They were High School mates and friends of Mr. Ibach, and before leaving home, they raided their cupboards and pantries for anything that could be used to make a noise. It was quite a surprise to the newly weds, and after the surprise was over, they were greeted with warm wishes for much happiness for the years ahead. When old friends get together and talk over funny little happenings of school days all are merry and gay. Mr. and Mrs. George Harner served refreshments Mr. and Mrs. Ibach will leave Friday and return to Baton Rouge, La.

"SPICE 'N' EVERYTHING NICE"

(Your Chatty Column)
With all my heart, I wish you every morning
A smile that shall last until the next day's dawning.
I wish you health—life's great wealth!
I wish you always near so that I may help to cheer
Each future day and in some way—help to bring you happiness!

The Weather Man had predicted a real cold Sunday and this time he was very much wrong for the Easter Sunday.

Although the throng appeared thinner on North Charles Street in Baltimore for the Easter Parade of fashions than other years nevertheless there were still hundreds in their very special finery.

As always each year, I sat on the steps in the 2900 block of North Chas. Street where it is the thickest and where my very special friends reside.

There were very few boxy suits as most American women favor the semi tight fitting garment. Very few furs were shown and I do not recall one coat of any color. The women of Baltimore still are the most beautiful of any big city which they have been known for all down through the years as far back as our grandmothers. The day was really warm and hot in sun which was shining brilliantly down from the real clear blue heavens.

There were more automobiles this year than ever perhaps that is the reason the crowd appeared thinner than usual.

There were a string of the 'old timers' all polished up as to their brass and the dates must have been 1900. Those in the cars were dressed as in those days and everyone seemed to be delighted with the entire procession.

The policemen handled the traffic beautifully and not once did I recall of any traffic standing still.

The corsages were lovely and all carried out beautifully as to the color scheme of milady's suit.

Many stopped to talk and chat for awhile and there were many, Oh's and Ah's.

The afternoon went by rapidly although I must add the dogs all were making a hit and especially my Boston Terrier with her cute Easter hat. Her picture was taken over and over again and Buttons did not mind in the least.

Church service in the morning was filled to capacity and somehow as I sat in the pew, I wished that all Sundays were just like this one. Then the very special service in the evening was most interesting titled "Look and Live" which was presented by the J. Choir.

The other day, I went to see the opening of "A Man Named Peter". It was the true story of the young man who came over from Scotland, Peter Marshall and was taken from the book which his wife wrote after his sudden death in Washington, D. C. Richard Todd and Jean Peters make the story very real in Cinema scope. When this man called Peter prayed from the pulpit in the church in which Abraham Lincoln worshipped and preached and then said "Let us pray" found that I was lowering my head as though I was right there in that church. And that reminds me that last week the wife was on the T. V. show of "I've Got A Secret" (Her Secret) she had had lunch that day with Mrs. Dwight Eisenhower. It no doubt will be one of the best pictures of the year.

If you are a drinking man or if you know of anyone who does drink by all means see Grace Kelly and Bing Crosby in "The Country Girl". No wonder that girl won the Oscar. The story is one which will give you many real thoughts—wondering how any man could have ruined his life for so many years with alcohol just because he had had a tragedy in his life as to the death of his young son. The wife puts up all through the years until a stranger comes in her life. The acting was perfection and as to the story it was excellent with a grand moral lesson. Of course, it shows in the end how this man finally did get a hold of himself before losing the wife who stood by him for so many years. You will enjoy every minute of the entire program, in fact, I could see it again.

If you happen to be going to Johns Hopkins to visit anyone there be sure you notice when you enter the main hall that wonderful marble statue of Christ. The sculptor chiseled the imprints of the wounds so very clearly in the feet and hands that one can lay their finger (as I did the other day) right in the crevices.

There is also a grand gift shop operated by a Mrs. Mason just before you enter the hospital. She sells just about everything right there and all prices, too, even to lovely hand made hats.

So long, folks, until next week D. V. when I will write about my visit "around the town". Have a grand week end when you drive as nature is truly most beautiful this time of the year. Until then, I am,

Faithfully,
YOUR OBSERVER

KEEP MARYLAND BEAUTIFUL

Governor McKeldin has officially proclaimed April 22-29 as County Clean-up Week in Maryland and Keep Maryland Beautiful leaders are hopeful that each of the 23 counties and many municipalities will participate in the combined effort.

