A SACK OF GROCERIES

Just how good were the good old days of some 50 years ago, when prices were much lower for practically everything than they are now?

The Sun, of Saratoga, Wyoming, has something interesting to say in this regard. Back in the '90's round steak sold for 12 cents a pound, butter for a quarter, and a loaf of bread went for a nickel. The cost of the grocery order which came to 85 cents then would be about $2.98 to-

So it looks as if we were taking a fearful beating, price-wise. However, as the Sun points out, there is another side to the coin-earning power. Government figures show that a worker who averaged 16 cents an hour in the '90s averaged $1.88 last year. So, to quote the Sun directly, "The factory worker who bought the list of staples in the 1890s would have worked about 5 hours and 20 minutes for the money it took to pay the bill. Today he can earn enough for the same sack of groceries in about an hour and a

The situation would be generally the same in the case of goods other than foods. Many causes have contributed to this great increase in purchasing power. One of the important ones has been the change within retailing itself. Mass distributionbased on big turnover at a very small unit profit—was unknown in the '90s. The percentage of profit on each transaction was far higher then. Today the food chains commonly earn as little as one cent net on each dollar of sales; other stores also earn very modest profits. That helps the family budget enormously-Industrial News Review.

LEARN TO DECREE

There is an old law, called "The Law of Decree"; It's as old as the hills—but new to me; It relates to earth, and is part of the plan By which God shall make a perfect man.

In the legends which tell of days of old Many fabulous stories are told; But, the ancient astronomers stand alone, Because of the erudition they have shown. More than twenty-five hundred years ago

The people knew laws which we do not know; They all believed when you make a decree You produce the object you wish to see. Of a Prince with a crooked back, we are told, Who tested this law in days of old; He studied a perfect statue of himself each day, And his body grew like it in every way.

Of the ringstreaked and spotted cattle of Jacob's day
The Bible speaks, and has much to say
About how they all came so to be— He hung colored hoops and rings on a tree.

Greek mothers studied Statuettes, so their progeny Perfect specimens of humanity might be; And the law seemed to work nine times out of ten, For Greece once produced some illustrious men.

This may sound fantastic, but you shall see
It is not so fantastic as it seems to be;
For, back of all things, you shall someday find,
There is a Master working mind. Our God is a Creator, and so are we, For in His likeness we are said to be; So the things which happen to you and to me Are the very things we so often decree.

The patriarch Job knew this law 3000 years ago, And it is one law we all should know; For we build our bodies by the thoughts we think, The words we speak, and the water we drink.

In days of old many people were wise
So they set an example we should not despise;
Especially, the old law of "sow and reap";
And, the "Golden Rule", we all should keep.

Back of all that exists is a Master mind; That, too, is something you shall find; If the thing I ask for does not come to me It is because I don't see it when I decree. In a mental world, things which appear,

Exist before we see them here; So it is with diseases of every kind; They all have their origin in mind. If there is something which you greatly fear Don't let a picture of it appear; Close your eyes, your mouth and each ear For the thing you dread is very near. Let us all give ear to the distant past; In its annals many laws are classed;

And they all are intended to teach you and me On our journey from Time to Eternity. DAVID THOMAS REINDOLLAR. 2656 Edmondson Ave., Baltimore 23, Md

Conover-Hill.—One of the prettiest occasions of the season in Taneytown, was solemnized at the home of Mr. Richard S. Hill Tuesday afternoon, it being the uniting by the holy bond of matrimony of his only daughter, May H. to Mr. Charles M. Conover, of Harrisburg, Pa. The house was tastefully decorated with roses, ferns and potted plants. The bridal party consisting of eight attendants and two flower children were Misses Daisy Hinea, Daisy Witherow, Myrtle Kiser, Elsie Shoemaker; Messrs. Warren Hill, Roy Hesson, Walter Morelock, George Morelock; Reta Morelock and Melvin Hill. Rev. D. J. Wolfe, made them man and wife. The wedding cake was prepared by Mr. H. S. Hill, at his bakery, and baked by his employee, Mr. Merle Baumgardner. It stood about thirty inches high and fourteen inches at base, containing one hundred and fifty eggs with other ingredients to correspond. The bride was attired in a gown of Persian lamb and carried an immense bunch of bride roses and asparagus ferns. The groom wore a suit of conventional black. THE PRINTER

