The strike went into effect at 12:01 last Saturday after negotiations had collapsed with the Company concerning an increase in wages, and other terms including a reduction of the probationary period from six months to thirty days; time and one-half payment for Saturday work; the right of the union to investigate grievances; the elimination of the supervisors performing production work; the payment of average hourly rates for

BECK IS ONLY A SYMPTOM

Teamster President Dave Beck hung up an all-time record in his twoday appearance before the Senate's Select Committee on Improper Practices in the Labor or Management Field, with a score of 117 invocations of the Fifth Amendment to avoid answering as many questions on his alleged use of some $320,000 of union money for his own puropses.

Whether or not his conduct constituted technical contempt of the Senate remained to be seen as the committee recessed for two weeks with Mr. Beck remaining under subpoena. But Senator John L. McClellan, Arkansas Democrat and chairman of the Select Committee made his own position clear. "This witness, in my opinion, has shown utter contempt for this committee, for the Congress of the United States and his Government," he said.

"He has shown flagrant disregard and disrespect for honest and reputable unionism and for the best interests and welfare of the laboring people of this country.

"And, above all, he has shown arrogant contempt for the million and a half members on the Teamsters' Union."

In an earlier reference to testimany that Beck paid for about $85,000 worth of personal purchases-with Teamster checks-Senator McClellan declared, "As far as this record is concerned, he was taking money from the union. I don't know any way to describe it less than theft."

Minutes after adjournment, the bouncy Beck told an inquirer he felt "Wonderful!" And next morning in Chicago on his way home to Seattlewhere he had been hung in effigy the night before-he told reporters his Teamsters' Union would set up a million dollar press bureau in Washington. It would present, he said, "the true story"-which was what the senado for two days, and for free!

But, whether or not the Teamsters and the AFL-CIO decide they have had enough of Dave Beck, James Hoffa, et. al., whether they go to jail or remain at large, the purpose of the investigation must not be lost sight of. It is to determine what must be done to protect theoretically free American citizens and the nation's economy against a cynical labor hierarchy that threatens something new and unlovely in dictatorships.

SUMMER IS TOO LATE

The chances are that somewhere in your vicinity next summer an ambulance may go clanging down the street and the next day you will learn that a neighbor has been stricken with paralytic polio.

Then you will remember that in the spring you had read about a polio vaccination drive. Of course, you had meant to get your family and yourself inoculated. But somehow you had put it off. It wasn't convenient just then; you'd do it later; it slipped your mind. So, at the height of the summer polio season, you find yourself unprotected. A cold shiver comes over you as you recall pictures of young limbs in metal braces, young faces protruding from iron lnngs. Anxiously you telephone your doctor. Yes, he says, the Salk vaccine is effective against paralytic polio. "But", he adds, "it takes seven to 10 days for the first shot to take effect, then a wait of two to six weeks for the second shot that will provide reassonable protection for this polio sea-

The following teachers served as directors, Miss Jean Wantz, Mrs. Helen Bowman and Mr. John Borsuk, The furniture used on the stage was loaned by the Fuss Furniture Store of Taneytown. The play was enjoyed by those who saw it and everyone connected with its presentation should receive some sort of appreciation from the community. Few persons realize how much time and work goes into a project of this kind. The students have to put aside every other plan while rehearsal goes on and the teach-ers spend many extra hours in putting the play into shape for presentation to the public. While everyone concerned with a play works hard the final success of it rests with the community. For an audience is needed to make actors and directors put on a good performance. Sometimes the community does not do its dutv.

> Last Friday, the President was caught speeding on his way from Washington to Gettysburg, according washington to Gettysburg, according > to the Montgomery county police. Sometimes he was hitting 70 and 75 miles an hour much of the way. It would appear that Ike along with millions of other motorists consider the speed laws are for the other fel-low. Why pick on the young drivers all the time for using the highways as race-tracks when responsible ma-ture individuals do the same thing? Most people these days should be born with wings since they are determined to travel as fast as birds.

A school teacher, one of these proponents of progressive education, was arguing with a parent who wanted to help her son with his homework. "But since you don't have an advanced degree in educational theory", the teacher said, "you will only retard his progress." "Well, okay", the mother replied acidly "and if you graduate him next spring, send his diploma home-I'll read it to him."

What do you do with your old tooth-brushes? There are 222 uses for the brushes by actual count. The most popular are cleaning and polishing shoes and tools of all kinds. Artists them for spatter painting and housewives for a dozen uses like cleaning the sewing machine, picture frames, and to shine cut glass. The toothbrush handle makes a handy garden tool when planting seed or working around small plants.

