb of this type. Our best protection is to outlaw war in any form and to work hard to make accessible to all people everywhere the things that make for decent and happy living. Last Sunday we heard a minister say that America cannot stand by with all her wealth and high standards of living and offer to the Asiatic people, who must live and raise a family on the equivalent of 28 dollars a year, and offer to those people only the fear of an "H" bomb. And preach to those people "Democracy" when they can't even read or write and if they could read the only thing they would be interested in would be where to find food to stay alive. Did you know that the life expectancy of a Chinese is 26 years and that when he becomes ill there are no doctors for him to call? He just dies. And until he dies . . . he just starves. The same holds true for India. If you were starving all your life would an "H" bomb hold much terror for you?

I have never starved or ever really been hungry except before setting down to a full table, but I don't think I would care to miss many meals and if I had to be hungry from the day I was born until I died, no bomb would ever make me forget that I was hungry and the first person that came along and offered me a square meal, no matter what his politics or creed, I would certainly look upon him as a friend. Wouldn't you? America can offer to the hungry of the world guns or bread, and as the old saying goes as you sow so shall you reap. Sow "H" bombs and we will get them in turn, cast your bread upon the waters and after many days it will return to us.

Insurance companies last week finally confessed that girls are safer drivers than boys. In fact girls are such a safe insurance risk that parents with strictly girl drivers will get a reduction in the insurance rates on the family car. On the other hand if junior has use of the car then Dad's rates will go up. Sorry boys, but that is the awful truth. You will just have to prove that you can drive as safely as your sisters.

No family can afford to have less than three children in case there is a genius among the three, there will be two to support him.

When ever anyone suggests to Washington a way of helping the farmer get a decent price for his products the standard reply is that farmers don't want to be helped—they want to be independent. Well farmers you have a choice: Either a decent living without so much independence, or more independence and less cash.—Ruth Roelke.

REINDELL

Mrs. Mattie Myers celebrated her 95th birthday anniversary on Wednesday, Feb. 16, at her home near this place. She received many lovely cards.

Over Station WTTR, Westminster, the hymn "Jesus Savior Pilot Me" was dedicated to Mrs. Myers on Wednesday morning following the devotional service. Mrs. Myers is enjoying good health and has a smile for all her many friends. We wish to dedicate this poem to her:

Softly, oh, softly, the years have swept by thee,
Touching thee lightly with tenderest care;

Sorrow and death they have often brought nigh thee,
Yet have they left thee but beauty to wear.

Growing old gracefully, gracefully fair
Far from the storms that are lashing the oceans,

Nearer each day to the pleasant home light.

Far from the waves that are big with commotion,
Under full sail and harbor in sight.

Growing old cheerfully, cheerful and bright,
Never a feeling of envy or sorrow,

When the bright faces of children are seen;

Never a year from the young wouldst thou borrow—

Thou dost remember what lieth between;

Growing old willingly, thankful, serene

Eyes that grow dim to the earth and its glory

Have a sweet recompence youth cannot know.

Ears that grow dull to the world and its story,

Drink in the songs that from Paradise flow.

Growing old graciously, Pure than snow.

Although the author is unknown, I love this poem and thought that you would like it too.

SHORT STORYNothing Certain

By Maurice Vincent

JIM WAINWRIGHT had no idea earlier in the morning, as he combed his unruly, dark hair and tried to scowl disgustedly at his regular features in the shaving mirror, that his most important assignment for the Grafic-Herald would concern his old fifth grade teacher and the United States Government.

He had even been happy on his way to work; shoulders back and blue eyes glinting merrily at an unconcerned world.

When Jim received the assignment on a piece of copy paper from the city desk he glanced at it briefly, crammed it into his coat pocket and left the office.

The note read, "Check Lucy Coburn . . . retired school teacher . . . income tax . . . maybe feature here."

That was all.

"A terrible mistake," Jim muttered. That Lucy Coburn, his old fifth grade teacher, should be picked up for income tax evasion was unthinkable!

Upon entering the Post Office, Jim felt that vague uneasiness that could be traced back to his school days and his awe of Miss Coburn. He could still remember those terrible arithmetic drills!

