The teachers wish to thank the Clubs for a most enjoyable evening.

Women have a harder time than men being successful in business... probably because they have no wives to advise them.

JOINT MEETING OF LIONS AND KIWANIS

Taneytown School Teachers were the Guests of the Clubs

A delightful talk entitled "Branches on the Breakers" was given by New Windsor's Ford C. Waggoner, retired accountant, former navy man, world traveler, and dabbler in flowers, before the faculties of Taneytown high and elementary schools honored jointly by the Kiwanis club and their Taneytown Lions hosts last Tuesday evening at Tane Inn.

Lion President Glenn O. Reeve presided, Rev. Edmund P. Welker invoked a divine blessing, and Lion tamer Donald R. Lawyer led a short songfest to Harry L. Reindollar's piano accompaniment before all fell busily to partaking of the inn's delicious roast turkey dinner. Kiwanian Principal Ned C. Musser introduced his colleagues on the high school staff, namely Misses Bankard, Eichenbrodt, George, and Stong; Mmes. Bowers, Davis, Myers, Rodgers, and Sanders; and Messrs. Beale, Fuhrman, MacFarland, Metcalf, Neal, Rodgers, Smith, and Shreve; as well as the absent Messrs. Bower and Decker. Lion Principal Frank O. Wargny then presented his cohorts of the Taneytown elementary school, Misses Zanzinger, Smith, and Shreve; and Mmes. Crawford Gass, Jennings, Mohney, Perry, Phillips, Shorb, Showers, Stonesifer, and Wargny, and the absent Miss Jordan & Mrs. Lanier; & all were warmly applauded. Others present included the Rev. Harris M. Waters of the New Windsor Methodist church and a guest of Lion Murray M. Baumgardner, Dr. Paul L. Roxin.

The evening was thereupon turned over to program chairman Robert W. Feeser, who introduced Mr. Waggoner, whose bearing clearly belied his nearly 85 years, and who is one of only two now living who shipped (in 1908) on the U. S. S. Constellation. Mr. Waggoner opened his remarks with the story of Columbus's westward voyage in 1492, of how his men, fearful and superstitious, begged him to turn back from this suicidal sail off the far edge of the flatknob world. In spite of his famous "Sail on, and on, and on," which moved them not, he finally agreed, if nothing were seen within three days, to head his caravels towards Pinos again. When at last the lookout sighted a branch upon the breakers, they knew land must be near, and the rest is a history of our new American continent.

On another occasion it was an experience of the speaker himself. After 15 days on a battleship beneath leaden skies and bucking winds of gale force, they saw their "branch upon the breakers" --- it was a porpoise. A sounding indicated 135 fathoms, and soon they were at Eddystone lighthouse and rounding the coast of the Thames estuary. Again, at the darkest moment in the history of America -- it was not Valley Forge in 1777, but December of 1776 when Washington wrote to his brother in what is now West Virginia, "I think the game is up; no man has ever been confronted with so many difficulties and had so little choice as how to eliminate them" --- there was an old Scotch-Irish weaver named John Honeyman who had had four previous meetings with Washington and who had contrived to pose as a Tory. "Through much vilified by patriots, he worked himself in as a butcher at Trenton, seeking all the information he could gather, and then on December 22 of that year passed out through the lines until he spied a cow, began switching her, and by this device attracted the attention of two American soldiers who collared him and marched him into Gen. Washington's headquarters. Behind the closed door, Washington (Continued on fifth page)

The chairman, Alice Frock then introduced Mr. Eugene Strausbaugh, who sang many lovely selections, accompanied on piano by his wife, Mrs. Strausbaugh. Group singing was also enjoyed by all present. The songs of yesteryear which lent a note of reminiscence. The door prize, a beautiful flower arrangement gracing the table, was won by Kitty Royer.

Everyone was delighted with their favors, a surprise package. Mrs. Charles Petry, of Westminster very kindly showed a film, entitled "Wonderful World" sponsored by the coca-cola company. It was truly an enlightening and enjoyable picture, taking you all over the world and seeing the beauty, native dances and customs of each country. This movie cost over $200,000.00 to cast it.

