MONTH-LONG MARCH OF DIMES DRIVE OPENS JANUARY 2

The 1958 March of Dimes drive, which opens here January 2 and continues through January 31, will seek funds primarily to help tens of thousands of polio victims left in the wake of the Salk vaccine's conquest of the polio virus, former U. S. Senator George L. Radcliffe, Maryland chairman of the campaign points out. "No victory is worthwhile unless it is a complete victory," Mr. Rad-cliffe said, "and we shall not have a complete nor meaningful victory over polio until the post-polios of our country are given a fair chance to combat the after-effects of this crippling disease.'

This year, the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis will set aside 25% of the net proceeds from the March of Dimes for a Medical Aid Fund which will assure that no victim of paralytic polio will lack care because of insufficient funds in communities hard-pressed by high patient-care loads, he continued.

Mr. Radcliffe said that the new fund, which replaces the Foundation's Epidemic Aid program, will provide for the purchase of new technical equipment and the maintenance and and interested friends from all the churches will be present. This is our first Good News Club appearance in It will meet contemplated needs for advances to its 3100 chapters and will provide support for its 16 respiratory and rehabilitation centers.

In addition to 300,000 paralytic polio victims across the nation who look to the March of Dimes for rehabilitation, vocationally, psychologically and socially, 1958 March of Dimes contributions will also be used for the expansion of programs of scientific research and professional education, Mr. Radcliffe continued.

"Across Maryland, March of Dimes volunteers are ready to launch one of the most important campaigns in the 20-year history of the Foundation,' the chairman said, pointing out that communities have scheduled March of Dimes kick-off parades and other pecial events through the month.

Mr. Radcliffe said that every age group is holding special Dimes' fund raising activities—from "golden agers to teenagers", acting individually The following men will serve as udges for the Xmas lighting contest: as well as members of civic, church, cott Bair, Westminster; Charles cultural and educational organiza-

The busybody was an ingenious gadget and an inexpensive one consisting of three mirrors fastened to an arm leading from a second story window sill. It enabled a busy housewindow sill. It enabled a busy house-wife to see what was happening in the street. The first mirror reflected the street to the right, the second mirror, the street to the left and the third slanting down reflected the front door steps. For people with a burn-ing springly about the company and ing curiosity about the comings and goings on in their street and concern-ed about the identity of a door-bell

It was truly invaluable to the housewife saving her many steps by glancing in the mirror of the Busybody.

FACTS AND OPINIONS

This country has set all manner of records in recent times. A new one has just been announced by Commissioner of Internal Revenue Harrington. Last year the American people paid an all-time high of $80,171,971, 000 in federal taxes-more than the total internal revenue collected from 1789 through 1938, and some $5 billion above the 1956 figure. All major classes of taxes contributed to the increase, the largest gains occuring in individual income and employment tax collections.

This nation's first atomic-powered merchant ship is expected to be completed in 1960. She will carry the designation NS, for nuclear ship, instead of the traditional SS. She will be named the Savannah, after the first ship to cross the Atlantic under steam power.

The oil industry has a capital in vestment that works out to $38,000 for each employe, as compared with $8,600 for manufacturing as a whole. The average annual salary per worker is $5,259 and welfare benefits cost the industry $1,278 a year for each hourly-paid employe.

Sales of imported automobilesmost of them small economy typeshave been rising steadily and swiftly in this country. This causes National Review to speculate: "Maybe, instead of building the Edsel, the Ford Company shoull have revived the flivver."

rding to Senator Byrd, the U S. government's civilian payroll for fiscal 1957 has reached a record $11 billion-plus. The number of employes on the federal rolls is now 2,394, 000, a gain of over 30,000 over 1956.

An Esther Williams Swimming Pool

"IF YOU CAN AFFORD A BACKYARD you can afford a swimming pool," says Mr. Don Pruess, of International Swimming Pool Corporation, White Plains, New York. A revolutionary idea, no doubt, but Mr. Pruess backs up his statement with some very convincing observations

Consider the dollars spent week after week during the summer on gas, oil, motels or hotels and food, not to mention your bumper-to-bumper frayed nerves when day is done. Consider too, your teen-agers on the go and their monopoly of the family car at your expense and—often—concern. Then consider the cost of a swimming pool—a permanent property improvement which in many cases increases the resale value of the home far beyond the cost

"The big advantage of a country club right in your own backyard", says Mr. Pruess, the father of three, "is the harmonious family unity it seals. You can keep an eye on junior, sis, and their little friends, know what makes those active brains tick and be in an ideal position to guide their activities as a real friend."

