KEY CLUB ENTERTAINS KIWANIANS

Program Presented Wednesday Evening at Taney Inn

The Key Club of the Taneytown High School celebrated the anniversary of its charter at the regular meeting of the Taneytown Kiwanis Club last evening. As is customary on such occasions, the president of the club, John Reber, called the meeting to order. He introduced the Sweetheart of the club, Miss Patsy Lambert; a new member of the club, Ronald Nusbbaum; and his officers and directors as follows: Allen Baumgardner, vice president; Leonard Wantz, secretary; Ronald Hopkins, treasurer; Larry Little, reporter; Sergeant-at-Arms, George Crouse; senior director, Walter Simpson; 11th grade director, Louis Mischea; 10th grade director, Gary Myers. The president then expressed appropriate sentiments, and called on President Ned Musser of the Kiwanis Club for announcements. Mr. President Ned announced that the annual Kiwanis Shrimp Feed would be held at Crouse's Garage on Feb. 26. He also named the heads of the following committees: Table, Paul Morelock; Food, Eugene Eyler; Drinks, George Shower; Tickets, Charles Stonesifer; Publicity, Robert Neal; Clean up, Ned Musser; Hospitality, Sam Breth. The Key Club was asked to check hats and coats. Tickets will be on sale next week, according to President Ned.

The Key Club then entertained the Kiwanis Club with its own unique version of the Ed Sullivan Show. David Gunther, displaying great charm and wit, astounded his audience with a highly stylized impersonation of the great showman of television. He recognized in the audience that great editor and publisher, Charlie Stonesifer; America's greatest hope in the missile field, Ned Musser; and that distinguished man about town, Wallace Reindollar. The Taneytown Symphony Orchestra held out, not without considerable delay and numerous unfortunate conferences, for several madly applauded numbers. Kenneth Reifsnider, a local solo, lent distinction to the program with his captivating translation of that always acceptable American ballad, "Willie". Miss Pastry Plumplek, fresh from a sixteen year engagement at the Boom Boom Room of the Hotel Centrale, Taneytown Beach, was received boisterously after her contagious rendition of "I Can't Say No". The Can-Can girls behaved as usual and were really so unrehearsed that it was almost embarrassing for this reviewer to watch them. Some of them had even put on more weight.

The show was obviously an expensive one, and was said to have been paid for by the "Playtex" people and the makers of the "Little M". Those great American companies were inspired enough to hire two of our greatest commercial advertisement men, R. Hopkins and L. Mischea. The latter is perhaps better known locally as Harold Bluetooth. The whole "show" was acclaimed by everyone in the most enthusiastic vein. There were some, however, who felt that it was really a great personal triumph for Mr. Davy Bair.

MEETING OF BOARD OF EDUCATION Resignations Accepted and Appointments Made

A regular meeting of the Carroll County Board of Education was held on Tuesday, January 14, with all members present.

The Board took action to accept the resignations of: Mrs. Patsy Ann Shearer, Elmer Wolfe Elementary School; Mrs. Alice Hoover, Manchester Elementary; Barbara Murphy, Mount Airy High; Earl Hersh, Mount Airy High. The resignation were accepted for indefinite dates depending on the availability of replacement personnel.

Appointments were approved as follows: Mrs. Aletha Carlson to replace Miss Murphy at Mt. Airy; Mrs. Janice Leatherwood substitute appointment to replace Earl Hersh at Mt. Airy; Mrs. Eula Minsch, to replace Mrs. Robson at Elmer Wolfe; Allen Grumbine to begin service as a teacher in January; Mrs. Janet H. Twigg temporary replacement for Mrs. Elizabeth E. Hering; Mr. Richard J. McFarland to be assigned to the North Carroll School. The Board also took action to approve the appointment of teachers for 1958-59 including Nancy Pitchford and Jane B. Yates.

The Board was given final information regarding the results of pupils' efforts toward the raising of funds for the Carroll County Hospital campaign. Funds collected in the schools and delivered to the Hospital Campaign Headquarters amount to $44,828.67. The names and amounts from the individuals schools had been reported in earlier publicity.

The Board considered briefly the problems brought about by increase use of school buildings outside of school hours and directed that further study be given to this problem.

The Board engaged in some discussions regarding the wisdom of setting aside an appropriate date on which used clothing would be collected, under the auspices of the Save the Children Federation, for distribution to needy areas.

Some time was also devoted to discussion of a recent survey made in connection with the function of schools as related to college preparation.

The Board was given copies of the most recently released statistics regarding population growth in the counties of the State and school enrollment trends as reflected in increasing school population. Copies of the current attendance reports for the month of December were given to the Board members.

Some time was given to a report by Mr. John F. Wooden, Jr., High School Supervisor, on his work as a supervisor in the schools in his area. Mr. Wooden emphasized the complex nature of the work and the increasing enrollment and personnel problems brought about by changes in teaching staff and by increased complexity of pupil needs.

