F. Kale Mathias, prominent, young business man of Westminster, was today appointed as Carroll County Chairman of Individual Advance Gifts Committee for the Carroll County General Hospital Building Fund.

On Wednesday, August 28, 1957, the Maryland State Board of Education approved a plan allocating $20,000 of Federal money available under the Federal money available under the Library Services Act of 1955 to Carroll County if it establishes a county public library in 1958. This sum, with additional funds from the state and county treasuries, would assure Carroll County citizens a modern public library system with bookmobile

Such a county library, with a central branch open full time and bookmobile routes throughout the county, would offer much needed sources of information, research and recreation. Books, pamphlets, magazines, maps, films and recordings would be conveniently available to all the people in every part of the county.

To establish and maintain a county library, our commissioners would either levy a 2c tax per $100 valuation— $2 per $10,000 assessment or approriate annually an equivalent sum. This automatically would make Carroll County eligible to receive state funds amounting to 16c per capita—$7,185 or more. (Because Carroll County does not have a county public ibrary, it has received none of the $269,184 of state funds paid out in 1957 for library service. In fact, since 1945, Carroll County has lost nearly $40,000 of the Public Library Fund, tax money Carroll countians helped put in the state treasury.)

This year, in addition to the state funds, Carroll County, one of the nine counties in Md. without a public library system, is offered $20,000 from the Federal Government as a library establishment grant, with $4,000 a year for the following three years.

Even the Maids seemed to realize that I needed a rest and completee relaxation. Of course, it was the Shore again and taking along the huge umbrella and the comfortable chair and a warm robe, there I sat on the beach in a secluded spot where I thought no one would approach me but soon I heard voices and questions thought ho one would approach me but soon I heard voices and questions like this—"You sure are enjoying your vacation?" #### POWER OF THE PRESS

An 81-year-old country newspaperman, Chet Lampson, editor of the weekly Jefferson, Ohio, Gazette, has provided the country with a dramatic example of the power of the press. Mr. Lampson's paper is small, and its power was exerted against one of the biggest organizations in existence—the U.S. Treasury Department. But David slew Goliath!

Here's what happened: Mr. Lampson received a notice from the Internal Revenue Service demanding payment of an alleged income tax indebtedness of $9. The notice sent his blood pressure soaring. First of all, he didn't believe he owed the money. But that was a minor consideration. What really angered him was the insulting wording of the notice, and its threats of attachment of income and seizure of property unless the claim was paid

Mr. Lampson didn't confine his views to the columns of his own paper. He wrote the President of the United States and various other officials, including members of Congress. He stated that, "No agency of Government should be allowed to insult any citizen, or deny him his constitutional rights or inflict cruel and unusual punishments on a mere assumption that the taxpayer is a willful violator of the income tax law." To make a long story short, Mr. Lampson got results. The Internal Revenue Service is changing the wording of its form, and you can bet that the new version will be couched in much more courteous language.

During the fiscal year of the State ended June 30, 1957, the State Roads Commission distributed to Carroll County $496,788.17 representing our share of the Gasoline Tax Fund and $130,696.72 representing our share of the Motor Vehicle Revenue Fund.

In the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1957, it has been estimated by the Commission that Carroll County will receive a total of $642,148,34 from these two funds by monthly payments beginning in July, 1957.
These funds have been encumbered to the extent of $21,685.23 to be withheld by the Commission to cover the County's payment on County High-way Construction Bonds, Fourth Seres, since Carroll County agreed this year for the first time to borrow from the proceeds of the sale of these bonds the sum of $200,000.00 for the purpose of matching about $95,000.00 of Federal funds which will be available to Carroll County for roads construction, and to enable the County to build an additional few miles of So a small-town newspaperman took | County roads, the plans for which

Many do-it-yourself fans brighten up when they see some new project or repair job to undertake. But enthusiasm dims when they descend into a poorly lighted work area.

It's easier to work quickly and accurately if you can see what you're doing. Yet many persons putter around with an old table lamp on the work bench.