Twelve counties have already mapped out a program of cleanup activities and are naming special committees to be responsible for various phases of the drive designed to make the public aware of the need for eliminating unsightly debris from our streets, highways and public parks and recreation areas.

Counties reporting the greatest Cleanup Week progress so far are Anne Arundel, Baltimore, Calvert, Caroline, Frederick, Harford, Howard, Kent, Montgomery, St. Mary's, Talbot and Wicomico.

KMB Chairman John E. Clarke said there were indications all but possibly two counties in the State would join in the campaign.

A number of towns like Ellicott City and Glen Burnie are already conducting similar drives to stimulate interest in the community-wide and county-wide programs.

Ellicott City has made a determined effort this year to brighten up the town as part of a general improvement program for the Howard County seat.

Clark hailed such programs as indicative of increasing public concern over the problems of litter and the careless spreading of trash. "An unsightly town, just as a trash-strewn open country roads, is bad for business and community morale", Clark declared. "More and more people are recognizing that litter is everybody's problem and the more that join in the Statewide campaign, the more rapidly will answers be found to cure this problem", he added.

GOVERNOR'S PROCLAMATION
 Many public-spirited citizens of Maryland are planning and working toward educating the people in general against careless or deliberate littering of our highways, roadsides, parks, picnic areas and other public places.

They are serving at the request of the Governor and are organized under the name of Keep Maryland Beautiful.

State agencies are cooperating, as are the officials of various political subdivisions.

It is good business as well as good etiquette. The State Roads Commission alone spends more than $100,000 a year cleaning up the litter on the roads.

The Statewide organization has been meeting with gratifying success. Much, however, remains to be done, and it is essential that awareness of the problem be brought directly to the people in their home areas.

The Keep Maryland Beautiful organization and the Maryland House of Delegates by Resolution have proposed a County Clean-Up Week, applicable to each and every County of Maryland.

In official endorsement of this proposal, I, Theodore R. McKeldin, Governor, do hereby proclaim the week of April 22nd through April 29th, 1955, to be "COUNTY CLEAN-UP WEEK" in Maryland.

I urge county officials, civic clubs, social groups and all other organizations as well as individuals in each County to make this week a success—not only in cleaning up the streets, highways and other public and private outdoor areas, but in implanting in the people a lasting civic consciousness and a realization of the value and desirability of such cleanliness at all times.

Given under my Hand and the Great Seal of the State of Maryland, at the City of Annapolis, this 21st Day of March, in the Year of Our Lord, One Thousand Nine Hundred and Fifty-five.

HOW often should children's shoes be changed?

A good many of our readers are bound to answer this question by saying, "When their old ones are worn out or can't be repaired."

Actually, this is a very dangerous policy from the standpoint of a child's health. Children's feet grow very rapidly and their shoes must therefore be changed frequently. It is poor economy to insist that a child wear shoes because they still look new on the outside even though they have long ceased to be comfortable. For this reason, too, children's shoes should not be resoled or otherwise repaired; their feet grow so rapidly that the chances are that when the soles have gone it is time for replacement.

down to younger children. Unfortunately, shoes, particularly children's shoes, have to be fitted and no two children have exactly the same feet. Besides, leather dries out after a while—even if stored in a shoe box—so that even new-looking shoes become curled up and wrinkled on the inside after a while.

These are some of the things you should know about children's shoes:

Because children's feet grow so rapidly, their shoes should be checked every two to four months. Buy only minimum quantities and buy fairly good shoes when you do; poor shoes seldom keep their shape.

When measuring a child for shoes, have him stand with his full weight on both feet. Pull the stockings at the toes to make sure the toes are not curled up.

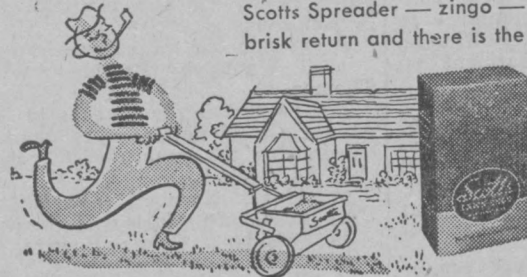

There should be at least 1/2 inch from the tip of the longest toe to the end of the shoe when the child is standing.

The shoe should be wide enough for comfortable walking.

The heel should fit snugly so it won't rub in walking.

CURRENT EVENTS
FIFTY YEARS AGO

Taneytown is becoming famous as a buggy and carriage market. Last Saturday about seventy of these vehicles were sold here, and many more will be sold during the summer.