The Board was given information regarding plans for the Mid-Winter Professional Conference for all Carroll County teachers to be held in the Westminster High School on Friday, January 31. Plans for this annual professional meeting have been in charge of a committee of supervisors with Mr. Wooden serving as chairman. Other members of the supervisory staff participating in the planning include Mr. Gerald E. Richter, Mrs. Margaret M. Bailor, Mrs. Josephine D. West, Mr. Philip S. Royer, Miss Ruth E. DeVore, Mr. Charles E. Reck, Miss Mary E. Grimes, and Miss Evelyn Maye.

Some time was given to a discussion of matters related to the procuring of furnishings and equipment for the Westminster Jr. High School and a part of the meeting was devoted to discussion of increased administrative duties requiring a great deal of time and indicating the need for additional personnel.

The Board received and studies copies of the report of income and expenditures and heard a report summarizing the personnel changes probable and necessary at about the middle of the school year.

The total enrollment in the Carroll County schools as of December 31 was 9,771 with 5,598 being enrolled in elementary schools and 4,173 enrolled in grades 7 through 12.

The Board considered at some length the planning and administration of the recently introduced program for retarded children, whereby schools for such children were organized at Mount Airy and in Westminster. At the present time 16 children are enrolled in this special class at Mt. Airy, which occupies quarters rented in the parking area on the south end of the town. The class in Westminster has 29 enrolled and they are housed presently in the basement rooms of the Davis Library. A total of 6 to 7 teachers and assistants are employed in this field and the total enrollment is 45. Costs of this program are borne jointly by the Carroll County Board of Education and the State Department of Education. Such funds provide for transportation, rent, supplies, books, teachers' and assistants' salaries, etc. The Board felt that emphasis should be placed on the progress made in this field of school service.

The Board adjourned in the late afternoon.

"SPICE 'N' EVERYTHING NICE" With all my heart, I wish you every morning A smile that shall last until the next day's dawning. I wish you health—life's greatest wealth I wish you always near so that I may help to cheer Each future day and in some way—help to bring you happiness!

I remember Philadelphia on rainy days or when there was one session and three or four of the young boys in the neighborhood (who are now prominent business and professional men in that city today) would present sketches of three or four act plays in the cellar of one of the homes. The admission was five cents. This delighted all the kids in the neighborhood especially when they put on the show called, "The Black Diamond". That was a thriller as a real revolver was used!!! There were many delightful evenings which were filled with peace and tranquility. One night a week and Friday was always selected, was set aside to entertain the parents and much talent was displayed.

I remember the Hurdy-Gurdy with the Italian holding a long chain and at the end was a playful and intelligent monkey. That always drew a crowd to watch the antics of the monkey which ended by the collecting the money from the viewers and placing it in the pocket of his brilliant colored little vest which he wore and for this he never forgot to tip his funny little hat. It was then that the "Cake Walk" was the popular dance of the day and the small children knew the dance as well as any adult. The Movies cost five cents and the big Star was the delightful Francis X. Bushman of Baltimore. I recall meeting in Philadelphia, Mr. Lubin the Movie Producer. That was at a very swanky 50th Wedding Anniversary. The United States mailing card (Postal) was much larger than the one today and was the price of one cent. I still possess one from by Grandmother to my Father.

Ah! Yes, I remember the wonderful music played by the Harpist on warm summer evenings who always came once weekly and sat on a little collapsible stool which he carried with him. The music was enchanting and the more money he collected as he passed around his hat the bigger his program!

I remember the many Operas at the beautiful Metropolitan Opera House (which has burned down a few years ago) listening to those memorable Stars over and over again—the voices of Caruso, Carolina White, Mary Garden, Melba, Geraldine Farrar, Tetrazzini, Mm. Shuman Heink and many others. The voice of Caruso singing as no other male voice. I can still hear the great applause of the vast audience as the Stars came forward time and time again for curtain calls. I remember the grand Promenade where I walked with the members of the family during intermission along with the gay crowd. I recall the beautifully dressed ladies glittering with real jewels in their lovely creations of silks and satins and the very low necked gowns showing full bosoms.

I remember when the songs of "In The Shade of The Old Apple Tree", "The Glow Worm", "Love Me and the World is Mine", "Mary's a Grand Old Name", "Teasing", "My Baby" and many others were whistled along the streets late at night as most of the city lumbered. I remember the big ice-cream five cent Soda which I shared with my chum with the two straws!

Jumping rope was the big thing those days for girls of any age and the interesting feature was "Double-Dutch" with the two ropes at a time.

The big game which many adults joined in was "Prisoner's Base" which was fascinating and interesting.

The Funny-Papers on Sunday mornings were filled with "Buster Brown and Mary Jane" and "The Katzenjammer Kids". Many rainy days, the girls gathered in one home and cut out pin-pacs of beautiful and fancy designs of pastel shades of tissue paper.

The big game which the GASMETER in every home which meant you were always compelled to have quarters in the house just in case the gas went out! The Welsbach Mantel was the best lighting affair which was placed on the gas jets in each room which gave a clear white light.