The printer is a faithful servant, not only for those connected with the business, but also for the public at large. Without him what would be the state of the world at large? Why, tyrants and humbugs in all countries would have everything their own way. The printer is the friend of intelligence and thought; he is the friend of liberty, of freedom, of law; indeed, the printer is the friend of every man who is the friend of order—the friend of every man who can read. Of all the inventions, of all the discoveries in inventions, of all the discoveries in science or art, of all the great results in the wonderful progress of mechanical energy and skill, the printer is the only product of civilization necessary to the existence of free man.

ITS SWITCHCRAFT - that's what it is!

You'll see when you try Buick's new Variable Pitch Dynaflow!

IT TAKES a new word to describe the magic at your command when you drive a '56 Buick - with the newest transmission of them all.

It's full power go-ahead on the instant. You can get where you were just looking in a shaved second's time - with the most modern and most thrilling surge of safety acceleration in the land today.

It's smoothness, too. Complete freedom from the "bump" and lag of gears shifting. Only with Dynaflow can you go winging away with so smooth a sweep. And only with a '56 Buick can you enjoy Dynaflow's newest marvel. It's something the engineers call "double regeneration." Lets you start off like an Olympic sprinter, with the pedal pressed just an inch or less. (And driving that way, you get better gas mileage.)

There's more big news, too, that goes with this new Buick magic. And that covers a lot more than styling.

Sure - you'll like the graceful new beauty of the V-shaped prow and sweep-ahead look. And you'll like the extra room inside.

But as you drive you'll find that this Buick responds with the new might of a big, record-powered V8 engine of 322-cubic-inch heft.

It handles easy as butter to a warm knife. Tracks the curves like a plane on the beam. Makes any road seem paved with pillows.

And what's responsible for all this are more new engineering advances than Buick has ever made in one model year.

So why not come in and see - and feel-the difference they make? You'll soon know why owners find it's the best Buick yet-and the best buy yet, by far.

*New Advanced Variable Pitch Dynaflow is the only Dynaflow Buick builds today. It is standard on Roadmaster, Super and Century-optional at modest extra cost on the Special.

FEESERSBURG (A Voice from Carroll)

This week marks the end of another school term. We know for many it will seem like paradise to escape from the class-room but we hope for a few it will mean a chance to appraise the educational chaos that has suddenly been brought to a climax by the disclosure that our school system has failed to produce the future scient-ists and mathematicians that industry so vitally needs. Scientists tell us that a new kind of civilization is dawning, but will we be caught on the outside looking on, because someone failed to make the students major in math, which is the basis for all sciences, and encouraged them to take the easier subjects. Never before in our history has the college graduate been given so many opportunities. Industry is literally waiting at the college gate with open arms to offer the boy or girl with a degree in science or arts jobs in practically every field of endeavor. The high school graduates are studied carefully too, and scholarships are liberally everyded to scholarships are liberally awarded to those who can qualify. Someone should impress from now on all high school students that there is no easy way to knowledge. One cannot learn math, physics or chemistry with sugar These subjects are quered only by digging and burning the mid-night oil, but once mastered they open an entirely new world to the student. Arithmetic has always been a black-hooded monster to most people but that is only because they were scared of the subject before they even tackled it. Poor teachers too, are to blame for the lack of interest in the subject. Often, a teacher may know the subject from A to Z but can't get it across to the students. But if we are to enjoy the coming era of automation our boys and girls must be made to take math in public schools and teachers must learn to teach it in relation to the needs of our society.

The unwritten law of "the show must go on" seems to apply to auction sales as well as show people. Last Saturday, when it was raining with determined intensity, a crowd gathered to see the property of J. H. Stuffle at Feesersburg sold. Some people didn't even bother with raincoats or umbrellas but braved the cold rain unprotected. Articles sold well especially anything that remotely resembled an antique. The property was bought by Mr. Larry, of Rocky Ridge for $8000. This property was formerly the Clayton Koontz home.