The resulting contrasts of glare and shadow are enough to make a man hang up his hammer for good. He might be better off, because inadequate lighting contributes to accidents and severely handicaps chances of doing good work.

Inadequate lighting contributes to accidents.

Proper lighting varies according to working area and jobs to be done. Requirements for a farm shop handling major machinery are greater than for a basement bench.

A good basic rule is to light both general and specific work areas, especially those where power tools are used. Then increase lighting efficiency by painting or adding walls, ceilings and floors with light colors.

A fluorescent ceiling fixture with twin tubes provides a good general illumination, lighting up broad areas, corners, drawers and shelves. Two 20-watt tubes give much more light than a single 100 watt or more set right over the work bench. Keep fixtures clean. Dirty bulbs can cut lighting efficiency in half.

A variety of portable lights for close work or jobs away from the bench can be built or bought. A caged service light can be hooked onto machinery and automobile hoods or suspended in mid-air from a small balancer at the exact point the operator wants it. A wall-mounted swingarm lamp can extend over a big

People who can easily pay any price say:

Pay more ... what for? Fords the buy!"

Why? Because this 1957 Ford gives you the advanced features, the solid ride, the effortless handling that you once expected to find only in expensive cars. And when it comes to looks, where can you find fresher styling than in the sculptured-in-steel lines of this new Ford?

Ford's superiority is evident in many places. In the vital rear axle, the pinion gear that turns the rear wheels is strande-mounted . . . supported between two anti-friction bearings instead of being "overhung" from a single bearing. This makes operation quieter, smoother and longer-lasting. It's a feature that Ford shares with only one other car maker in the world-Rolls Royce.

Or consider Ford's famous V-8 engine. No other manufacturer in the industry today electronically balances every V-8 engine, while operating under its own power, the way that Ford does. This means you get a smootherrunning engine—the finest V-8 in Ford's 25 years of V-8 leadership.

These are only a few of the important hidden values that are yours in Ford. But they indicate why so many people who can pay almost any price for a car - people who have driven expensive cars for years—are buying Ford today. Action Test this great performing car at your Ford Dealer's just once and you, too, will ask, "Pay more . . . what for?"

We desire correspondence to reach our office on Wednesday, if at all possible. It will be necessary, therefore, for most letters to be mailed on Tuesday morning. Letters mailed on Wednesday may not reach us in time.

FEESERSBURG (A Voice from Carroll)

Labor Day which we celebrated last Monday is a day set aside to remind all of us of the tremendous gains made by men and women who work for a living. Today we take these gains more or less for granted but they were won only by diligent effort on the 8-Keysville Lutheran Sunday School part of visionary men and women Proof that too many workers are taking for granted the priviledges they enjoy today is the testimony before the Labor Rackets committee in Washington that has been going on for several months. Labor's gains in the future may disappear if the rank and file of the labor unions do not and file of the labor unions do not take an active part in their unions functions. It isn't enough for a worker just to pay his union dues and trust to someone else to manage the Union. It is up to him to know what is being done and put some of his own talent into his Union to make it even better. Paying dues into any organization is the easiest part of being a member, but how long would any society last if everyone was content to just give his money? Not very long. It took blood, agony and starvation to bring labor its gains and dignity it now enjoys and it will take more of the same to keep them. The fruits of one's labors should be enjoyed, but never to the point that one becomes dull and complacent to responsibility.

Good news for the owners of farm land has just been given out in Washington. The value of land will climb to greater heights during the coming year. The chief reason is the competition for land among industry and commerce. Businesses are moving out of the congested cities and are looking for sites out in the counties. gy Coulson, in Hanover, Pa.

Residential developments spring up Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Wilhide and most any where and entire farms are being bought for future homeowners who desire three and four acre tracts to practice amateur farming in the spare moments they have away from their city jobs. Carroll County has just begun to feel the growing pains of Baltimore and in another year more people will come out into the county seeking farms for future developments. With the population increasing at such an amazing speed, it is predicted that in the forseeable future the entire Eastern seaboard will become a residential community. Farms will disappear into building lots and the wide open spaces will exist only in one's imagination.

