The Exposition opened at 12 noon with a Flag Ceremony and Invocation by Reverend Father White, of Ascension hurch, Westminster.

Upon entering the Armory, the first display to greet the vistor was a real life camping scene, complete with pitched tent, fire wood and cooking gear. There were several similar displays on Out-door camping.

Many of the Scouts maintained booths, where attractive articles were offered for sale. On sale at one booth were unusual candles, made of bee's wax, in lovely pastel colors. Many booths featured potted plants and attractive flower arrangements. Home made cookies from many lands were the specially of still another booth. Many Scouts took charge of refreshment stands. These offered homemade pies and cakes, soft drinks, coffee, hot dogs, hamburgers, pop-corn and candy.

There were attractive displays on Fun in the Out-doors, nature study, good-grooming. Second class requirements, service projects, foot travelers requirements, an early Maryland Indian exhibit, and various Hand-

One unique feature was a knot tying contest. The Fish Pond especially appealed to the younger set. At intervals during the Exposition colorful folk-dances and skits were presented. The Liberty Glee Club, consisting of Scout leaders from that area, presented a musical program. It was a proud moment for Scouts and leaders alike when a girl from each participating troop went on stage to receive a ribbon for her particular troop. The Exposition ended at 9 p. m. with the retiring of the colors, the Benediction by the Reverend Donald Brake, of Union Bridge, and the singing of taps.

All in all, the Exposition was a wonderful way to sum up the achievements of our Scouts and Brownies.

I wish you health—life's greatest wealth;
I wish you always near so that I may help to cheer
Each future day and in some way—help to bring you happiness!

Happy Mother's Day, Mothers and that goes for all Mothers—Foster Mothers, Step Mothers and all those dear ones who have taken the responsibility of assuming a Mother role for some child or children.

Do take your Mother out to any special place for her pleasure today—a place where she would like to go and don't forget that special corsage plus the flowers on the table!

When you make any suggestions.

When you make any suggestions, she, no doubt will say, "Oh, no you need not do that for it is not necessary for I know you love me just the same!" All Mothers are like that, Folks! When you surprise her and show her how deep your love really is—just observe the Heavenly expression in her eyes and face.

There is so much of which I could write about Mothers whom I have known and it would take much more known and it would take much more than a column.

I'll repeat the story of my little Step-sons ages at the time of 4—6 and 7. It was to be our First Mother's Day together. I quickly got the car out from the old barn at the Parsonage in Hereford and drove to the city—a distance of about 21 miles to go to the five and dime on North Avenue. The three boys were along of course as we left their Father with his Sermon preparation for the following day.

As the boys and I stood awaiting the package of five white carnations to be wrapped, one for each of the boys, one for me and one for my Minister, the eldest boy came up beside me and whispered, "Mother, what are those pink carnations for?" I explained they were in honor of the living Mothers and the white ones were in memory of those passed on. were in memory of those passed on.

I noticed the ride or drive on the return to the Parsonage was unusually quiet but dismissed it from my thoughts thinking the boys were tired. They were seated in the rear

I was seated at my desk in my bedroom writing after putting the car away and suddenly there was sort of a timid, gentle knock at the bedroom door and to my, "come" there stood the eldest boy with his head slightly bowed. He walked over to me and stood beside my desk close down stairs to the barn to get out that old car again, two younger ones following close behind.

The next morning, three little fellows were sitting in the pew beside me'in church with a pink and white carnation in the lapel of each coat listening to their father preach the Mother's Day Sermon.

There are so many beautiful memories of the Parsonage and so many sweet things of those boys sayings and habits with me that it all is only 43 years ago a very small group met in Dallas, Texas to decide just wonderful to recall. A woman does not have to bear a child to love him just because he is her own feet

So long, folks. Have a grand weekend and especially this Mother's Day. Until next week D. V.

Red Cross Swimming Classes Approved for 1960

At the May meeting of the Red Cross Board of Directors, fund chair-man, Paul F. Kuhns made a partial report of the 1960 fund solicitation. "Fortunately," he said, "the reports of the solicitors which have been turned in, show good progress, but unfortunately no reports have as yet been submitted from some areas." Mr. Kuhns feels that when all reports are in, he will be able to announce satisfactory results.

