HIGH SCHOOL HIGHLIGHTS

"Ring out the old—
The knell is tolled;
Ring in the new
With peal as true!

Ring, bells, ring!
Loud anthems sing!
Let heaven and earth agree
In restless harmony!"
Olaf - 1/1/61

New Year's Resolutions—what are they? Are they not the exciting promises we make to ourselves, half-hoping that we can keep them? They represent our earnest desire to kindle a new light in our lives, to set our worlds aglow with a new flame from another tiny spark of hope; they are our promises to turn over a new leaf in the pages of our book of life.

But, do we keep these resolutions once we have made them? To be really honest with ourselves, we must frankly admit that our resolves very often go the way of many good intentions. Yet, in the long run, does it really matter very greatly if we do keep our lofty resolves? Maybe some are too lofty for our human frailty; perhaps some would not benefit our neighbors, and there is a chance that some should not have been made at all!

These are just a few little thoughts as we begin a new year.

Still there is one resolve we should all make, and if it re-echoes the song of Christmas, let us not forget it! Let us all strive for peace on earth and for good will among men.

If we could but attain this one goal during 1961, could we not say that we have done well? Would not 1961 be the greatest year in our times? Let us, then, strive to keep peace in the world by starting right at home.

Peace in one's own heart will spread peace among one's family and friends. Like love and goodness, peace, too, is contagious. It can spread world-wide, but first have its tiny start in our own personal lives. Do what you can to spread the contagion of peace! Make peace your resolution for 1961!

School re-opened on Tuesday, Jan. 3rd, following the Christmas holidays.

Mr. Musser, the principal, expressed greetings for the New Year and urged students to begin preparing for the mid-year examinations, which will be given toward the end of January. Students are reminded and urged not to wait till the last minute before studying for these examinations.

There will be a newsfilm shown at 9:00 a.m. on Monday, January 9th.

On Thursday evening, December 22, the Senior High Mixed Chorus, under the direction of Mrs. Jean Bowers, sang Christmas carols at various spots in town. Their angelic strains were deeply admired and appreciated by all who heard them. May we look forward to such a delightful treat next year and for many years to come!

The Alpha Sigma Rho (Senior Science) Club plans to attend Bethlehem Steel Company, Sparrows Point, Maryland, on Jan. 11, 1961. Mrs. Davis, club advisor, and Mr. Musser, principal, will accompany the club members.

The Taneytown basketball teams defeated the Alumni in two excitingly contested basketball games on Tuesday evening, The JV team won by a score of 31 to 15, and the Varsity team won by a score of 61 to 46. Congratulations to both home teams for a thrilling game well played.

The next basketball game will be with Francis Scott Key High School at their gym on Friday, January 6th. Come and see the Tigers win again!

On Tuesday, January 10th, the Tigers take on North Carroll High on their home court.

"The Missile of Redemption," a Christmas chorale was presented by the 8th grade class and the T.H.S. orchestra and chorus. It was shown to the students at 2:30 and to the P.T.A. at 8 p.m. on December 19th.

The chorale retold the Christmas story from the beginning of time when "mist covered the face of the earth" down to the end of time because "we the believers of faith remember the 'Christ Child.' We will write his 'name in fire.' With the burning love we raise above the world!" "We adore at the manger!" "We adore at the manger!"

The cast are as follows:
Zachary—Richard Glass
Ann—Toby Gladfelter
Mary—Bobby Hopkins
Angel—David Kelly
Joseph—Terry Bell
Innkeeper—Oscar Fogle
Shepherds—Carl Zentz, Barry Dayhoff, Tom West, Ricky Airing, Ronnie Haines.

MEETING OF MAYOR AND CITY COUNCIL

Many Items of Business Transacted

The regular monthly meeting of the Mayor and City Council was held on Monday, January 2, at 7:30 p. m. The Treasurer's report follows: Receipts $2,480.50; Expenditures $12,441.55; Balance $32,605.19. Parking meter fund balance $2,756.90.

Mr. J. Robert Waddell, city water meter reader, appeared before the council to tender a report and to answer questions. It was noted in Mr. Waddell's report that several water meters are not in proper working condition. These will be replaced with the least practicable delay.

Mr. Waddell, speaking as a private citizen, requested the council to ask Mr. Thomas McKewen, Public Health Engineer, State of Maryland, to appear before the council at a subsequent meeting for the purpose of presenting costs of installation, operation and maintenance of a fluoridation system of Taneytown's water supply. The Mayor was requested by the council to make this contact. It should be emphasized that the council has taken no action whatsoever on the adoption of a fluoridation system for Taneytown, nor will it do so without the consent of the Taxpayers of Taneytown.

Mr. Powell suggested the council request the Pennsylvania Railroad to place a warning light at the Railroad crossing on Baltimore Street. The council agreed the crossing is dangerous and instructed the clerk to prepare the necessary correspondence.

The Mayor reported that studies are continuing on some method of tying the two water systems together. At present the new tower supplies East End and the old Stand Pipe supplies the balance of the town.

The Mayor requested permission to secure a supply of cinders to have on hand for use during icy conditions such as we have just experienced. Permission was granted.

The next regular meeting of the Council will be held Monday, February 6, at 7:30 p. m., in the council room.

Keysville ULCW Meeting

The Keysville ULCW met Monday evening with Mrs. Mary Ausherman and Mrs. Dharly Fleharty as leaders to discuss the topic, "Let All the Nations Praise Thee."

The meeting was opened by singing one stanza from four different hymns representing music from different countries such as Finland and Sweden. The hymns used were "Praise to the Lord Almighty," "I Lift My Eyes," "We Worship Thee" and "My Lord I Hear Thee Pleading." Mrs. Ausherman read the 67th Psalm and offered the prayer.

The Sharrer sisters, Rebecca and Linda played two numbers on the piano and accordion, "Got a Travel On" and "Winter Wonderland." Mrs. Helen Dougherty and Mrs. Marion Ausherman were in charge of the specials.

Mrs. Fleharty spoke on hymns of Elizabeth Shoemaker and the hymnal Mrs. Service Book, and Church Hymnal in Spain. Mrs. Fleharty played a record of church music as used in Spain and Japan. Mrs. Ruth Wilhide told about "Worship in Japan" and Mrs. Fleharty, "Worship in India." A record of Post Communion Service in Japan was heard. The discussions and hearing the records helped us formulate opinions as to the worship in other countries.

The offering was received by Mrs. Vallie Baumgardner and dedicated by Mrs. Mary Ausherman. After the benediction Mrs. Kathryn Stine conducted the regular business meeting. The minutes were read by Mrs. Doris Harner and the Treasurer's report was given by Mrs. Fleharty.

The hostesses for the evening were Mrs. Bernice Wilhide, Mrs. Elizabeth Shoemaker and Mrs. Mabel Keeney. The table was very attractive with cloth, napkins and plates in keeping with New Years. Sandwiches, pickles, served chips, mints and coffee was the invitation. At each place was a pamphlet, New Year Resolutions 1961.

The leaders for February are Mrs. Edith Wilhide and Mrs. Marian Co-shun and those in charge of specials are Miss Vallie Shubb and Mrs. Anna Stonesifer. The hostesses are Mrs. Helen Dougherty, Mrs. Richard Bostain and Mrs. Marian Austin.

LOCAL INSURANCE AGENT ATTENDS MEETING

Arthur W. Garvin, State Farm local agent in Taneytown, Md., attended a meeting at the Southern Hotel, Baltimore Md., last Wednesday one of 106 such gatherings held simultaneously throughout the United States and in Canada by his company.

Featured at the meeting was a closed-circuit broadcast of a speech by Adlai H. Rust, chairman of the board of directors of the State Farm Insurance Companies. Rust predicted a growing economy for the decade and forecast continued growth in both human and automobile populations—and a resulting increase in need for insurance coverages.