This fall swimming pools are being installed in backyards all across the country. The reasons are numerous. Labor is more available now and certainly less expensive than it will be next spring. Grounds can be landscaped for full beauty when the first warm day of spring arrives. Many happy ice-skating parties too, can fill the hours during the winter months. Come spring, the pool is ready to supply fun and good health for the whole family.

COUNTY MANAGER SYSTEM OF GOVERNMENT

Mr. C. Rodgers Hall, Jr., Attorney of Westminster was the guest speak-er at the first meeting of the Gamber-Smallwood Improvement Association December 6th in the auditorium of the Mechanicsville School, Gamber. After complimenting the community for engaging in an activity reminscent of the Jamestown and Plymouth Colonies, he gave a most interesting analysis of the county manager systm of government, which is usually a Home Rule Charter type. He noted that the last session of the legislature passed a bill allowing the commissioners of Carroll County to hire a county manager. In his address and the discussion following, he emphasized the need to consider and adopt methods to increase efficiency and to save money on our increasing budgets and taxes, occasioned by expanding services and

A comparison of budget data was given as follows: Tax rate for 1942 was $.90 and for 1957 it was $1.65; Assessible base for 1942 was approximately 45 million and for 1958 will approximate 120

The budget for 1942 was less than one-half million but may approach close to three million for 1958.

Mr. Hall discussed the functions of the County Manager such as administrative with responsibility for all county departments; the gathering of data in assisting Council for preparation of the budget; and supervising purchasing by a control agency.

He then gave an outline of charter type government. A Council and Board of Education are elected by the voters of the county rather than appointed by the governor. The charter also provided for a Tax Appeals Court and Licensing Bureau. The Council meets once each year to en-Council meets once each year to enact laws for the county which are now done by the general assembly. The Council must publish the laws word for word in the local newspapers. All budget hearings are held in public.

Mr Hall concluded with the opinion that it is our responsibility to keep that it is our responsibility to keep in close contact with our local government and encourage people to participate in these activities.

We heartilly agree with him and have organized in order to accept these responsibilities. Unless a government is of and by the people, it is not likely to be in a large measure for the people. The privilege of self government places on the individual the responsibility to inform himself in order to express an intelligent and reasoned opinion. local organization working in public meetings seems to be the best method of enjoying these privileges and fulfilling our responsibilities.

During the coming year meetings will be held with speakers on other subjects such as zoning.

A report was given on the activities of the roads committee but was not complete and will be continued at the next meeting to be held early next year.

Detour is decorated beautifully for Christmas—You may begin your appreciating the lights and decorations at the Hilltop home of the DeShields and the Warner-Catlin home just beside of Double Pipe Creek on the Frederick County side of Detour—all the way tru town until you reach the blinking inside and outside Christmas lights at the Ralph Schildt home. It seems most every home has some thing—a door way, a wreath, tree, windows, lights in all the windows, etc. which says "Merry Christmas" to those who walk or ride by. Santa is three-quarters of the way up the ladder headed for the chimney on the Edward Coshun home. The Frank Zimmerman have lights decorating their home at the Junction of the Six's Bridge and Keysville roads— then there are other decorations in the home located on the Keysville road. The Dinterman home at Keysville on the corner attracts much attention with the Star on the upper orch and the lights located around the lower porch. The very large lighted star at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Stonesifer, Keysville, stands out so beautifully in the blackness of the night and in contrast to the many beautiful lights and cross on the Glenn Croshon home which is located beside the Stonesifer home across the road from the Keysville United Church of Christ. Mr. Thomas Fox, across from the Keysville Lutheran Church, and his family have a fire place on his porch along with many lights everywhere. These are only a few examples of the work cessories and a red rosebud corsage. some people have gone to to say "Merry Christmas" to everyone—

Keep Kitchen Cool By Using Broiler For Halibut Steaks

A BROILED dinner is a good way to cut dow cooking time and keep your kitchen cool during sweltering days. Remember, too, that a broiler isn't just for expensive things like steaks and chops, but can be utilized for many wonderful fish dinners.