Mrs. F. H. Seiss and Miss Elizabeth S. Reindollar are taking a special course in pipe-organ instructions, at the Woman's College, Frederick.

With two sales of nursery stock in Taneytown, on Saturday, 15th, and one on the Saturday following, there should be nobody unsupplied.

On Monday evening, the fourth thunder-storm of the year—an extremely severe one—visited this section, accompanied by a heavy rainfall.

There is little use in our citizens complaining of fast and reckless driving unless they try to prevent it. All that is necessary is to go before a magistrate and swear out a warrant for arrest of driver, then appear and swear that the speed complained of was in excess of eight miles an hour. Much of the driving through town is at the rate of 12 and 15 miles an hour. Citizens do not like to swear out warrants for fear of making enemies, but the nuisance cannot be prevented in any other way, as it is the constable's business to make arrests, rather than to swear out warrants or try personally to prevent all violations of law.

Union Bridge—The road supervisors in this district have been scraping and have the roads in nice shape. It will now be in order for the traction engines to get in their work.—Lester Perry arrived home on Monday from a month's visit to his brother in Virginia.

Middleburg—The re-opening service of the M. E. church, last Sunday, was largely attended both morning and evening. The church was built 55 years ago and except for paint and paper had been little improved during that time. A recess for the choir and pulpit and a vestibule have been added; the old ceiling was removed, arched and ceiled in light oak. Two beautiful windows were donated by John E. Humbert and C. Wesley Winemiller. A handsome communion table and three pulpit chairs were the gift of Mrs. R. W. Walden. The ladies purchased the furnace and carpet; altogether the improvements cost nearly $1300.

MEETING OF CARROLL COUNTY HISTORICAL SOCIETY

The Carroll County Society of Baltimore furnished the program for the meeting of the Historical Society of Carroll county held at the home of the organization Thursday evening, March 17. Mr. Frank H. Hymiller of the Baltimore Society paid high tribute to his native county as he presented the Historical Society with a portrait of Frank Brown, Carroll's only governor.

An interesting series of events led to the gift of this portrait. When Mrs. Annette Rickards, of Baltimore read an article about the Historical Society of Carroll County, published last summer in the rotogravure section of the Baltimore Sun, she recalled a portrait of Carroll's governor which she had discovered some time previous in an Antique Shop. She was able to identify the portrait, because as a child she had often visited her mother's cousin who was companion to the Governor's wife and raised their children. Knowing that the Brown family line had ended with the death of Frank the third in World War II, Mrs. Rickards felt that the portrait should come back to the Governor's home county, The Carroll County Society of Baltimore agreeing with her, purchased the portrait and invited Mrs. Rickards to be present for the unveiling.

Mrs. Harry Read, of Baltimore, formerly Emma C. Myers, of Wakefield and Pleasant Valley, read a biographical sketch of Governor Brown. Tracing his ancestry in unbroken line from the royal house of France through the Le Bruns who went from that country to England with William the Conqueror in 1066, Mrs. Read followed the family line through settlement in Scotland where the name was changed to Brownie, and concluded with their migration to Maryland in the seventeenth century.

Frank Brown was born August 8, 1845 on "The Inheritance", a famous ancestral estate adjoining "Springfield" which later came into his possession. Since his father, Stephen Thomas Cocke Brown, was one of the foremost agriculturists of the state and one of the founders of Maryland Agricultural College, Frank's education along that time was greatly stressed, to the point that at the age of 18 he was presented with a farm. However, while throughout his life he enjoyed farming as a hobby, his major interest was politics. In 1875 the Democratic voters of Carroll County elected him to the State House of Delegates. In the presidential campaign of 1885, he was treasurer of the Democratic State Central Committee. From 1886 to 1890 he was Postmaster of Baltimore. On November 3, 1891, Frank Brown was elected Governor of Maryland and served from 1892 to 1896. It was said that he came out of office as popular as when he entered.

Frank Brown was married in 1879 to Mary Ridgely of Baltimore. Two children were born to them: May and Frank, Jr. Governor Brown died February 3, 1920 and was buried in Greenmount cemetery.

In the absence of the president of the Historical Society, Dr. Theodore M. Whitfield presided. The chief item of business was the unanimous and grateful acceptance of the Carroll Garden Club's plan for the creation of an appropriate landscape garden on the grounds of the Historical Society. Miss Shipley reported that the Hall of Records in Annapolis had requested permission to microfilm the Day Book of Robert Pinkney now in the possession of the Historical Society of Carroll County. He was a tailor of Annapolis, dating his first entry May 22, 1764.

