LOCAL CAR STOLEN

Due to the large number of car thefts occurring in Baltimore, Lt. Charles W. Foreman, Maryland National Guard, chose to leave his car during summer encampment near his wife's family home in Taney-town and get a ride to the 5th Regt. Armory, Baltimore. Mrs. Foreman is the former Bernadette Arnold, 32 Frederick St.

On return from summer camp, on Saturday, Aug. 31st, Mr. Foreman noticed his car was missing. He immediately reported the theft to the Md. State Police giving the details to Trooper Dunn, Taneytown, Md. The Md. State Police reported recovery of the car at Bridgeport, Ohio on Sunday night.

The thief was Wm. H. Pattit, an AWOL soldier from a missile base in Massachusetts. The soldier went AWOL on Aug. 1st, after receiving his monthly pay. He traveled to New York, hitchhiking and living in the woods. He had shaving equipment in the recovered car. After spending almost two weeks in New York State, he decided that he was too close to his base and he stole a Plymouth. This car, unknown by him, was a stolen and abandoned car with a changed license. The soldier traveled rather haphazardly through New Jersey, Pennsylvania and then Maryland.

By this time the soldier was out of money and lived by stealing milk and ther groceries from porches.

He arrived in Taneytown at 7:30 p. m., Fri., Aug. 30. His car was giving him considerable difficulty. He sought garage help and afterwards got the garage to give him a push down Frederick Street. Unable to start, he parked the car on the edge of town and returned at 1:30 a. m. Saturday morning, taking the Fore-

The soldier became lost for some time and finally found himself on U. S. Rt. 40, headed west. He decided o head for the family home in Akron, Ohio.

He was apprehended near Hendrysburg, Ohio, in the act of removing a good tire, which he planned to trade in for gas, after he substituted the

The officer of the Ohio Highway Patrol who made the arrest stated that he stopped to find out why the driver was removing the good tire. He asked for registration card and driver's license. The driver immediately threw up his hands, stating, "It's a stolen car. You may as well take me im"

An interesting note, the arresting patrolman on questioning, discovered that the soldier was his former newsboy when both had lived in Mononganela, Pa., a decade before.

The car condition on recovery was reasonably good. However, the garage had failed to disconnect the "bugged" ignition switch. As a result, the battery was dead. The car also needed new wheel and tail pipe. Since the thief was in the U.S. Army, the whole case is being handled by the F. B. I.

NICE BONUS

A typical employe of business enterprise is being paid more than you think.

That is the substance of a study just completed by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States. It deals with the employe fringe benefits paid for by employers and is based on a survey of 1,020 firms. Those fringe benefits-which include pensions, vacations, sick leave, insurance, and so on-don't show up in the pay checks but they're mighty important. Last year they averaged $981 per full-time employe-an increase of $162 since 1955 when a similar study was made.

That works out to about $80 a month-which is a nice bonus in any language.—Industrial News Review.

CALLS FOR ASPIRIN

The new and higher mail charges are in effect. To most individuals they won't amount to a great dealjust an extra penny for a stamp now and then.

But to certain kinds of enterprise the cost will be heavy. For instance, as Changing Times, the Kiplinger magazine, puts it: ". . . . many a publisher will shortly be calling for more aspirin when he starts calculatmagazine operation expects its annual postage budget to increase by $1,250,000. In many instances, highcreased postage costs will be passed on to the consumer—as all other overhead costs are and must be passed.

The reason for these and the other increases in postal rates is simple enough. The postoffice deficit has been in the neighborhood of $700 million a year. Postal employes have been given a deserved wage increase. Thus, something definite had to be done to increase postoffice revenues, lest the deficit approach or pass the billiondollar point.

Unfortunately, however, the increases are confined to three mail categories-first, second and third. This means that a category which has made large contributions to the deficit over the years is still to be operated on a taxpayer-subsidized basis. That category is fourth-class mail, or parcel post. And, to make a bad matter worse, parcel post competes directly with taxpaying private carriers on the national, regional and local levels of business.

In sum, the next needed step is a revised schedule of parcel post charges, which will honestly meet both the direct and indirect costs of providing the service. - Industrial News Review.

THE PLAN

True it is, as years go by, And lower sinks the sun, Many things that you and I Had once considered fun,
Now seem far beyond our strength,
And we don't miss them much,
For we realize, at length,

The good Lord's plan is such That, when flaming years have flown, And Nature banks the fires, If our pleasures simmer down— So do our desires!

worse. They wail "We're sore distressed." They are the ones whose golden days Are always in the past: And all they have is memories, Of joys that could not last.