In spite of numerous appeals over radio and T.V. for drivers to be courteous and drive with common sense over 400 were killed on the highways over Labor Day. It seems that people take auto deaths in the same manner as our ancestors use to take being robbed of their scalp by Indians. Its just a hazard of living in the 20th century. And the way we Americans act over our cars it may be assumed that we would just as least die in a car as in our beds with old-

And speaking of flu we would like to know why people are being scared to death by being told that we are headed into an epidemic of the stuff. Honestly it seems that someone is desperately trying to keep us tense, nervous and frustrated from morning until night. No wonder taking tranquilizers is as common as taking as-pirin. We are beginning to believe that "ignorance" is the only way to achieve peace of mind and soul. We are threatened from the air by atomic fall out; from out of nowhere comes the flu-bug and out of our T.V. sets a crisis every day that somehow just never happens. It seems sometimes that there is a conspiracy among a group in our country to keep the people in a turmoil. For what reason its hard to say except maybe to keep our minds off of the cost of living.

We take note that the telephone company wants to increase the monthly bill again. It certainly would be nice to just one day hear someone say that they would like to decrease the cost of something if it was only one cent on an article or a service. The psychological effect would be terrific. Maybe we wouldn't be able to stand the shock.

We read so many recipes for preserving food but the other day we came across a recipe for preserving children. It is very cute and so we pass it on to the reader: "Take onepass it on to the reader: "Take one-half dozen children and mix with three small dogs. Empty them into a grassy field stirring continually. Dunk them occasionally in a small brook. Cover all with a deep blue sky garnished with flowers and place in the sun. When children are well-tanned place in a hathtuh" dent from Seminary Wayne My-dent from Seminary Wayne My-den the sun. When children are well-tanned place in a bathtub."

Without trumpet or fanfare most well of our lives took a turn for better or worse Tuesday morning when once again the school bell sounded the call back to the classroom. Both parents and children gage their happiness or unhappiness with the opening and closing of schools, but this should not be. School days should be viewed as a source of changing experiences both for student and parent. The kind of changes that are good for everyone. This year our local school has a large group of new teachers. We should make every effort to make them feel at home and needed. For indeed they are very much needed and we should are very much needed and we should feel fortunate in having our class-rooms staffed and open a full day. Many county schools in Maryland this year are giving only one half day of classes to some 5 thousand students. It is unfortunate that congress did not pass a school bill, but we find the temper of the people beginning to boil over the lack of school facilities especially in the cities. It will take aroused, irate parents to push congress into action. We are happy to mark of learning. So far our county has been fortunate in being rich enough to finance our own schools but with the birthrate soaring at a staggering rate we wonder how long we can keep up without Federal aid. Although the value of a wife can never be measured in dollars and cents, it will be of some comfort to the homemakers to learn that one insurance firm values her at $200 a

The annual benefit supper for the Agricultural Center at Westminster is to be held a t the Center on Oct. 19. This building's debt was reduced quite a bit last year due to the Homemakers Clubs, Grange, Farm Bureau Planning Groups and Farm Bureau Associated Young People serving suppers to the Rotary Club. The benefit supper and suppers and luncheons served to some other organizations helped in this reduction. Another year of this activity will reduce the debt and interest payments so that there will not have to be so much work to make these payments. Great rejoicing is being done in this neck of the woods because of the telephone company's plan for free calling areas. #### PROSPECTIVE SIGHTS FOR LAND FILL GARAGE DISPOSALS

On Thursday, August 22, Mr. Charles W. Snyder and Mr. William M. Bingley; Health Engineers of the Maryland State Department of Maryland Health, Baltimore, together with Mr. Chester Faulstich; Carroll County Sanitarian, met with Mr. Chas. W. Peltz, of the Medford Grange No. 188, Westminster, and Mr. Harvey Dick-inson, Farm Bureau, Taneytown, to view the ground of William Nivens, R. #1, Taneytown, which is 3 3/10 miles from Mayberry, in the interest of locating ground for a Land Fill Garage Disposal. This ground was approved by the Health Department providing the test by the Soil Conservation Department vation Department proves no rock or water there. If this ground gets a final approval, it will serve the following Districts: Frizellburg, Tyrone, Mayberry, Silver Run, Union Mills and Pleasant Valley.

