Cong. Brewster of them 2nd District Reporting

The 87th Congress convened in the Capitol at 12 noon on Tuesday, Jan.

The days ahead may well be as crucial and momentous as any in the history of our country. The United States is faced with critical situations in Laos and Cuba. Berlin, the Near East, or the Congo may again erupt at any moment. At home, we need a complete reorganization of our military, a drastic re-evaluation of our itary, a drastic re-evaluation of our unworkable farm program, and we face the possibility of a continuation of the present economic slump and resulting unemployment. These problems and many more present themselves to this new Congress.

In the center of all activity stands the Speaker of the House, Sam Ray-Mr. Rayburn's personal prestige, long experience, and great wisdom make him the dominant figure n the Capitol. The importance his position is overshadowed only by that of the President and Vice Presdent and Vice President.

SAUCE FOR THE GOOSE

No American is likely to question the propriety of President Eisenhower's termination of diplomatic relations with Cuba. It is obvious that reduction of the US Embassy staff to eleven as demanded by Castro would, as the President said, "render impossible the conduct of normal diplomatic relation with that Government". It would also make it impossible for us to process visas for the increasing thousands of worthy Cubans who are striving desperately to flee their native land for sanctuary on the mainland, join the more than 140,-000 who have preceded them.

But many of us will question the timing of this official act. In delaying this severance for two long years after Castro's seizure of power, in withholding action while American properties were seized and destroyed, American citizens abused and humiliated; while the Communist pattern of the "revolution" became clear and the Reds - Russian and Chinesebegan the physical investiture of their Cuban beachhead; and until this Kremlin puppet told us how many people we could have in our embassy, what should be a gesture of warning on our part becomes in a sense an act of accommodation. We are unavoidably reminded of the fellow who, when his boss told him he was fired, retorted: "In that case, I quit".

"There is a limit to what the United States in said respect can endure. That limit has now been reached" said the Presidential understate-

The first formal reaction to the diplomatic break was a statement from the Castro "cabinet" that might well have been written in the Kremlin, so faithfully did it follow the Krushchev pattern of invective against "the administraion of President Eisenhower' and proffer the same delicate hint that they might be able to do business later with President Kennedy.

It may, as the cabinet communique suggests, seem unusual that-after all we have taken from Castro through the months-the President would sever relations with only three weeks of office before him. But if Fidel has finally overstepped the limits of our official endurance, then so indeed has Khrushchev-over a much longer period of time.

In this situation, certainly a sauce suitable for the goose is indicated for the gander .- U. S. Press Association.

THIS MALICIOUS DAMAGE CAUSED HARDSHIPS TO 200 FAMILIES

Some 200 families were affected when vandals recently shot insulators on nearby transmission lines. The resulting power outage caused homes to be without heat, food spoilage, commercial electrical equipment to cease functioning and farmers to be without vital electrical service.

This unthinking vandalism causes serious inconvenience and an actual threat to lives.

NOTICE --- $25.00 REWARD

To help eliminate malicious damage of electrical equipment, we are offering a $25.00 DOLLAR REWARD for information leading to the arrest and conviction of persons responsible for the shooting or intentional damaging of electrical facilities. A VOICE FROM CARROLL