After carefully considering the reports already in and the additional funds that can be reasonably expected to come in, the Board voted to reinstate the swimming instruction for four weeks in 1960. Many people have expressed regret that this important service to our boys and girls had to be discontinued in 1959, and the chapter is hoappy to announce this reinstatement. The Chapter earnestly requests that workers in the unreported areas hasten to make final reports. Also, anyone not having been contacted may send their donation to Red Cross

THAT POST OFFICE DEFICIT

The Administration continues to urge increases in first-class and airmail postage rates, as a means of reducing the heavy annual deficit of the Post Office Department.

What will come of this, if anything, remains to be seen. There is much opposition to these particular increases based, in part, on the argument that carrying the mails is an essential public service, which contributes to the enlightenment and education of the people, and that it should not necessarily be self-supporting.

There is one post office service, however, to which the enlightment and education argument does not apply. That service is parcel post. It is not a basic post office function, and was not inaugurated until 1913. It is purely a commercial service, distinct from mail carring, and compeletes directly with taxpaying private carriers on national, regional and local levels. And it has been constantly operated at a loss-which means that over the years it has built up huge deficits for all the taxpayers to pay. Thus, in effect, these taxpayers are forced to meet a part of the bills run up by the users of the service.

Parcel post rates have recently been increased by an average of about 17 percent. But that increase, according to conservative estimates, will make up little more than half of current st losses So-entirely aside from what happens to letter postagehere is a wide-open field for doing something constructive and logical about post office deficits.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Dear Editor,

Things seem to be on the up and up in Denmark these days. Instead, a disturbing odor wafts down from New England. We quote Editor B. M. Beatty of THE MADISON PRESS of London, Ohio:

"Montpelier. Vt., (pop.9,000) has the dubious distinction of being the only one of the 50 state capitals in the United States lacking a newspaper. The Montpelier "Argus" the city's only newspaper, beacme defunct some months ago.

"Montpelier sorely misses a newspaper and the merchants are particularly unhappy about the situation. The former editor is currently engaged in the public relations field in Boston.

"Recently, he got a phone call from a spokesman for the Montpelier business community. Would he be interested in returning to his old home town to start a newspaper? If not, did he know some competent newsman willing to undertake this sort of a venture? Montpelier merchants are ready and willing to support the new enterprise, but so far, there are no takers. Almost six months have elapsed since the phone call went out. Evidently, there are no newsmen willing to take on the job - particularly since the merchants didn't support the

"The fact that Montpelier's civic pride is injured because of the demise of the Argus is worth nothing. So is the eagerness of the merchants and other businessmen to help finance a new home town newspaper now that the old one is gone."

Obviously, the most telling line in the above piece is "particularly since the merchants didn't support the Argus". Perhaps that was the fault of the Argus, or maybe it wasn't. Before now, a frantic publisher has found himself chasing his tail in a vicious circle. But whatever the circumstances, it is plain that the water is being missed now that the well has dried up. Thus, when the situation is remedied (as it is bound to be), the next editor may have a better time of it.

Most amazing to us, however, in view of the continually expressed yearning of greying big city news- "Exclusive Listings" of Fine men, public relations and advertising people to "buy a small paper and take it easy", is such an enduring hiatus in a region of such fabled charm.

after-serenity gets down to signing notes at the bank, somebody tells him that it ain't so easy - that the huntskiing the grass-roots editor writes about are mostly done by somebody

A Service Of The Thor Research Center For Better Farm Living

On farm or in town, you'll find yourself "ace high" with your youngsters if you build them the handyman project we're outlining today—a playhouse!

The playhouse we have in mind is comparatively easy to build utilizing 1x2, 2x2, and 2x4 boards for framework and 3-inch tempered hardboard for wall and roof panels. The playhouse has a height of 51/2 feet to the peak of its gable, is 6 feet 31/4 inches long and 4 feet wide, with interior area of approximately 25 square feet. It has windows on all sides for adequate ventilation during hottest weather and the windows can be covered with wire screening if you desire.

This easy-to-build playhouse will make a big hit with your youngsters. Free plans available.

Be sure you make the ground perfectly level for the playhouse base before erection. Pre-assemble wall and roof panels by making the support frames from 1x2s and 2x2s and nailing the tempered hardboard sections, cut to size, to their individual frameworks. Make the base of similar boards and mount the hardboard floor on the base.