If and when you send your husband to the store don't expect him to re-member more than seven articles—in fact, be glad if he brings home four. Due to some built-in mechanism that is unknown to science man has a memory that balks at remembering more than seven items on a list. This partly explains why there are seven days in a week; seven wonders of the world; seven seas and seven deadly sins. When man got to the number seven his mind went blank.

The farmers are in a more serious predicament than we suspected. Out in one of the western states a farmer robbed a bank of 1600 dollars to pay long ovedue bills. His neighbors were so sympathetic with his problems that they plowed and planted his fields while he was in jail awaiting trial. While no one can condone bank-robbery for any reason we can under stand how a man must feel after working hard and putting in long hours to see bills pile up because he isn't getting a fair price for his ef-fort. We don't begin to know how the farm problem will be solved, but by the poor treatment the farmer is getting from everyone he will have to solve it himself or the country will find itself in the same financial mess it was in the thirties.

We read the other day where a woman tried to protect her strawberry patch from the robins by placing plastic toy snakes in the rows. For two days the robins stayed away from the strawberries but after that they must have figured out the snakes were decoys and the birds were back in the patch. Last year we had a sour cherry tree which we tried to keep the blackbirds from eating all the fruit but nothing scared them. They got up early in the morning and raided the tree and even the day we picked some for a pie they were out in force and almost took the cherries out of the pan. This year there will be no cherries for birds nor pie as the frost nipped the buds.

The newly erected parking meters in Union Bridge are having a psychilogical effect upon people. The meters give the town a busy look and it seems that actually there are more shoppers in town than ever before. We are glad to see the meters for in almost every other town the meters have been in operation for several years. Widening Main Street and putting down new pavements is certainly a benefit for all and the people responsible for the improvements and the parking meters deserve considerable

We are raising three orphaned kittens by feeding them milk with a medicine dropper every two hours Their mother was killed last week by a car while crossing the road in front of our house. We had to search for two days before we finally located the kittens where she had hid them. Fortunately they were old enough to have eyes open and it wasn't their too difficult to train them to drink from the medicine dropper. But they miss their mother. They cry often and search around the box trying to locate her. Nothing can take the place of a good mother whether she is an animal mother or a human mother. People who think that animals have no emotions just don't know any thing about animals.

If I could paint the fairest sight Or golden west when day is gone. Nor would it be the arching sky Of blue, with white clouds sailing

Nor moonlight on a lake or sea, Nor soaring bird, nor stately tree, My picture would not be the snows Of winter, or sweet summer's rose,

Or brilliant hues of fall, or spring Draped in soft, misty green. These bring

But if I had an artist's skill, d combine all these beauties fair

Wide-Open Market For New Machinery Progress Has Passed Up Small Operators

A farm labor study recently completed by the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Agricultural Research Service points up a need for new equipment and handling methods especially adapted for small numbers of livestock.

The study shows that it takes almost as much labor now as it Progress has bypassed the farmer who keeps sideline livestock to the extent that it still takes as much labor as it did 50 years ago to keep small herds and flocks.

did 50 years ago to keep sideline livestock-a cow, a few chickens, or a few pigs. Progress seems to have bypassed this phase of farming. Most of the commercial-type equipment and better handling methods that have been developed for livestock production can be used economically only with large sized herds or flocks.

As might be expected, milk cows were found to be big labor users. A hand-milked cow requires 140manhours per year, on the average, while a machine-milked cow requires 111 hours. Feed and litter carriers, barn cleaners, stanchion drinking cups, pipeline and bulk handling of milk, and maintenance of large herds and high-producing cows, all make for less work per unit of milk produced.

In hog production, size of herd also makes a big difference in labor requirements. A large herd can use self-feeders, self-waterers, and good pastures economically, whereas small herds cannot. Labor ranges from 14 man-hours per $100 of pork products in the North Central states, where herds are largest, to about 25 hours in the South where herds are smallest.

In poultry raising, labor-saving cost-saving equipment and management practices begin to be economical with a 200-bird flock, and become even more so as flock size increases.