The second sight viewed was that owned by Alvin Irvin, which is located on the Nusbaum & Stouffer Roads, 2½ miles from Taneytown. This ground was also accepted by the Health Department pending the tests by the Soil Conservation Dept. If this ground is fully approved it would serve Tan-eytown, Middleburg, Uniontown, Union Bridge, Detour and Keymar dis-

This group also viewed the ground on the Log Cabin Farm, which lays between Middleburg and Uniontown but this piece of ground was rejected by the Health Department due to improper drainage.

On Friday, August 23, Mr. Chester Faulstich and Chas. W. Peltz met with the County Commissioners; Mr. Young, Mr. Shilling and Mr. Carr, and gave them their report that the Health Department of Maryland had O. K'ed the two above mentioned sights and the County Commissioners said that they would have the Soil Conservation Dept. go out and make boring tests for rock and water and if the ground is found to be O.K., they will immediately proceed with leasing ground from Nivens and Irvin, for Land-Fills.

Mr. Peltz is now trying to locate ground in the Barrett, Mechanicsville Hampstead, and Greenmount areas to serve the local communities in these ciation for Retarded Children in November.

In assuming the Campaign Chairmanship, Colonel Hess said that he welcomed the opportunity to lend his support to the job of helping the mentally retarded in Carroll County, and of the public to the needs and rights of retarded children."

This is the third campaign of its kind held in Carroll County. $7702.88 was collected in 1955; and $8351.50 in 1956. Among other things this money was used to finance two summer cars as to purchase the station. day camps, to purchase two station wagons for transporting the children, and to purchase special equipment for use in the classrooms such as tape recorders, looms, etc.

Colonel Hess emphasized that though progress has been made in helping the mentally retarded to lead normal lives, much remains to be done. Our job has only started and continued support is needed. He pointed out that the Association for Retarded Children is working toward a sheltered workshop where the children can work under supervision af-ter completing their school training. Colonel Hess, who has been a resident of Mt. Airy for the past three years, was born in April 21, 1889 in Mohnton, Pa, He attended Massachusetts University and took extension course in social psychology and moral philosophy at Buffalo University. According to Pearl S. Buck, "The test of any civilization is the measure of consideration and care which it gives to its weakest citizens." With this in mind, Fern L. Smith, president of the Association for Retarded Children, points out that it seems significant, indeed, that Colonel Hess, who has devoted his life to the defense and welfare of our great nation, should now be devoting his time and efforts to helping retarded children."

YOUR HOME WIRING

In previous articles we have discussed the operation of a home wiring system in terms of the service entrance and its size. Today we would like to talk a little about branch cir-cuits, the various sets of wires that carry electricity from the service entrance to the convenience outlets where you plug in your electrical ap-

These branch circuits may well be compared with the pipes which carry water from your main cut-off valve to the spigot in your bath rooms and kitchen where you use the water. Just as these pipes must be large enough to provide an adequate flow when several spigots on the same pipe are in use, so the wire in your branch circuits should have sufficient capacity to carry enough electricity to operate appliances on several different outlets at the same time.

Because the electrical capacity of wire is limited by its size, modern house wiring calls for plenty of branch circuits and there are good reasons for this. Safety, economy, convenience and efficient operation of electrical appliances are among the most important of these, particularly, since the National Code limits the number of outlets you can safely have on any one branch circuit.

Back in the days when lighting and a few minor appliances were the only users of electricity in the home, few circuits and little capacity were needed and were the general rule. That is one of the principal reasons why most older houses are badly underwired today.