"Lissen, girlie . . ." he rasped. He tried to look tough and must have succeeded.

"Something?" the girl was looking at Jim frostily.

"Yeah . . . like to see Miss Coburn." He showed his press card.

"One moment please." The girl went into an inner office marked "Private."

Returning quickly, the girl said, "Miss Coburn is tied up at present."

Goodnight, Jim thought, they've got the dear old lady tied up! Gestapo tactics!

His face got grim. It never entered his mind that Miss Coburn might be guilty. There must be some mistake.

He could just see the headlines (this was his first real assignment) EXSCHOOLMARM SQUARED OF PHONY CHARGES BY GRAFIC REPORTER!

"Lissen, girlie . . ." he rasped. He tried to look tough and must have succeeded.

The girl fled. She was back in an instant with an uncertain smile.

"You may go right in . . . sir."

Jim swallowed a gulp and started for the door. His fears were realized when he saw Miss Coburn surrounded by four large men, one of whom nodded to Jim. This man Jim recognized as the head of the department. His name was Sam Fillmore and he and Jim had both been in school together.

As a matter-of-fact, they had both been in Miss Coburn's fifth grade at the same time.

Sam looked at Jim and didn't seem too pleased at the intrusion. Neither did the other men grouped around the old teacher.

The old lady was looking prim and her bony hands were clasped tightly in her lap in the old familiar pose. She was very intent upon her business . . . studying figures on the desk before her.

Jim went over to Sam and whispered his business. Sam looked at him with tired eyes.

"I . . . er . . . ah . . . hope you don't make story outta this, Jim, we're in a bit of a jam at present." Sam smiled weakly.

Jim looked stern.

"It's this way, pal," Sam went on. "Seems Miss Coburn has discovered she dropped his voice guilts as Miss Coburn looked his way, sternly) a . . . er . . . ah . . . slight error . . ." his voice trailed off.

Sam continued. "Seems she figures the department owes her $4.73 for last year . . . simple mistake on our part . . . addition."

Jim was beginning to feel sorry for Sam.

"But here's the payoff!" Sam was really disturbed. "She INSISTS we check our records for OTHER MISTAKES DURING PAST YEARS!"

Sam mopped his brow.

Jim's laugh startled Miss Coburn. The school marm looked at him for one long moment, seriously. Then she smiled with that thin lipped smile of hers.

It was so obvious that nobody, but nobody, could work with figures like Miss Lucy Coburn, retired teacher of the fifth grade.

Keeping Eyes Right Is Task of Six Little Muscles

NEW YORK—Six little muscles—that's the number which control the position of the eye and try to keep the eye on the beam, sometimes unsuccessfully.

In order to produce an image of an object at the center of each retina, both of your eyes must point to an object. If it's far away, your eyes have to point almost straight ahead. If it's close, they should turn inward.

But the muscles of some eyes rebel against a proper pointing job. Eyes may have a tendency to point outward (exophoria), or too far inward (esophoria); or one eye may tend to point above or below its mate (hyperphoria). Such deviation can occur in viewing both distant objects and nearby ones, but the distance and the near phoria conditions are usually different.

All this has to do with binocular vision, because, unless your two eyes point correctly, they won't produce images that correspond and you'll see double. If you have a phoria, your eye muscles will generally maintain the correct positions by making an effort. (It's this ability that distinguishes a phoria from a cross-eyed condition). But the effort is liable to cause discomfort, and if you should grow very tired, ill, or intoxicated, your eyes might relax and endure double vision. In extreme cases, the eyes are then noticeably out of line.

If a person surrenders permanently, the brain may do away with the confusion by suppressing impulses from one eye, so that the double vision is eliminated.

SuperstitionsSeldom Fade Away

LOS ANGELES—Superstitions seldom die, nor do they recognize any class distinctions, says one of America's greatest folklorists.

Dr. MacEdward Leach, a member of the University of Pennsylvania faculty, is making a collection of modern-day superstitions that are scrupulously observed by persons in all walks of life.