Included in the audience, estimated at over 2,000, were agents, managers and other personnel of the State Farm Companies. Production goals for 1961 and the remainder of the 60's were outlined and a special contest for agents was announced.

Bosses' Night

Bosses' Night, the annual banquet-meeting of the members of the Junior Chamber of Commerce and their employers will be in Taney Inn, Jan. 19th at 6:30 p.m., according to Harry Dougherty, Jr., Taneytown Jaycee president.

A high point of the evening will be the announcement of Taneytown's outstanding young man for the year. A committee, headed by Dean Nussbaum, is canvassing churches, businesses, clubs and organizations to determine which young man—21 through 35—has contributed the most to the community during the year.

Bosses' Night is an annual feature of Junior Chambers throughout the nation. It is dedicated to the bosses who support the Jaycees and recognize the value of the organization.

Robert Boone, chairman of Bosses' Night, said that the speaker for the event will be Mr. Fred Stepp, State President of the Maryland Junior Chamber of Commerce. The toastmaster will be Robert Boone.

Meeting of Pythian Sisters

Mrs. Marlin Six was hostess to the Pythian Sisters Past Chief Club the past Tuesday night, Jan. 3rd at her home near Harney. Meeting opened by singing, "Long, Long Ago" Psalms 93 was read by Mrs. Audrey Hess following with all repeating the Lord's Prayer in unison. Minutes of previous meeting was read and approved. Roll-call was answered by 16 members, also several guests were present. Three members having birthdays were each given a gift. Mrs. Fred Shank gave the guess box and it was won by Mrs. LaReina Crabbs. Mrs. Maggie Eyer was reported getting along nicely from her recent accident.

A lovely gift was given to Mrs. Chas. D. Baker in appreciation for serving 2 years as President of the Club.

Meeting closed by singing "Faith of Our Fathers" and the benediction. Lovely refreshments were served by the hostess, Mrs. Marlin Six. Next meeting will be held Feb. 7th at the home of Mrs. Russell Rodgers, President Mrs. John Harman, President.

Official Road Name and Location Booklet

Carroll County's Planning Commission released last week to all public agencies its official Road Name and Location Booklet. The forty page booklet includes the names of all roads and streets in Carroll County together with its location by the official county map grid system and also by general location.

The Planning Commission Booklet also shows whether the road or street is under the control of the state, county, incorporated town, or whether it is private or still an unopened street.

By utilizing County, state, town files along with court house plats and other organizational files the massive list of 800 names were assembled. Purpose of the record is to afford a quick method of locating roads or streets in Carroll County by any public agency. Likewise it is hoped that less duplication of road and street names will result.

Quite naturally the Planning Commission knows that corrections will have to be made from time to time to the list as well as adding all new roads or streets created in the future. This, according to George A. Grier, Planning Director, will be in the form of supplemental lists at least once yearly to insure the booklet will be up to date.

If demand for the road list exceeds the one hundred copies mimeographed for official distribution, Grier stated that the Planning Commission had authorized an additional supply to be made available at cost.

T. B. NEWS

As the number of new tuberculosis cases found in Maryland increases, returns from the Carroll County Tuberculosis Association's Christmas Seal Campaign for TB control show a decrease, it has been reported by the Seal Sale chairman, Preston G. Coffman.

A total of 1,442 cases have been detected in the state since January 1, 1957. This is 39 more than had been found at this time last year. Maryland is the sixth highest state in its TB death rate and the eighth highest in its TB case rate. Of this total 17 cases have been found in Carroll County.

"We ask people to do two things," Mr. Coffman said. "First, we ask them to take advantage of our free chest-X-ray services so that we can find new cases of TB. Then, we ask people to help us continue our year-round TB control services through their use of Christmas Seals. These new case figures show how much our work is needed all over the county; our hope is that people will recognize this need and will give us their invaluable assistance. We are most grateful to the thousands of Carroll Countians who are already using Christmas Seals."

4-H OFFICERS ELECTED

Marshall Sharrer, Jr. was chosen President of the Rocky Ridge Progressive 4-H club for 1961.

Douglas Valentine was elected Vice President, Betsy Hoyt, Treasurer and Kathy Etheridge reported the program for the coming year which was discussed and new officers briefed on their duties.

Twenty eight members were present at the meeting held December 16 in the Rocky Ridge Fire Hall. Refreshments were served after the meeting by Mrs. Farvans.

THE QUESTION OF FLUORIDATION AGAIN

Many Aspects of the Issue Reviewed

In the past few months I have received quite a bit of material from readers on the hotly argued subject of the fluoridation of water to decrease tooth decay. I have read it, filed it away, and refrained from writing on it—because I judged it was not particularly demanded of a Catholic editor by the nature of the subject.

But now a reader in the diocese has suggested that the Catholic press about what she calls a very definite moral issue.

This woman writes me: "Two years of research reading and constant correspondence with others interested in avoiding this form of socialized medicine (artificial fluoridation of water) convinces us that there is need for immediate Catholic action. . . . The Catholic press has been strangely silent on the subject, possibly because the issue had not been brought to their attention by those who had reason to know it."

If this Catholic woman, certainly sincere in her convictions and willing to spend her time writing "hundreds of letters on the subject, is right about the immorality of fluoridation, then I have been remiss in avoiding the topic. But is artificial fluoridation immoral?"

I DON'T THINK SO. I have no intention here of taking sides on the advisability of fluoridation. I am not telling you or anyone to vote for or against it if the question arises in your own locality.

I merely want to defend my previous silence by saying that, judging from the many thousands of words I have read on both sides of this subject, I cannot see that the objective facts would impose on any Catholic a moral obligation to vote either for or against the measure.

If you are personally convinced the move is immoral, you do have the obligation, of course, to follow your conscience. But that is a subjective matter. I am speaking of the facts as they seem to exist.

TO BE IMMORAL, artificial fluoridation would have to be one of two things. It would have to be socialism or it would have to be a risky use of something highly dangerous to a human being.

Until one of these things is proved likely, there is no moral issue involved. If it ever is proved, then the moral issue will be present.

Most opponents of fluoridation, by the way—at least the ones I have read oppose it on both these grounds. They say it is socialism (an invasion of private rights) and that it is mass poisoning the people.

IS IT SOCIALISM? I have repeatedly opposed the American Medical Association on its social policies, but I have never had to accuse it of the slightest leaning toward Socialism. I would as soon expect to find the National Association of Manufacturers advocating Socialism as to find the AMA doing it. And the AMA definitely backs the fluoridation movement as it exists today in the United States.

This means a movement that depends entirely on the vote of the local citizens. I do not think the AMA would back the program if it were a compulsory federal program, and I certainly would not want it to.

Unless you show the program dangerous, the local vote puts it on the same basis as the common use of chlorine and other chemicals in the water system.

THURSDAY JANUARY 5, 1961

14 CENTS OUT OF $10

When you buy $10 worth of groceries, how much of that stays with the store in form of profit? It's a safe bet that a great majority of shoppers couldn't answer that question with any degree of accuracy. They would probably put the profit factor at a much higher proportion than it actually is.

The National Association of Food Chains and the Harvard Business School Division of Research have issued their fifth annual survey of margins, expenses and profits in the food chain industry. In 1959, net profits worked out to about 1.4 per cent of the sales dollar—which means it came to 14 cents on a typical $10 bag of groceries. There was nothing unusual about this—the profit was practically the same in 1958, 1.38 per cent.

Over the years, profit margins have held remarkably stable, in the general neighborhood of a cent-and-a-half on the dollar. Expenses, by the way of contrast, have shown substantial increases, with payroll costs leading the way, followed by advertising and promotion expense, and real estate costs.

Summing up, the profit on food sales is so small, percentage-wise, that it would take an exceedingly canny shopper to notice the difference if there were no profit at all. Pretty much the same thing is true in other basic retail lines—profits commonly run around three cents on the sales dollar. That is the principle on which mass distribution rests—very small unit profits add up to an adequate total profit because of big volume.