After expressing gratitude for such a grand program in commemoration of the Fifth Anniversary, President Daisy Pearl struck a soft note of the gavel for adjournment until Oct. 24, our next meeting.

JAYCEES' OPINION ON FLUORIDATION

This Subject is Being Debated and Studied Worldwide

The Jaycee Governmental Affairs Committee in striving to make Taneytown a better place to live has undertaken the task of presenting to you the facts about fluoridation. Having studied the facts ourselves about fluoridation and consulting several persons that have excellent knowledge of what fluoride really is, we came to the conclusion that fluoridation is something that Taneytown can not afford to pass up.

How Effective is Fluoridation? For centuries man has been plagued by tooth decay, or dental caries. When we say that this is the most prevalent disease in the United States today we do not need an imposing array of statistics to support our statement. Practically all readers of this article know from personal experience the inconvenience and suffering a decayed tooth can cause. Every year the people of the United States spend nearly one and a half billion dollars for private dental health services. Yet despite this tremendous expenditure, less than half the population gets adequate dental care.

Today we have overwhelming scientific evidence of the effectiveness and safety of fluoridation in reducing tooth decay. Decades of research, which began more than half a century ago, are now bearing fruit. Children growing up in areas where the fluoride content of public water supply has been scientifically adjusted can expect to have considerably less dental decay when they reach adulthood than their parents have.

Now that the returns on the first ten years of fluoridation are in, demonstrating its success beyond any reasonable doubt, it might be well to sum up briefly the history of fluoride and dental health.

A link between the two was detected as long ago as the last quarter of the nineteenth century. Early papers on the subject, however, were based largely on speculation or questionable chemical data. A study of mottled tooth enamel marks the beginning of the scientific era in this field. For that landmark we have to go back to 1916, when Drs. Black and McKay reported an interesting clinical observation--that mottled enamel was caused by some substance in the drinking water taken during the formation of the teeth. Further studies showed that teeth with mottled enamel showed less tendency to decay than those without mottled enamel.

The teachers ask the cooperation of parents in urging their boys and girls to attend Good News Club regularly. A missionary offering will be taken each week as in the past years. Each boy and girl attending the first week will receive a small award. Monthly perfect attendance awards will also be given.

EMBASSY AIDE TO GIVE TALK

"SPICE 'N' EVERYTHING NICE"

With all my heart, I wish you every morning.

A smile that shall last until the next day's dawn.

I wish you health--life's greatest wealth; I wish you always near so that I may help to cheer.

Each future day and in some way--help to bring you happiness!

Dear Observer: Please do not place my name to the following. Two years ago, I rented a room in my home to an elderly gentleman (55 years of age) who is a pharmacist. I am a widow and he seemed to make himself very much at home and was very kind to me in every way. Of course, I appreciated his little attentions and he even started to invite me out to dinner one evening a week. Then, he told me that he was a married man with three grown children and was getting a divorce. Twice each year he went to visit his family in another state. However, I began to care for him and my surprise one day he packed his things and left stating he was getting another type position as a Manager and it would be some distance in Baltimore so he will room near his work. I just cannot forget this gentleman, in fact, I became very much in love with him. Somehow, I feel that he will come back and I know that I will take him back for I miss him terribly. Now, will you please give me a solution for all of this? Signed Wondering.

Dear Wondering: First of all as soon as you discovered that this man was not divorced and was handing you out such a big line, you as a lady should have asked him to leave immediately. How gullible can you be? He will try this stunt on the next Widow and it will go on and on without her ever getting a divorce. Dismiss him from your mind. I hope this has taught you a good lesson. Your Obs.

Dear Observer: My husband--a young man cannot hold a job and we have three children. I am almost frantic. I do not know where to go or to seek help. Won't you please tell me what I should do? I cannot continue this life. It is unbearable. I am underweight for the lack of food. My husband charges things as to groceries and etc. for the children. Thank You. Signed Anxious.

Dear Anxious: You need legal advice and I will send information to you in a day or two. Your Obs.

Dear Observer: Just today, I learned of a very close friend of mine who is going to go around for votes for Kennedy and is offered ten dollars a day for the work. She is not a Democrat either but stated to me that she needs the money! How can anyone conscientiously do such a thing? Signed Fairplay.