Some current popular beliefs: A pair of baby shoes hanging inside the cab of a truck will protect the driver against an accident; balls of cotton hung on strings in open doorways will keep out flies; if a black ace falls on the floor during a bridge game, don't play any more; whiskey will cure colds and butter or greasy foods will protect against getting tipsy at the boss's cocktail party; after opening canned foods, place any leftovers in a glass jar before putting them in the refrigerator.

"In addition to these," adds Dr. Leach, "there are thousands of personal superstitions. A famous Philadelphia surgeon, for example, will operate only if he is wearing the same white gown he has worn for years."

One-Bath House Fast Going Out of Style

CHICAGO—if you're buying a home soon, look before you leap.

A survey among recent home buyers shows that more than 85 per cent of those with single-bath dwellings now wish they had at least two baths.

The growing demand for more bathroom facilities has brought about a major revolution in modern home planning. For instance, more than 25 per cent of all homes now being built are equipped with more than one bathroom. The trend is not confined to moderate or to high-priced homes for many lower-cost developments are featuring homes with 1½ baths.

One reason for the popularity of multi-bath homes is the added convenience offered by an extra bath. A second bath or powder room helps to eliminate waiting in line for the facilities during the morning and evening rush hours.

Maybe Cats and Dogs, But Never Little Frogs

SCHENECTADY, N. Y.—Frogs and other small creatures do not fall with the rain, despite superstitious beliefs to the contrary.

General Electric Co., scientists say it is conceivable that a tornado might carry frogs aloft so they would fall to the ground later, perhaps with rain, but that it isn't too likely.

It is more plausible, they say, that a heavy rain would flood underground homes of frogs and other small creatures, forcing them into the open in large numbers. People seeing them on the ground might mistakenly think they fell with the rain.

Sam was beginning to feel sorry for Sam.

"But here's the payoff!" Sam was really disturbed. "She INSISTS we check our records for OTHER MISTAKES DURING PAST YEARS!"

Sam mopped his brow.

Jim's laugh startled Miss Coburn. The school marm looked at him for one long moment, seriously. Then she smiled with that thin lipped smile of hers.

It was so obvious that nobody, but nobody, could work with figures like Miss Lucy Coburn, retired teacher of the fifth grade.

Some Stump!

OLD SAYBROOK, Conn.—Col. Roger Whitman, having failed three times in attempts to burn out a pesky tree stump, piled automobile tires around it and set another blaze.

The flames were so hot they scorched a nearby tree and ignited a utility pole, but after the smoke subsided the stump was still intact.

CAKE 'N' CANDY COMBO

A NEW AND PRACTICAL REFRESHMENT for card parties is a batch of Half-and-Half Brownies. Unsweetened chocolate and semi-sweet chocolate chips give a new twist, that the gals will enjoy, to these perennial favorites. Easy to make, too. And you'll find a one-shot confection like this better suited to a planned series of get-togethers than a fancy, frosted cake and a variety of candies. No bustling around to serve elaborate food while the game's still "on." In a minute everyone can be happily settled with a cup of delicious hot coffee and one—or two—of your crunchy, chocolaty-rich, new style Brownies.

HALF AND HALF BROWNIES

½ cup sifted flour	1 package Baker's Semi-Sweet Chocolate Chips
½ teaspoon double-acting baking powder	¼ cup sugar
¼ teaspoon salt	2 eggs, well beaten
½ cup butter or other shortening	½ cup broken walnuts
1 square Baker's Unsweetened Chocolate	1 teaspoon vanilla

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder and salt, and sift again. Melt shortening, unsweetened chocolate and ½ package of the chocolate chips over hot water. Add sugar gradually to eggs, beating thoroughly. Add chocolate mixture and blend. Add flour and mix well; then add nuts and vanilla. Spread batter in greased 8x8x2-inch pan. Sprinkle remaining ½ package of the chocolate chips over top of batter. Bake in moderate oven (350° F.) about 30 minutes, or until done. Cool in pan; then cut into squares or rectangles. Makes about 20 brownies. (ANS)

MARYLAND WILDLIFE

Prepared by the MARYLAND GAME & INLAND FISH COMMISSION

ROBIN

(Turdus migratorius migratorius)

RANGE: The best known and best loved bird in North America; it is found over most of the United States and Canada and from Alaska to Mexico; common through all of Maryland from early spring through fall; most of them migrate, in flocks, south in fall, appearing in numbers in March; many winter in Maryland; probably more plentiful today than in years past, due to the clearing of forests and better protection.