FULL VALUE

It has been charged that the cost of drug prescriptions in this country is outrageously high, and represents a heavy burden on the user. Some information given by Dr. Austin Smith, president of the Pharmaceutical Manufacturers Association, in a recent issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association, therefore deserves wide currency.

The average cost of a drug prescription is about $3, and only about one prescription in one hundred costs as much as $10. The wholesale price of drugs has risen only 3 per cent in the past 10 years, as against a 22 per cent increase for industrial products as a whole. Significantly, the American consumer today spends about the same part of his income on drugs as in 1939, before most of the specific high potency drugs that have done so much for the sick were available.

Dr. Smith also touched on the industry's major risk, which is research. Last year the industry spent almost $200 million in the search for new medical agents—despite the fact that the chance that any given research involving a new potential medicine will be successful stands at 2,865 to one against the manufacturer. Without research, progress in this vital field would end. Equally obvious, unless the industry were able to earn adequate profits the heavy costs and risks of research could not be borne.

The drug industry is highly competitive, with large numbers of companies seeking new and better products—and also seeking to expand the use of their existing products. We get full value for the drug dollar—and, to the sick, no dollar could conceivably buy more.

FACTS AND OPINIONS

According to U. S. News & World Report, employees are finding that the cost of fringe benefits is increasing at a faster rate than wages. Value of these benefits was about $30.3 billion in 1960, and will be almost $4 billion larger this year.

Henry Hazlitt writes in Newsweek: "From time to time I get letters from readers asking how they can protect themselves from the eroding effects of inflation on their savings. It is possible to answer this question in a way that is helpful to a particular individual; it is not possible to answer it in a way helpful to everyone. What is still not widely understood is that inflation can benefit one man only at the expense of another. The price of what you have to sell can go up more or faster than the average price of what you have to buy only if the price of what other people have to sell to you goes up less or slower than the price of what they have to buy from you. The political appeal of inflation comes from fostering the illusion in the great majority of voters that they somehow get the better of the swindle, and profit at the expense of a few unidentified victims."

An article in the Journal of the American Medical Association recommends ice water as the best first aid measure for any burn covering up to 20 per cent of the body. The cold treatment is continued until it can be stopped without return of pain—30 minutes to five hours. The doctor who wrote it says he has given ice-water treatment to 150 patients and that all experienced gratifying relief at once.

Sophie Jaffe, a teacher of 25 years' experience, recently said this to a teachers' meeting: "We are going overboard these days on the idea that, by giving our children the best and the most, we make them happy, well-rounded individuals. Today's children have television sets in their bedrooms carry transistor radios to school, and brag about the money they spend. What we should do is to get through to the parents that their children must be taught at home that they cannot have everything they want, that money and material abundance are not the acme of American democracy."

The federal tax rate on corporations with a taxable income of more than $25,000 a year is 52 per cent. This fact caused Senator John Marshall Butler to point out that the government "derives more revenue from an enterprise than the investors who risk their capital to provide jobs for our people and the goods and services that they need."

American railroads serve 50,000 communities over 218,000 miles of track, carrying almost as much freight as all other forms of transportation combined.

The New York Times says: "Senator Kennedy must now consider what he will ask (his) appointees to do and what he himself will do to bring about changes in policy which he promised during the campaign. To increase the strength of our defenses, to promote disarmament, to try for a settlement in the Middle East, to deal with the huge problems of newly liberated African peoples, to face up to the windy young dictator in Cuba without alienating the Cuban people, to handle various home-grown economic problems and purposes, including the ambitious task of 'wiping out poverty here in the United States'—such is the appalling load that the incoming President has cheerfully accepted."

A news release from the Central Louisiana Electric Company reports that hogs are getting to be such a major enterprise in that state that farmers are jokingly calling them the number one mortgage-lifter. Pig breeders are helping to curb swine loss. It seems that one 250-watt infrared brooder lamp when properly installed will keep a large litter of pigs warm and comfortable in the coldest weather. The brooder is constructed so that the sow cannot get under the heat lamp but the pigs can. Pigs readily go to the warmth of the lamp and return to the sow only for food. Under the brooder all pigs relax instead of pushing and fighting for the body heat of the mother.

According to a Tax Foundation study, federal budget expenditures for veterans' services and benefits are estimated at nearly $5.5 billion in the 1961 fiscal year. The payments included compensation and pensions, hospitals and medical care, readjustment benefits, insurance and service-men's indemnities, and various other items.

Ralph T. Moore writes in the Oregon Voter: "Sooner or later we must spell out precisely what we will stand for with regard to labor unions. And the time is not far away, in view of the growing tendency to organize just about everything. We can not give the unions a carte blanche because we can not tolerate any uncontrolled political or economic force within our republican democracy. A way will have to be found to control without destroying and it won't be easy because it will involve sacrifice and a degree of surrender. But the public must be sovereign."

The Borough of Etna, near Pittsburgh, decided to sell its municipal electric plant to a private utility company. The Public Utility Commission has approved the sale and each resident of the Borough will save an estimated $1.75 a month.

The Bureau of National affairs reports that wage increases becoming effective in 1961 under contracts now in force will average just over eight cents an hour.

One of the most horrible offenses in the sordid history of crime is the brutal sexual attack on the body of a small, innocent child. The threat of the Child molester hangs over each and every community in our country. Swift and decisive action is necessary to assure that these human vultures who prey on children will be removed from our socie. A foremost measure of crime prevention against this type of criminal is a program of educating children in regard to the dangers of being lured by strangers. The protection of the Nation's children is the responsibility not only of parents but also of police and the public.

In 1939 the U. S. national debt was $42 billion, and that of all other nations $116 billion. In December, 1959 our debt was $290 billion, and that of all other nations $243 billion.

CURRENT EVENTS
FIFTY YEARS AGO

The heavy rains of this week have replenished low wells and streams at a most unexpected time. As there was little frost in the ground, the rain soaked in pretty thoroughly, so that the long drouth may be said to be broken for the winter.

Mr. R. B. Everhart has removed the "Model Bakery" to his new location on Emmitsburg St., where he now has a complete modern steam bakery outfit equal to the best anywhere. He will also have more room and be better able to handle his large business.

Mr. William M. Reindollar, returned home on Thursday after spending two weeks with his son Thomas and family of Baltimore.

Mr. Robert Fair, of Baltimore spent Sunday and Monday with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel H. Fair.

A Masquerade Party. A masquerade party and dance was held at the home of Mr. Geo. Weishaar, on New Year's Eve. A very pleasant evening was spent in playing games and dancing, when at 11 o'clock all were invited to the dining room where refreshments were served consisting of ice cream, cakes, candy, nuts, lemonade and wine. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Weishaar, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Warren, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Coe, Mr. and Mrs. Monroe Bankard, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Sullivan, Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Miller, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Stuller, Mrs. Herbert Smith, Misses Bertha Click, Edith, Jennie and Myrtle Weishaar, Lillie Sherman, Margaret and Lula Warner, Mary Stuller, Clara and Vallie Shoemaker, Nannie and Nora Miller, Mary, Edna, Virgie and Grace Coe, Mary Bankard, Pauline and Carrie Smith; Messrs Thos. The Board of Directors of The Potomac Edison Company yesterday elected Mr. Martin J. Urner of Hagerstown to the post of assistant vice president and an officer of the company. In his new capacity Mr. Urner will work with and assist the vice president in charge of engineering and operating.

A veteran of 35 years service with Potomac Edison, Urner is a native of Frederick, Md., and a graduate in electrical engineering of Johns Hopkins University, class of 1925. He joined the electric company as a member of the substation construction department upon graduation from college.

In 1926 Urner was named district engineer in Frederick. Two years later he was transferred to Hagerstown as assistant distribution engineer. In subsequent years he was involved in a series of appointments, each bringing increased responsibilities until in 1958 he was made manager of transmission and distribution. This post he held until yesterday's action.