The Carroll County Society of Baltimore was represented at the meeting by Mr. and Mrs. James Benson, Mrs. Erle Baumgartner, Mrs. Annette Rickards, Baltimore, Miss Nellie E. Thomas, Baltimore, Mrs. Emma Myers Read, Baltimore, Mr. and Mrs. John M. Clayton, Mrs. Wm. Bralle Margate, N. J., Mr. and Mrs. Thomas S. Yingling, Baltimore, Mr. Frank Hymiller, Mrs. William A. Wheeler, and Mr. and Mrs. Hymiller.

The hostesses were Mrs. Homer Twigg, Hampstead, Mrs. Maurice Stewart, Manchester, and Mrs. Sarah Bennett and Mrs. Grace Bish, of Westminster.

BRIGHTER LIVING

By Jan Reynolds

HERE IS a wonderful way to brighten up your kitchen stove. Have a shielded unit installed a few feet above your range. It will create a decorative and useful shelf for display of herbs, spices and pottery. And most important, just one 40-watt fluorescent tube (or a unit with two 20's) will let you see what you're cooking — and see in the pots, too.

HOUSE CLEANING TIP

The dusting of light bulbs, bowls, fixtures of all types — is very important to maintaining good light.

ing in your home. Dust covered lamps can mean the loss of 25 to 30 per cent of required illumination.

THOUGHT ON STEP-SAVING

Have a fuse box installed on the first floor of your home rather than in the basement. This can be conveniently placed in the kitchen or hallway and neatly camouflaged behind a picture or calendar. It will enable you to replace a blown fuse quickly and save you from stumbling down cellar stairs. If possible the rooms or outlets controlled by each fuse should be indicated in the box or on the inside of its door. This may save time and trouble when you are in a hurry to get the lights on again. Also — be sure to find out what blew the fuse and correct the trouble.

Otherwise the new ones will blow as fast as you can screw them in.

LIGHTING FOR STUDENTS

Lighting is most important to your child's vision and also may effect his school grades. A few points to keep in mind: The study desk should have a light-colored surface or covering and be against a light-colored wall to avoid disturbing contrasts. If wall lamps are used, they should be 30 inches apart, have diffusing bowls, light-colored shades and 100-watt bulbs. The student's eyes should be at least 14 inches above the work. If a table lamp is used, a 3-lite bulb containing 50-150 watts is recommended with glass diffusing bowl built into lamp. Again, lamp placement is important — the stem of lamp should be 15 inches to left of work center and 12 inches from front edge of desk.

LIGHT AT YOUR PIANO

There are two advantages here in using the floor lamp. It can be moved to suit the player and can never vibrate on the piano, which small lamps often do. An open top translucent shade with a two socket mount using 75-watt bulbs will give ample light. If you use a reflecting bowl in this lamp, remember sockets below the reflector are necessary to good light on the keyboard and music. — Jan Reynolds, Sylvania Electric Home Lighting Consultant.

HISTORY OF HARNEY
By J. W. Reck, 1895

PART II

We see from the accounts kept that sugar at that time was more than double the price of today, while coffee was somewhat cheaper. Calico and muslin were also much higher than at present, and we are told were not carried regularly in stock, but that the old merchant would inform his trade that a certain time he would bring several pieces of muslin and calico with him home, and our older citizens may remember how the people of the entire community would gather at his place of business and wait for the goods to come.

It is said that he would often sell several pieces of these goods out in one evening, and then that would last for about a year, when he would bring another lot. An old lady who had occasionally dealt with Cornell informs us that, if a lady bought one new calico dress a year she was considered well off. Just contrast those times with today. When he decided to sell out, he did not have a large stock to run down like we do today, but he closed out his entire stock for $10.00, and every person came and settled their accounts, and in about a week after the sale the books were closed up; this certainly shows very distinctly the honesty of the people of that time, as well as their willingness to pay what they owe.

In order to call back to the minds of some of our citizens many of the little incidents of their boyhood days, we will give a brief list of some of the people of this community who dealt with Mr. Cornell, as follows: Richard Hill, William Paxton, John Hunter, Sarah Shaner, Joseph Mills, Esther McKinney, George Ohler, Frederick Stoxlager, William Linn, George Shriver, Henry Hess, John Benner, John Reck, Richard Fream, Daniel Sell, Samuel Null, Arthur McGuigan and John Bishop. We might mention a host of others but space will not permit, those mentioned, however, were some of our old farmers, but all have died long ago.