If you have a wooden board or plank, as they are called, you can make this all-broiled dinner with a cooking time of 20 to 25 minutes. It's so beautiful you'll want to adapt the idea for many of the fish steaks that are available.

Broiled Halibut (Serves 4) 11/2 pounds halibut steaks 2 tablespoons butter, melted ½ teaspoon salt 1/4 teaspoon pepper

2 cups mashed potatoes 4 small or 2 large tomatoes with buttered crumbs Pimiento Butter Sauce

Thaw halibut if frozen. Place on wooden plank. Brush with melted butter; sprinkle with half salt and pepper. Broil 3 inches from source of heat for 10 to 12 minutes. Turn steaks, brush with remaining butter and sprinkle with salt and pepper. Spoon mashed potatoes in border around plank. Arrange tomatoes attractively. Return plank

Mashed potatoes make a fluffy border around halibut steaks to add appeal to this broiled dinner. Tomatoes as a vegetable can be broiled right along with the fish and potatoes if they're topped with buttered bread crumbs.

to broiler for 10 to 15 minutes or until potato border is browned and fish flakes with fork.

When fish is done, serve with Pimiento Butter Sauce: saute 1 chopped pimiento in 1/3 cup butter. Remove from heat and stir in 1 tablespoon lemon juice. Serve hot. A green salad is ideal for the fish dinner, especially when you use garden greens, well washed and chilled, then broken in chunks and coated with an oil dressing made as follows: shake together 11/3 cups olive or salad oil with 1/2 cup vinegar, 1 teaspoon sugar, 11/2 teaspoons salt, 1/2 teaspoon dry mustard and 1 clove of garlic sliced. Chill for several hours.

How to Avoid Ironing Pitfalls

You can sail along with your ironing smoothly and easily, and then starch sticks to the iron or you find a white tablecloth mildewed. This ends the easy job and you have to undo the problem before going on.

It's not enough to remedy the trouble. You have to know why it happened so you can avoid it completely the next time. Ironing is a big job and everything should run smoothly so you won't be held up by having to be a trouble shooter. Starch, Mildew

When starch sticks to the iron it may be starch which has not been cooked long enough. Cook it two or three minutes after it clears. Lumps in the starch may cause sticking. Unless cooked starch is smooth, it's best to put it through a strainer to avoid trouble. Add a pinch of salt.

The garment should be bone dry after starching before dampening

Clean off starch on the iron with a clean, damp cloth while it's barely warm. It may also be rubbed over salt spread on paper. Wash the starch out of the garment completely and apply fresh starch before attempting to iron again.

Mildew is common when damp things are allowed to remain dampened for too long a time in heat and darkness, that is, being wrapped or rolled. Use chlorine bleach (34 cup to 1 gallon warm water) for removing mildew from white linen or cotton. If you can't get to the ironing, dry them out and try another time so clothing doesn't sit for too long while dampened.

Easy Ironing

Blotchy finishes on ironed things are caused by uneven dampening. However, if the blotchiness is caused on a rayon garment, it was probably because the iron was too hot or the garment was not turned to the wrong side for ironing.

To remedy, moisten the dry spots on cottons and linens with a damp sponge before ironing over them. For rayons, use a wet cloth and run the iron over this. Be certain to dampen evenly next time before ironing.

Dairy Operation Needs Production Output Per Cow Is Important Factor

There's more to developing an efficient, profitable dairy operation than adding more cows to the herd to boost output per man.

Ray Hoglund, farm economist at Michigan State University, says that perhaps too much emphasis is being placed on more cows per man. Other production factors may be even more important in building a profitable dairy farm enterprise

The most important single factor in producing milk profitably is the inherited capacity of the cow to convert feed into milk, points out Hoglund. Net income from a 25-cow dairy herd is more than three times as high when the cows produce 10,000 pounds of milk a year rather than 7,000 pounds.

A farmer with a 25-cow herd producing an average of 10,000 pounds a year with average forage production practices could increase net income by $1,100 through using improved forage harvesting, storage and feeding practices. A shift

The secret to higher dairy profits lies in higher production to a 48-cow herd and no improvement in forage quality would add only $400 to net income.

If average forage practices were in use, the net income from a 25-cow herd producing 13,000 pounds of milk would be greater than from 48 cows producing 10,000 pounds of milk.