Urner is a member of the Presbyterian Church and of the Board of Trustees of the Hagerstown congregation. He is an enthusiastic hunter and active in gun collecting circles. He is the father of one daughter who is now teaching in San Francisco, and a son who is a student at Johns Hopkins University. Mr. and Mrs. Urner reside in Fountain Head Heights.

Silence

Percy — Did the noise we made worry your folks when I brought you home last night?

Mary — Oh no! It was the silence.

Plenty of Time

Irrigation Can
Be ProfitableIncrease Profits
On Specialty Crops

Irrigation may be profitable on sandy soils where the water supply is close or where specialized crops are grown, says R. C. Hay, University of Illinois agricultural engineer.

On major crops in most of the Illinois soils there is no great need for irrigation, as the soil can hold enough capillary water to give sufficient plant growth. Irrigating soils like clay loam would not increase yield enough to pay for the equipment and labor.

Irrigating high-value specialty crops and hybrid seeds, however, will increase profits enough to justify the cost of expensive equipment.

Hay says water supply is usually the major problem in irrigation. If you are located along a large stream of water or over a high well-water table and have a sandy soil that won't hold capillary water, it would probably pay you to irrigate.

If you intend to have an irrigation well, it must have a minimum capacity of 500 gallons per minute. It takes 27,000 gallons of water to put an inch of water on one acre of land.

The irrigation well will cost as much as $30 a foot to develop, and the pump and power unit will cost $2,000 or more. The pipe, sprinkler heads and fittings to irrigate a 160-acre tract of land will cost about $13,000 on the average.

Availability of plenty of water is often the major problem in irrigation. It takes plenty of water to do the job.

Mince Meat Ideal With Poultry

Mince meat, which once was the most laborious food to prepare and seemingly defied hasty cooks, today holds a distinctive place as a modern convenience food.

A time-honored food of English origin brought to our shores in early Colonial days, it took not hours, but days to prepare. Today it is one of the most popular instant preparation foods in the American home. Mince meat is instantly ready for use at the flip of the container lid—or, within one minute when purchased in condensed form. Either way, its ingredients are skillfully blended and it remains for the consumer to choose the preferred type.

Borden Company home economists used the ready-to-use mince meat to simplify preparation of Father's Favorite Mince Meat Filling. . . and simplicity is particularly appealing to male cooks. The man at your house, or his bachelor brother, will be pleased with the compliments they receive when guests taste this gourmet like treat. Watertown, orange halves (plain or broiled) topped with canned spicy red crabapples make an edible and colorful garnish.

Father's Favorite — Mince Meat Filling
(Makes filling for a 6 pound duck)

- | | |
|------------------------------|------------------------------|
| 1/2 cup butter | 1/2 teaspoon pepper |
| 1/2 cup chopped onions | 3 1/2 cups soft bread crumbs |
| 1/2 cup minced parsley | 1 1/2 cups Ready-to-Use None |
| 1 small clove garlic, finely | Such Mince Meat |
| minced | 1/2 cup orange juice or |
| 3/4 teaspoon salt | cranberry juice cocktail |

Melt butter in small skillet. Add onions; saute until tender. Add parsley, garlic, salt, pepper and onions to bread crumbs. Add mince meat and fruit juice; mix lightly to combine ingredients. Stuff duck with filling. Roast according to favorite method.

Cheese—Lobster Buffet Meal

The early Romans probably were the first to practice the art and blending of cheeses. The French were parlaying cheese a thousand years ago. Throughout the years cheese has played an important role in the menus of many nations.

Processed cheeses are flavorful and lend themselves to good cooking. This is especially true of process cheese food. Handled with care and cooked over a low heat, process cheese food evolves as a fine base or sauce for blending with fish, meat or vegetables.

Here's a tasty idea which Borden Company home economists have perfected. It combines the fine art of chafing dish and cheese cookery. Fresh or canned lobster meat is added to the cheese sauce. Christen your gift chafing dish by making this Cheese and Lobster delight. Serve with homemade or frozen waffles.

Cheese and Lobster

(Makes eight, 1/2 cup servings)

- | | |
|--|--------------------------------|
| 6 tablespoons butter | 1/2 lb. Borden's Chateau |
| 1 (8 oz.) can sliced mushrooms drained | Cheese,* shredded |
| 2 tablespoons flour | 4 cups cooked lobster meat, |
| 1/2 teaspoon paprika | cut into pieces |
| 2 cups light cream | 1/2 cup dry vermouth, optional |

Melt butter in blazer pan of chafing dish over direct flame. Add mushrooms; saute until tender, about 3 minutes. Blend in flour and hot water. Cook, stirring constantly, until cheese is melted and mixture thickens slightly. Add lobster meat and vermouth. Cover and cook until lobster meat is thoroughly heated, about 8 minutes. Serve over waffles.

A VOICE FROM CARROLL

The Christmas holidays are over and we are glad. Not that we don't like Christmas or didn't have a happy and wonderful yuletide, but too much of a good thing is just too much. We push all of our cares and responsibilities aside for two weeks and indulge ourselves in too much food, too much leisure and gaiety until finally our body and mind rebel. It proves that no one can survive for very long on just the good things of life. It takes a mixture of comfort and discomfort to really keep us happy.

No one enjoyed a Christmas tree more than Castro, our cat. It was the first year he had ever seen one and at first he was content to eye it at a distance. But finally the glittering balls were too much for his curiosity and before he could be caught eight balls were no longer on the tree. One day we saw the tree swaying from side to side and found Castro perched near the top. After that experience he was never left alone in the room with the tree, but in spite of our vigilance more balls disappeared from its branches. The final act of Castro was to eat the icicles, which he seemed to thoroughly enjoy and also to digest.

The new driver's point system may well be the idea that will put an end to most of the reckless driving here in Maryland. The poster saying "Eight Points, Then You Walk" is one of the most effective pieces of warning we have ever seen. It has the same effect as an officer of the law stopping you along the highway and saying: "You wouldn't listen, so from now on you can walk and do some real thinking."

Since Americans have such a compulsion against walking no better punishment could have been dreamed up even by the devil himself.

A small girl squeezed the leg of her new baby brother and observed, "Feels soft-boiled, doesn't he?"

A taste for irony has kept more hearts from breaking than a sense of humor. For it takes irony to appreciate a joke which is on oneself.

During the holidays there were some good things on television, but the one program that we enjoyed the most was "Victory at Sea" the story of the U.S. Navy during the second world war. As we watched the beautiful ships, the angry sea, the dedicated enemy and the members of our own dedicated navy, we grew more and more resentful of the various criticisms of our navy and men by a few writers.

It is true that every man can not be a hero, but what impressed us while watching "The Victory at Sea" unfolded was the way each man went about his duty calmly and surely while all about him was the enemy, death and the sea. And never shall we forget the Marines on the islands in the Pacific. Tenderness is a woman's trait by inheritance, but tenderness in a man born of necessity is something wonderful to see. The way the marines cared for their wounded comrades and the look of compassion on their faces as they died on the far off islands is an emotional experience that a civilian should forever remember. The American Navy both by tradition and experience is one of the finest things that America has produced.

We visited a Home For the Aged during the Christmas season and while everything was more than adequate both in physical comfort and personal kindness we came away with the feeling that caring for our aged should be a family affair if it is humanly possible. We can not help but remember how much trouble we must have been when we were young. How many nights our parents lost their rest when we had the measles, the mumps, the whooping cough, diphtheria and all the other things that came around. How much worry they must have gone through until we grew up and how much it must have cost them until we were able to assume our own money problems. We think of the years they gave up social affairs to stay home with us to see that we were safe. We think of the many sacrifices they made in our behalf. And we remember that old people require very little except kindness and patience. This we owe our parents for the hundreds of times they were patient and kind to us.

Ignorance is the night of mind, but a night without moon or star.