Nowdays, such applicants as ranges, water heaters, dryers and air conditions each require a separate circuit for the appliance alone because of the amount of electricity which they use. With each year bringing new appliances onto market and new uses for electricity it becomes very easy to understand the importance of having enough circuits of adequate capacity, not only for today, but for tomorrow, and any re-wiring plans should include consideration of the future. One other factor is, of course, important in providing satisfactory and convenient wiring, and that is making sure that you have plenty of convenience outlets where you want them. How can you check your requirements? Probably the first thing to do is to check the number of circuits you now have. Branch circuits can usually be located by tracing the re-lationship of the existing outlets. You will generally find that outlets on the same circuits are located along the same side of the house and from room to adjoining room are on the same relative walls. Another in determining the number of branch circuits is to count the number of fuses in the fuse box, usually located close to your main switch, for each circuit has its own fuse.

However, the most satisfactory way is to get hold of your electrician, have him to go over your present wiring, discuss with him what you presently have in the way of electrical appliances and what you hope to add in the future. Then, obtain from him an estimate on doing a thorough job, preferably a Certified Wiring Job. Any good contractor will be glad to check your wiring and give you an attimate without obligation. estimate without obligation on your

Get Rid of Rubbish Clean, Simple Way With Incenerator

F yours is the average family, each year you throw away more than 400 pounds of trash and make anywhere from 500 to 700 trips to the garbage can.

In fast-growing communities, as most of them are, the rubbish disposal problem has become a tough one. The cost of garbage collection is skyrocketing and back yard burning adds to air pollution and

Another factor, too, has entered the picture. With increased building dumping grounds are becoming few and far between. Most space is being converted to building development of one kind or Trash Disposal One of the best answers for getting rid of trash is the incinerator.

It's easy to get rid of table scraps, garden waste or anything in the rubbish line that will burn with a gas incinerator. It can be housed in a utility room or basement and the ashes make wonderful ferti-

Manufacturers are now producing compact automatic gas incinerators which can be operated beyond the large gas mains by means of liquefied petroleum gas. This is the same gas which is being used as cooking fuel or for heating water.

Incinerators will dispose of everything that's burnable. This includes, first of all, those immediate and always available scraps from the table like heavy meat bones, crab, shrimp and lobster shells, fruit stones, rinds, and food packages and their various wrapping.

Next come the cloth food bags, combustible rags and other wastes, fresh vegetable wastes like corn cobs and watermelon rinds. Sickroom rags and other wastes can be, neatly disposed in the incinerator. You can get rid of all waste papers, magazines and old newspapers easily. Include in this batch old canceled checks and confidential correspondence.

The capacity of the average household incinerator is two or more hushels Foot pedal opera tion on some models will lift the top to reveal an opening of 11 inches or more. Dump the garbage in and forget it. There are dial controls on some models which turn the burner on and off automatically. The homemaker sets the dial or timer according to the type of refuse to be destroyed. Other models need to be turned off manually after the trash has burned to ashes.

Use Frosty Ideas On Sizzling Days

Citrus fruits in any number of ways on sweltering days are a cooling idea just by themselves. Just think of how wonderful it is to have a pineapple sherbet ready for dinner or a tinkling limeade reposing in the refrigerator when you come in out of the hot sun!

Stock up on citrus fruits and concoct some of your own combinations. To start you off, here are two coolers: Lime Bubbler

(Serves 6) ½ cup lime juice 34 cup sugar 2 cups water 4 drops green food coloring 2 cups carbonated water

Combine lime juice, sagar, water and food coloring. Stir and chill. Add carbonated water just before serving. If garnish is desired, stick a mint sprig in a maraschino

Frosty Orange Cooler (Serves 6) 3 cups orange juice 6 scoops orange sherbet Pale dry ginger ale

Pour 1/2 cup orange juice in each glass. Add a scoop of sherbet and fill with ginger ale Banana Milk Shake (Serves 6) 3 or 4 large, brown-flecked bananas

Peel and mash bananas or put them through a sieve. Blend in sugar and vanilla. Stir in milk and beat vigorously until thoroughly blended.