I recall the lovely hand-made curtains, the white or brown marble tops of furniture, the wall to wall carpet in each room of the house. And—oh—I remember the huge and beautiful Chandelier in the parlor, dining room and music rooms with their dozens and dozens of sparkling hanging crystals which were taken down twice yearly for the soapy ammonia bath which then appeared like diamonds hanging from the ceilings. I recall the covered furniture of linen for the summers and removed in the Fall. All the pictures were covered for the summer to prevent the flies to mar the oil paintings or glassed pictures—yet I never saw one fly in those rooms and I used to stand there as a tiny youngster and say to myself, "When I have a house, the pictures on the walls will never be covered!" I remember the "Deep Black Mourning Widows" which meant mourning for one year! It must have been the style for that is truly how long it was carried out to have your heart on your sleeve to permit every individual you met on the street know that you had lost someone dear to you! That was depressing but they all must have desired much sympathy for now it is just the opposite.

Next week will finish, "I remember Philadelphia" when I will write about the teenager who was called, "A Lady!" So long until then D.V. I am,

Faithfully,
YOUR OBSERVER.

SENATOR URGES END TO PRES-ENT "MESS" IN POSTOFFICE

Far-reaching proposals for Congressional action to "end our Post Office mess for all time" are offered by Senator Olin D. Johnston in the February Reader's Digest. The mess has reached "staggering proportions" and requires urgent attention, writes the Senator, who is Chairman of the Senate Post Office and Civil Service Committee.

Postal service has become poorer, with deliveries less frequent, and deficits have risen despite a doubling of total mail volume in the past fifteen years, he adds. Even the Postmaster General admits that his department's operations are "deplorable."

In his article, titled "How to End Our Post Office Mess—Permanently," Senator Johnston asserts that Congress can reverse this postal trend by acting now to improve the system and "create the best mail service in the world."

The Senator points out that the Post Office is currently spending some two million dollars a day more than it receives. But much of the deficit thus incurred is a "phantom deficit," resulting from the many public services the Department performs, he says.

Typical of such services is Rural Free Delivery, whose expenses in 1956 exceeded its revenue by $205 million. This amount then became part of the postal "deficit."

He quotes Senator Frank Carlson, last Republican chairman of the Post Office Committee, who said:

"I don't see how anyone could justify RFD except a service by government to its citizens."

Senator Johnston estimates the total measurable cost of public services performed by the Post Office as some $300 million yearly. In addition he lists other services whose costs cannot be accurately measured.

He writes: "Congress should adopt a modern Post Office policy which defines precisely what costs are to be borne by mail users and what costs are to be borne by the government because they are public services." The public should not be forced to pay for more than the mail services it buys, he says.

The Senator also calls for a long-range modernization program financed by a loan to the Post Office of two billion dollars. Such money could come from the Federal Employees' Retirement Fund and be repaid at 3½ per cent interest, he says. Since the Retirement Fund now earns only 2½ per cent, everyone would benefit by the arrangement, he points out.

The Senator further recommends that Post Office employees be given an "adequate wage increase." This would pay big dividends in increased efficiency leading to great production, he says.

Once true mail costs are determined, a postal rate increase may still prove necessary. But, he adds, "I would not say precisely what increases should be made; I do not believe anyone can make a business forecast of that until Congress sets the fundamental postal policy."—The Reader's Digest.

"GRASS ROOTS OPINION"

DUBLIN, GA., COURIER-HERALD: "With the current exposes by the Senate Rackets Committee of the squandering of funds paid by union members, the average American must realize that he was the one who paid the money that made these lush funds available. Whatever funds find their ways into labor racketeers' pockets are added costs paid by the American public. Whatever wage demands are made by labor unions are paid by the American public."

DENVER, COLO., MINING RECORD: "Governments which financially dominate the Free World apparently have agreed to perpetuate an insufficiency of gold and silver to use as money or to 'back' their paper currency by merely keeping the prices of gold and silver so low that citizens will find it financially unprofitable to mine gold and silver, as such. In this manner they believe they can continue to force their citizens to accept the product of their speedy printing presses as 'money.'"

BARTOW, FLA., POLK COUNTY DEMOCRAT: "... 25,000 surgical operations are being performed in the United States every day in the year—and most of the surgery done today would have been declared impossible by even the best physicians 50 years ago. Few professions have made greater changes or achieved more beneficial progress than has the art of medicine."

READING, MASS., CHRONICLE: "... legislation had to pass the house and the senate and be signed by the governor to enable women and children employed in Mass. industry to accept a ½ hour lunch period instead of being required to take ¾ of an hour. The change was sought because where the men had a ½ hour lunch period and the women a ¾ hour lunch period, the women lost opportunities to share rides with other workers in car pools. This law regulating the length of women's lunch hours is an example of the kind of paternalistic laws that clutter up the books."

RAYMONDVILLE, TEXAS NEWS: "America's draftees—who were sent to Korea or are presently serving over the globe—represent a typical cross-section of American youth. Their collective understanding of their country and the world is that of their generation. And, up to now, nothing much has been done to inform young American on the overriding problem of our day and their future—the titanic struggle-to-the-death between Communism and Freedom."