Dear Fairplay: The answer you are giving me right here that she is doing this for that ten dollar bill! So you see how money talks? Eh? Don't worry for the best man will get in and I will state right here that I am positive that it will be our grand Vice President and a man named Lodge who KNOWS ALL!

Dear Observer: I have been very friendly with a lady a few doors below me and we were fond of each other more so than just neighbors but real friends. For no reason at all she ignores me and I do not know what it is all about. What attitude shall I now take as it has me worried terribly. Signed Good Neighbor.

Dear Good Neighbor: Why not write a cute sentence or two on a nice greeting card and then phone to her that same day that the card arrives at her home? I am glad you are such a good neighbor for that is one of the Commandments as you know which God gave to Man! Remember? Your Obs.

Dear Obs.: I always read your Columns and have been wanting to write to you for a few months. I am fifteen years of age and last Feb. my dad died and my Mother's sad face haunts me as I bend over my school books. I dislike leaving her yet she never complains or talks about anything that is sad. I have no sisters or brothers. She is a swell Mother and we are the best of Pals. I am born in January the 12 to be exact. My Mother was born in May. What could I say to her or do for her to make her happy? Signed A Son.

Dear Son: I only wish that I could write all of your precious letter but space will not permit as you realize. You are born in a wonderful and capable sign--the same as a gentleman by the name of "Nixon" and this means that you can assume any kind of responsibility upon your broad shoulders. The sign of Taurus and Capricorn are simply beautiful together and that is the reason your love for your Mother is so deep. Sit down one evening after school with her and have a heart to heart talk with her telling her exactly what you have told me in detail. She will love you all the more for it and you both will be happier by that close talk. Do write me again. Goodluck! Your Obs.

Dear Observer: I am a widower--all my children married and live in a house which I own by myself. Widows write you and I have hesitated about asking you if you could manage to introduce me to a nice lady. Gratefully Widower.

Dear Widower: I do not introduce people in the way of my Column but a grand way would be to attend local activities and thereby meeting many widows or numbers of single women. I often have felt that I would like to start a real way of introducing people to each other from all the letters I receive from folks just like yourself who are lonely. Now, start immediately and step out and betcha it won't be long before you find a nice mate. Good luck. Your Obs.

There you have it, Folks. That is life! Have a grand weekend. Be careful when you drive. Until next week D. V. I am, Faithfully, Your Observer.

FACTS AND OPINIONS

In an editorial discussing the foreign travels of President Eisenhower and Premier Khrushchev, The Wall Street Journal observes: "We are not saying that America's foreign policies are above all criticism or that a Presidential trip can correct what is wrong. We are merely saying that a nation, and a political system, is bound to act in character much of the time, and it is therefore inevitable for Eisenhower to radiate good will and Khrushchev ill will. As long as this country continues to act in accordance with its traditions and institutions, and the Communists in accordance with theirs, we need not fear unduly that the world will be lost to slavery."

According to Newsweek, the time-honored notion that the executive suffers more from tension than the "happy-go-lucky working stiff" isn't necessarily so. For example, one check showed that 12 per cent of executives suffered from hypertension, and 8 per cent from hardened arteries. The figure for non-executives, in both cases, was 15 per cent.

Nation's Business predicted that food purchases in 1965 will be 45 per cent greater than in 1958, with the greatest growth in fresh fruits and the second in meats, fish, poultry and dairy products.

Dr. Theodore G. Klumpp, a member of the American Medical Association's Committee on Aging, told the 15th National Conference on Rural Health that society has been illogical and inconsistent in its attitude toward compulsory retirement and a more realistic approach is necessary. In his words, "Whenever society adopts a rule that eliminates the fit with the unfit, destroys the good with the bad, or punishes the innocent with the wicked, it is not a good rule. Civilization progresses by changing rules of this kind."

No less an authority than Maurice H. Stans, Director of the Budget Bureau, reports that the federal government's indebtedness now approaches $750 billion. Here's how that figure is reached: National debt, $290 billion; future obligations for past services, $350 billion; commitments for future spending, $98 billion.