The ARS concludes that the obvious need for whittling down labor time in small-scale livestock production is a great challenge to agricultural research.

Baby Pigs Prefer High Sugar Rations

Baby pigs have a sweet tooth. A green ration containg 20 per cent cane sugar is the most popular with baby pigs at the University of Illinois, says A. H. Jensen, livestock specialist.

The pigs were given a choice of rations containg dried skim milk, saccharin, and cane sugar. The sugar rations varied in amout from 5 to 20 per cent. The more sugar the ration contained, the better the pigs liked it.

The dried skim milk ration was heavily eaten but was not so well received as the high sugar ration.

The reason for the interest in pig preferences is to increase consumption of creep-fed rations, explains Jensen. A good creep ration means heavier pigs at weaning time, and at lower costs. Farmers don't usually have the facilities to mix sugar in the ration, Jensen says. But most of the commercial baby pig starters contain sugar in varying amounts.

Faulty Fencing

Faulty fencing can injure or kill both livestock and humans. Homemade or un-approved fence controllers result in the death of many persons each year. In most states, approved electric fencing bears the seal of Underwriters' Laboratories or state industrial commission

Col. Elmer Munshower, Superintendent of Maryland State Police, has directed State and county police throughout Maryland to pay special attention to the law which forbids throwing of trash on public highways. The law provides for fines up to $250 and jail sentences to 90 days, or both, for violations.

Orioles To End Home Stand Soon

The Orioles wind up their longest home stand of 1956 within the next few days as Kansas City visits Memorial Stadium for four games in three days over the week-end of June 8-9-10, followed by Detroit on Monday and Tuesday nights, June 11 and 12, and Wednesday afternoon, June 13.

Baltimore has enjoyed a successful season thus far against these two western clubs, winning 7 and losing only 2. The Birds are 3-1 against Kansas City and have won 4 out of 5 from the Tigers.

On Saturday, the Orioles and the A's will meet in a double-header with the first game scheduled for 2 P.M. and the second game slated to be an arc-light affair at 8 P.M. It will be the first time that the Orioles will play two games in one day with separate admissions charged for each game.

A pile-up of future twilightnight double-headers was the factor in the decision to schedule two separate admission games in one

The Oriole line-up now boasts more .300 hitters than at anytime since Major League baseball returned to Baltimore. Hoot Evers, Bob Boyd, still on the disabled list, Bob Nieman, George Kell, Hal Smith, Gus Triandos, and Bob Hale are all above .300 or within easy striking distance of it.

Bob Nieman has been near the .340 mark ever since he joined the Birds after being traded from Chicago on May 21. When he left the White Sox, Nieman was hitting .300. Following his transfer to Baltimore, he was held hitless in only one of his first eight games, gathering 12 hits in 29 at bats (a .414 clip) to raise his season's mark to .348.

Meanwhile, Gus Triandos rides along at a pace far ahead of his 1955 record of 12 home runs and 65 runs-batted-in. Gus already has clubbed 7 round trippers and has 30 RBI's through 40 games. Last year, Gus hit his seventh home run on July 17.

The Orioles will not return home again until June 29 when they meet the Boston Red Sox in a '-night double-header followed by a night game on Saturday, June 30, and a single game on Sunday afternoon, July 1. The Orioles will return to the road immediately following the 4-game Red Sox series and will not return until Thursday, July 12, when they take on the western clubs again.

Old Ledgers Give Peek Into 1776 Army Medical Kit

WASHINGTON-Epsom salt, glauber's salt, castor oil, mercurial ointment, adhesive plaster, and cinchona bark were among the drugs used most during the American Revolutionary War, according to information confirmed through the examination of some 1776 account records of a Philadelphia apothecary shop.

The story of how the American Revolutionary Army was crippled by lack of medical supplies and by internal feuds within the medical department has been previously reported, but information about the all-important regimental medicine chests used by the Continental Army has been sketchy. The complete inventory of some 20 medical chests that were furnished the Continental Congress for the newly organized regiments from New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Virginia and North Carolina have been revealed through the study of the Waste Book of the Marshall Apothecary Shop, which is preserved in the Historical Society of Pennsylvania.