FACTS AND OPINIONS

Writing in The Reporter, Carroll Kilpatrick says: "The movement away from the farms has not meant the development of corporate farms in this country but rather the strengthening of the family farm. The proportion of family farms to the total number has held steady in recent years. The trend is toward larger mechanized farms operated by a single family with little or no outside labor."

According to National Association of Manufacturers' statisticians, 47.1 per cent of current defense spending is accounted for by the Air Force; 27.4 per cent by the Navy; and 23.5 per cent by the Army. The remaining two per cent goes for interservice projects.

Dorothy Thompson looks at education: "Most American parents do not want their children to be educated. They want them to be trained for a specific function. They despise 'useless' knowledge. So our high schools are forced to teach everything under the sun, typing, home economics, mechanics, parenthood, and many other things that young people once learned at home, in specialized schools, or as apprentices. But a real educational institution is not a job factory."

Alaskans do more talking on the telephone than any other people. In a recent year they averaged 630 calls each, as against 426 for the continental United States and 51 for the world as a whole.

U. S. News & World Report finds that the current business decline is felt most severely in the factory towns and smaller cities—the "... places that have cut loose from their dependence on the farmer but have not developed a broad base of industry and trade."

The Chairman of the Board of the Association of American Railroads, says that this industry is giving special consideration to the utilization of atomic energy and nuclear physics on accomplishing research objectives. Known fields in which radioactive substances may be useful in railroad include power production, preservation of foodstuffs in lieu of refrigeration, and the changing of physical properties of materials to make them more suitable for desired purposes.

According to National Review, the Soviet Union had a "catastrophic" crop failure last year. Output is estimated at 15 to 20 per cent below the 1956 level.

A Trendex News Poll asked what age a U. S. President should be when first inaugurated. Three out of four people queried said 50 or under. Only two per cent said over 55.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Dear Editor: Last month we quoted the editorial despair of Publisher Frank R. Mills of Hoopston, Ill., CHRONICLE-HERALD over modern youth. It may be recalled that he cited a lack of "bright and shining faces among the younger generation," charged that "We have made them a generation of spectators instead of players. They sit and watch, being unable to do."

And we asked: "Will somebody please reassure Publisher Mills and yours truly?"

The response has been interesting and varied. Taking his typewriter in his lap the following Sabbath, our good friend Carlton Morris, Editor of the GATES COUNTY INDEX in Gatesville, N. C., observed: "I have often felt much like Mr. Mills. But after a little soul-searching I remembered the days when we wore bell-bottomed trousers and sideburns and the gals (self-respecting ones, that is) were afraid to go out of doors in a high wind as their dresses didn't quite come to their knock-knees. I remember when we sang 'Bye, Bye, Blackbird' and 'Doodle Do It' and other songs just as stupid as the bump and groan that is now called rock 'n' roll and we all chased every fad of the moment and the girls were all called flappers."

"... I can't recall any of my age that showed much initiative either—until they were dumped on their own and necessity drove them to it."

"Let the kids enjoy their (ugh) ducktails, tight dungarees and ivy league clothes as well as their stupid songs. They're still Americans and will face up to life soon enough when it becomes necessary. They allers have. They'll take over government and the country one day just as we did and they'll show plenty of initiative if they can make a worse mess than we have."

And there have been many more responses in print—notably the open letter to your humble servant from President and Publisher Eaton K. Goldthwaite in the GILES VIRGINIAN-LEADER, of Pearisburg, Va. Mr. Goldthwaite gives Mr. Mills credit for recognizing that we are to blame for any short-comings of the sprouts, but alludes to his viewpoint as "biased ranting."

Mr. Goldthwaite thinks that "given the same problem, the same hovering uncertainty of extinction from atomic weapons and the same sure certainty of compulsory military service, my generation would have made a certain botch of it."

But Mr. G., like sundry other editors whose hackles have risen in protest comes around, it seems to us, to ultimate agreement with Mr. Mills in admitting the educational shortcomings of our youth and that we have yet to learn how to live with our modern improvements.

We would still like some reassurance that our kids can get themselves out of the mess we have gotten them into.

BOB TAYLOR.

FFESERSBURG

(A Voice from Carroll)

Last week both the Washington Post and the Baltimore Sun published on their front page a picture that was an example of bad taste in the crudest form. Those who saw it must have been nauseated and ashamed that two of the leading newspapers in the nation would lend themselves to such sensationalism. The picture was of the daughter of the leading statesman of the world being subdued by three officers of the law for being under the influence of liquor. It is the first time that we can recall that being in that state was of such momentous news that it made the front page of any newspaper. So it must have been the well-known name involved which caused the editors to stoop to such "below the belt" technique. What the editors hoped to gain by publishing such a picture is difficult to understand. Subscribers to both papers are not the kind of readers that want bad taste in their morning paper. If they did they would buy other papers which makes sensationalism their main specialty. The Baltimore Sun and the Washington Post have always stood for the highest newspaper ethics. This time they have slipped a notch or two in many readers opinion.