There is so much folklore concerning New Year's day that it requires a volume to contain it. Some are ridiculous while others are more reasonable. In one locality in England, bands of straw were put under the feet New Year's day while at the table. When the meal was finished, one person got under the table and another one sat on his back and drew out the bands of straw. These were taken to the orchards and bound around trees, which were thereby insured to bear a full crop of fruit the next year. The old Romans did not give up New Years day wholly to feasting or idleness, as is done in most countries but every-one worked a little at his trade for the sake of luck throughout the year.

The Chinese in this country as well as in China, bid good-bye annually to the god of the kitchen, giving him thanks for his protection of the family during the year, after which he is supposed to make his annual journey to heaven to report to the "pearly emperor" the condition of the family and how it has behaved during the year. To avoid unpleasant disclosures, the god is regaled with quantities of candy so sticky that his lips are too full for utterance, being glued too tight to speak. The night before the Chinese New Year, the dusky little god is supposed to return, and gets another supply of sugar and tidbits which he is supposed to like. It is an old Dutch superstition that if you want to marry the girl you love, your watch must be the first one she hears, and your face the first she sees, on New Year's morning. (We suppose here is where all lovers got the idea of staying out till morning.)

Well, so much for folklore. On New Year's eve we took a walk with a ten year old miss in her neighborhood in Baltimore to see the lights and decorations. She lives in a strictly residential section of the city where no business of any kind can locate. The houses were beautifully decorated with lights, stars and trees. There was scarcely anyone walking in the streets and for a city it was unusually quiet except for my small companion who insisted upon briefing me on the neighborhood gossip. She was impressed that an adult would leave the warmth and fun of a party to go walking the icy streets of the city just to see Christmas lights. We walked until we happened to remember the many lurid stories we had been reading in the papers which made us quicken our steps homeward. We never knew that people in the city celebrate the incoming year the same way as people do in the country. But they do. At twelve midnight shots are fired, bells ring and people come out of their houses with noise makers and for five minutes or so bedlam breaks loose. Its all corny and very American but the children both young and old love it. On this happy note we would like to wish everyone a year of many blessings and some of them mixed blessings so that we become aware of those who have so little and share with them our thoughts, our ideas and our material abundance.

The chorologue was interspersed with choral and orchestra arrangements of Christmas Carols. They included: "Joy to the World" - orchestra and chorus, "O Little Town of Bethlehem" - orchestra and chorus, "Calm Was The Hallowed Night" - chorus, "Sing, Angels, Sing" - chorus, "Silent Night, Holy Night" - orchestra and chorus, "We Three Kings" - chorus, "The First Noel" - orchestra and chorus, "Hallelujah" - orchestra and chorus.

Following the program, the audience was invited to participate in the singing of Christmas Carols, accompanied by the orchestra.

After the program, Mr. Francis Smith extended seasons greetings from the faculty and student to the P.T.A. parents and friends.

An attractive woman psychiatrist attended a lecture. A man sitting next to her began to pinch her. Annoyed, she was about to give him an angry retort. Then she changed her mind. "Why should I get angry?" she decided. "After all it's his problem."

FARMING AROUND

By Mark Welsh

It takes 50,000 to 75,000 bees to produce a pound of honey in a day. But, in gathering pollen from plant to plant they may set the fruit for hundreds of apples and peaches, double the seed yield of clover fields, and fly hundreds of miles in the making of that pound of honey. The bee probably doesn't know it, but the making of honey is really not her most important job.

A farm gasoline tank sitting in the sun can cost you plenty. As much as 15 per cent a month of the gasoline can evaporate through the usual vent. A pressure gas cap will cut this loss. The tank can be shaded, but it's best to put it underground for safety and economy.

Who eats the most in your family? In the family of nations, according to U.N. reports, the Irish and Danes run a close race. The Irish consume an average of 3510 calories per person per day and the Danes a close 3500. New Zealanders eat 3300; Swiss 3240; Australians 3230; Canadians 3140 and United States folk 3100. If we could get our people to eat as much as the Irish, we would soon have no farm surplus problems.

Some other folk don't fare so well, however. The people of the Philippines and of India get less than 2000 calories per person per day, and those of Pakistan, Ceylon and Japan receive only slightly more. Abundant, cheap fertilizer and plant foods in this country plus the skills of our farmers keep us out of the hunger groups. Surplus may be bad but it's better than food shortages.

The hardened and oft-convicted prisoner was before the bar for sentencing. "I find you guilty on 26 counts," said the judge, "and I sentence you to five years on each count, making a total of 130 years."

The prisoner, already well along in years burst into tears. The judge, taking this as a sign of remorse, said in a softened tone:

"I didn't mean to be harsh. I realized I have imposed an unusually severe sentence. You don't have to serve the 130 years."

With a benign smile the judge leaned toward the prisoner, whose face showed newly-found hope: "Just do as much as you can."

Dress Up Pork With Glazed Pineapple

Pork, pineapple and rice combined in a budget-saver casserole. Pineapple with pork is a hard-to-beat combination. Golden, spiced pineapple slices are the perfect flavor blend for browned and juicy pork chops in a new casserole which also features rice. As lovely to look at as it is nutritious, the party appearance of this dish belies its simple preparation. Accompany this oven meal with garden relishes, hot rolls and tea.

Pineapple Pork Chops 'n' Rice

6 slices canned pineapple
18 whole cloves
6 pork chops, salt, pepper
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1/2 green pepper, diced
1 large onion, chopped
2 ribs celery, diced
1 cup raw rice (converted-type)
2 1/2 cups hot chicken stock or bouillon
1 teaspoon salt
Generous pinch dried thyme
Brown sugar, butter

Drain pineapple, stick with cloves. Put in small dish with 3 tablespoons pineapple syrup. Cover; let stand at room temperature. Season chops with salt and pepper, brown in greased skillet. Remove from pan. In same pan, heat butter till bubbly. Sauté green pepper, onion and celery. Add rice. Toss and cook until hot; then pour into 2-quart casserole. Lay chops on top. Cover tightly and bake in moderate oven (350° F.) 1 hour, until rice is fluffy and liquid absorbed. Lay pineapple over chops, drizzle with a little pineapple syrup and a light sprinkle of brown sugar. Dot with butter. Cook uncovered until fruit is heated through and lightly glazed. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Roast Turkey Can Be Better

To help you turn out the best roast turkey of your kitchen career, home economists of Foley Manufacturing Company have come up with six new and time-saving tips on turkey preparation.

1. Use the adjustable V-shaped roasting rack and pan now available in kitchenware departments. Like the rotating spit, this permits full circulation of heat for true roasting and eliminates the steam-braising effect of deep-pan cooking. It cradles any size fowl—or roast—perfectly and holds it clear of cooking greases.
2. Roast your turkey for half the cooking period before adding dressing. This saves as much as an hour of cooking time by letting heat penetrate from the inside out, and allows you to prepare the dressing while your bird is roasting. You'll find the dressing easier to insert, too, in the firm, partially-roasted fowl.
3. Roast the turkey for half the period breast-down, then reverse it. This is easy to do with the convenient V-shaped rack.
4. Before roasting, season the cavity and add a bouquet garnish (a stalk of celery, a carrot, bayleaf and a sprig of parsley) plus an onion studded with six whole cloves. Tie the bouquet garnish with string to simplify its removal before adding dressing, and place it in the pan for gravy flavoring.
5. When you stuff your turkey, don't bother to sew the bird. Just close it by inserting a heel of the bread used for dressing.
6. To separate grease from gravy juices easily, drop ice cubes into the pan, then remove them quickly with tongs or slotted spoon. Grease will adhere to the ice.

The more things you can accomplish with a tool, the more its value to you increases.

This is particularly true of portable electric tools that can meet your repair and maintenance around the house and farm.

Since so many of the things to be worked with are made of wood, it's sensible to have an all-around tool that will meet and beat those woodworking problems and still have a lot of applications for the other jobs.