Evidently in those days people had a great deal of patience, and would go a great distance to the store without any assurance that their orders were always taken and the desired goods purchased when the next trip was made. Before leaving this subject, we desire to say that Mr. Cornell drove an old sorrel horse hitched to a one horse wagon, and that he was often known to walk the entire distance to Baltimore and back, and that the faithful animal was so well acquainted with his duties that he would almost have been able to make the trip alone.

In 1828, the Emmitsburg and Littlestown road was opened up, thus forming an important cross road at this place. Before the road was opened, however, it met with considerable opposition, and after it had been opened, one man put a gate across and locked it shut, but this was soon opened by the proper authorities. Another man on being asked to move his fence back, became angry, and moved it back about 150 feet farther than was necessary, a complete case of "cutting your nose off to spite your face" because, after the road was used for a short time all began to see how important it was, and were perfectly satisfied, and the gentleman went quietly to work and moved his fence out to the proper place.

During the next 10 or 12 years nothing of any very great importance seemed to take place, with the exception of cutting down timber and clearing off land, and preparing it for farming and thus things moved quietly along, until 1839 or 1840. Adam Lichtenwalter sold his property to Elijah Eckenrode, who opened up a small store, but, finding there was not a fortune in the business, he only continued for a short time when he sold his stock to Jacob Correll, who rented the property and continued the business, but his stay was of short duration. He failed in business, and in order to save himself moved across Mason and Dixon's line into Pennsylvania after night. This started the natives, and caused quite a talk, but upon learning the exact state of affairs, everything passed off quietly.

FIRST PREACHING

In 1839, John Rathfan, a local United Brethren preacher, bought about 120 acres of land from Eliza Reck. This tract is on the eastern side of the Gettysburg Road; he improved the property with a full set of new buildings, but during his work, he still remembered his ministerial duties, and after his barn was completed he held preaching in it and nearly always had a large audience. This we are told was about the first preaching held in this community. Prior to this the majority of the people of this community attended church in Taneytown. We remember having been told by Samuel Reck, who was born and raised about 2 1/2 miles north of this place, about his going to catechise in his young days. He said "that the young people of the community would all walk to Taneytown on Saturday afternoon, and that the boys and girls would carry their shoes as far as Piney Creek, then all would wash their feet and put on their shoes and stockings to walk into town; and when they started home they would come out to the edge of town and all would again take off shoes and stockings and go home barefooted." This of course was "old times" and happened about 80 years ago.

Rev. Rathfan soon discovered however that farming and preaching did not work well together, so he decided to abandon the farm, and in 1842, rented his farm to Samuel Null, who farmed the place for several years, then moved to his father's farm, or what is known as the old Null property, and is occupied by Greenberry Null. Mr. Null had a large family, 10 boys and 2 girls, one son fell in defence of his country near Harper's Ferry during the late rebellion, and his remains peacefully rest in the Reformed Cemetery at Taneytown. In 1866, Mr. Null moved to Lafayette county, Missouri, where he resided until his death which occurred November 14th, 1888.

About 1843, Jacob Kreglo bought the old Lichtenwalter property from Eliza Eckenrode and started store-keeping. During this period, young Jacob Kreglo purchased a tract of land directly opposite his father's property on the Gettysburg road, and built a cabinetmaker shop; he afterwards sold his property to his brother Jonas, who built an addition to the shop and used the new part for a dwelling and used the old shop part for a store room. About the closing up of the forties, John Rathfan sold his farm to Solomon Snider who lived on it until 1854, when Snider sold to William Fream who built a blacksmith shop and carried on the business until 1876, when his son George took charge of the shop and carried on the business until 1878.

In 1854, old Jacob Kreglo sold his property to Phillip Shriver, who started wagon making. Sometime between 1845 and 1850, Jacob Kreglo bought the old Ecker property from John Kump; he lived there for a few years, then decided to quit housekeeping, sold the property, and made his home with William Cornell his son-in-law, who then lived about a quarter of a mile from this place, on the property where Abraham Hill now resides. James McIlhenny became the next owner of the place, and the property was rented for a number of years and finally torn away.