Our forefathers founded an enduring Republic—and it has endured more than they ever suspected it would.

There seems to be shortage of certain books in the Elmer Wolfe school library which are badly needed for research work. Sometimes teachers assign certain projects to students where books are needed to supplement their reading other than text books. This happened last week when the senior class was given certain topics to write about, and the books they needed to read were not available. Sometimes the state library can furnish the material but it takes time to obtain them. We mention this because often people have books they would gladly give the school if they knew what type of book will be acceptable. The books that the seniors needed were those written about World War II, and the men who were involved in all its phases. Books on history are always needed and they never go out of date for history is always with us.

We often forget that there are still some good America Indians alive but over the week-end people living in North Carolina were suddenly reminded of the fact. One thousand Indians took to the war path (20th century style) after the Klu Klux Klan tried to intimidate them with a cross burning. No bows and arrows or scalping were used. Instead tear gas and shot guns were the order of the day. The Indians decided that they were no longer going to put up with the Klan's nonsense any longer. After all, America belonged to the Indians long before the bed-sheeted white man ever owned a sheet. And so they did what any red-blooded Indian had a right to do—defend himself against persecution. It sometimes appears that many men are becoming sheep. So many have become immune to all kinds of offenses that they never raise their hand or voice against injustice. They seem to have become a nation of chronic non-complainers. So it is like a breath of fresh air to hear about the Indians standing up for their rights at a time when many people just simply look the other way while crime and injustice takes place.

The United States Public Health Service is asking communities to abandon the yearly X-ray technique for determining and locating tuberculosis victims. The Health Service believes that there is a hazard from radiation in the use of X-rays. It is proposed that the skin test be used instead. This method involves an injection which produces redness and swelling of the skin if the person receiving the injection has been infected at some time with tuberculosis. A positive reaction does not mean a person has the active disease. An X-ray must determine this. But the skin test would allow with subjecting everyone to X-ray. Members of the Carroll County Tuberculosis Association is studying the findings of the Public Health Service to determine what course they will pursue in the future. At this writing the Association has not made any decision.

Last year someone told me about a young bride who took two wedding presents along on the honeymoon. They were an electric percolator and an electric skillet. She said she was going to prove to her new husband that she could get a meal with just these two appliances. At the time we thought it was a silly idea but not any more, for it can be done and easily. One of our Christmas presents was an electric skillet and we soon learned that it is as good as the advertisers say it is. Bacon and eggs cooked in it are pictures like one sees in magazines and chicken fried in it is delicious eating. One can even bake a pie in it. So the bride was smart for with two electric appliances one can serve an acceptable meal without a stove.

For the first time in all the years I have prepared meals I have all the cream and butter I can use. It is my belief that every woman given these two ingredients can become an excellent cook. Not until the last two months have we been forced to prove our theory. Even now we don't know if we have proven anything except that every member of the family is putting on weight—even Mike, our favorite dog and three cats. I have learned to make butter in an old-fashioned churn, although one member of the family doesn't think too much of it. She wonders what I am trying to prove. To be honest we are not proving anything except to keep slim and trim one must stick to skimmed milk.

Among the three most commonly used road materials in our county are concrete, macadam and good intentions.—Ruth Roelke.

On display were things the girls had made, caked or canned as part of their 4-H projects. Also on display was the second prize (in county) window display which had been put in the Raymond Wright store in honor of 4-H week last year. It is a rule that each new person must attend 3 meetings before her name is put permanently on the roll. The roll-call was answered by saying what was liked best about a party and the record of progress on the projects. Joan Kiser, president, conducted the business meeting. Betty Shibley, Georgia Asbury, Mary Helen Shibley, Beverly Main, Elaine Roop were appointed on the committee to plan for the annual window display to honor 4-H week. It was voted to give $10.00 to the March of Dimes. A bake sale is tentatively planned for Saturday before Easter, Apr. 5, the proceeds to be given to the Hospital Drive. Joan called for volunteers to give demonstrations at the Keysville-Detour Homemakers Club meeting with Betty and Mary Helen Shibley offering to make Piza Pie and Elaine Roop and Beverly Main offering to make black midnight cake. I believe I saw Marcia Edwards and Becky Repps hands go up too as volunteers.

Mrs. Bowman talked on the topic of how to plan and have a good party. The next meeting is to be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Coshun. Mrs. Ausherman served refreshments of cocoa, and home-made doughnuts. The Christmas tree was still up and beautiful at this time.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Airing, of Westminster, have announced the birth of a daughter, born Sunday, the 19th, at the Hanover General Hospital. Mr. Airing is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Elwood Airing, Taneytown.
The Fire Company was called out January 17 for a chimney fire at Mr. L. E. Smith's on the Emmitsburg Road, and again at 4 a. m., on the 18th for an automobile accident at Bridgeport, driver of the car Mr. Edwin Ricketts.
The E.U.B. Men of the Taneytown Church will meet at the church on Thursday evening at 7:30 p. m. There are several projects to be discussed and all members and friends are urged to be present. This same evening the Ladies' Aid and Missionary Society will meet at the church at the same hour.
As we were ready to go to press word came to our office of a threat to dynamite Westminster High School. The Westminster Fire Company received the warning this morning by telephone and immediately an investigation began. The school authorities and the Police carried out an orderly and systematic search. Nothing was found in the nature of dynamite and it is believed that some "crank" or irresponsible pupil instituted the atrocity.