Good environment aids efficiency of milk production, too. Use of the best barn arrangements, improved equipment and work methods can add to the comfort and productivity of the cow and at the same time cut labor requirements.

County Zoning Will Protect Real Estate

One of the best ways to protect real estate values is with county zoning, says N. G. P. Krausz, University of Illinois farm law spe-

Unnecessary and speculative land subdivision and its harmful effects can be cut down by zoning. Also, regulating the elements that lower real estate values will prevent weakening of the tax base. Zoning helps to conserve water resources and prevent lake and stream pollution. Krausz points out, also, that space for parks can be protected from commercial development by zoning. Undesirable developments not allowed inside city limits could not spread to rural areas with county zoning. Zoning would also control unsightly or hazardous roadside developments.

Intelligent planning can solve problems that may arise in the future, Krausz says. Future highways, areas for parks, industry and business are laid out in a master plan. The best agricultural lands can be protected for farming. Installation costs of utilities and other public works can be reduced by planning for their development and expansion before the need arises.

Prevent Mice

Eave gutters, inverted and nailed along the lower outside edge of a corn crib, as shown above, will make it impossible for mice to get into the crib.

Smart Women Buy Dark Cottons For Longer Wear

DASTELS are lovely for summer dresses and no wardrobe would be complete without them. Their season, however, is short, so it's the wise shopper who includes the darker cottons in her wardrobe.

Transition cottons, as they're sometimes called, are the ones you wear on the cooler summer days and then well on into October. They're wonderful for 'all-season wear around the home, since darker colors are appropriate for winter months if you're working inside the house a great deal.

If you buy transition cottons early, you'll be able to make more use out of them. Put them on when fashion demands a dark color but the heat demands a fully washable cotton.

Attractive Styles

You'll be seeing transition cottons in many styles, several of which will suit your figure best. As with many summer things, the sheath is popular. You can get these in the tartan plaids, the darker colors including blue, green and brown. Some are sleeveless for the really warm days, others have toppers. You might even add your own topping by way of a bulky orlon short jacket or stole.

Casual coat dresses in textured cottons with tweed effects are very good too. Sleeves are usually brief and the soft unpressed pleats in the skirt make these a very popular style for everyone. Spectator shirt waist fashions are popular with their comfortable, easy going styles. Select these in solid tones of navy, black, gold and dark green.

Interesting Detail

Baby checks will be seen a lot in the transition picture too. The crisp combination of black and white is neat and appealing amidst the pastels with their laces and

Add Pep to Meals With Sour Cream

Dairy sour cream or salad cream, as it's called in many communities, is being rediscovered by many homemakers. It's not a new product for our mothers and grandmothers relied on it to bring fine full flavor to food of all kinds.

Some may not be familiar with the name sour cream because the term "sour" is misleading. Actually the product uses cream which is pasteurized and homogenized. Lactic culture is added to produce a rich, clean medium sharp cultured flavor. Sour cream has a smooth consistency somewhat heavier than whipped cream.

If you think of sour cream being used only to make cottage cheese more delectable, then look at these ways in which to use it:

Shrimp Chip Dip

(Makes 1½ cups) 1 5-ounce can shrimp, drained and chopped 1 cup dairy sour cream ¼ cup chili sauce

2 teaspoons lemon juice ½ teaspoon salt 1/8 teaspoon pepper 1 teaspoon prepared horserad-

Dash of tabasco Cut shrimp small and mix well with remaining ingredients. Use as a dip or spread for crackers or potato chips. Sour Cream Potatoes

(Serves 6) 4 cups sliced cooked potatoes ½ cup chopped onion 2 tablespoons butter

1 cup dairy sour cream 2 tablespoons water 2 eggs, well beaten

1 teaspoon salt

1 cup sharp shredded cheddar cheese Saute onion in butter. Combine with sour cream, water, eggs and salt. Place potatoes in buttered quart casserole and pour sour cream mixture over all. Top with cheese and bake in a moderate (350°F.) oven for 20 to 25 minutes.

How to Add That Spacious Look To Small Rooms

WITH a few decorative tricks up your sleeve, none of your rooms need look small. Their size may be anything but ideal, but they will yield to sound decorating principles and give the spacious look desired by so many. For rooms which are really small, concentrate on a single color. This means having the same wall and drapery or curtain colors if at all possible. The same is true of the floor. Wall-to-wall carpeting adds spaciousness but if it's out of reach on the budget, then paint the floor around the rugs the same as the rug color.