Powered FarmTool designed for work in close quarters.

There's a versatile FarmTool—an electric impact wrench—that fills such needs and fills them with plenty of power to spare. Its attachments actually make it 10 tools in 1. It can bore holes in wood, drill in metal, ream, tap, tighten or remove nuts on equipment, polish or sand—just a wide variety of jobs that ordinarily require many tools.

An electric tool such as this has advantages over hand tools in work being done in close quarters, too—such as boring holes in joists in areas where maneuvering space is limited.

But this problem—and dozens of others like it—is whipped with electric-powered equipment such as the FarmTool. It bores two-inch holes in joists or any other wood as long as you can position the auger—and it requires no turning or heavy musclework. There's no problem in withdrawing the auger either for there's a reversible sliding switch conveniently seated on the handle that spins the auger out.

No-twist action of such an electric tool allows you to use it in over-the-head positions without danger of the tool wrenching out of your hand.

Tips on Touring

Facts and Figures

What would America be like without cars? Of course, we'd miss the comfort and convenience, but try to imagine what would happen to our economy.

One out of every six businesses in America can be considered automotive. Industries connected with motor transportation employ about one out of every seven workers.

The trucking industry alone employs 6½ million persons. There are 790,000 people in automotive plants. Road maintenance takes 493,000 people. The crude oil and refining industry has created jobs for another 294,000. In addition, there are 193,000 service stations in the United States.

There are about 88,000 new and used-car dealers in this country. Car sales and service means work for 2,023,000 persons. Another 700,000 people make batteries, car stampings, electrical equipment, or are in insurance and financial companies related to automobiles.

The automobile industry uses 48.4% of the malleable iron produced in the United States, 70% of the plate glass, 63% of the leather, 63% of the rubber, 16.9% of the steel, and 42.5% of the lead.

You see, the cars that provide so much pleasure and convenience to us provide a great many jobs as well.

Cobbler - Plum Good Eating!

You'd better count more than noses when you make an old-time favorite Fruit Cobbler using the season's fresh purple plums. Somebody's going to ask for seconds!

Don't let the all-too-short season of these delicious purple plums (fresh Italian prunes) pass by without making this quick and easy version of a cobbler using the purple plums alone or in combination with fresh peaches. Better yet, stow away in your freezer some of these plums, coming into our markets from Idaho—plump, sweet, tantalizingly ready to eat out of hand or in made dishes such as this. With a supply laid away, you can enjoy them on into the winter.

Purple Plum Cobbler, Idaho Style

Fruit mixture:
1 and ½ cups granulated sugar
3 tablespoons cornstarch
½ teaspoon cinnamon
1 cup water
3 tablespoons butter
4 cups (1 quart) quartered fresh Idaho purple plums
1 cup sliced peaches, fresh or thawed frozen fruit

Mix together sugar, cornstarch, cinnamon. Stir in water. Bring to the boiling point over low heat, stirring constantly. Remove from heat. Fold in peaches and purple plums. Pour into shallow oblong baking dish, 1½x7½x2 inches, approximately.

Crust topping:
1 and ½ cups prepared biscuit mix
½ cup granulated sugar
¾ cup light cream or undiluted evaporated milk
2 teaspoons grated orange rind
Combine biscuit mix with ¼ cup of the sugar. Add cream or undiluted evaporated milk; stir only until ingredients are moistened. Drop 6 to 8 portions onto the fruit mixture. Mix remaining sugar and orange rind. Sprinkle over the topping. Bake in a 400 degree F. (moderately hot) oven 30 to 35 minutes or until fruit is tender and crust is cooked and a light brown.

Serve warm, as is, or topped with whipped cream and a dash or three of cinnamon, or with a pitcher of pour-on cream. Sometime, as a topping, try a dollop of thick dairy-soured cream or a spoonful of cream cheese whipped to a fluff with a bit of milk or cream. Yield: 6 generous servings. Peaches may be omitted. Use 5 cups quartered fresh purple plums. Note: This is a freestone fruit. A flick of the paring knife and the seed zips right out.

HUNTERS' HELPER

FLARE RED FOR SAFETY

With a record number of hunters hitting the trails in search of game this year, the woods and fields are becoming increasingly hazardous. As an aid to accident prevention, flare-red tissues in pocket-size "hunters' pack" are being used in the woods. The bright red color eliminates that flash of white which can signal "deer" to other hunters.

Chocolate Brownies Win Top Prize

That teen-age brides can be first-rate homemakers was dramatically proven by Mrs. Donald Everitt of Neshanic Station, N. J., whose rich, delicious brownies, made with both unsweetened chocolate and chocolate chips, won top honors for cookies at the National Grange Bake-Off in Winston-Salem, N. C. Eighteen-year old Jacquelyn Everitt represented her 6-state Grange Region No. 11 comprising New Jersey, New York, Delaware, Maryland, Ohio and Pennsylvania. Here, for you to try, is Mrs. Everitt's prize-winning recipe for:

Double Chocolate Brownies

¾ cup sifted all-purpose flour
1 cup sugar
½ teaspoon double-acting baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
½ cup shortening, softened
2 eggs, unbeaten
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 squares unsweetened chocolate, melted and slightly cooled
1 cup coarsely chopped nuts
¾ cup chocolate chips

Measure sifted flour, add sugar, baking powder, and salt, and sift together into mixing bowl. Add shortening, eggs, and vanilla. Beat at medium speed of electric mixer 1 minute, scraping down sides of bowl occasionally. Add melted chocolate and beat ½ minute longer, or until batter is evenly blended. Stir in nuts and chips. Pour batter into a greased 8-inch square pan. Bake in a moderate oven (350°F.) 30 to 35 minutes. Cool in pan, cutting into squares or rectangles while slightly warm. Makes about 20 brownies.

That's How It Really Started!

GENERAL MARK W. CLARK, World War II 4-star General and now president of the prominent military college, The Citadel, points to a section of a mural which illustrates the firing of what really was the first shot of the War Between the States. The mural, first of a series of eight, shows cadets from The Citadel shooting at the Federal ship "Star of the West" which was attempting to re-provision the garrison at Fort Sumter. The firing was on January 9, 1861, some three months before the attack on Fort Sumter which actually precipitated the war. The "Star of the West" episode will be re-enacted under General Clark's direction on the Centennial of the event next January.

time if you follow a few hints from the makers of Vaseline petroleum jelly. For instance, why worry about hard-to-insert light bulbs for the Christmas tree? A small amount of petroleum jelly applied to light sockets will guarantee easy entry of bulbs and, more important, will keep your sockets rust-free until next year. And if you have a metal tree stand, there's nothing better for lubricating its various parts than petroleum jelly. You'll save holiday time and effort with these simple hints. And you'll profit throughout the year as you find other jobs for this product of a thousand uses.

A LONG, SLIM JEWELER'S BOX that opens to reveal a breathtaking watch has become the ultimate in Christmas gifts. Teen-agers, adults, grandpa—all are wreathed in smiles if there's a beautiful timepiece for them under the Christmas tree. One "hit" watch this year, high up in Santa's pile of mail, is an oval-faced Elgin with an antique-looking gold mesh wrist band. The watch face can be intriguingly covered, an appeal to all "pixie" females, or open-faced for literal-minded clock-watchers. Studded with rhinestones and priced right, this Starline among timepieces is a Christmas jingle if ever there was one. Timepieces with "gadget appeal" are also available for men. Cuff-link watches with backs that open for treasured secret pictures, slim lapel watches with self-winding, shock-proof mechanisms, or money-clip watches are always acceptable remembrances for the men of the family.