Most American furniture is either

copied or borrowed from other countries, but the rocking chair seems to e as all-American as a football Benjamin Franklin gets the credit for designing it, but never-the-less it can be safely assumed that New England craftsmen had a lot to do with it. No doubt the first rocker was fashioned after the baby's cradle. Seeing his wife gently rock the baby ome thoughtful husband decided that while his wife was tending the baby she should have some comfort too Chairs similiar to rockers appeared about 1740. When the idea first appeared many existing straight chairs were equipped with rockers. We find Windsors, slatbacks, splatter backs, and even bannister backs so converted. We are the proud owner of one of the slatbacks made into a rocker. Once it was introduced the rocker took America by storm. There were rocking chairs of all description, but the nost famous was the Boston rocker. Boston rockers were made in so many forms and so many variations of each form that a collector could have a hundred of American rockers of this type without having duplicates. This type of rocker was not just made in Boston but all-over America, from Mexico to Canada, from Maine to California. And even in England, France, Holland, Germany and Sweden. The civilized world took to the rocking chair like they're grabbing the American aid today. By 1850 the American chair-makers, were a well-organized group. Many of whom had developed their talents into factories and were exporting their chairs everywhere in the world. They loaded them on river boats, canal boats, coastal trading steamers and on covered wagons They had salesman out everywhere carrying samples and pretty soor every household in America had a rocker or wished they had one. Today the rocking chair is still popular although it has gone modern. But still families prize the old rocking chair handed down from Grandma, and at every country sale the rocker is one of the items most sought after. The story of the rocking chair is a fasc-inating one and one that illuminates the history of yankee ingenuity and

And while we are turning our minds and efforts backwards to our own eivil war, let us also give some time and thought to another country which may in the near future have their own civil turmoil. We speak of Africa, the continent which for many years we thought of only in terms of elephants, ungles, witch doctors and sleeping sickness. Now, suddenly over night we must think of Africa as a next door neighbor and one that could threaten our peace and safety. What is Africa really like? The part we are inter-ested in at the moment is "Middle Africa". It runs from the west coast to the east and from a little north of the equator to the border of South Africa. Lying within this rough square are the countries of Kenya, Zanzibar, Uganda, Tanganyika, Northern and Southern Rhodesia, Nyasaland, the Belgian Congo, Angola and Mozambi que. It is an area about which Am ericans know very little and that little is apt to be wrong. The climate s more temperate than tropical. has modern cities as well as primitive tribes. It has some of the world's highest mountains and some of the greatest lakes, and of course some strange animals, although not as many

The African people and culture first came in contact with Europeans as recently as 1860. The course of events in the area can be compared with the early history of America nd the relations between our settlers and the Indians. Africa contains one ountry a quarter the size of our own ountry, that for many years belonged to one man, who lived a thousand niles away and never once visited its kingdom. It is the largest area the world where none of its people independent, and contains the only arge nation in the world where no on allowed to vote. Africa contains hree long and important rivers-the Nile, Congo and Ruwenzori. Seventy. ive years ago Africans knew so little about the world that they didn't eare much what the Europeans did. But some of them know now how valuable Africa is and they want to rule themselves. They resent having a uropean country govern them. Later now he can fit into the modern world after only seventy-five years of contact with it.

When interviewing a new prospect, an insurance man used this effective introduction: "I'm just an ignorant fellow", the insurance man would be-gin. "I don't know much about insurance, but I'm interested in your children and how they're going to get along in later years." Then he would pro-ceed to launch into an enthusiastic and high-powered sales talk. On one occasion he was interrupted by an old farmer who remarked: "You say you don't know much, brother, but I declare you sure do seem to believe in what little you do know!"

"Mister", she began, "would you please let me look at that string of blue beads in the window?" Pete parted the draperies and lifted out a neck-lace. The turquoise stones gleamed brightly against the pallor of his palm as he spread the ornament before her. "There're just perfect," said the child, entirely to herself. "Will you wrap them up pretty if you please for me?" Pete studied her with a stony air. "Are you buying these for some one?" "They're for my big sister. She takes care of me. You see. this will be the first Christmas since Mother died. I've been looking for the most wonderful Christmas present for my sister." "How much money do you have?" asked Peter warily. She had been busily untying the knots in a handkerchief, and now she pour ed out a handful of pennies on the counter. "I emptied my bank", she explained simply. Pete Richards looked at her thoughtfully. Then he carefully drewback the necklace; the price tag was visible to him but not to her. How could he tell her? The trusting look of her blue eyes smote him like the pain of an old wound. "Just a minute", he said, and turned toward the back of the store. Over his shoulder he called, "What's your name?" He was very busy about