SATAN

The greatest falsehood ever concocted by man Was the lie that God includes Satan in His plan; That statement makes God a weakling to me— Just the kind of God men once thought Him to be.

They thought God was a man like men used to be; (Only ten times greater than men we now see!) So in order to keep mortal man in his place They created a devil to frighten the human race.

Because of a touch of earthliness in His plan God was pictured as physical by primitive man; Even some of the prophets thought that was true, So they handed their doctrine to me and you.

They thought that out of clay God made you and me, So, like mortal man, God surely must be; But, Jesus said: "God is Spirit" to the people one day, And the real you is like Him in every way.

Your body is only the house in which you dwell; It goes to dust, shall not simmer in hell; So, it is folly to believe what men used to say— To deal with His sons God has a different way.

Not one of God's children shall ever be lost Regardless of what his salvation may cost; For, God has devised a different plan By which to make of you a perfect man.

This earth in God's school-house here below; For, the secrets of Eternal Life, we all must know; So, back to earth we must all return; It is here the fires of hell still burn.

That there is no devil cultural people know well; And, without a manager there could be no hell; Furthermore, in all the great regions of space There is no room for such an infernal place.

A single lifespan too short would be To learn about Love and Charity; So, like Jesus, God intends all His sons shall be Before they can go from Time to Eternity.

The earth of ours is a beautiful star; And, like all of the other planets travel far; That there are worlds above us and worlds below-Billions of worlds! The astronomers know.

Jesus' physical body showed how your body shall be When you are made fit for Eternity; He made the clouds His chariot and walked on the sea; And, just so God intends we all shall be.

So, you see, the average fellow has a long way to go
Till all of Life's secrets he learns to know;
But, the time is coming when all on this sod

That should be the goal of every mortal on Earth;
And, that is why God gives us birth after birth;
His plan calls for perfection in every man—
(From the very beginning it has been His plan).

Then, let us put in practice the things Jesus said; If we do we shall have nothing to dread; For, He came to show how we all must be Before we can go from Time to Eternity.

The Staff

Lesson for September 8, 1957

THERE is a lot of paper work in the Kingdom of God. No doubt when the Kingdom comes in its final glory, paper work will not be needed any more. But right now there are mountains of it. Next time you are in the city where your denominational headquarters are, or your Board of Missions, or the place where they put out your Sunday school literature, just go in and introduce yourself and look around. You may be amazed at the number of typewriters it takes to operate one denomination. Dr. Foreman When famed missionary Schweitzer visited New York after the war, he went to the headquarters of the church that had kept behind him while he was "orphaned" by the war, and he spoke especially to the office workers. He wanted them to know that the missionary on the field could not stay there without these anonymous humble

helpers back of him. Besides the Minister

In larger congregations there is a staff of people besides the minister. No one man all by himself could possibly do anything but buzz around like a bee in a bus station, in a church where the membership runs up near or over the thousand mark. There may be assistant ministers, each one perhaps with a particular specialty; secretaries, receptionists, a hostess, a secretary of men's work, one for women's work, a minister of music, a director of Christian education,—all of these regular salaried people paid by the church.

There is a good Bible precedent for all this. The prophet Jeremiah had a scribe named Baruch, who wrote out Jeremiah's sermons and helped him revise them after the original copy had been destroyed. Baruch was not a prophet himself.