The records show that cathartics were the leading medicine employed by the American forces of 1776. The regimental chest included 10 pounds of epsom salt; 10 pounds of glauber's salt; 11/4 pounds of castor oil; 11/2 pounds of aloe; 2 pounds of jalap; and 1 pound of rhubarb. Sedatives were few, including only 8 ounces of opium and 12 ounces of tincture of opium for an entire regiment. Cinchona bark, from which quinine was later discovered, was in wide use, 4 pounds being contained in the Continental chest. Surgical dressings included 10 pounds of tow (a type of cloth wrung out of hot water and applied as a stupe); 3 pounds of lint (a dressing made by scraping old linen cloth; and 6 pounds of adhesive plaster.

Caterpillar Not Immature Butterfly

WASHINGTON-Few phenomena in nature have stirred more general interest than the transformation of the somewhat repulsive "worm" into the beautifully colored winged insect, but the real marvel is the previous transformation of insect into "worm," which, since it takes place inside the egg, nobody ever sees to won-

It often has been assumed that wormlike form represents some earlier rung in the evolutionary ladder through which the insect race progressed in the ancient days of life on earth and which each individual must repeat in a somewhat telescoped fashion before birth. Thus man and higher are supposed to pass through stages of their vetebrate ancestry before birth. In the case of the insects, it is speculated, part of this embryonic development takes place outside the egg.

This is contrary to fact, says Dr R. E. Snodgrass of the Smithsonian Institution. He says the caterpillar is not an immature butterfly. In some way not understood the insect egg becomes two animals, each independent of the other and each of which is born, leads its own life and perishes. The various body cells which are to become a young butterly are contained, in an inactive, nondeveloping form, in the body of the caterpillar.

Fighting Paganism

Lesson for June 10, 1956

CHRISTIANITY has seldom if ever spread smoothly and easily like gravy over mashed potatoes. Its history is more like a river which meets with immense rocks and boulders which tear the water into foam and spray. As the Colorado river has to fight to make its way westward, so the Christian church has had to fight. It is not true that all men are eager for the Gospel and that all we have to do is to tell people about the love of his cause Did the church conquer paganism? Already in the city of Ephesus. when St. Paul was the main preacher there, Christians ran into trouble. We sometimes think if we could get rid of our preachers and get the Apostles to take charge of our churches for a while, we would eliminate all our troubles; but St. Paul for one would not have agreed with us. We hear of opposition that became quite serious. Certain men "were hardened," "did not believe," and far from keeping their unbelief to themselves, "spoke evil of the Way" (i.e., Christian life) in the most public places ("before the multitude"). This is a sample of what Christianity, the Christian church and individual Christians, have to contend with in all ages of the church: hardened men, who are not only without faith but who will go out of their way to attack the Christians' faith. This is paganism; it has many forms but its spirit is always anti-Christian. The church both has, and has not, overcome paganism. It has won many of these enemies of Christ to become his followers, and is still doing so. It has taken the control of society out of their hands, in various times and places, as happened at Ephesus for a time. But the fact is, paganism is far from dead. In one form or other its attacks go

Missionaries of paganism When an army stays for any length of time in a foreign territory, it usually leaves behind it words or phrases which the natives pick up, and which may become a permanent part of the local language. It was so with the English language. The Roman military occupation of England, which lasted into hundreds of years, left many souvenirs in the English language. One of the first words the Britons learned from the Romans was "wine" from the Latin vinum. (Incidentally, also, another word borrowed but not now used in English was a word for "buy" that comes from a Latin word for tavernkeeper.) So our very language bears testimony to the fact that the pagan Romans were everywhere missionaries of paganism, and that part of the gospel of paganism is, Liquor is a Good Thing so let's all have more of it! Paganism still sends out its missionaries. On a slow boat to China not many years ago two men shared the same stateroom. One was being sent out by an American Christian church to preach the gospel of Christ. The other was a man who was keeping his son in college by selling liquor in China -sent out by a large distillery firm. Every convert made by the liquor-missionary was going to make it more difficult for the Christ-missionary; and also the other way around.