SHORT STORY
Time For This
By Ralph Blanchard

KEN STEWART walked the dim night street, his coat turned up against the cold night's mist. Beneath his arm a book of theology was tucked carelessly, and he smiled indifferently. It's useless, he thought.

3-Minute Fiction

As the young man walked slowly with no apparent direction, he noticed the heavy scent of poverty and the book grew heavy. He looked at it now beneath a dim light and suddenly with a menacingly angry gesture heaved it into the street.

He noticed the scent of poverty and the book grew heavy.

died in the building's shadows. "What's wrong," he whispered, not really caring. "What's wrong?" The sobbing sounds were stilled. "What's wrong?" Ken asked, moving cautiously toward the shadows. His night eye caught the figure of a boy not more than twelve and huddled cold beneath the mist. He touched the form, at first with the repulsion that one would touch a reptile. The form winced in fear perhaps. "Tell me, kid, what's wrong?"

"Nothing. Go away. I'm alright." The child's voice caught, and suspiciously pulled away from the young man's touch. The young man stood, determined to walk away. This was no concern of his. I don't have time for this, he thought. I must go. The kid will be alright. But these thoughts were only passing, unreal thoughts. He said, "Let's go in. Maybe I can help."

The boy looked up into Ken's face. His own was streaked with rain or mist or tears. Ken took his arm.

"Up there," the boy said, motioning toward a darkened window. A wonder filled his eyes. They climbed the steps and pushed the door of the poor apartment. The child flicked on a light. "Dad, it's me. Are you okay?"

The old man's lips moved. The boy bent close. "Some water, son."

Ken watched the child's hurried movements. He glanced about at shabbiness. A dirtied kitchen table stood in the center of the room beneath the lonely bulb.

Then the old man spoke again. He was motioning to Ken, who inched closer to the bed and tried to smile. "Good evening. I was just passing by," Ken explained. "And thought I might do something." The man looked up hopefully. His eyes seemed begging.

"You can." The words at first were dim, but the old man smiled, then closed his eyes to rest. "In the bottom drawer." Ken turned and saw the cabinet and walked quickly to its shabby bulk.

He pulled it open and looked in real surprise. The book he took was worn with use and old. Before he stood to return to the bed, Ken flicked the cover back.

The words "a light unto my path" were written there in the scribbled hand of "Martha."

He walked back to the bed. The man was fighting fear. "You found it then," the man said smiling. "Just read a verse and you can go."

Ken turned the pages slowly in sudden revelation and began the words aloud, but only did he hear the ones: He restoreth my soul...

Later he watched the boy fix coffee in a saucepan over the blue gas flame. "So your name is John?" The boy smiled sheepishly. His father rested easier now and the two sipped coffee from broken cups. "He'll be alright, John, but I'll come by from time to time."

"Would you have the time?" John asked. "I mean you're busy and all, and there's only Dad and me here." Ken glanced at the old man, sleeping peacefully. "I'll have the time."

BACK the ATTACK on TRAFFIC ACCIDENTS
NATIONAL SAFETY CONCERN

MOTOR MAIDS
How To Make Cycling Safer
By Jeanne Smith, Dodge Safety Consultant
YOUNG MOTORCYCLE and motor scooter enthusiasts came in for considerable discussion in Michigan recently, but it took a police commissioner to do something about their driving habits.
Police Commissioner Dallas F. Hay, of Livonia, Mich. (population 17,534) proposed that a city sponsored club be organized for the young cyclists of the fast-growing Detroit suburb.
The club, known as the Youth Cyclists Club, evolved from a meeting of police chiefs from neighboring communities.
"At the meeting there wasn't a chief present, except myself, who didn't complain about the number of accidents involving cyclists in the 14 to 16 age group," Hay told me.
"Livonia hasn't had much trouble with teenage cyclists, but we decided it would be a good thing to get a club going before anything serious did happen."
Membership in the club now totals 30. Commissioner Hay believes it will soon number more than 100 members, all of whom must adhere to three basic rules:
1. Be a safe operator and obey all traffic rules and regulations.
2. Stunt or trick riding, except during authorized contests, is banned.
3. Club members must aid any motorist stranded on the road.
"The club is not being formed to dampen the fun of its members, but just to keep them in line," Hay points out. "The most important benefit I can see from membership is the education of future automobile drivers who will know and instinctively obey traffic laws."
Hay also believes that the young cyclists could be used as messengers in the event of an emergency.
If the club is a success, Hay hopes it will be a model for other communities in Michigan and throughout the country.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

International Union
Sunday School Lessons
BY DR. KENNETH J. FOREMAN

Organized Church

Lesson for January 26, 1935

DOESN'T it kill religion to organize it? Not at all. It doesn't "kill" water to construct a city water system. All the pipes do is simply to make water available where it will do the most good. If it were not for the pipes and pumps and all that, the city would die of thirst. Does marriage kill love? Do schools kill education? They can, of course; but good schools help education, good marriages are a blessing to love. And a well-organized church is a help to faith, not a hindrance.