Through the window he watched her go, while desolation flooded his thoughts. Something about Jean Grace and her string of beads had stirred him to the depths of a grief that would not stay buried. The child's hair was wheat yellow, her eyes sea-blue and once upon a time, not long ago, Pete had been in love with a girl with hair of that same yellow and with eyes just as blue. And the turquoise necklace was to have been hers. But there had come a rainy nighta truck skidding on a slippery roadand the life was crushed out of his dream. Since then Pete Richards had lived too much with his grief and solitude. He was politely attentive to customers but after business hours his world seemed irrevocably empty. The blue eyes of Jean Grace jolted him into acute rememberance of what he had lost. The pain of it made him recoil from the exuberance of holiday shoppers. During the next ten days trade was brisk; chattering women swarmed in, fingering trinkets, trying to bargain. When the last customer had gone, late on Christmas Eve, he sighed with relief. It was over for another year. But for Pete Richards the night was not quite over. The door opened and a young wo-man hurried in. With an inexplicable start, he realized that she looked familiar, yet he could not remember when or where he had seen her before. Her hair was golden yellow and her large eyes were blue. Without speaking, she drew from her purse a package loosely unwrapped in it's red papper, a bow of green ribbon with it. Presently the string of Blue Beads lay gleaming before him. "Did this come from your shop?" she asked. Pete raised his eyes to hers and answered softly, "Yes, it did." "Are the stones real?" "Yes, not the finest quality—but real!" "Can you remember who but real!" "Can you remember who you sold them to?" "She was a small girl. Her name was Jean. She bought them for her older sister's Christmas present." "How much are they present." "How much are they worth?" "The price," he told her solemnly, "is always a confidential matter between the seller and the customer." "But Jean has never had more than a few pennies at a time for spending money. How could she pay for them?" Pete began folding the Regular Services will be conduct- gay paper back in its creases, reed next Sunday, January 15, at 10:30 wrapping the little package just as a.m. in the Parish House. The American Dental Associant here parent reason and the resulting power outage affected the entire town of Emmitsburg, Mt. St. Mary's College, Saint Joseph's, and nearby areas.

The American Dental Assoc., in the pages of whose official magazine the above editorial appeared sixteen years ago, is at present the most devout official champion of water fluoridation, with the exception of the Unit-ed States Public Health Service.

Morgan stated. "The shooting occured during one of our recent cold waves and most of the homes affected were and the shooting of the homes affected were and the shooting of the homes affected were applied to the shooting of the shooting occurred the shooting of the shooting occurred the shooting of the shooting occurred the shooting of the shooting occurred the shooting of the shooting occurred the shooting occurre ed States Fublic Health Service.
What has changed in these sixteen years? Not the fluoridation which remains just the same as it has without heat until the damage could be repaired. We are sure that the persons responsible for the shootings been for centuries than man has been on this earth. Not human physiology numan tissue, human reaction oxic substances.

How does it happen that drinking water containing as little as 1.2 parts per million caused osteosclerosis and osteopetrosis, as well as goiter, sixteen years ago, and does not cause them today?

Is it possible that there is some magic ingredient present when poisbusinesses were also hard hit and the colleges would have been in serious trouble had not the students been on onous fluoride is poured into the hop-per of a municipal water works which Manager Morgan said that special causes everybody in town to drink exactly the right amount of water?
But no, for sixteen years ago the official spokesman of the American vent reoccurrence of the vandalism if at all possible and to keep a close check on vital electrical equipment Dental Association warned us that which may have been damaged. Often, he said, insulators which have been hit by bullets will remain in service there is a wide variation in the amount of water drunk by various people at different times of the year and in different climates. What has happened in the interval to change these facts?

Why are these findings dismissed as the work of crackpots and fanatics? Are not these facts just as true today as the work of crackpots and fanatics? Are not these facts just as true today as they were sixteen years ago? What are we to make of a state ment in the Journal in 1944 which says that sodium fluoride is a highly toxic substance which can be admin istered safely only under strict con trol by competent personnel, and the present-day attitude of the Journal that anybody who works at the city water works is perfectly capable of throwing a bag of sodium fluoride into the drinking water and, by this ges-ture, assuring everybody in town of getting "strict control" of the proper amount of this "highly toxic" sub-

"How Much is the "Right" Amount of Poison?