DESCRIPTION: About 10 inches long; head black, breast red, tail blackish and slightly rounded, bill yellow; breast of young spotted, as in most other members of the thrush family.

VALUE: The esthetic value of the friendly robin, also called "red-breast" cannot be estimated, as their cheery presence around farms and houses and villages, and their familiar calls, give pleasure to millions; nor can its value as an insect destroyer be accurately calculated in dollars and cents; their presence makes this old world a better place to live in.

BREEDING: Males generally arrive first in the spring and fight for their "territory"; nests in low trees, under eaves, sometimes in rain-spouts and mailboxes; frequently raises, if lucky, two broods a season; lays 4-5 eggs, of a green-blue color (robin's egg blue).

HABITS: Food largely earthworms, also grasshoppers, beetles, cut worms and many other insects; some small fruits in season such as cherries, unfortunately.

MANAGEMENT: Little more can be done to increase this valuable species than has been and is being done, with remarkable results; they have materially increased as agriculture has advanced and the heavy forests have receded; formerly shot, mostly south of the Mason and Dixon Line, for food; have increased in some sections to a point where they have become a nuisance, especially when cherries and other small fruits are ripe.

how Advertising helps you

Affects the Unborn

CONSIDER, if you will, the picture of America as it is right now:

Every 9 seconds—pause and count one to nine—a new American is born. Every two minutes a new immigrant reaches our shores.

Of course there are deaths, and there are emigrants leaving America for elsewhere, and they slow up the growth, but not much. The death rate—thanks partially, at least, to the influence of advertising—is lower than at any other time in history; less than half the birth rate, as a matter of fact, with a death every 21 seconds, against a birth every nine. The rate of emigration is over three times as slow as the rate of immigration.

Sermon: Mark 16:15; Acts 2:14-41; Romans 10:8-15; 1 Corinthians 1:18-25; 2:1-5; Colossians 1:24-29.
Devotional Reading: Ephesians 3:1-12.

Story With Power

Lesson for February 27, 1955

EVERYBODY knows the words "Minister of the Gospel," but not everybody stops to think what they mean. Literally, the title means Servant of the Good News. The minister is a man with a story to tell. There are many words to describe a minister, but in Protestant churches the commonest, probably, is "Preacher." This is a Bible word too and it originally meant some one who announces something. The preacher is not a giver. Dr. Foreman of advice, first of all, but a teller of news. The message of the church, if it is faithful to the ideal Christ intended, is first of all, whatever else it may be, first of all a story of what God has done for men.

Story of a Life

A crank-sided philosopher who did not much care for preachers once made the sarcastic remark that a preacher has a very simple job: all he does is to go to a man and say, "God has told me to tell you that you are a very wicked man. Ten dollars, please!" If that were all that preachers could say, it certainly would not be worth ten cents. Men need to be told that they are on the wrong road, certainly. But they know that, sometimes better than the preacher does. What the church is called on to preach—that is, to proclaim, to tell, to persuade men that it is true—is story. First of all it is the story of a life, the life of Jesus Christ. The earliest Christian preaching of which we have any record told the story of Jesus. The four Gospels which we now have in writing got started as sermons. What we have before us in Matthew, Mark, Luke and John is what the earliest Christian preachers—who, by the way, were all what we call "laymen"—told people in market-places, in private homes or in synagogues, wherever they could get a hearing—what they told about Jesus, who he was, what he did, what he said. Christian preaching that leaves out the story of Jesus is not really Christian. Preaching that concentrates on the death of Christ and says little about his life and teachings is not New Testament preaching. When the early church put the four Gospels—stories about Jesus—in the front of the New Testament, they knew what they were doing. What is in the front of the New Testament ought not to be out of sight in the church.