Have you ever thought how large a room looks when it's empty? Take your cue from that and eliminate all knick-knacks and unessentials in a small room.

An unexpected shape in small rugs is this watermelon. It's tufted with a rosy-red center, outlined with lighter and darker green tufted bands to simulate the rind. Black seeds are overstitched. The color scheme can be the inspiration for decorating the whole room.

Mirrors, Murals You can actually make space with mirrors in small rooms. In a narrow hallway you can add spaciousness by placing a mirror on one side and a scenic mural on the other. This would be reflected in the mirror to give that much desired feeling of spaciousness.

Arranging Furniture If your furniture matches, then so much the better for that spacious look in your rooms. Pieces in need of refinishing can all be done in the same fashion to reach this effect. Rather than spreading the furniture about to create several conversational centers in the living room, team them up for small living rooms. If you have a fireplace, place the television set right next to it. Square the couch and chairs around that.

Southwestern Dish Has Lively Flavor

Lively main dishes and tangy salads are leatured loods in the Southwestern part of the country, but they have found favor with everyone. When you want an economy dish, for example, everyone will enjoy Tamale Pie. Remember, too, for a large buffet type supper, it's an ideal main dish:

Tamale Pie (Serves 4) 1½ teaspoons salt

3 cups water 1 cup cornmeal 1 medium onion, diced 1 green pepper, diced 3 tablespoons fat 34 pound ground beef

11/2 cups canned, drained tomatoes 2 teaspoons salt 1/4 teaspoon black pepper 2 teaspoons chili powder

Add 11/2 teaspoons salt to boiling water and bring to a rapid boil. Sift and stir in cornmeal. Cover and cook 45 minutes, stirring occasionally. Cook onion and green pepper in fat until tender; remove from fat and add meat. Brown lightly. Add remaining ingredients and heat thoroughly. Pour half of cornmeal into greased baking dish; add meat mixture and cover with remaining cornmeal. Bake 35 minutes in a hot (400°F.) oven.

Here's a salad that makes a complete supper or luncheon dish when served with toasted garlic bread:

Salad Mexicana (Serves 4) 1 cup ripe olives 2 cups cooked green beans ½ cup flaked tuna 1 tablespoon chopped green pepper

1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce 1 tablespoon lemon juice 2 tablespoons mayonnaise

Slice olives in large pieces. Cut beans into 1/2-inch lengths. Combine olives, beans, tuna, green pepper, onion and salt. Blend together vinegar, Worcestershire sauce and lemon juice. Pour over first mixture. Chill. Drain thoroughly. Add mayonnaise and blend. Serve over salad greens.

She Talked Too Much By K. Brummond

DON'T see why father doesn't get well," said Bess to her

Bill had had the answer to that one since fifteen minutes after he and Bess had arrived from Valparaiso to help take care of the old man. But naturally he couldn't tell his wife that the trouble was her mother.

It 'wasn't that his mother-in-law was a bad sort; but there was just too much of Fiction her. She was six feet tall and weighed over two hundred pounds with arms like ham hocks.

Along with all that, she talked too much. Too much and too loud and too long. So how could any sick man get well there? And Father Brunson simply refused to go to a hospital where he might have a little peace and quiet.

Then, quite accidentally, Bill found himself in a position to do something about it.

He was going down to the drug store for more medicine when Mother Brunson interrupted herself in the midst of a running account of her cousin's wedding to say, "Oh, Bill, get me a box of aspirin, will you dear? I've got a splitting headache. Guess this nursing is getting me down and I—"
"Sure, sure," Bill said and fled down the steps. He had long ago learned that if you stopped to hear the end of Mother Brunson's sentences you'd never get gone.

He had to wait in the drug store while the clerk attended to another customer, a woman, and Bill heard her say, "I want a box of those tranquilizing pills—the 4-E's

"Do you need a prescription for those?" Bill asked quickly. "Not in this state, you don't,"

the clerk returned. 'Then I'll take some too, a box of those and a box of aspirin," Bill The pills were slightly smaller than aspirin but by adding a little wadding they didn't rattle around too much in the box; and by the time Bill got home with them Mother Brunson was too miserable to notice the difference anyway.