The current propaganda for fluoridation of drinking water has been a matter of considerable study by the California State Board of Pharmacy. According to the Secretary of the Board, no preparation containing fluoride in any form may be marketed in California, since fluoride in any form is classified under California law as a Class A poison.

This news is from Consumers' Reseach Bulletin for March 1956. Do you want to drink a Class A poison you want to drink a Class A poison in every glass of water you take?

We are assured by the proponents of water fluoridation that everyone will get exactly the "right" amount of fluorides if fluorides are put in the drinking water. When you question these gentlemen as to just how this will work out, since no one has any idea how much water any given individual will drink, they have no answer. They just say that they are certain everyone will get the "right" amount of drinking water.

An article in Time for March 12.

An article in Time for March 12, 1955, tells us of two young Baltimore 1955, tells us of two young Baltimore brothers, ten and twelve years of age, who, because of a rare kidney ailment, must each drink up to 14 quarts of water daily. Let's see now, if an average youngster drinks a couple of glasses a day, he might be getting something over a pint of of water. If he is getting the "right" amount of fluoride, then these two very ill children are getting 28 times too much of this deadly poison! Yes, Baltimore water is fluoridated.

Well, how are you going to know

Baltimore water is fluoridated.

Well, how are you going to know about your own children? Or for that matter the elderly or ill people in your family? Are you going to check daily to see that none of them gets too much water and hence too much fluorides? And how are you going to tell what is "too much" until it's too late?

Seafood Special:

Crispy Oysters DeLuxe

As all seafood lovers know, September brings welcome news: oysters are back in season. A heaping platter of these luscious treats, deep fried, makes a tasty and nourishing main course any time from now until spring. Here's a new version, "Crispy Oysters DeLuxe," which brings a delicious plus to this favorite dish—a crisp, crunchy coating of fine saltine cracker crumbs and egg. Prepare it in minutes, this easy way:

Crispy Oysters DeLuxe

1 cup finely crushed Krispy saltine Cracker crumbs 1 teaspoon salt Dash pepper

1 egg 1 tablespoon cold water (about 8 double crackers) aspoon salt ash pepper large oysters (approximately 16 large oysters) Fat for frying

1/2 teaspoon grated lemon rind Crush Saltine crackers on waxed paper with a rolling pin until crumbs are about the size of grains of rice. Add salt, pepper and lemon rind. Toss with a fork to blend well. In a pie pan, combine the egg and water, beating with a fork until blended. Drain oysters; dry between paper towels. Dip oysters first into crumbs, then egg, then crumbs again, rolling until thoroughly crumb-coated. Heat fat in deep fat fryer, or melt fat to depth of 1 inch in a heavy skillet. Fat is hot enough when a cube of bread browns in 1 minute — 375° F. if using electric fryer. Fry oysters, turning to brown both sides. Oysters are done when crumbs are browned (about 3 to 5 minutes). Makes 4 servings. Serve with lemon wedges and tartar sauce. Makes 4 servings. Serve with lemon wedges and tartar sauce.

Why Christ Came

Lesson for January 15, 1961

WHEN we speak of some one's background, we usually mean his boyhood home, his family for perhaps generations back, his schooling, all the influences that made him what he is, or at least got him started in the direction which he has followed in the years since then. What was the background of Jesus? Readers of John 1 will remember the background in Eternity, the background in God. Chapter 3 goes farther into question is in John 3:16; God's love for the world. The Love of God

If any one asks why God should love the world, we can only say that it is God's nature to love. Yet isn't the world too bad for God to love? Well, it is; so that the love of God is in itself the fundamental miracle beside which all other miracles are small things. This word "world" is used by writers in the New Testament, and by John himself, in various ways. It can mean the universe, the physical world; or it can mean all that is evil and opposite to God; or it can mean the race of mankind. This last is the meaning in John 3:16, no doubt.