From National Review Bulletin: "Some interesting figures on the labor union movement: last year, for the first time, unions bidding for certification as bargaining agents won fewer than 60 per cent of the elections conducted under the guidance Board. In the last quarter of 1959, the figure went to the all-time low of 57 per cent."

Americans use close to 780 gallons of petroleum a year per person—about 13 times the amount used by the average person in the rest of the Free World.

Railroads in 1959 recorded the lowest number of passenger fatalities in their history, according to a preliminary report made by the Association of American Railroads. Only one fatality resulted from a train accident during the year. Nine passengers lost their lives in what are known as "train service" accidents—those over which the railroads have little or no control, such as in cases of people attempting to board or leave moving trains.

HERE!
'61 CHEVY TRUCKS

WITH WORK-PROVED INDEPENDENT FRONT SUSPENSION!

Chevy's '61 fleet swings in with a ready-made reputation as the trucks that are worth more because they work more... the latest editions of the haulers that scrapped the I-beam axle and proved the important advantages of independent front suspension!

You'll find new models for '61—long-wheelbase 4-wheel drive units—and thoughtful refinements throughout the line. But the big news for '61 is nailed-down proof (based on owner reports) that Chevy's torsion-spring design is the best thing that's happened to trucks in decades!

With Chevy's independent front suspension and Sturdi-Bilt design, you cruise over trails where other trucks creep. You feel the difference in less wheel fight and vibration. You can see why drivers are happier, why loads are better protected and why the truck itself will stand up to thousands of miles of more work. That goes for any size Chevy, too—pickups, tilt cabs, tandems, all of them.

Check the latest specs with your Chevrolet dealer: capacity, power teams, options. Then, by all means, drive a '61. Once around the block and you'll never be satisfied with a front axle truck again!

WORTH MORE BECAUSE THEY WORK MORE!

Announcing the 1961 Ford... Beautifully proportioned to the

CLASSIC FORD LOOK

The 1961 Ford Galaxie Club Victoria—beautifully built to take care of people

An honor to be proud of, this is the medal presented by the international fashion authority, Centro per l'Alta Moda Italiana, to the 1961 Ford for functional expression of classic beauty.

BEAUTIFULLY BUILT TO TAKE CARE OF ITSELF

The 1961 Ford introduces a whole new concept of what a car can do for you... and for itself!

It lubricates itself. New nylon bearings and a newly developed lubricant keep the '61 Ford freshly greased for 30,000 miles. Good-bye grease racks! What's more, it cleans its own oil. The 1961 Ford's Full-Flow oil filter lets you go 4,000 miles between oil changes.

It adjusts its own brakes. A "mechanical brain" keeps brakes adjusted for the life of the lining.

Rust? Ford's body is specially processed to resist corrosion, even to galvanizing body panels beneath doors.

Ford takes care of itself on the turnpike, too, with a new 390-cu. in. Thunderbird Special V-8 that has all the punch you'll ever need. The 352 Thunderbird Special V-8 and 292 Thunderbird V-8 thrive on regular gas. And, for top economy, you can choose the '61 Mileage Maker Six.

This is the 1961 Ford... beautifully proportioned to the Classic Ford Look... beautifully built to take care of itself.

HERE'S HOW THE '61 FORD TAKES CARE OF ITSELF

LUBRICATES ITSELF. You'll normally go 30,000 miles without a chassis lubrication.

CLEANS ITS OWN OIL. You'll go 4,000 miles between oil changes with Ford's Full-Flow oil filter.

ADJUSTS ITS OWN BRAKES. New Truck Size brakes adjust themselves automatically.

GUARDS ITS OWN MUFFLER. Ford mufflers are double-wrapped and aluminized—normally will last three times as long as ordinary mufflers.

PROTECTS ITS OWN BODY. All vital underbody parts are specially processed to resist rust and corrosion, even to galvanizing body panels beneath doors.

TAKES CARE OF ITS OWN FINISH. New Diamond Lustre Finish never needs wax.

A VOICE FROM CARROLL

"To err is human" and sometimes it is the best thing that can happen to a person. It is a fact of life that more often than coincidence, our mistakes turn out to be blessings. All of us know that Columbus set out to find the East Indies, but found America instead. Lincoln started out to be a congressman but failed and ended up being one of the great Presidents of the United States. Each one of us aim for certain things in life but often we must settle for a second or third choice. This need not be cause for despair or disappointment if we can accept the philosophy that most things happen for the best and surprisingly most things that go wrong turn out to be right for us.