Story of a Death

More space is used up, in our written Gospels, telling the story of Jesus' last week, his trial and execution, than is used for any other week in his lifetime. Now that last week was to all appearances a tragedy, coming swiftly to a shameful end. It is not a "nice" story. But the church told it, and still tells it. It was not at all necessary to dwell on it, one might think. All men die; why not Jesus too? But the church was not content to say simply that Jesus died on such and such a day. There was much more to be said, and much of what we have in the Epistles of the New Testament is just more "preaching" only this time not simply telling the story but explaining what it means. The four gospels all say that Jesus died. The epistles say, He died for our sins. The gospels tell us about a cross; the rest of the New Testament tells why that cross had to be. The cross marks the peak of the wickedness of the world. But it also marks the outpouring of the love of God. Nothing else that has ever happened, has expressed the love of God so eloquently as the Cross has done.

To Every Creature

A right church is never like a club. A club has nothing to say to people on the outside. Its members talk to one another, inside the club. But a church has something to say, a story to tell, a story to explain. It is the most important story in the world. You can believe other stories or not and it may make very little difference. But whether or not you believe the story the church has to tell, makes all the difference in the world with you, the difference between life and death. So the church has set out to tell this story of God to every creature in the world. So long as there is still one soul who has not heard it, or does not believe it, the work of the church is not yet done.

Let's Think

by
G. H. ENFIELD

PSALM SEVENTEEN

Psalm Seventeen contains the lament of a man because of the ungodly persecution of his ungodly enemies. Therefore, he asks the Lord to give ear to his cause which is just. From Thee, O Lord, I seek the vindication. I am free of guile; my lips are free of deceit. Let thy eyes see the right!

If thou triest my heart, if thou visitest me by night,
If thou testest me, thou wilt find
No wickedness in me;
My mouth does not transgress.

And—
With regard to the works of men,
By the word of thy lips
I have voided the ways of the violent.
My steps have held fast to thy paths.
My feet have not slipped.

Lord, I implore Thee, because I have tried to walk in Thy ways, and to be found in Thy paths. There has been no retaliation in any of my acts. Nevertheless, my enemies are arrogant, lurking, and materialistic. Their portion is in this life. They are not interested in justice, righteousness, and pity. They are concerned about greed.

May their belly be filled with what Thou hast stored up for them;
May their children have more
Than enough;
May they leave something over
To their babes.

Since his enemies are so very materialistic and avid, the psalmist would have the Lord save them and families with worldly goods. Already they are so well to do with earthly things that they are inclosed in their own fat.

Despite my integrity of character and nobility of purpose, there are enemies in ambush seeking to destroy me.

They are like a lion eager to tear,
As a young lion lurking in ambush.

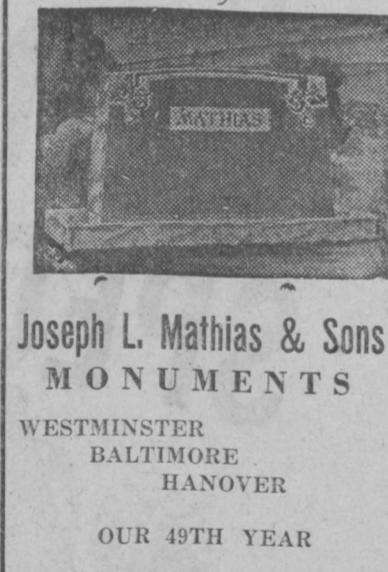

Thus, I seek Thee, O Lord, for my vindication. "From thee let my冤情 come!" Give me that calmness and security of soul that come through Thy vindication of the innocent.

Keep me as the apple of the eye;
Hide me in the shadow of thy wings
From the wicked who despoil me
My deadly enemies who surround me.

All told there are more than 225 warships in the destroyer category now on active service in the U.S. Navy.

One of the outstanding features of a Navy destroyer is versatility. In the crew no man serves aboard for one job alone.

Man, you said it. It's like being shot out of a cannon. That's the kind of start chicks get when Ren-O-Sal is in the drinking water. Right from the start chicks do better, grow faster. They reach maturity earlier and of course that means savings in feed and labor. Ren-O-Sal gives birds a better color—skin and shanks become yellower, comb and wattles get redder. Ren-O-Sal is good for older birds too. Give your chicks these benefits.