Playhouse assembly then is a matter of screwing the bottom part of each wall panel frame to the base with 21/2-inch lag screws and bolting the wall panels to each other at the sides with 3-inch by 2-inch carriage bolts. Roof assembly is comparable to the wall panel process.

Use crosscut or combination semi-high speed or high speed steel blade in cutting the tempered hardboard panels to size with your portable electric saw. You'll save time in drilling bolt holes and pre-drilling screw holes by using an electric drill, for you'll have lots of assemblies to make. Put the finishing touches on edges and surfaces of the playhouse with your electric sander before applying paint.

(You can receive the plans for this children's playhouse, without charge, by writing to the Thor Research Center, Marengo, Ill. Ask for Project No. AE-313-1.)

Safety First

By Ona F. Lathrop

2 - Minute

WAS standing at the top of I the steps of my plane remembering all the things they had impressed upon us in our training for stewardess-safety and comfort of the passengers come first -things like that. It was my first flight on this line and I wanted to do just the right thing-sort of a trial run.

The two young things coming across to board the plane looked like a honeymoon

Fiction couple. She had on a light blue suit and a little flowered hat covered with pink veiling over her blonde pony tail, and he had a flower in his navy buttonhole.

Then suddenly a figure came dashing through the crowd and out through the gate, gesticulating madly for them to wait. He carried a cardboard shoebox and his dark curly hair was flying in the wind and rain. A fine drizzle had started and the girl came on up the steps out of it, and turned to look back. There seemed to be a great argument going on down there. Her boy-friend kept pushing the box back into the other man's arms.

"NO, NO, I won't take it. No, Nick, I don't want the thing." "But you must. It is the only way. It is our one chance-' The dark foreign-looking fellow gave the box one final thrust into the young man's arms and then dashed back and disappeared in the crowd.

"It's my cousin, Nicholas, baby. He wants me to-to-" he looked at me apprehensively and then rushed into the plane, dragging the girl with him. I followed along curiously, making a pretense of helping them find a seat. He kept shifting the box nervously. "Would you like to sit near the front or back?" I queried in my usual Hostess Voice. They chose the seat next the emergency exit in first. The thought flashed in my mind that I could always open it if worst came to worst. I went right on up front to the pilot's

I walked back and stopped to chat. "Would you like me to put the package up on the shelf for you?" I inquired pleasantly.

"Oh, no, no," he cried. "I have to hold it. It must be kept -uh, warm." He broke off as if he were biting his tongue.

"But darling, wha: is it?" the girl kept asking.

He answered impatiently now. "Francie, I can't tell you. Now don't ask again. Why don't you go sit in the back? The view is

The plane had taxied out to the takeoff runway and was revving up the engines, but still we didn't go. I glanced at my wristwatch. Probably waiting for the tower-signal—the fog was getting

It must be a matter of time. I went forward and pulled at Wilcox's sleeve. "You've got to do something," I cried. "I can't get it away from him, and he says we MUST get off on time. This is murder!'

Wilcox snorted. "All right, Miss Benson. Take over, Hannigan." He followed me back. "Let's have a look, young man," he said sternly, grabbing the box.

"Oh please, sir, don't open it here—I beg of you." Reuel scrambled over his bride's knees and followed us to the control room.

Wilcox was opening the strings. He lifted off the cover and there lay-a setting of duck eggs, I guess-big fancy white eggs.

"What on earth-" I screamed in relief.

"It was my cousin's idea—he wanted to send them to our uncle in California, but I told him nothey might even hatch on the way. But he made me take them, and I didn't want Francie to know-After he had gone back and snuggled his bride's head on his shoulder, Wilcox laughed. "Delivering ducks-what next! And I breathed a sigh of relief. I had done my best-for the safety and comfort of the passengers!