Soon after drenching rains ended the Texas drought, this ad appeared in the local newspaper: "B. J. Smith withdraws his candidacy for county sheriff. It has rained sufficiently for Mr. Smith to return to farming."

Why all the sudden interest in Africa these days? It has been with us ever since Methuseiah was born and even before that, but not until lately has it stirred up so much interest and turmoil. This concern can't be for the people of Africa for they have been around a long time and for a long time exploited by foreign powers. The fact is that Africa is potentially an immensely rich continent with vast natural resources which the industrial world has its eyes on. The Union of South Africa has a high level of prosperity based on diamonds, gold, and uranium. The Federation of Rhodesia and Nyasaland has chrome and one of the world's great copper deposits. Oil has just recently been found in the former Belgian Congo, which the big powers are fighting over in bitter words in the United Nations this week. Cobalt, uranium and industrial diamonds are the main wealth. Liberia has tin and columbite; Liberia and French West Africa, iron ore. Even the crates for soft drinks are made from African mahogany, which is used in Ghana like ordinary lumber. But the greatest natural resource in all Africa is water power. This is almost unbelievable. Just imagine two dozen Niagara falls cascading down the lower part of Africa waiting to be harnessed for electrical power. It would be possible to serve the whole continent with electricity. Knowing the potential wealth and power in Africa, its no wonder the big powers are squabbling over which one is to annex it as a sphere of influence. But the spirit of 1776 is loose in the breasts of its people and they are determined to work out their own destiny without outside interference. Africans want to govern themselves and carve out their own way of life. Its tragic that many of them are not ready to plunge into the 20th century and unless other countries help them in the form of money, education, and understanding without selfish exploitation the entire world population will live to regret it.

A minister who had written a book on marriage and religion had as his house-guest the out-of-town publisher who was bringing out his book. A deacon of the church who lived next door was curious about the expensive car and the stranger going in and out of the parsonage. Fearing that he was a representative of some other church who was trying to get the popular minister for his church the deacon decided to question the clergyman's young son. After a few minutes talk about school and baseball, the deacon casually asked the boy who owned the big car in the driveway. "Oh," he replied, "That belongs to daddy's bookmaker."

While we watched the mobs on T.V. milling around the arrivals at the United Nations building we had to wonder what kind of jobs they worked at for a living that their bosses allowed them time off to make such fools of themselves and the countries they represented. When we were children we use to taunt each other by saying "sticks and stones can break my bones but names will never hurt me." When men use the methods of children there is something lacking in dignity and common sense.

We have close friends who live in Baltimore and twice a year for a number of years we entertain them and their young son at dinner. The last time they came their son now age 16 was not with them. "Where is Chuck?" I asked. "Home getting his own dinner," his mother said. "Now that he is old enough so we can stand him," she sighed. "He can't stand us."

Over a thousand voters in Carroll county may lose the right to vote in November because they have not cast one ballot in five years. These include 60 from Taneytown districts, 38 from Uniontown, 31 from Middleburg, 90 from New Windsor and 30 from Union Bridge. These voters have until Revision Day to go to various precincts and tell why they have not voted in the past five years. We have learned that there are many requests for absentee ballots both from military and civilian workers who are out of the county. Revision Day was September 27.

Remember the public weddings that used to draw mobs of people at the Taneytown Fair? They began in 1930 and continued until the Fair lost support from the public. That was in 1944 when we had a war to think about and the lack of gasoline kept many people home. And when the war was over and gasoline plentiful again the public's taste in entertainment had changed. Now the fair ground acres have been sold and sometime in the future a new enterprise will develop. When it does very few will remember that once hog callers, horses, chickens, cows, political speakers and fireworkers had their day on the 136 acres known as Carroll County Agricultural and Fair Association. Another instance of Americana disappearing.