About 1854 or 1855 Jonas Kreglo sold out his store and property to Jeremiah Reinhart who, we are told, continued in business for three years; during this time he built the house now standing on the corner of Emmitsburg and Taneytown streets; this house was built for the purpose of being rented and was a rough cast two-story building put up on a very cheap plan. Daniel Good its present owner, built an addition to it, had it weatherboarded and painted, and today it makes a very respectable appearance.

POSTOFFICE ESTABLISHED
In 1856 the people of the village began to think the place was of sufficient size to have a post office, and a petition was gotten up at Reinhart's store, which contained the signatures of nearly all the people of the community, praying the government to grant the establishing of an office at this place. When the petition was sent in, they were promptly notified that there was no mail route through this place, and it would be impossible to have an office where there was no mail route, consequently the first duty of the citizens would be to establish a route by which the mail could conveniently reach this place, just how this could be done seemed to be the principal topic for discussion but in the latter part of 1857, William Pate of Gettysburg, conceived the idea that a stage line running from Emmitsburg to Hanover, would be a paying line, and he promptly started it, thus giving to the citizens the desired mail route. This seemed to create new life in the people of the community, and all seemed to think of nothing but the great convenience of having their mail brought almost to their doors, besides the great advantage it offered them in the way of travel.

MORE SOUND facts

"PAINLESS" DENTISTRY MAY BE ACHIEVED BY THE USE OF A SOUND-LESS, NEW ULTRASONIC DRILL WHICH VIBRATES 29,000 TIMES PER SECOND!

HOMES ARE NOISIER TODAY BECAUSE OF THE LACK OF SOUND ABSORBING FURNISHINGS AND BECAUSE MORE SOUND REFLECTING SURFACES & APPLIANCES ARE BEING USED.

MOVIE PRODUCERS FIND IT HARD TO RECORD "QUIET" COUNTRYSIDES BECAUSE OF THE INCREASED TRAFFIC & AIRPLANE NOISES!

ACOUSTICAL MATERIALS ABSORB UP TO 75% OF THE SOUND STRIKING THEM—SO STATES THE ACOUSTICAL MATERIALS ASSOCIATION. WHILE WOOD, PLASTER AND GLASS WILL ONLY ABSORB ABOUT 3%!

ASK YOURSELF

How many men would walk into a clothing store and tell the salesman to sell him a suit of clothes, not looking at the kind of quality, whether it fits him or not, and not asking the price he is going to charge you? If you bought a suit this way, putting it in the closet hoping to never need it, then several years later, you really needed this suit; would it fit you and be really what you should have?

The above would seem odd, but there are millions of dollars spent in insurance just this way. What kind have you? Does it fit your needs of today? How strong is the company financially? How does the price compare with others.

Do you have a policy issued by a Stock Company, a non-Assessable Mutual Company or an Assessable Company? Would your insurance replace your losses? Are you protected from Fire, Lightning, Windstorm, Explosion, Smoke Damage and where needed Comprehensive Personal Liability?

What rate are you paying? Are you buying to the best of your advantage, 1 year, 3 years, 5 years or 5 year installment?

Better get that old insurance policy out and find out what kind it is, if it fits your needs today; get rates and facts from several different agents, then buy what you consider the best for your personal needs.

No other low-priced car even comes close to matching these important Chevrolet advantages . . .

If you're planning to buy a new car, the one you just can't afford to miss seeing is Chevrolet—for 19 straight years America's best-selling car. The Motormatic Chevrolet offers you so much more than the other low-priced cars that it's hardly fair to compare them. And even the high-priced cars don't have all the advantages that today's Chevrolet offers you.

The beauty's built in—not bolted on! Chevrolet's beauty is inherent in the basic contours of metal and glass. There's no excessive bolted-on ornamentation to go out of style overnight.

The Body's by Fisher!

You see Body by Fisher on lots of the high-priced cars—and only Chevrolet has it in the low-price field!

Today's most modern engines!

That goes for Chevrolet's new V8 and two new sixes as well. All bring you a modern 12-volt electrical system—double the voltage of other low-priced cars. Then Chevrolet's new "Turbo-Fire V8" has the shortest piston stroke in the industry!

A drive to suit your driving!

There's silky, peppery Powerglide (even better this year!), new Overdrive (both extra-cost options), and a new Synchron-Mesh transmission that's as smooth as they come.

All the power helpers you want!

Windows, seat, steering, brakes—all are available with built-in "muscles" to make driving as effortless as you wish. They're optional at extra-cost—and worth it!