Dr. Foreman

The eighty-odd church communions uniting in the study of these "international lessons" are not organized in the same way. But the fact that our organizations differ does not keep us from uniting in the study of the same Word of God. It would be interesting to study the many ways in which churches are organized, but right here we are sticking to one thing: the organization of the Christian church in its earliest days.

Needs Come First

Three things can be said of organization in the early church. First is that it grew out of needs, and not the other way around. In America we are so used to everything being organized down to the last sub-section, that we are inclined to think a church isn't a church unless it has some definite organization. But in the book of Acts we hear about the church some time before we hear of the officers. The first deacons, that committee of seven men who were elected by the people and appointed by the apostles to deal with the tricky problem of caring for the needy in the church,—those deacons were elected because they were needed. The church did not elect them because some organization-chart called for such officers. The church elected them for a particular job; it did not elect them first and then hunt for something for them to do.

Character Came First

The word "deacon" means "one who serves," a serviceable man. The elders and the bishops or overseers, of whom we read later, were also serviceable men. Paul never left a church without officers. He was a practical saint.

But Paul, when writing about church officers, as he did to Timothy and Titus, lays down some remarkable provisions. In describing various officers, Paul oddly enough (we might think) says not a word about what these officers were to do. It's all about what they were to be, as men, as Christians. Paul knew that no organization is better than the people who operate it. Getting the right people is the important matter. Personal qualifications come ahead of technical qualifications. This does not mean that the framework of organization is of no importance. Other things being equal, it is better to have some framework or system which discourages one-man rule, or the development of cliques. But the officers' character is the central matter. Paul did not want Timothy to ask, about a prospective officer, what kind of executive did he make? but rather: How well has he managed his marriage, his home? It is a more vital question.

The Church Came First

No apostle known to us ever set up a skeleton organization, a cadre as they say in the army, and left it to collect a church around it. Paul's great figure of speech is the body and the members. A body does not come into existence by agreement of some loose arms, legs and insides to get together. The body develops these various parts as it grows. The body is more important than any of its members. So with the church, as it was going in the New Testament era. The church produced the officers, not the officers the church. The church does not exist, for example, to give preachers jobs. Preachers exist to serve and build the church. Further, if the church is always first, and every one realizes this, then no man or woman can think "I am indispensable. If I die or move away I cannot be replaced." Every one in the church has something to do, something he or she can do perhaps better than any one else, whether an officer or not. Every one should try to make himself indispensable, yes; but he must remember that the one and only indispensable person in any church is—Christ.

Grass Important To Cattle Raising

Herefords Raised in Southwestern Georgia

In the southwestern corner of Georgia nestled in a setting of pine trees and rich pasture land is the Pineland Hereford Ranch owned by Ed Kelley.

Pineland Hereford Ranch was the scene of the first attempt at planned pasture improvement in the state. Kelley planned Bahia grass on his native pastures and pioneered its use in the area with tremendous success.

"All too often we find ourselves ready to trip and fall into the ways of those who think our soils are inexhaustible. We overgraze the land and do not care for it, thereby losing its full potential," says Mr. Kelley.

"Cattle are best suited to grass country, and that's what this is," he adds. "We have to make the best possible use of grass to show a profit and we're doing it with 250 head of commercial Hereford cows."

"The cattle population and industry is in its infancy here," he continued. "We have just scratched the surface of our ability to produce beef from grass and as our farm people realize the demand for better cattle, more and more feedlots are coming into the area. The demand for top quality steers is good now and will improve as packers and feeders become aware of this source of supply."

Nitrogen Is Subject Of Soil Research

University of Illinois soil scientists are studying the nitrogen and protein content of soils with equipment used to study the content of blood serum.

Frank Stevenson, who is doing this research, says that very little is known about the chemistry of nitrogen compounds in the soil. Nitrogen differs from other soil nutrients because it occurs almost exclusively in the organic form.

One reason a test to determine the amount of nitrogen in the soil has been so hard to perfect is that the amount of nitrogen released from organic matter varies with soil temperature and moisture, Stevenson points out.

Several tests for nitrogen have been proposed in other states, but Illinois soil scientists have not considered them too successful. Before a suitable test can be devised, they feel that more research must be done on the chemistry of nitrogen in soils. Progress is being made in this direction, and it is possible that a satisfactory test can be developed in a few more years.

The famous Morrow plots at the University of Illinois have also been used in part of this soil nitrogen and protein study. The proteins in the soils from the untreated continuous corn plots were found to be low in the kinds of amino acids that would be ready sources of nitrogen. The proteins in the soil of the rotation plots that had received soil treatments were high in the amino acids that would supply nitrogen.

Quick Tricks...