"Better take two," Bill advised solicitously, "here's a big drink of water to down them with."

Bill went early to bed and slept just as soundly all night as though he had not perpetrated a felony. Bess and her mother were at the breakfast table when he went down, both looking wan and sleepy.

"Father had a terrible night," Bess said. "I didn't awaken you because you were sleeping so well. He kept calling for Mother and I had to drag her out of bed a dozen

Even as she spoke Father Brunson's voice came from the bedroom. "Where's Ma?" he asked quaveringly.

It was soon apparent that Father Brunson was really in a bad way. He sunk into a state of apathy almost like a coma and when the doctor came he shook his head. "I'll stop by again after dinner," he said, "and if he's no better we'll have to take him to the hospital "

Bill was elected to do up the work and look after the patient while Bess and her mother got some sleep.

Along in the middle of the afternoon Mother Brunson came downstairs. "I'll spell you now, Bill," she said. "First I'll go take another aspirin."

Suddenly there came a deep cry of rage from the kitchen. "Where did you get this stuff?" Mother Brunson cried. "It isn't aspirin at Bill sprang to the door. "What's that? What do you mean-it isn't aspirin? Maybe its a new improved

"It certainly is not! Look here! 4-E's it says, and it doesn't taste a bit like aspirin." With all her old vim and vigor Mother Brunson launched into a tirade and kept it up until Bill fled back to the bed-

Father Brunson was wide awake. Not only awake but sitting up and

Specialize for Sure Farm Profit Efficient Operation Insures Production

Thousands of punch cards emerging from Farm Census IBM machines every five years are clicking out a story—and a warning-to live stock farmers everywhere says National Live Stock Producer. The story is: Specialization. The warning: Comply or Farm life today is too complex for any farmer to be "jack of all trades and master of all." The old cow-sow-hen operation is gone or is going. The same holds true for owners of small, inefficient herds and flocks. The trend is toward keeping enough animals for an efficient and productive unit or none at all.

Census data tell the story. In 1920, 4,851,000 U. S. farms reported hogs. By 1940, the number was down to 3,767,000 and in 1954, the farm census revealed only 2,365,000 farms raising hogs. This 34-year reduction amounted to

Although cattle numbers have increased, fewer farmers are engaged in cattle production. The 5,358,000 cattle farms reported in Tests in Oregon showed no appreciable difference in yield when different spacings of gas and liquid fertilizer were used on wheat crops.

1920 were down 32% to 3,651,000

The number of sheep farms plummeted from 539,000 in 1920 to 361,000 in 1954.

Why are these trends occurring and what do they mean?

First, the disappearance of small, inefficient units account for most of these decreases. The one and two cow, sow and some chickens type of farmer is being eliminated by the vital force of economics which makes it unprofitable to spend the time and trouble on a sideline enterprise.

Second, efficiency has been stepped up to a point where 35% fewer farm workers are now producing 60% more farm products than was possible 30 years ago.

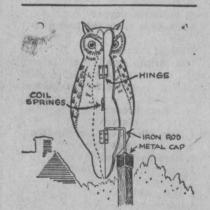

Disease-Free Pigs Curb Disease Cycle

A practical means of checking diseases in certain swine herds by breaking the chain of infection to the young animals has been reported in the Journal of the American Veterinary Medical Associa-

The plan involves obtaining 'disease-free' baby pigs, either by Cesarean operation or by catching the pigs in sterile bags during normal farrowing, and then removing them to isolated quarters

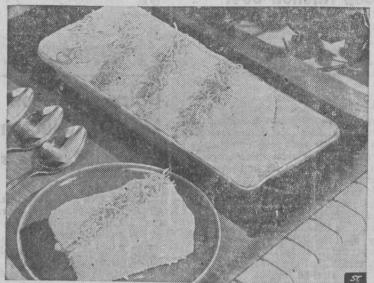

Experimental evidence reported by veterinary medical authorities shows that baby pigs can be raised successfully even if they are deprived of colostrum, provided they can be protected from natural environmental factors. The pigs, at birth, are essentially free of infectious disease.

HOW GREAT IS OUR GOD?

The "$64,000 Dollar" questions, as I recall, Were answered by some, but not by all; But there is one question which only One knows; How much greater is God than you.