Come take the key!

There have never been so many good reasons why you should drive a Chevrolet!

Over Ten Million Chevrolet owners—Two Million more than any other car!

No Greater Fool

Lesson for April 17, 1955

IT WAS the day of the great mass-meeting. The new administration was meeting the voters face to face. At least, the man who hoped and expected to be the administration was facing the people he hoped to rule. The right word is "rule," for this was in the days when kings were kings and not mere signers of other men's documents. And this particular king was none other than the son, the one and only son, of the famous King Solomon. His name was Rehoboam, and if ever a greater fool lived on this earth, history has lost record. As a matter of fact, he could not be king automatically. The nation had not been a kingdom very long; there had been only three kings in all, Saul, David and Solomon. And in every case, the king had been elected by vote of the people. It was what we would call technically an elective monarchy, not yet a hereditary one. So Rehoboam had to persuade the people that he was worthy of election. He could not be king of any tribe if that tribe did not vote for him.

Dr. Foreman

A Royal Fool
Rehoboam now proceeded to do everything wrong. The people asked him the perennial question: What about taxes? Solomon's reign had been magnificent—if you lived in the palace. If you lived out in the villages or on a farm it looked different. The royal officers were everywhere, bleeding the people for all the taxes and all the forced labor that the royal magnificence required for its upkeep. The people told Rehoboam that Solomon's yoke was grievous; they begged him to make it lighter. Rehoboam asks for time to think. He spends that time asking advice. The older counsellors, his father's trusted wise men, tell him to go light on the people. In fact they give him the whole theory of good government in a nutshell: "If you will be a servant unto this people . . . then they will be your servants for ever." Then Rehoboam asks the younger men, his own contemporaries, what he shall do. They give him the completely foolish advice to "bear down on the people, treat 'em rough, tell them nothing good. So the feckless Rehoboam goes out and says in effect, "You took a beating in my father's time—but you haven't seen anything yet. If he beat you with whips, I'll beat you with scorpions."

Nine Hundred and Ninety-Nine Stepmothers

Of course Rehoboam lost the election. Only one tribe stood by him. The rest went off and elected another king of their own. A kingdom that David had won by courage and Solomon had held by wisdom, was kicked away by Rehoboam out of sheer foolishness. What made Rehoboam such a fool? It was not his youth. At the time of this episode he was forty years old, and if a man has no sense by the time he is forty, it is too late to hope. Part of the trouble may have been his 999 stepmothers. Solomon was married a thousand times, but we have no record of any children except this man Rehoboam. Considering what harem intrigues are like in the Orient, and considering the fact that most if not all of Solomon's immense harem were heathen women, it would not be surprising if Rehoboam's mother (who herself was a heathen from Ammon) was over-supplied with bad advice from Rehoboam's nosy stepmothers. Some fools are born, some are made. They are home-made, many of them. One of the best ways to produce a fool in your family is to listen to all the stupid advice the neighbors can give you.

The Voice of Inexperience

Another thing was wrong with Rehoboam, and for this we cannot blame his mother nor his congregation of stepmothers. It was his own fault that he preferred to listen to the men his own age, men who like himself had grown up in the luxury of the court, men who knew nothing of practical affairs, preferred to listen to them, the voices of inexperience, rather than to the older men whose advice Solomon had tried and presumably found good. Rehoboam being himself without experience could not tell, of course, beforehand, whether the older or younger men were right.

Farmer Excellent Risk for Credit

Credit Association Records Tell Story

Farmers are excellent credit risks says a recent editorial in the National Live Stock Producer, which cites a 20-year-old record with Production Credit Associations to prove the point. During the past 20 years, it is reported, farmers borrowed $12.4 billion in 4,830,000 loans through PCA. Losses, including a set aside Records established over a 20-year period indicate that the American farmer is one of the best credit risks in the nation. Arrangements which set up Production Credit Association have proved profitable both for the farmer and the national economy.

for reverses, have been less than 1/4 of 1 per cent.

The PCA system was created in 1934 with $90 million in federal funds and authority to borrow 10 times that amount. The purpose was to loan money to farmers for short term needs such as feed, seed, fertilizer, livestock and machinery.

Borrowers became members of PCA and invested 5 per cent of the amount of their loans in stocks leading to eventual farmer ownership of the entire system.