Paganism's progress

Christians too easily sit back in their easy pews and think, Paganism has been licked. St. Paul licked it, or Luther, or Wesley or somebody. We live in a Christian era, in a Christian land. Do we or don't we? There are some figures that ought to make us think. The statistics of the Internal Revenue Service of the United States, as analyzed by the Methodist Board of Temperance, show that for every church being erected in the U.S., seven retail outlets for liquor are being licensed. As of the latest count, there are 141,733 more saloons, cocktail bars and stores selling alcoholic beverages than there are churches, synagogues and temples combined. The breakdown shows 441,789 "spirits sources" as against 300,506 "spiritual sources." CBased on outlines copyrighted by the Division of Christian Education, National Council of the Churches of Christ in the U. S. A. Released by Community Press Service.)

PEACE OF CONSCIENCE

PSALM THIRTY-TWO

The Psalmist is enjoying peace of conscience because of his confession of sin and the experience of forgiveness. He lists in the first two verses that which makes for happiness.

Blessed is he whose trangression is forgiven, whose sin is covered.

Blessed is the man to whom the Lord imputes no iniquity, and in whose spirit there is no deceit. Then follows the experience of the Psalmist before he made his confession of sin. When I declared not my sin, my body wasted away through my groaning all day long.

For day and night thy hand was heavy upon me; my strength was dried up as by the heat of summer. The Psalmist realizes that to escape these ill-feelings he must needs change his manner of life. A new determination took passassion of him termination took possession of him.

I acknowledged my sin to thee, and I did not hide my iniquity; I said, "I will confess my transgressions to the Lord";
Then thou didst forgive the guilt of my sin.

The description given in this song of individual thanksgiving may be either that of actual sickness which awakened the conscience of the Psalmist to the reality of his sin, or else of spiritual suffering set forth in terms of physical illness.

The Psalmist would have others to profit by his experience and turn to the Lord in prayer and seek His deliverance. God does not leave those who come to him to grope along in their own strength but will instruct them and teach them the way they should go. Be not therefore like the horse and mule which obstinate and stupid must be made to do by force, but men with understanding ought to yield themselves to God in unrestrained obedience. Out of his new relationship with his Maker, and of the vast change that has been wrought in his life, the Psalmist can now say of an experience he can't forget:

Many are the pangs of the wicked; but steadfast love surrounds him who trusts in the Lord.

THE EIGHT POINTS OF LIFE

These eight points of successful living are subscribed to by many sociologists. They may not be as famous as the historical "Fourteen", but they are nevertheless equally important as a war preventive, either international, sociological or demostics. sociological, or domestic:

1. Don't contradict others, even if you know you are right.
2. Don't be inquisitive about the affairs of even your most intimate

Don't underrate anything because you don't possess it. 4. Don't believe that everybody else in the world is happier than you.

5. Don't be rude to your inferiors in social position. 6. Don't repeat gossip, even if it does interest a crowd.

Learn to hide your aches and pains under a pleasant smile. 8. Learn to attend to yo business. This is especially important.

Pasture is an excellent feed for cattle of all ages-but very young calves cannot eat enough of it to meet their requirements for rapid Yearling heifers can make satisfactory growth on good pasture and will need little or no supplementary feed except access to salt and minerals. But heifers under a year of age will need some grain, and very young calves will need extra roughage.

J. D. Burke, extension dairy specialist at the University of Illinois College of Agriculture says it generally is best to keep calves born after January 1 in the barn on a full feed of good-quality hay and 4 to 5 pounds of grain.

You can let the calves run on pasture near the barn, Burke says, but they should be free to return to the barn when weather or insects begin to bother them. You can shift heifers to pasture gradually after they are six months old.

Very young calves need extra roughage and grain, access to shade in hot weather if they are to grow rapidly.

Heifers of all ages need free access to salt, a mineral mixture and plenty of water and shade. Short or scant pastures will require supplementary feeding of roughage and grain.

You must keep your heifers growing at a normal rate if they are to reach full size by the time they are two-year-olds. Too often farmers tend to overlook this point during the pasture season.