The Bible tells us, God made the earth and man, The two, combined, form a part of His plan; So, since there are two billion me's, There must, also, be two billion He's.

God implants Himself in man at birth;
So, He is his personal God on earth—
The God in you and the God in me
Shall be our God through Time and Eternity.

These many Gods are one and the same—
There is only one God; and, God is His name!
He is mind, and the life of everyone,
So it has been since Time begun.

How He does it is something for us to find out;
It is that which causes fear and doubt,
But, there is a connection, between Him and all,
Which makes us one, whether great or small.

The whole earth is governed by laws, it is said, That being true, we have nothing to dread; Without God man would not be complete, He is closer to us than our hands or our feet.

"God declares unto man what is his thought"; So, all our inventions by Him are wrought; When you leave your body, God goes too; For He, it is said, is the life of yours.

Man does not then go to his final rest;
Death is only a part of Eternity's test;
He must build a body which shall not decay,
In which to live through the endless day.

The likeness of God must be seen on his face— That statement is true of every race; The physical like the Spiritual body must be Before one can enter Eternity.

Death is not an evening; it is a friend, Since to disease and pain it puts an end; It opens the door again to earth, And we return by way of physical birth.

Words can not express how wonderful God must be, He made everything which around we see; Wherever one looks His creations are grand; They all seem to tell of a Master hand.

He made the great rivers which run to the sea;
And He did it all for you and for me;
The sea itself, and the mountains, so grand
All are His servants and were made by His hand.

But that is not all about God we know;
He is the life of the animals and all things which grow
Everything we see on this green Earth
Because of Him has had its birth.

The chemist can make a grain of wheat
Which resembles the ones we daily eat,
But, if you plant it, it will not grow,
Because God is not in it to make it do so.

How proud, let me say, we all should be To say: "Earth's Creator is a part of man" Because of His promises man should not fear, Especially, since our God is so near.

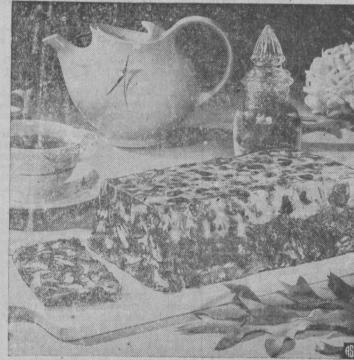

The song which the Angels sang Peace and Good Will Because its God's message is echoing still;
And, it shall continue to echo till all on this sod Are numbered among the children of God.

And when the great Hallelujah chorus is sung And our harps on the willows have been hung, We shall know who it was that set us free; It was Jesus who once lived in Galilee.

Brothers in Christ

Lesson for December 29, 1957

BROTHERHOOD" is a word that gets kicked around a lot. There are all sorts of brotherhoods, and most of them are good. The Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers is a sample of many groups held together by the same kind of work and skill. We can talk of the brotherhood of Americans, or of artists, or of the same battalion in an army. We can speak of the Dr. Foreman brotherhood of suffering. "Brothers in Christ," however are closer to one another than even those who have the same father and mother. We could not go into this and show why it is. But let us follow Paul's lead and think how this works. The little note he wrote to Philemon brings together in Christian brotherhood two men who were about as far apart as two men could be; for one of them, Philemon, was a master and Onesimus, the other, was his slave.

Restored

Onesimus was worse than a slave. He had stolen from his master and ran away. Somehow or other, probably in jail, he had run across Paul, and became one of the many whom Paul led to Christ. Now Paul might have said to him: "Now, Onesimus, you are my Christian brother and Philemon's too. The past is all wiped clean, God has forgiven your sins. Stay here in Rome, take a fresh start, leave your old life behind. I'll never let on to Philemon that I ever met you." But Paul did not look at it that way. The first thing Onesimus had to do was the hardest. He had to go back to Philemon and give himself up. The letter to Philemon urges that gentleman to remember that Onesimus is now also his brother; but Paul may have had to do some tall persuading, to make Onesimus see that

Philemon was his brother. Brotherhood, in short, as Christians at their best understand it, does not cancel out obligations. If I owe a Christian ten dollars, I can't gaily write it off because it's "all in the family." If I have slandered a fellow-Christian or wronged one in any way, the very fact that we are lays on me a special duty to make all the restitution I possibly can. Let us not go into the New Year, if we can help it, owing any man -"except to love one another."