The arrangement proved profitable both for the government and the taxpayers. All but $4,610,500 of the original $90 million has been repaid with interest. Only 217 per cent of the original capitalization has not been amortized. In addition, local PCAs have built up over $85.7 million in reserves with total borrowing power of $1.7 billion.

Farm Enlargement Trend Continuing

Although the number of farms in the United States is dwindling each year, the farm enlargement trend continues, which means that, though there are fewer farms, there are bigger farms.

Continuation of the trend toward farms of a more economic size, which between 1935 and 1950 helped to reduce the number of American farms by nearly one and one half million or 20 per cent, is disclosed in the latest survey of the farm real estate market by the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

This study reports that nearly a third of the farms which changed hands in the year ended last March were acquired to enlarge existing farms. This proportion exceed that of any previous year. The farm-enlargement trend was most pronounced in the Wheat and Corn Belts, where the high degree of mechanization of production has made larger scale farming particularly advantageous.

In the wheat areas alone, more than two-fifths of the farms acquired in recent years have been for consolidation purposes.

Defense Test

City folks found out recently that domestic - type LP - Gas ranges like those used on American farms cook a fine meal. More than 11,500 Chicagoans were served during mass feeding exercise staged by civil defense volunteers. In the nation's first big city test of emergency feeding plans in case of atomic bombing, everything was done as though city utilities—gas, water, light—had been knocked out. Mrs. Jack Griffin, girl scout leader, serves John H. Scout, national director, mass care division of Civil Defense Administration.

SHORT STORY

New Suit
By Sally E. Eads

I WAS waiting by the car when Daddy came out of the house. I told him about the suit at Daulton's store that was marked down to ten dollars and was just my size. But he said he could not get the suit for me. Too many other things to buy.

"But, Daddy, since we've moved to town, I've got to dress better than I did on the farm," I protested. "The town boys'll make fun of me if I don't."

Mother came to the door and said something about a chicken, and Daddy nodded.

"Mell, you know those chickens on the farm that roosted in the barn, and we couldn't catch them when we moved to town?"

"Yes, Daddy, I remember them." "They're as wild as pheasants," Daddy went on. "If you'll run out to the farm and catch one for your mother, I'll give you a dollar. In fact, I'll give you a dollar each for every one of those chickens you bring home."

"Whoop-ee!" I yelled, and my parents laughed.

After Daddy had gone, I got an ear of corn and a ball of twine. I drilled a hole in a grain of corn and ran twine through the hole and tied it. Then I unwound about twenty feet of twine from the ball and cut it off. I kept on till I had twenty strings with corn made fast to one end. Then I lit out to the farm. When I arrived, there wasn't a chicken in sight. But I went to the old beech tree in the meadow and tied twenty pieces of twine to as many low limbs. If I could scare a chicken up to that tree and she swallowed a grain of corn, I'd get me a dollar, as sure as anything. Because with a grain of corn with a string to it in the chickens' gizzard and the other end of the string in my hand, I could lead her home without hurting the chicken. I scattered corn all around the tree, and went out in search of chickens.

"Whoop-ee!" I yelled, and my parents laughed.

Not far away, I found the flock, and sailed a stone in amongst them. You should have seen them scatter. And just as I had hoped, three frying size roosters were trying to get loose from the twine they had swallowed. I untied the tree-end of the twine and led the three chickens to the barn where I fastened them in the crib, and went back to the beech tree.

Two pullets had swallowed my twine-tied corn. But to my disgust, a crow had gotten one of the stringed grains of corn and he was fussing and flopping till he had scared off all the other chickens. I cut the crow's string loose right at his beak and told him to go. And he went.

After I had led the last three chickens to the barn, I had to search for the others. I thought I would never find them. I had built up my hopes about making enough money to pay for the suit. Now, I was discouraged. I hunted all over the fields, but could see no sign of a chicken. Then I heard a cackle and hurried back to the beech tree. When I came in sight, I was almost overcome with joy. I had caught six more chickens.

Unless you happen to be another boy about to get a much needed new suit, you can't imagine how happy I was, as I led those eleven fat, fryers down the highway. I led six by strings of twine in one hand, and five in the other.

When I reached home, Daddy was there. He and mother both came out to see my catch. Mother said, "Oh, Well!" but Daddy just grinned.

"Eleven dollars worth of chickens, Daddy," I told him, "Ten dollars for my suit and one for my pocket."

Daddy shoved his old hat to the back of his head and took out his billfold. "That was the agreement, son," he said as he handed me eleven dollars.