A VOICE FROM CARROLL (Feesersburg)

The schools of Carroll County presented the annual Eisteddfod in Alumni Hall Western Maryland college, Friday evening. A capacity audience filled the hall and to many had to stand. The mixed chorus from the Francis Scott Key High School, directed by Miss Dorothy Mathias, with Carol Elliot pianist, sang a "Prayer for our Country" and "Come to the Fair", "Ride the Chariot" was the selection by the mixed chorus from Taneytown. Mrs. Jean Bowers directed the number with Norma Willett at the piano. All the Ele-mentary schools in the county were represented in the chorus and was directed by Mrs. Helen Rudy with Mrs. Florence Earp at the piano. The all-county junior high school chorus, directed by Mrs. Jean Hare, with Mrs. Arline Lerda pianist sang a group of international folk songs. Working up a program of this scope each year presents a challenge to all the music teachers in the public schools and demands a great deal of effort on the part of the students. But their work is not in vain for no other school activity creates so much in-terest from the public as does the musical festival. For in one evening each year the boys and girls put on their best clothes and manners and present to the public their musical talents, which the parents and friends enjoy very much. Carroll County schools have always been recognized as a source of good musical talent and the county has been most fortunate in having music teachers capable nate in having music teachers and eager to make good use of it.

Nathan Weinstock, business man of Westminster has been named to the Carroll County Board of Education. He succeeds Elmer Pfoutz, Hahn, Taneytown, Md. whose term expires.

Fifteen homes will be open to the public May 14, for the Md. House and Garden Pilgrimage. Among them are the Shellman House, home of the Carroll County Historical Society, Pleasant Meadow Farm, home of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel L. Bare; Twin Willows, home of Mr. and Mrs. Lester N. Phillipy; Kilfadda, owned by Mrs. Earl L. Buckey; Hard Lodging, home of Mrs. F. Earle Shriner; the four Shriver homes at Union Mills and the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. Miller Richardson on the New Windsor road called Brookside. These fine and lovely homes furnished with many priceless antiques will offer a real treat to discriminating visitors. Also the rolling hills and valleys of Carroll. dressed in lush greens and prim browns make a fitting setting for a and prim garden tour.

Potomac Synodical Guild Meeting

The 10th Biennial meeting of Potomac Synodical Women's Guild was held at Christ United Church of Christ (E. & R.), Hagerstown, on Wednesday, May 4th, the Rev. Lawrence N. Strunk, Minister.

The women attending were privileged to hear as the inspirational speaker, the President of the National Women's Guild, Miss Frances Kapitzky of Strasburg, Ohio. Her talk was based on "Christian Disciplines" based on "Christian Disciplines" which was both inspirational and soul-searching. She based her text on the Sermon on the Mount and libered it to a proper service of the sermon on the Mount and libered it to a proper service of the likened it to a map and asked the question - "Do we know as church women where we are going?"

She related that on the campus of a certain university, people had difficulty knowing just where they were regular collection of Garbage, etc., is being made twice a week (Tuesday and Saturday). If you desire this service, write Walter Benschoff, Tanred arrow which stated, "This is where you are!"

where you are!"

A young man in a Sunday School class was said to have made the remark - "I think only 15% of us take our Christian religion with us during the week. What about the other 85% of us! We should take inventory of ourselves and sit down at a table and invite our soul to sit with us or look at ourselves seriously in front of a looking glass and consider if we like and approve of ourselves.

The first discipline of Christian living is Devotion. Are we devoted to God and his Son, the Christ? Someone has said, "What lies behind us and what lies before us are tiny matters compared to what lies within us." She cited the example of a prominent educator stating the fact that most Americans get up wrong the loser, went the entire distance. Arendtsville, regular and playoff titilist last year, opened auspiciously. With a 14-1 victory at Bonneauville. The winners pounded out 16 hits with King collecting four and Bushman and Pitzer allowed but four hits and fanned 13.

What we waste could bring millions to better economic security We have too much. We must evaluate ourselves and change our sense of values. We must do without if the message of God is to reach other

The second discipline of Christian living is Fellowship. She said "this is very difficult because it includes a lot of people including the unreasonable boss, the dissatisfied customer, the tired clerk behind the counter and a host of other people in various occupations trying to do their best. She cited the example of two sis ters who were quite companionable until their father passed away. Then they quarreled because they couldn't decide which was better - to put grass or ivy on their father's grave. They never came to an agreement and were bitter enemies.

The third discipline is Mission.

"God has planned certain things for his church. We are the church and must attend to His business. There is no need for a plea for money in any church."