Good 'n Easy: Fig Crunch Parfait

The French have a very special word for "perfect". It's "parfait"—and here's an American version of that familiar word that really fits the definition! This good 'n easy new treat, "Fig Crunch Parfait", is the perfect answer to a dessert-in-a-hurry for hot weather enjoyment. It's made with rich square fig bars, crumbled into tasty bits and layered into chilled vanilla pudding, with orange juice added for an extra flavor accent. The result is a dessert that looks just as delightful as it tastes. You can make it in minutes, this very easy way:

Fig Crunch Parfait

- 1/2 package (9 or 10) Sunshine Fig Bars
- 2 tablespoons orange juice
- 1/2 cup heavy cream, whipped
- 1 package vanilla pudding mix
- Slivers of 1 maraschino cherry

Crumble fig bars into a bowl. Prepare pudding mix as package directs. Cool about 10 minutes. Fill 4 to 6 parfait glasses with alternate layers of pudding and crumbled fig bars, and a drizzle of orange juice. Chill. Serve, topped with whipped cream and a sliver of maraschino cherry. Makes 4 to 6 parfaits.

Tests Demonstrate How Seat Belts Save Lives

By Jeanne Smith, Dodge Safety Consultant

IF YOU'VE EVER WATCHED stock car races, you're familiar with the hair-raising spills and collisions which many of these drivers experience—and then step out of their cars, wave to the crowd—and walk away, unharmed.

Likewise, in accidents affecting modern military aircraft, the personnel frequently walk away with hardly a scratch.

In both cases, the reason why occupants survive these accidents without injury is because they are protected by seat belts which prevent them from being hurled against instrument panels or through windshields.

Last month at Holloman Air Force Base, Alamogordo, N.M., I saw how seat belts can also curb passenger car injuries. (Some estimates indicate that seat belts could prevent more than one million automobile injuries and 20,000 deaths per year.)

More than 100 automotive, medical and safety experts watched simulated car "crashes" at the third annual Automotive Crash and Field Demonstration Conference. The tests, which were conducted by Col. John P. Stapp, Director of Holloman's Aero-Medical Field Laboratory, involved humans, animals and dummies who were catapulted into quick, hydraulic braking stops similar to the impacts of auto collisions. (Col. Stapp has traveled faster on the ground than any other human—nearly 700 miles an hour.)

Miss Smith

In one deceleration test, a bear wearing a safety seat belt was subjected to a measured impact equivalent to 25 times the force of gravity. Although the force of the impact threw the bear's head and shoulders forward, he was not thrown from his seat—thanks to the belt.

Air Force doctors, who examined the bear before and after the test, found that he had not been injured, either externally or internally, by the jolt.

In another test, an Air Force captain, restrained by a safety seat belt, went through a similar demonstration without injury. The "crash" in which he participated was equivalent to a car being braked from 17 miles an hour to a stop in six seconds, at a deceleration rate of 27 times the force of gravity.

The impact was similar to a car's head-on crash into a concrete wall at 30 or 35 miles per hour or a side-collision with another car at 50 to 55 miles per hour.

A third test duplicated the one in which the captain participated, except that it was manned by a dummy, without a seat belt. When subjected to the same shocking stop which the captain survived without injury, the unrestrained dummy was thrown 12 feet.

These, and other demonstrations, vividly point up how seat belts can be the solution to our traffic injury problem.

Delicious Dessert In An Instant

In addition to producing luscious puddings almost instantly, these pudding mixes also make quick and easy fillings for tarts. Here, one package of the Lemon Instant Pudding is combined with a pint of milk and sliced bananas to make six man-size tarts.

For extra glamour decorate with swirls of whipped cream and lemon slices. Superb treats in lemon yellow for a fall color scheme!

Lemon Banana Tarts

- 2 cups cold milk
- 1 package Jell-O Lemon Instant Pudding
- 1 medium sized banana, sliced
- 6 baked 4-inch tart shells
- 1/4 cup whipping cream

Pour milk into mixing bowl. Add pudding mix and beat slowly with egg beater just until well mixed, about 1 minute. Do not overbeat, mixture will be thin. Line bottom of tart shells with banana slices. Pour pudding at once into tart shells. Let stand 15 minutes before serving.

Whip cream, sweetening to taste. Top each tart with whipped cream. If desired, garnish with additional banana or lemon slices. Makes 6 tarts.

BUSINESS OPPORTUNITY

For Rent; the long established Moffitt and Trent Gulf Service Station on East Baltimore St., Taneytown. Due to other interest Herman Moffitt and Paul Trent have sold their station to S. H. Tevis & Son, Gulf Distributors, however, they will continue to operate the business until a suitable new operator is found. The new operator should have or be able to secure sufficient capital to purchase present stock and equipment. Service station experience desirable but not essential since Gulf Oil provides training when necessary.

This is an unusually well equipped station with three extra large service bays and a large office-show-room and concrete driveways. The rest rooms will be modernized at once and in the spring the station will be repainted inside and out.

If you are a hustler and want your own business here is a rare opportunity to take over a profitable, well established, high-gallonage service station at a very small investment.