He would probably never have been heard from, if he had not been Jeremiah's secretary. On the other hand, some of Jeremiah's most striking sermons would have perished if it had not been for Baruch's faithful work putting them into written shape. We know too that Paul's letter to the Romans was not actually penned by Paul but by a secretary named Tertius (Rom. 16:22). When Paul list of various kinds of "gifts" and gifted people in the church, he names "helpers" right along with healers and administrators (I Cor. 12:28). So from the beginning till now, the "staff" has been as much needed as the #### preacher. Church Vocations

Young people in high school who are Christians ought to know what the usual vocational counselor will not tell them (because not knowing): namely that there are many vocations open, wide open, where Christians are needed to serve God and man through the Church, vocations which are not the ministryof-preaching but are ministeries in their own right. Especially is this true on the mission field. Right now there are mission boards calling for teachers, nurses, doctors, agricultural specialists, dentists, industrial workers, all over the world. Here at home-to name only one of these vocations—the "Director of Christian Education" is a kind of job for which there are not rearly as many trained workers as the church needs.

Volunteers

Most churches, however, are small. They cannot afford a staff, they have trouble even in scraping up money for a janitor. In many such little churches the minister is beating his head out trying to do all the chores himself besides preaching. This is where the volunteer worker comes in. We are used to the idea of volunteer Sunday school teachers and choir singers; why not a volunteer staff? In most small churches you could find some one who could take dictation and run a typewriter or mimeograph machine, some one to volunteer to dust the church early Sunday morning (a needed chore often forgotten); some one to answer the minister's phone and give him time for needed study or visiting. Almost any church can have a good staff to help the preacher,-they have the ability, all they need is the volunteers. (Based on onlines copyrighted by the Division of Christian Education, National Council of the Churches of Christ in the U.S. A. Refeased by Community Press Service.)

Dusting Calls for Right Equipment Farm Supply Man Can Be Big Help

Since you want the right equipment for crop protection with dusting, let your farm supply dealer help you make the right decision to fit your producing needs and pocketbook. Dusting is by no means a new and untried method in crop pest control. The number of power dusters used on farms at present for many practical purposes is approximately 200,000—with thousands more on the way.

Your dealer can get right down to "brass tacks" on the duster problem, if you tell him your plans. Let him know the kinds and areas of field and truck crops or fruit plantings you wish to guard from danger with modern dusts used against insects, plant diseases and weeds. Besides, you may need to plans with your supply dealer to assure that you have the right equipment.

dust away some costly livestock and poultry pests, too, with the same handy equipment.

Between the implement dealer, the county agent, and the vo-ag in-structor at your high school, you'll surely get some useful tips on dusting. Or else, take the advice of the smart old advertiser—"ask the farmer who owns one!"

What you'll need to get first is a sort of "bug's eye" view of the whole duster field—all aimed right in his direction-from hand machines to power blowers. Manufacturers have developed many different types of dusters to meet the needs of the large and small growers, the orchardist, the truck gardener, the cotton planter and the seed corn producer. They are economical to run, readily adaptable to local growing conditions, and have low upkeep costs.

Tractor Accidents Take Many Lives

Farm tractor accidents now take more than 1,000 lives annually. O. L. Hogsett, extension safety specialist at the University of Illinois College of Agriculture, suggests that all operators be properly instructed, as the spring work season increases the chances of tractor accidents.

Remember, too, that fatigue is often a factor in farm accidents, Hogsett says.

Excessive speed is the No. 1 cause of tractor accidents. Defective wheel brakes, rough roads or a quick turn can bring tragedy if your speed is too high. Teen-aged tractor operators have far too many accidents. Work with these youngsters, and see that they receive careful instruction and supervision until they are fully qualified. Also ranking high on the list of accident causes is the extra rider. A tractor was not built to carry extra passengers safely. Children in particular too often meet with serious injury or death as extra Treasury Secretary Robert B. Anderson, left, in his first official act as Secretary of the Treasury sold a $100 United States series E Savings Bond to outgoing Treasury Secretary George M. Humphrey, right, who was prohibited by law from acquiring Government securities as long as he was in office. Secretary Anderson is shown accepting a $75.00 check from Mr. Humphrey in exchange for the $100 Savings Bond. Mr. Humphrey said that he was "just delighted as my first act as a private citizen again to buy a Savings Bond and join the forty million other citizens who own these Bonds and prize them the forty million other citizens who own these Bonds and prize them highly." The sale was made immediately after the two returned to highly." The sale was made immediately after the two returned to the Treasury following Secretary Anderson's swearing-in in the presence of President Eisenhower and other, top officials at the

Summer's Bright Sun And Fine Days Call You And Baby Into The Open Air

Now, before August's "dog days" arrive, you and baby have an opportunity to soak up the health-giving rays of the warm sun, and gradually condition your skins for a glowing tan.