She related the example of a sermon on tithing. A certain woman made the remark that because so and so was wealthy, he should tithe. Its always easy to have the other fellow

She told of women leaving their children near a mission children's hospital during the night. The next morning one of the men would gather the children together and bring them inside. They are not deserting their children. They love them so much that they give them up knowing they will have a chance to live and get something to eat because they can't provide it.

"We must meet the needs of the church and the world with what we have. God can't accomplish his mission without us."

Our mission is to help with roses of life and begin with ourselves. We must fulfill the law of Christ as he specie. the law of Christ as he spoke it on the Mount.

There were 270 women in attendance. Mrs. Guy Benchoff, Woodstock, Va. conducted the opening worship service and introduced Miss Kapitzky. Mrs. George Wallner, Baltimore, president, conducted the business meeting. Mrs. Lawrence N. Strunk, Hagerstown, is the newly elected president. A delightful luncheon was served by the host church.

Morinting.

There is one kind of printing hat you want-printing that pays a dividend on the investment. A letterhead with right sort of type properly balanced is a real business asset. It wins the approval of the person receiving your letter, and while he is in this frame of mind your letteris read. The same reasoning applies to any other job of printing. Neat-ness, the right weight and kind of paper, the color of the ink, the selection of the type, all play an important part in the production of dividend printing. We are equipped to give you that kind of printing. Let us prove it to you to you.

Duck's a Dandy Dish

PERFECT FOR A DINNER PARTY, buffet-style, is this delicious duck in a "sweet-sour" pineapple sauce. The unusual touch is provided by the delicate blend of flavors-fresh vegetables, pineapple, and flaked coconut. It's a dish guaranteed to make people come back for seconds! Better double the recipe! SWEET AND SOUR COCONUT DUCKLING 1 duckling, 4 to 5 pounds (ready-to-cook weight) 134 cups duck broth 2 tablespoons

1 teaspoon salt 1 teaspoon ground ginger

cornstarch

pineapple

1 tablespoon lemon juice 1 cup pineapple tidbits or chunks or crushed

3 tablespoons butter or margarine 3 tablespoons finely diced

34 cup finely diced green pepper 11/3 cups (about) Angel Flake

11/3 cups packaged pre-cooked rice Cut duckling into quarters and cook, with giblets, in 1 quart salted water over medium heat 30 minutes, or until tender. Let duckling cool slightly in broth. Remove skin and discard. Cut meat from bones and dice. Dice giblets. Pour off fat and measure broth; add water, if necessary, to make 1% cups. Combine cornstarch, salt, and ginger; add broth gradually, stirring until blended. Cook and stir over low heat until sauce thickens and is clear. Add lemon juice and pineapple.

Melt butter in skillet. Add onion and green pepper and cook over medium heat, stirring often, until onion is transparent, about 2 or 3 minutes. Add diced duckling and giblets and heat about 5 minutes, stirring lightly. Add pineapple sauce and heat thoroughly. Stir in % cup of the coconut and heat a few minutes While sauce is cooking, prepare packaged pre-cooked rice as directed on package. Serve duckling over the rice and sprinkle with remaining coconut. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Peacemakers

Lesson for May 8, 1960

WAR OR PEACE? The issue cannot be debated any more as it used to be. Once upon a time statesmen of great nations, and boys and girls in school, and country people in town of a Saturday night, could talk it over: Is war, or is peace, the best way out of our troubles? Nowadays those who know the facts of this atomic age know that the next war is the last war, that any war means suicide for both sides. War is the death-way out of our troubles. Dr. Foreman Corpses have no further worries. Their quarrels are over. Peace may not, and will not, put an end to our troubles; but it will leave us alive to struggle with them.

What About Our Enemies

"Blessed are the peacemakers" sounded wonderful in the ears of those who heard Jesus say it; it sounds wonderful today. We wish we knew where the peacemakers are, so that we could give them welcome. We wish we knew how they do it-it often looks so hopeless to us. For "peacemaker" in the year One was thought to mean one who could think out a better way of living than by war. In this dreadful year Nineteen Sixty a peacemaker, if such can be found, is one who can show us how to keep on living at all.