We have just listened to the first Kennedy-Nixon debate on T.V. It was interesting but a far cry from the fierce debates that use to rage in the debating societies of the high schools in the twenties. The two candidates were very polite to each other not even raising their voices over not pounding the rostrum with their fist in anger. Both spoke well. Partisan Democrats and Republicans will no doubt say that their candidate was the best. But the young voters and the independent voters might find that Mr. Kennedy appeals to their pioneer blood more than Mr. Nixon inasmuch that he offers them a challenge to be up and doing once again. Especially to the young is he offering them an opportunity to forget about the status quo and get out and meet destiny half way.

Emily Post, noted authority on good manners, died Sunday at the age of 87. She had one short rule as the basis for being a lady or a gentleman. It was this: MAKE THE OTHER PERSON FEEL COMFORTABLE.

Autumn is approaching in her chariot of gold. She is driving out the heat of summer days; She is showing all the latest tints which earth will wear this fall.

Truly, it's astounding—such display. All the folks who live in valleys and in the lands where forests grow Welcome the return of autumn days. They bring peace and fondness dreaming when the earth is all aglow. And the tang of autumn mingles with the haze.—Emert Wentworth Hill

WITH OUR ARMED FORCES

AUGSBURG, GERMANY (AHTNC) Army PFC Grayson D. Smith, son of Mrs. Lela M. Smith, Route 1, Union Bridge, Md., recently participated with other members of the 24th Infantry Division in Exercise Summer Shield, a two-week field training problem, in the Bavarian region of Germany.

The exercise provided the troops with practical experience in working as independent units under isolated field conditions.

Smith, a gunner in Company D of the division's 2d Infantry in Germany, entered the Army in March 1959 and received basic training at Fort Jackson, S. C. He was stationed at Fort Benning, Ga., before arriving overseas last January.

The 19-year-old soldier attended Elmer A. Wolfe High School and was employed by Black's Sales and Service before entering the Army.

Twenty-Carroll County High school students participated in the County's first and Ford Motor Company's third annual teen-age Press Conference, Saturday, Sept. 24 at the Westminster Senior High School.

The students were vying for a local prize of $25 U. S. Savings Bond and an all expense paid trip to Detroit in addition to the $32,000 in college scholarships. The local prize is to be donated by the Harken Ford Company, Westminster.

Conducting the actual press conference was Carroll Superintendent of Schools Samuel M. Jenness. Mr. Jenness was assisted in the conference by Miss Ruth DeVore, supervisor of Elementary Schools and John Woodson, director of instruction and supervision.

Contest Chairman, Charles Mooshian, Carroll County Times, opened the conference for the "reporters" and from then on the students took over. A 30-minute planned conference went into an hour's conference. The 45 minutes to be used for writing the story went on to one hour and 15 minutes. The interest shown in the conference was revealing—it showed the students' quest for knowledge regarding their educational system. Winner to be announced Oct. 6.

Contestants included Robert Miller, Christine Lassiter, Marilyn Sue Mooshian and Jimmie Hook, Westminster Senior High School; Elzena Brook, Alma Benser, Dorothy Garrett, Jackie Weber, Martha Matthews, North Carroll High School; Joyce Conrad, Chris Keve, Key High School; Joyce Ryan and Nancy Bohn, Mt. Airy High School; Jeanne Howarth Taneytown High School and Amelia Hamilton and Calvin Hamilton St. John's High School.

Sponsoring newspapers are Democrat Advocate, Carroll County Times, Carroll Record Taneytown; Community Reporter Mt. Airy and Sykesville Herald.

JOINT MEETING OF LIONS AND KIWANIS

learned that Gen. Howe believed the American army was completely lost, that there was no hope left to them. Lord Cornwallis was packing his bags, and the one thousand Hessians quartered in Trenton were preparing a great Christmas celebration. That night a haystack across the Delaware caught fire, the "prisoner" Honeyman escaped, staggered into the British camp, and reported the American forces leaving. Gen. Howe stuffed an intelligence report carelessly into his waistcoat, ignoring the warning that the Americans were moving forward. Washington's order had been, "On Christmas day, one hour before daybreak, we will take the city of Trenton." Hessian Col. Rath was mortally wounded, many were taken, and John Honeyman was the little "branch upon the breakers" that gave America her independence by a godsent breakthrough in a crucial moment.