For normal growth, Holstein heifers must make an average daily gain of 1.5 pounds, Brown Swiss 1.4, Ayrshires 1.3, Guernseys 1.25, and Jerseys 1.1.

Ten Commandments for Premium Quality Wheat

Grain harvesting and home storage methods often make the difference between little or no profit and good returns.

T. R. Robb, Wyoming extension entomologist, lists the wheat farmers ten commandments for higher yields of premium quality wheatharvested and sold:

Let grain ripen before combin-

Don't combine too early in the morning, too late in the evening, or too soon after a shower or rain. Plan ahead that everything will be ready for full-scale operation in the warm part of the day. Adjust the combine to prevent excessive cracking of grain, to thrash cleanly, and to avoid loss of grain from running too fast. Clean combine of old grain before harvesting new crop. Do not store wet grain in large

Store grain in clean places, free of old grain and old livestock Clean storage bins and keep them free of all insects. Never, under any circumstances. place new grain on top of old

Make it impossible-by screening and rodent-proofing all openings-for birds, poultry, mice and rats to contaminate precious grain in bins.

Do these things and you will reap higher returns from less waste and premium prices for high quality grain.

Safe Vent Holes

One of the simplest ways of venting an outdoor drum which is mounted horizontally is to drill two ventholes just under the rim. Fuel will then flow freely and overhang of rim will prevent moisture from entering through

This is the best anniversary our U. S. Savings Bonds ever had ust 15 years ago, in May, 1941, millions of Americans started buying Series E Savings Bonds through the U.S. Treasury Department. Those Bonds were called Defense Bonds in that troubled time. And if you were like most people, you bought them to help your country.

Let's see how your investment has paid off. First of all, you helped end tyranny on foreign shores and bring back peace to the world. Secondly, you helped finance the greatest prosperity this country has ever known. And equally important, your Bond investment has made a lot of your own personal dreams come true. New homes financed through Savings Bonds. College educations paid for by Bonds. Retirement day brightened by Bonds. Yes, there have been many, many happy returns -- thanks to United States Savings Bonds.

Just stop and think. If you had bought just one $50 Bond a month at $37.50, every month since the beginning of the Bond Program, your investment would be worth $8,242 roday. Start buying one $50 Bond a month today - and 15 years from now you'll have a cash reserve of $8,372.

So don't delay. Sign up for Payroll Sauings where you work or buy Bonds regularly where you bank. Make sure that you get in on these happy returns.

I personally feel the general public should be shown and told the facts about their Fire Insurance. I, therefore, represent different Stock and Non-Assessable Mutual companies. I show my customers the difference in rates, financial status, operating territory, etc. then let them decide what is best for their individual needs. But some Insurance Agent in Taneytown has cut my advertisements from this paper, sending them to a company he represents, asking them to object to my methods of advertising. Apparently that Agent does not want you to do any comparing.

Actually, from what I was told, this Agent and his company have threatened to try to put me out of business. As far as I know I have not advertised or told anyone anything but the exact truth, so if any agent or any individual thinks I have falsely advertised or told them. anything that was not the truth, they should report it to the Insurance Department of Maryland, 34 Hopkins Place, Baltimore, Md. Just a friendly warning though, make positively sure you know what you are doing. I am just too lazy to run, brother you're going to have to shove

Living out here on the farm, I have insured almost two million dollars worth of property. Last Saturday I was called to Westminster, a man said he had seen my advertisements and wanted to check with me. On a five year installment policy, just like he had, I showed him a net guaranteed saving of $810.00, so some people know there is a difference in insurance and, although not near enough, some do check their insurance with me. Naturally the above was a large policy, to show that much saving. I can not guarantee to save every individual risk money on their insurance, but it still may pay you big to check

I want it plainly understood that no company I represent pays for any of my newspaper advertisements, or furnish any written material for them, so anything I write, good or bad, is purely my own doing.

There are a lot of good people in the insurance business and I certainly do not want to offend them, but I do not have the name of the agent that disagrees with my advertising, so could not say anything but "Some Taneytown Agent". Maybe this article will be answered so we can "Let the People Decide."