Let us say only one thing about international peace or war. About the least we could hope for would be that the church would not beat the state's drums; that the church would speak up as clearly as scientists and others outside the church have spoken, about the extraordinary danger and folly of depending on H-bombs for safety; and that the church would not let it continue to appear that peace is talked-up, and wished for, only by those on the far side of the iron

Let us come down to some problems we can do more about. Jesus spoke of hostilities that men have whether their countries are at war or not. He spoke of personal enemies. What shall we do with them?

Treating Enemies With Love

If you are the sort of person who enjoys a fight for the fight's sake, if you like to make a row, if peace seems to you a sissy's paradise, then you are not a Christian to begin with. No use talking to you till you join the Christians. But if you really want to live at peace, Jesus has the way to it in one short shocking sentence: LOVE YOUR ENEMIES.

How can this be done? Jesus makes some suggestions, sets up some guideposts. He does not release us from having to work out a great deal by ourselves. First he tells us to take the initiative. If you wait for your enemy to make the first move you may wait forever. It is not cowardly or weak to make the first gesture towards Peace with your neighbor is the most important project you can have. Jesus makes a striking illustration of this. Suppose you are in the very act of offering a gift at the altar of God, and at that moment it occurs to you that some one has something against you. Getting straight with that person is then the most important thing in your life, more important than even worship. Leave the gift, says our Lord, leave the altar; the temple, the place of prayer; go be reconciled to your brother, and then you are free to worship again.

The Church As Peacemaker

Jesus said more, and the reader is invited to look this up in Matt. 5 and Mark 10 and see what he actually said. It all sums up to this: Treat your enemies as you would wish to be treated; treat your enemies as if they were your friends; do for them acts of humble service with patience.

Can the church help in all this? It is the shame of the church that although she is in a good position to help local quarrels get settled, and to say something about international relations (for the church's Lord is called the Prince of Peace, and the church is the only truly international organization in the world), she is too often silent and powerless in the face of internal quarrels and international crises.

I might have been asleep for | 10 or 15 minutes, I don't know, and probably my mouth was hanging open but I don't think I was snoring. Anyway, the spell was broken by an elevenyear-old grandson using my knee as a seat to get a better look at the television set.

I was glad he did, because there was a comedian on at the time who made a lot of sense, as comedians often do. He was saying something like this: Every time you inhale you take in oxygen, and when you exhale you give off carbon dioxide. Plants are different, they take in carbon dioxide and give off oxygen. "So just think about it - every time you exhale, you make a little plant happy." Making plants happy has been a life work with me, and I was glad to see them get the

My grandson, who long ago developed the ability to read my mind, was smiling.

'You know, Grandpa," he said, picking up a list of ferti-lizer grades I had been working "you go to a lot of trouble making numbers that don't mean a thing to me, like that 16-20-0, 15-15-15 and a lot of exhaling to get the food you eat," I said. He had me on the defensive and was enjoying it. "I know," he said, "but why don't you make just one thing that does everything.' "There is one manufac-tured fertiliz-er that does many things well — its call-ed urea," I said, forgetting he was only eleven.

"Is it important?" he asked.
He wouldn't have understood if I told him urea was one of the greatest sources of nitrogen known to farmers; that it can be spread for any normal soil dressing; that it can be dropped from planes for rice fields; that it can be absorbed through leaves when sprayed on pome and citrus fruit trees, and that it can be fed to cattle as an important source of protein.

"You see that plastic airplane you've been working on?" I asked, "well, urea was used to make it." "Gosh," he said, "it is important." As he walked away,

I thought I heard him exhaling

EGG PRICES

*The chick hatch for egg-producing flocks in the first 3 months of this year is 30% below same months a year ago.

*This is the largest reduction in chick placements in 30 years, and it is bound to mean much smaller laying flocks next fall and winter.

*In 1955, when the spring chick hatch was down 27 per cent, egg prices rose 13 1/2 cents from the low point in May to the high in December.

*Chick starts again were down in the first quarter of 1957-28 per cent below same period the year before. Egg prices rose  $16 \ 1/2$  cents from low in May to high in November.

*Both times, egg prices held above corresponding months well into the next year —12 full months.

This looks like a good opportunity to make money in eggs. If you need more chicks or started pullets to build your flocks up to normal size, see us. It's important to do it right away.