"The world moves forward," the speaker averred, "not through the greatness of its leaders, but through the actions of the commonplacé, everyday individual who is just a 'branch upon the breakers.'" He is the one who upholds the government about him by his vote, by his work, by his devotion to duty.

"Can I be one?" you ask. Yes, said Mr. Waggoner, we must have moral scruples beyond reproach, ethical standards bearing the scrutiny of that greatest tribunal of all, public opinion. Yes, we must set an example and inculcate our youngsters. We must have the determination of the school-teacher of long ago who trudged through eight-foot snow to a school of nine grades of 80 children. So that the 2500 Ocean City student rioters of three weeks ago, that took 60 state police and six city fire departments to quell, may not be invidiously compared to untutored Africans, a task of educators is to instill a code of ethics in them. A teacher in fact is like a weaver. "The years of man are the looms of God," and the teacher is weaving a pattern from the design that he sees above. He may weave blindly, and he does not see his result until the work is done and the cloth turned over to reveal its design. His payment is "not coin, but in a golden crown." He is a veritable "branch upon the breakers," he beckons his pupils on.

President Reeve then turned to J. Thomas Albaugh, Kiwanis president, who brought greetings and an expression of appreciation from his club. Lion Merwyn C. Fuss reported on a Board of Education meeting wherein was proposed an eight-room addition to the Taneytown elementary school, the principal being authorized to enter into negotiations with the Superintendent of schools in support of that project.

The meeting was then adjourned by President Reeve, the next gathering of Taneytown Lions to take place Tuesday, October 11, when Frank Wagny will present the program.

Fluoridation Jaycees Report to the People

led enamel were carried on in North Africa and in Argentina, where noteworthy research has been going on for nearly thirty years. The work of Chaneles and Erausquin, Argentinian scientists, suggested a tie between mottling and tooth decay. Was it possible, Erausquin asked, that where the rate of mottling is high, the rate of decay is low?

The answer, when it came, was the result of field surveys. But behind these surveys lay many essential earlier steps leading to discovery. First, it was necessary to find a way to analyze the chemistry of water supplies. This required special skills to detect infinitesimal amounts of fluoride - 0.1 part of fluoride to a million parts of water, for example. Experiments with animals were also needed. For conclusive findings, however, it was necessary to make studies in communities where the natural fluoride content of water varied, to measure these variations, and to determine their effect on the population.

What did the studies reveal? The significant fact that fluoride has a unique effect on dental health. If water containing too much fluoride is used continuously while teeth are forming, the result is mottled enamel and reduced caries. On the other hand, if fluoride-free water or water that is relatively low in fluoride content is used continuously, there is likely to be no mottling but excessive dental decay. Between the two extremes - water with too much fluoride and water with no fluoride - is an ideal level that can improve dental health dramatically.

Studies of the relationship between fluoride and dental health fall into three groups, depending on what they demonstrate:

1. That mottled tooth enamel is linked with the amount of fluoride in the water supply. 2. That there is a fluoride level that is ideal for dental health. At average temperatures in the United States this concentration is about 1.0 part of fluoride per million parts of water. In warmer climates - in the southern states, for example - probably 0.6 or 0.7 parts of fluoride to a million of water is a concentration high enough to check dental caries yet low enough to prevent objectionable mottling.

3. That in communities where relatively fluoride-free water supplies have been brought up to ideal levels, tooth decay has been reduced.

Early in 1945, following extensive clinical examinations of school children, fluoridation of the public water supply began in three communities: Grand Rapids, Michigan; Newburgh, New York; and Brantford, Ontario.

After nine years of fluoridation in Grand Rapids, dental decay among six-, seven-, eight-, nine- and ten-year-old children dropped 76, 62, 53, and 51 percent, respectively. At Newburgh, the reduction in the same age groups was 77, 53, 51, 64, and 41 percent, respectively. The reduction at Brantford was 65, 66, 52, 47, and 43 percent, respectively.

These and other independent studies, notably one in Evanston, Illinois, give us direct evidence that tooth decay can be brought under a large measure of control through fluoridation of the water supply.