The reader will want to ponder over the stupendous truth that God loves the world. (Yes, still in the 20th century with all its bloody crimes. If it is true only that God once-upon-a-time loved the world, but not now, then indeed we are lost.) But let us ask another question: Is God like a helpless mother reading about for wayward son in the crime news, or is he like a lazy grandfather watching the children getting into misch of and thinking on'v "Those are cute k'do!" - or lifte an adering bride "Whatever my darling boy deer is all right with me?" No, God's love is interwoven with his wicdom and his holiness. His love for the world makes him do something for the world: in one tremendous word, to

The Life of God

Take the word, the idea, the fact, of "save" and "salvation" and "savior" out of the Christian religion and you have nothing left. This word "save" is explained in various ways in the New Testament. John's favorite and basic explanation is in another short but dynamic word: LIFE. God loves the world-that is, the people in the world-so that he sends his only Son; but beyond that sending is a hope and a promise: that "whosoever believes in him should have eternal life." This eternal life is not simply a life that persists through death. Jean Sartre has written a play "No Exit" in which the three characters are all dead mon, that is, they have died, but they still exist. The horrible thing, as each of them learns, is they cannot really die, they are immorta'. Each wants to kill the others -Lut it cannot be done. Each wishes to commit suicide; but that cannot be done either. Merely endloss life would be a hellish thing.

The Choice of Man

Nothing less than eternal life is God's gift, God's offer, to man. But God does not bestow this automotically on all men. No one is shut out from it. But there is a fateful clause and condition. It is not said. God sent his Son so that everybody would have eternal life. It is said rather, God sent his Son so that whoever believes in him should have eternal life. God, creator of the race of man, has very strangely made man to be such a creature that he can say No to God himself. It is possible for men to refuse God's gift of life. It is possible to turn one's back on Jesus, whether in sorrow (like the rich young ruler) or in anger (like the Pharisees). But why—some one may say-why must I believe in Jesus? That is one of the great points of John's Gospel. Jesus is, so to speak, the translation of God into the language of man. To beliave in Jesus is to believe in God. God han no better way of making self known than in Jesus.

Cold War Shivers

DESPITE GENERAL PROSPERITY throughout the free world, a four-year-old depression in shipping is being exploited by Russia's trade offensive. Hundreds of modern ships, like this ice-clad supertanker, are either unemployed or operating at ice-clad supertanker, are either unemployed or operating at a loss. With shipowners losing over a million dollars a day and many already bankrupt, Russia has been able to buy bargain transportation for the oil she is selling throughout Europe, Asia and even Africa and the Americas.

Russian oil supplies the Cuban refineries seized by Castro.

Lower prices offered by the Reds have forced American oil companies to abandon their traditional price policies in the Middle Fast. This has angered Arab nations whose income it.

Middle East. This has angered Arab nations whose income it

As one shipping official says, "What good are the billions the U. S. has spent to keep the free world's economy healthy, if the transport system linking the nations is sick?" Now that Russia is effectively taking advantage of this neglect, proposals to stabilize the shipping industry may at last receive consideration. "All it would take," says another shipowner, "is for the oil companies to pay their own way. The tenth-of-a-cent a gallon they save by the distress of our industry could lose the cold war.'

SIXTY YEARS OF SUBMARINE PROGRESS

THE UNITED STATES NAVY accepted its first submarine, the USS Holland, in April of 1900, marking the beginning of the U.S. submarine service. The 54-foot long, 75-ton Holland is shown above during trial runs in Peconic Bay, L.I. Below is the Navy's newest submarine, the nuclear powered USS George Washington. Designed to fire the Polaris intermediate range ballistic missile from submerged positions, it displaces 5,400 tons and is 380 feet long. Both submarines were built by General Dynamics Corporation's Electric Boat Division, Groton, Conn.

Suppose you're getting $100 a week and saving $10 or ten per cent, and along comes a $20 raise. To maintain the saving percentage, obviously you must put aside a tenth of the raise, making your weekly savings $12.

That's the real secret of progress and successstepping up savings as income increases. That and regularity, of course.