At this time of year, the sun is at its brightest and warmest between eleven in the morning between eleven in the morning and two in the afternoon. Try to schedule your walks either be-fore or after those hours keep-ing in mind that this is the ideal time to acquire a tan gradually, without painful sunburn.

of course, any sun can burn, so five minutes in the direct rays of the sun should be the limit at the start. The exposure can be increased a few minutes each day. Baby should wear a hat that will shield the eyes against the sun's glare. A bit of baby lotion wiped over the cheeks and around the mouth will keep the

Your own skin, too, will benefit from the lubricating effect of the same creamy white lotion. Try smoothing it over all the exposed areas of your skin after your daily tub or shower. Incidentally, giving the legs a daily wipe-down with the baby lotion will make shaving them much easier and quicker.

While getting baby ready for the outdoors, keep in mind that even summer sun can be fickle. Clouds can quickly shut off the sun's warmth. Play safe. Before you start out tuck a sweater for baby in the coach just in case the weather should cloud over before you can get home from the park.

Nitrogen Spacing Values Studied

Various Applications Don't Affect Yields

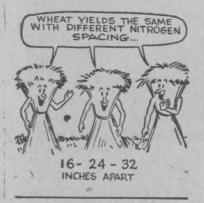

Different spacings of liquid and gas nitrogen fertilizer applications had little or no effect on wheat yields last year at the Oregon State college Sherman branch experiment station at Moro.

Bill Hall, station superintendent, said Rio wheat yields from test plots were comparable for both anhydrous ammonia and aqua ammonia nitrogen when fertilizer applicator shanks were spaced 16, 24, and 32 inches apart.

Depth of application, tested at 3 inches and 6 inches, for various spacings also gave no yield differences. However, the shallow depth is more difficult to apply since nitrogen may escape if applicator shanks cross depressions in the

The Moro test plots were treated with 40 pounds of actual nitrogen per acre prior to seeding last September. Yields from all treatments were approximately 29 bushels per acre compared to 23 bushels from a check plots receiving no nitrogen.

A further check against results was application of ammonium nitrate—a dry form of nitrogen broadcast on top of the soil—that yielded the same as the other treatments when applied at the

The findings were further supported by 1955 trials at the Moro station when equal wheat yields were obtained with shank spacings of 10, 16, and 22 inches and depths of 3, 6, and 9 inches. Similar results have been reported from the Pendleton branch experiment station

Wheat Curl Mite Pest of Wheatlands

A 3-year search for insects and mites that could spread the highly destructive wheat streak-mosaic virus has revealed that the wheat curl mite is probably the only carrier of this virus in the Great Plains region, the U.S. Department of Agriculture reports.

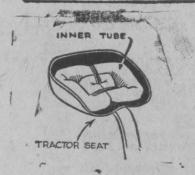

The search was made in cooperation with the Kansas and Nebraska Agricultural Experiment Stations by R. V. Connin of USDA'S Agricultural Research Service, and R. Staples of the Nebraska Sta-

The wheat curl mite was implicated as the carrier of this virus in Canada by Dr. J. T. Slykhuis in 1953.

Wheat streak-mosaic has been especially destructive to winter wheat in western Kansas and has caused severe damage in Nebraska, Colorado, and South Dakota. Some loss to the disease is reported also in Wyoming and western Iowa, and at scattered points elsewhere in the United States.

The disease has wiped out entire wheat crops in some areas. The virus invades and grows within the wheat plant, destroying the all-important green pigment, chlorophyll, and causing plant leaves to become streaked, spotted, or mottled with yellow. Growth of the plant is hampered or halted.