Joy Is The Sign

Lesson for January 8, 1961

CERTAIN shining words appear over and over again in the Gospel by John, like gleaming threads woven into a beautiful fabric. These words are hard to define. They suggest rather than describe. They are poetic, in that they convey or induce moods rather than call up sharp clear pictures. They may perplex the mind but they fascinate the heart. One of these words is "Glory." It is hard to say precisely what the means, but we can see that in the Fourth Gospel it is always associated with God. It refers to the whole wonderful, indescribable, awe-compelling, overwhelming presence of the living God. Now the message of the Fourth Gospel can be summed up this way: The whole life of Jesus of Nazareth brought the glory of God wherever he was and whatever he did. Jesus is quoted as looking back on his life (as he was praying in the upper room), putting it all into these words: "I glorified thee on earth, having accomplished the work which thou gavest me to do... the glory which thou hast given me I have given them." (John 17.)

Dr. Foreman

The Power and the Glory

The plan of John's Gospel, for the first twelve chapters, is simple: the author presents seven stories about Jesus. Each one tells about something Jesus did, and the author calls each of these acts a sign, a sign of glory. The first of these is the story of Jesus at a wedding in a little country town called Cana. (Not to be confused with Canaan.) One feature of these stories, a peculiarity the modern reader might call it, is that each of them presents a kind of miracle. In other words, these were acts of power. Jesus did not appear to be under the same limitations which hamper the rest of us. These miracle-stories, or power-stories, bother many 20th-century readers. We are more ready to believe a miracle announced by the American Medical Association or the National Aeronautics and Space Program; than we are, to believe the miracles of the Bible. Be that as it may, the least you could say about these Gospel miracles is this: The impression which Jesus left on those who knew him was such that he could not be described in ordinary routine language. Only the language of mystery, of power beyond ordinary man's understanding, can describe what he was and did. On the other hand, the most that can be said is this: If Jesus Christ was really not simply a man, but the eternal Word of God become a man, if (as the Phillips translation puts it) the Expression of God became a human being, then he himself, by himself, without doing a thing, was more miraculous than anything he could do.

Glory, Power, Service

Yet there is something quite strange about this after all. If you were making this story up out of your head, and began (as John does) with a man whose life actually radiated the glory of God, what would you invent as the high points, the climatic moments, of that glory? You would almost certainly not think of the simple truth. It would seem a little too simple. Here is the Number One Sign, the first opportunity Jesus had to make use of his great mysterious powers. What does he do with it? Of all things, he uses it to keep a country wedding party from being a failure.

Joy is the Sign

God is never snobbish; he leaves that to foolish people. But some snobs try to make God one like themselves. They picture Jesus in a kind of perpetually dismal mood just because he had to be born and live among sinful and foolish people. They associate God with pain, gloom. "Acts of God" are earthquakes, tidal waves, catastrophes. What one-sided nonsense! The first "sign" of the divine glory that John describes is associated with joy. To come into the presence of God it is not necessary to wipe all smiles off your face. It is true, God may be found in the Valley of the Shadow of Death; but he is also to be found upon the mountains of delight.

The builders at the new Carroll County General Hospital are now progressing with the interior walls and expect to begin plastering operations in about two or three weeks. The above view of the northwest, or patient side of the hospital, indicates the generous use of glass throughout the building.

James A. McCallum, Jr., administrator of the Carroll County General, announced today that employment application forms have been mailed to all people who have expressed an interest in employment opportunities at the new hospital. Mr. McCallum stated, that the completed employment forms will be kept on the in the anticipation of actual job interviewing which will begin in the spring. Employment prospects will be asked to report for interviews on the basis of the information contained on the application forms.

Any other persons interested in future employment at the hospital are asked to contact the Hospital Fund Headquarters, Tilden 8-8521 in order to have employment application forms sent to them, or write 6 E. Main St., Westminster, Md.

BREW INSTANT COFFEE BY THE POTFUL

A friendly pot of coffee, always a symbol of hospitality, is the focal point of any morning gathering of friends and neighbors. Instant coffee, long the favorite for the individual cup, is ideal for serving by the pot. And when it's made in the larger container, the flavor of the coffee has an opportunity to develop to its fullest.

Into your handsomest coffee pot or carafe, spoon Instant Chase & Sanborn Coffee, using a heaping teaspoon for each cup of water. Add rapidly boiling water and you have a truly delicious coffee, with the richness of pure coffee nectar.

Instant coffee is both convenient and economical for making and serving by the pot. Additional pots of coffee appear almost without effort. You can always have fresh coffee and in just the amount you need. For complete coffee enjoyment, use freshly drawn tap water brought to a full, rolling boil.

Instant coffee remains fresh and full-bodied also while held in the pot, piping hot over a candle warmer or heating unit, ready for second and third cup service. Accompany the coffee with quick and delicious Coffee Break Muffins which are flavored with orange and raisins. Add a crumb-topped coffee cake, if desired.

COFFEE BREAK MUFFINS

2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
2/4 cup sugar
3 teaspoons baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 egg

3/4 cup milk
1/4 cup orange juice
1/4 cup orange rind
1/4 cup melted margarine
1/2 cup raisins

Sift flour, sugar, baking powder and salt into mixing bowl. Beat egg until frothy. Add milk, orange juice and orange rind. Add shortening. Make a small well in flour mixture. Pour in milk-orange mixture. Add raisins. Stir just enough to combine. Fill greased muffin cups two-thirds full. Bake about 25 minutes in a hot oven (425° F.). Makes 12 2 1/2-inch muffins.

Christian Scientists claim fluoridation is an invasion of their beliefs against the use of medicine. The doctors point out that fluoridation is in no sense medication, but a matter of balancing the diet to include what nature has provided in many places. There is no practical way to do this other than fluoridation of the water, to be done right, fluoridation must be measured according to local needs, and this could never be done by fluoridating foods sold on a state-wide or national scale.

IS IT DANGEROUS?

It would take five or ten of these columns to begin to cover all the points in detail, and so I will summarize only the main ones.

In general, though, I might point out that when a non-scientist is confronted with a dispute like this, he logically asks for a comparison of the qualifications of those on both sides.

Coming out in favor of the safety of the fluoridation program is every major medical, dental, and health group in the entire country. They include the American Medical Association, the American Public Health Association, the U. S. Public Health Service, the Inter-Association on Health, composed of the American Dental Association, the American Medical Association, the American Hospital Association, American Nurses Association, American Public Health Association, American Public Welfare Association, and others. All state dental societies of the country have now approved it.

Insisting fluoridation is harmful are an extremely small scattering of doctors and a few semi-private groups organized for the purpose.

Again, believe personally what you wish, but I do not see how any Catholic can be said to have a moral obligation to presume that the medical advice of all these professional organizations is wrong. Looking only at the weight of authority, a Catholic could reasonably assume he has no moral obligation to oppose fluoridation.

But let us go on to a few of the most hotly debated points.

THE OPPONENTS of fluoridation say fluoridation is a terribly dangerous poison. This is their main theme.

Those in favor of fluoridation agree that fluorine is a poison, but emphasize that, when you speak of a poison, you must keep in mind how much is needed to act as poison.

Other terribly powerful poisons, they say, are the chlorine in the water you drink, the iodine added to the salt most of us eat, the copper sulphate, aluminum sulphate, and other chemicals used by the water companies to purify the water.

All this talk about poison is nothing new. There were national rows and even court actions when chlorine was first used to make the drinking water safe. There was a lot of talk about the poisonous nature of aluminum cooking utensils.

The answer of those favoring the program is simply that the amount of fluorine to be used is so small it is no way poisonous to the human system.

THE OPPONENTS argue that fluorine is a "cumulative" poison. This means that while the small amount may not be poisonous, the human system stores it up until it reaches poisonous amounts, affecting the various human organs.

The proponents of fluoridation answer that tests prove this claim false.

Tests at the University of Rochester and elsewhere, for instance, show the human system amazingly equipped to eliminate nearly all the fluorine it takes in. The teeth are especially receptive to the small amount that remains.