Reconciled

This return of Onesimus, as Paul hoped, would be more than restoration of an absent slave and at least some of the missing money. It would be a reconciliation. (Paul's hopes probably were realized, otherwise one suspects this little letter would have been saved.) Now reconciliation is very difficult, because it involves something in the heart. You can restore all the externals of the old relationship,—the runaway slave can come back, the estranged husband and wife can move into the same apartment, the countries lately fighting can send ambassadors to each other again, and so forth. But unless something happens in the hearts of these people, the restoration is going to be something formal at best, galling and intolerable at worst. There has to be forgiveness on at least one side in all human reconciliation; usually two sides. Who knows why Onesimus ran away? If Philemon had been the ideal master, Onesimus might have preferred to stay home. And if we can guess that Onesimus had something to forgive, we know that Philemon had. But brotherhood means love, if it means anything. Brotherhood in Christ means Christlike love.

Refreshed

Paul, as the reader of his letter will notice, asks Philemon to live out his brotherhood,-but not for his sake and that of Onesimus alone. The restoration and reconciliation which Paul prays for, will "refresh the hearts" of a good many people. It is not true that my relations with you and yours with me affect us two alone. A family reconciliation may make a difference far beyond the household. This is a sad world, a weary world. And the weariness comes partly from listening to so much jangling and wrangling. As the bells ring out the Old Year, how wonderful, how refreshing to the heart, if they ring out old quarrels, old resentments! Christian brotherhood is a bell with farheard overtones of peace.

SHORT STORY Little Bird

ANN BARKSDALE had had her A fill of books. Ten years ago she had insisted that the most exciting job in all the world was that of a librarian. Now that the position was hers its glamor had faded. A librarian's job is hard work, she decided. Worse than that it is longely work - alarmingly lonely

"There hasn't been a young or handsome man here in months!"

'Good evening, Mr. Peters!'' she whispered.

He seemed pleasantly surprised. "Hello Miss Barksdale."

"I'd like your advice." She covered the book he'd been reading with her unsigned resignation. "I've been thinking of submitting this to the library board.'

Mr. Peters removed his glasses and settled back in his chair. "How old are you, my dear?" he asked. She blushed. Mr. Peters was certainly shrewd. "Old enough to be going to dances; to be meeting people," she replied pointedly. "Next Friday I'll be twenty-five.

And for five of those years I've been buried alive in this library.' Mr. Peters shrugged. "Everyone has to work somewhere.

"I wasn't talking about getting married," she said quickly.

"No? Well - I was. And in most instances a pretty girl like your-self wouldn't have much trouble. It's not the library, Miss Barksdale. It's just -

"Just what?" she snapped. "It's your danged efficiency. You've never left your desk to speak to me until today. And I'm not the only one. I've seen you frighten others off.

"There hasn't been a young OR a handsome man here in months!" she said bitterly.

"If I weren't so old I'd resent that," he chuckled. "How about Bert Jackson? He used to stop in once in awhile.

"To study his bird books." "Indeed? Like the night I saw him mooning at you over one of his bird books?

"You're kidding." But as she walked back to her desk she sincerely hoped he wasn't. Ann's heart beat faster than usual that evening as she left the library. Mr. Peters had given her something to think about. Suddenly she made a decision that was for her at least - quite bold. She would visit Bert Jackson's pet shop! Bert's smile was flattering. "Well, if it isn't my favorite li-brarian," he said. "Welcome to my jungle, Miss Barksdale!"

"I - I thought maybe I'd like a canary," she lied. "Are they expensive?'

"Not very. Unless you want that little gem in the front window." He pointed to an energetic little dart of yellow and black. "That's the kind I'm going to give my girl for her birthday."

"Oh!" She turned her back to Bert and studied the bird through misty eyes. For HIS girl! Well, it had seemed like a good idea.

"Unless you'd like to deliver it for me?" he touched her shoulders lightly. "It's really yours, you know. Happy birthday Miss Barks-

She half-turned: "For me? But you said it was for your girl?" "I always was too impulsive. I haven't even asked her yet if she'll be my girl. Hope she doesn't slap my face when I do. Her name's

For a fleeting instant Ann thought she saw a face at the window; a face remarkably like that of old Mr. Peters. But that wasn't possible. Mr. Peters had assured her an hour ago that he was going straight home to read a book.