Post fences can cause more trouble than losing one's live stock. Poor fences can lead to lost neighbors as well. Nothing can be more aggravating than stock roaming over newly planted fields. We bring the subject up because this is the time of year to mend one's fences. Since the electric fence is the kind used more and more often the farmer must be sure that the current is going through the fence and is not shorted some where along the route. Stock is quick to scent that the current is off, and there is nothing cows like better than to trespass on forbidden stitution were very wise men and they put the fifth amendment into the constitution, so evidently they must have believed that in the future it would be needed by individuals to safeguard their rights against unscrupulous persons. It may be true quite a few guilty persons have hidden behind the amendment but there are times when innocent men have stood behind it too. Let us not condemn the entire labor movement by a few unworthy men. When one banker or business man proves to be a bad apple we do not rush to close all banks or business firms so let us give labor unions the same consideration.

We don't know who said this first but its worth repeating: "Happiness isn't a destination—it's a way of traveling."—Ruth Roelke.

They are meticulously fashioned in glove-finished fabrics of broadcloth or Nylon, with backs topped in supple, hand-buffed leather. They are thickly layered with contoured foam rubber. They are wide, deep, superbly soft.

The doors present a new standard of luxury and restfulness-fully upholstered and softly cushioned from floor line to window.

The instrument panel, below the safety cushion, is chromed from end to end. The deep-pile carpeting is backed by foam. The integral armrests are fully in keeping with the spacious grace of the car.

He Took the Cup

Lesson for April 7, 1957

THE dark shadows of Gethsemane have never fully lifted. If even the closest friends of Jesus did not watch with him through that hour, we cannot at this great distance hope to penetrate where no light is. Some have found it hard to believe that Jesus actually knew distress. This is to deny

Jesus'own words, "My soul is very sorrowful, even to death," Mark's report that he was "greatly distressed and trou-'and bled,' Luke's story of

Cup of Suffering

There are gleams in the darkness. Jesus refers to his experience as a "cup." He had been speaking of a cup not two hours before, in the upper room, the cup of his blood. Was it this cup he prayed might pass from him? We make a mistake when we think of this in merely physical terms. In many a hospital there are patients who have already suffered longer and more severely than Jesus could have, physically speaking, all of Good Friday. It was his soul that was troubled, not his nerves, in Gethsemane. The cup of suffering which he dreaded was more than scourging and nails. He was being rejected . . . rejected. Not a friend would stand by him. All his work would come to an end. He had fought for time, but time was running out. He had come to his own, and his own people had not received him. He was God's last word to men, and men had no response but thorns and a cross.

Other men have known rejection, but none have known it as he knew it, fo. not another man in history came to this earth so full of heaven as he

Cup of Sacrifice

The cup which he dreaded was also the cup of sacrifice. From earliest times, the Christian church has re semane and Calvar" in the light of the prophecy in Isaiah 53: "He was wounded for our transgressions, he was bruised for our iniquities." The weight of human sin lay darkly on his soul. It was not that in Gethsemane for the first time this had occurred to him. Long ago he had spoken of giving his life a ransom for many. The rejection of love is a sore thing to bear; but to feel the weight of the sins of the world is something of which we do not even dare to think. He had always identified himself with sinners and with sufferers; but now he was going the last mile appointed to the suffering and the sinning. All the pain and all the perverseness of mankind fell upon him, a smothering cloud which in a few hours would even hide the face of

"Not as I Will"

We must not accuse the Master of cowardice, not even of weakness. Horror there was indeed: but a strong man may be filled with horror without being any the less strong. Jesus did not turn to flee. Yet it is quite plain, and we must not pretend it was otherwise, that Jesus wished for some other cup than this. "Nevertheless," he said, "not as I will but as Thou wilt." We do not know what other occasions there may have been when Jesus knew that his own will was not as his Father's will. Yet if there had been other occasions his prayer must have been ever the same: Not as I will! Above all other desires, above even the desire to to fulfill his own will—a desire all the stronger, the stronger the character is - was the overarching desire to do the Father's will. There were elements of Jesus' suffering in Gethsemane which set that night off from all other nights, and that strong soul apart from all other souls. And yet even in the mystery there is something for us to learn. If the masterwish of our life is that our own will be done, we shall come to frustration in the end. But if the overmastering wish is that our Father's will be done, then whatever our first desires may be, our highest praye shall still be answered.