What if some human being were in some strange way to keep within his system absolutely all the fluorine he would drink in 100 years of the fluoridation program in his city (mixing 1 ppm—part per million—in the water)? The Rochester group made autopsies of individuals coming from areas of high natural fluoridation, people who showed no harmful signs from fluoridation. In the bones of these individuals they found enough fluorine to equal that total amount that would be taken in a lifetime at 1 ppm. And all this did no harm.

THOSE WHO OPPOSE fluoridation accuse the proponents of advocating a program before any research has been done on the subject.

And the proponents answer that the records show a tremendous amount of research. The Kettering Laboratory at the University of Cincinnati College of Medicine is mainly concerned with the injuries to workmen as a result of industrial processes. It has looked into the effects on the human body of almost every chemical used in industry, and it has spent much time on fluorine. In the process it has gathered a bibliography of about 5,000 articles and works on the physiological aspects of fluorides as they apply to human bodies, animals, and plants.

An dalthugh research on fluorides goes back to 1908 and actual civic programs started as early as 1945, it was not until Dec. 1, 1951, that the American Medical Association gave its opinion that the use of fluorine is safe. This could hardly be called a hasty approval.

The pro-fluoridation people also point to the records of those communities where artificial fluoridation programs have been in effect for some years. As of a year ago there were 674 such communities in the United States, and the U. S. Public Health Service reported it had not yet received one valid complaint of injurious effects.

Most of the anti-fluoridation articles I have seen quoted figures to show that Grand Rapids (the first city to have the program) had a 50-per-cent increase in deaths from nephritis between 1944 (the year before the program started) and 1948 (585 to 1,089). But none of them bothers to point out that the first figure refers to Grand Rapids itself, and the second to all of Kent County, of which Grand Rapids is only a part (in the 1940 and 1950 census, about 60 per cent.).

But the best test of all, insist the pro-fluoridation people, is the record of those many areas of the country where about 3,000,000 people have from their birth been drinking water that already contains fluorine. Some of those areas run much higher in fluorine content than the 1 ppm that the dental program talks about. Some of them go as high as 14 ppm. Here in our own diocese the people of Galesburg have always drunk water with a fluorine content of 1.9 ppm, and East Moline water runs 1.2 ppm fluorine.

In Bauxite, Ark., the water used from the early 1900s to the late 1920s ran 14 ppm fluorine. And yet the proponents insist that no one has been able to find any sign of injury other than the mottling of teeth, which admittedly occurs when the fluorine content runs too high.

BUT NATURAL FLUORIDATION is entirely different from artificial fluoridation, say the opponents of the program. The "natural" form is "organic" and does not deposit in the system the way the artificially introduced fluorine does.

The defenders of the safety of the program say that chemically there is absolutely no difference between the two. When they speak of 1.9 ppm of fluorine in Galesburg water, they mean the actually ionized fluorine that the test chemicals are able to combine with. This is the very same as any artificially introduced fluorine ions. And if anything like an "organic" fluorine does exist in the water, it does not enter into the concentration tests in any way.

In the one case the water flows through fluoride-bearing strata of the earth before it is drunk. In the other case, the fluoride is taken from the earth and carried to those areas where there are no fluoride strata.

WHAT ABOUT AN ERROR by the water company? The opponents say a fault in the measuring machinery might poison the whole community?

Those who say the plan is safe point out that the same thing could theoretically happen with the present chemicals used by the water companies. But the mixing machinery is accurate to within five per cent. And when you consider that it would take 450 ppm of fluorine to make a fatal dose of a glass of water, the possibility becomes fantastic. This would take four tons of sodium fluoride per million gallons of water, while the machinery ordinarily put in only 18 pounds. The Peoria Water Works tells me it uses an average of 16,000,000 gallons per day. This would ordinarily take 288 pounds of sodium fluoride to make one ppm. A fatal slip would have to put in 64 tons in the one day.

LAST BUT FAR FROM LEAST is the fact that the medical authorities who defend the safety of fluoridation call it a "calculated risk." The opponents make a lot of this, calling it a gamble with the lives of millions.

But the scientists insist we must understand their language. If you ever asked a doctor a direct question and got a direct answer, you were probably surprised. No scientist likes to make an absolute statement. And when you ask a scientist whether he can actually prove that fluorine in water at a ration of one ppm will never at any time be a cause of possible harm to any individual, he will have to say no.

But in Senate hearings scientists admitted the same thing about 276 of the 704 chemicals used today in foodstuffs—chemicals that are preservatives, flavorings, etc.

In a scientist's language, you are taking a calculated risk when you get out of bed in the morning. You cannot prove you will not fall and break your neck.

WHAT I HAVE SAID HERE does not prove the fluoridation program is desirable. I think it does show there is enough competent testimony in favor of the safety of fluoridation that at least it cannot be shown it is dangerous. There is enough dispute about the whole thing so that no Catholic is under a moral obligation to recognize it as dangerous.

Once again I emphasize I am not promoting or attacking any fluoridation program. I am simply defending myself as a Catholic editor against the assertion I am morally negligent in not attacking the program. I am simply saying I never have and still do not see any side of the fluoridation dispute as a moral question.

In the light of that same judgment I would have to say that objectively no Catholic has to feel any moral obligation to favor either side of the question.

Good Car* Keeping Tips

by Vernon Volland

WOMEN SPEECHLESS?

Woman's vocabulary is every bit as rich and varied as man's, psychologists will tell you. But there is one area where women draw a blank, a survey by Good Car* Keeping Institute shows.

Ordinarily able to express the most complicated thought with ease, most women become practically speechless when faced with the necessity of explaining an ailment of their car to the local garageman. And nearly half the licensed drivers in the United States are women.

Good Car* Keeping Institute is a non-profit organization devoted to the improvement of appearance and mechanical maintenance of the nation's privately owned automobiles.

Now, there are more than 15,000 parts in the average car and, of course, no one expects even a mechanic to know the names of them all.

Men, for all their grinning superiority, usually kick the tires and talk symptoms when they take their car in for repairs. Just knowing the major symptoms and their causes will make you the wonder of your local repair shop and a subject of new respect.

SYMPTOM NO. 1 — Motor Miss—Could be caused by . . . spark plug gaps too wide or fouled . . . weak coil or condenser . . . weak breaker points or springs.

SYMPTOM NO. 2 — Hard Starting—Could be caused by . . . weak battery . . . moisture on spark plugs or in distributor . . . faulty battery cable or ground connection . . . weak coil or condenser . . . spark plugs worn or dirty . . . carburetor needs cleaning or adjusting.

SYMPTOM NO. 3 — Expensive Appetite—It probably is . . . defective carburetor . . . valves need grinding . . . spark plugs need cleaning, adjusting or replacing.

SYMPTOM NO. 4 — Shaky Steering—Probably results of . . . defective steering gear . . . front wheels not in alignment . . . unequal tire pressure or worn flat tires . . . loose connecting rods.

SYMPTOM NO. 5 — Motor Knock—Could be caused by . . . overheated engine . . . overheated spark plugs which cause pre-ignition . . . low value anti-knock . . . excessive deposits in combustion chamber.

SYMPTOM NO. 6 — Runs Hot—Might be caused by . . . defective water pump, cooling system, thermostat or fan belt . . . not enough water in radiator . . . fuel-air mixture too sparse . . . oil low or poorly circulated.

If your troubles don't fall into the above categories, there is one dandy little do-all word that will confuse any garageman. Tell him it's the "stamafren". That'll at least clear the air and give him a fresh start.

Now, after all that skull work under the hood, let's adorn to a section of the car where you will be more at ease. Have you seen the latest auto seat cover patterns? They're sensational!

Why, a Chicago fashion designer even made a couple of high fashion coats out of the material. If your present upholstery is worn out or stained the Good Car* Keeping Institute says you can up-date the car in a hurry with new seat covers so your car will look, feel and even smell new.

Why not clean up the entire car. It would be a relief to have a nice clean car after that agonizing interview down at the repair shop.