As of January 25, 1956, there were 1,137 communities in the United States, with a combined population of 22,688,756, that were using fluoridated water supplies. These included the cities of Philadelphia, Baltimore, St. Louis, Pittsburgh, Washington, San Francisco, Milwaukee, and Buffalo. About 3,000,000 more people were using water supplies that naturally contain at least 1.0 part per million of fluoride.

Several Canadian cities are also using this control measure. Still other countries are known to be fluoridating the public water supply in Brazil, Chile, Colombia, Germany, Japan, the Netherlands, and Sweden.

Wherever a fair-sized community over an adequate period of time has used water containing an ideal concentration of fluoride, observers have noted a marked drop from pre-fluoridation rates of dental decay. Since fluoridation is only ten years old, these differences are most marked in children from six to ten years of age. However, there is strong evidence - from a comparison of Colorado Springs (2.6 parts per million) and Boulder, Colorado (0.0 parts per million), for example - that the lower rate of dental decay will continue into the fifth decade of life.

Fluoridation, then, is a proved public health measure for the partial control of dental caries. With fluoridation it is now possible for man to duplicate the workings of nature to serve his own well-being. Civilized man's most common disease can be sharply curtailed by a preventive measure that is effective, inexpensive, and safe.

God Is Great

Lesson for October 2, 1960

WHEN you read those words, "God is great," what did you think? "One thing you might have thought was, "Why of course. Who would be interested in a little God?" Well, some people have been interested in little gods; but this was only when they pictured in their minds a large number of Gods. Some of these might be little, not much more than fairies or ghosts. But people who believe in little gods and lots of them (like primitive Africans for example) can't get along with-out believing also in some high God reigning over all the others.

Dr. Foreman

Indeed, a famous definition of God went something like this: "That being than whom no greater can be conceived." If you could conceive of a greater, that would show you were not yet thinking of the true God.

God Is No Particular Size

"God is great" does not mean "God is big." The word "big" refers to size. God is Spirit, and Spirit does not come in sizes. What size is your own spirit, for instance? You do not know and it would be ridiculous to get out a tape-measure or a slide-rule to measure your inmost self. The greatness of God means that every quality he has, he has to the utmost and highest and most intense degree. No one and nothing surpasses him. Is it power? Then he is more powerful than all other powers together. Is it love? No other love can compare with his. Is it wisdom, justice? His is supreme. To be sure, there is one sense in which we might almost say that God is big: That is, in the sense that we can never run away from him. People everywhere are wondering what strange creatures spacemen may find on far-away planets. One thing is sure; they will not find a strange God, for there is only one; and they will not find a planet where God is not.

Sit down by yourself some day and think of the greatness of God the Creator. He is not just "the Man upstairs," he is not a somebody, he is not one item in the catalogue of the things in the universe. You and I might be items in that catalogue, but not He. He made the catalogue, he alone knows what is in it; for he alone made all things. This does not mean that he brought everything into existence all at once, or in a week or in a million years. This present universe of the year 1960 is not exactly the same, indeed in many ways not at all the same, that is was one hundred million years ago. Nevertheless, when the Bible speaks of God the Creator it speaks of a God whose will it was, and is, that these things, all these things, this tremendous and unimaginable universe, have come into being. The God to whom we pray is not a god who sits cozily in his heaven watching an earth and a universe that was made he knows not how.

Great in Providence

When the writer of Psalm 8 thinks of God's greatness, his mind turns at once to the stars, then to man, and then to the animals of this planet. He thinks of God in terms of what he has done for man. But the writer of Psalm 104 has a different slant. His mind moves from creation to providence, or in other words, while Psalm 8 speaks in terms of mighty once-for-all acts of God, the poet of Psalm 104 thinks of God in relation to everyday events, out-of-sight obscure events, most of which have nothing at all to do with man. The main point to see here is that God is as great in providence as he is in creation. God started the world, he invented it as C. S. Lewis says. But he also acts within it, there is no part of it to which he can be denied admittance. He is not like a king or a president who cannot attend nearly all the events to which they are invited. Invited or not, God attends all events. Look with the writer of Psalm 104 at the mountain springs, at the wild beasts drinking, the birds flying in the treetops, the rain on the mountains—in all these things not less than in the overwhelming ones, we see the greatness of the one true God.