Accidental Falls Kill as Heavily As Tuberculosis

NEW YORK—Accidental falls take about 20,000 lives each year in the United States—approximately as many as tuberculosis—report statisticians of a major life insurance company. According to their study, falls rank second only to motor vehicles as a cause of accidental death.

The home is the scene of about two-thirds of all fatal falls. Only about 3 per cent occur in workplaces, a substantially smaller portion than 10 years ago, and undoubtedly reflecting the success of industrial safety programs.

The death rate from accidental falls is higher among males than among females at ages under 75. Above that age the reverse is true. More than half of all deaths from falls are concentrated at ages 75 and over.

Below age 15, falls from windows, porches, roofs, swings, trees and fences are the most common type. Diving accidents account for an appreciable part of the fatalities from falls among boys in late teens. Falls on stairs account for nearly a fourth of the deaths in the 25-44 age group, and close to one-third in the 47-75 group. Among older people, a considerable proportion of the falls occur when they are merely walking about the house.

Heavy loss of life from accidental falls can be reduced materially, the statisticians say, through safety education. Programs should call to attention the environmental hazards and the human factors responsible for these fatalities, indicating how they may be overcome. Simple safety measures, such as having handrails on stairs, providing adequate illumination in and about the house, anchoring rugs, and keeping stairs clear, can prevent many falls.

Annual Rings Tell Rattlesnake's Age

LOS ANGELES—Like the annual rings of a tree, "growth rings" in the bones of the rattlesnake tell how old he is, says Bayard Brattstrom, zoologist on the Los Angeles campus of the University of California.

Each year the rattle deposits a new layer of calcium and other minerals in his bones. These layers can be identified and counted with the aid of a hand lens or low-power microscope.

These "growth rings" occur throughout the snake's skeletal system. Brattstrom uses a small bone from the head of the snake, in which the rings are more discernible to determine its age.

This is the only accurate method of determining how old a rattlesnake is. Laymen have frequently attempted to tell a rattler's age by its number of rattles. This is guesswork, says the zoologist, and is seldom more accurate than plus or minus a couple of years.

A rattlesnake adds a rattle every time he sheds his skin. This occurs several times a year when he's young. As he grows older, the frequency of his shedding tapers. Also in older snakes, rattles are often broken off.

Sad-Faced St. Bernard Losing Out to Shepherd

WASHINGTON—Time honored tradition is giving way to efficiency in the Alps, where the massive, sad-faced St. Bernard is being replaced as a rescue animal by the smaller German Shepherd dog.

Dogs are essential in Alpine rescue work, even though modern communication and transport facilities have somewhat reduced their activity. A dog can reach remote mountain areas in which mechanical transport is of no use, and he can guide human rescuers in blinding and bewildering storms.

For centuries this was the work of the giant, gentle St. Bernard, especially trained by the monks of the Alpine hospice founded by St. Bernard de Menthon nearly a thousand years ago.

The St. Bernard is an efficient snow dog, but tests in the past 15 years have shown the German Shepherd better as rescue work. On one occasion only the keen nose and persistent efforts of a German Shepherd uncovered the body of a traveler buried deep beneath the snow of an avalanche.

Barnyard Briars Still Cling to Popularity

WASHINGTON, Mo.—More corn cob pipes than ever are being made this year, mostly by three firms in this city. The barn-yard briar came into existence in 1869 when the idea of making and smoking one first came to a Missouri farmer. The three firms turned out better than 7 million "Missouri Meerschaums" last year, plus 2½ million fancy ones of cob and hickory.

Among famed corn cob smokers—Gen. Douglas MacArthur, the late F. H. La Guardia, Mayor of New York, and H. L. Mencken, who made his name satirizing the "booboisie."

INSURANCE

Buy your insurance from an Agency Company, get personal service. Make sure your insurance fits your needs.

We insure as close to actual value as possible, then pay losses as fast and fair as possible. You check the companies reputation.

Dollars are hard to get, and hard to hold; so SAVE them on your Fire Insurance and Extended Coverage. If you have furniture, home, or farm to insure, I can save you quite a lot of money with strictly Non-Assessable Insurance.

It does not cost to look at the facts and figures, it pays BIG.