Each generation has it's own Joy, pleasure, work and pain Impatient of all unknown ways, Some would the old retain: And murmuring "the golden age
Is gone, lifes lost its zest" Youth looks at them and, smiling, says.

"Ah, no, today is best." Life is a mountain and all must climb Its never quite the same: We love the path we trod in youth

When old, tire of the game; Why look back on an Eden lost Whence driven by time's goad? Look forward then to Paradise At the ending of the road.

Well, vacation time is over, back to school again. With some, its the first time. I guess there will be some tears shed by some who will miss their mommies. And I suppose just as bad for some the mothers to see the last of their little ones off to school which means time is passing all too quickly. We have to wonder where and how the summer has gone so fast and the way it feels this morning (Tuesday) fall is right here.

The Day's Work

Lesson for September 7, 1958

CAN WE talk of social justice and our jobs at the same time? If we can't we must admit that social justice will not work where perhaps it is more needed than in most places; it won't work where we spend most of our waking time, in that area of life that means so much to us: 8 namely our jobs. Take away a man's job and you have destroyed the basis of his self-respect. Take his job and you leave him rootless, a drifter, unhappy and without Dr. Foreman meaning in a world that can find no use for him.

"Work, or don't eat"

When we turn to the Bible we should expect to find that the book which says so much about social justice (remember, the name is not important but the thing is!), would give some hints about how this principle of all-around fairness affects the day's work of men and women. And such is the case. The Apostle Paul, one of the "workingest" men that ever lived, had a problem church at Thesalonica. The Christians there had somehow got the notion that the end of this world was right around the corner. They were like people working in a field when a tornado is moving across the prairie; they take a lot more interest in the tornado than in finishing the job. So these people had quit their jobs and were living. it seems, on their good-natured and still working friends. Paul moved right into that situation with a sharp order. "If any one will not work, let him not eat." Work, in short, is part of a Christian's duty. The world does not owe anybody a living, no matter how pious he is.

W ne's wiong hora! The Schbath Conima diment does not start with the Sa ... th R starts with the other am days "on days you shall labor . . ." Old Teb ament and New alike set up work as part of the "whole duty of man." But-here is where trouble begins. In our society as at organized, it often happens that a man whe- wants to work, can't. Farmers sometimes have a hard time understanding that this is so. A farmer can find more to be done than he can do, year in year out. But the factory worker, the professional man, doesn't always find it so simple. The factory has a layoff, or merges with another one, or just closes down. Thousands of men and women in a distant state can be thrown out of work by one decision in a New York office. As for the professional man, in hard times he does not have the clients he used to have. His expenses go on, his debts pile up, but his patients (if he is a doctor, for example) don't pay, they can't pay because they are out of work. So it may come about that literally millions of people, the highly cducated and trained as well as countless unskilled workers, find themselves either working for nothing or not having a chance to work at

"Do it with your might"

The wise reader will reflect on many other ways in which social justice and the day's work are related. But lest we forget, we must call to mind another important side to this. Suppose I get what the world really owes me-not a living, but the chance to make a living; suppose I have a job, then what? Society has fulfilled its part by making work possible for me. What is my part now? One thing surely is that I should give the job everything I've got. Social justice means seeing that no man is jobless. Social justice also means that no man with a job lies down on it. There are certain industries where the "workers" have things so well sewn up that it is almost impossible to fire a man unless he actually gets drunk on the job. It is surely social injustice to demand a job, and at the same time demand to hold it whether one really works at it or not. Social justice, applied to the day's work, isn't all the responsibility of society—it is the responsibility of the workers as well. A Christian, especially, shows the genuineness of his Christianity by the way he goes about his day's says Freda Storch, Forelady Crosse & Blackwell Co., Baltin

"I've been hospitalized several times in the past few years and it has meant a lot to me to have Blue Cross. The broad protection is the most important reasonpractically all my hospital charges have been covered in full. And I appreciate the way Blue Cross settles my bills directly with the hospital, without making me file claims or wait for repayment."

Blue Cross provides care rather than cash, paying the hospital directly for services covered by your membership. Ask your employer how you can join. Or call the Blue Cross office listed in your telephone directory.
