Hope you did not miss the wonder-ful T. V. show the other night called, "The Wooden Dish" with Martha Scott and Henry Hull. The acting was Scott and Henry Hull. The acting was perfect and as to the story—well— it was all about "What to do with Father"! It brought back the story about the Mother who had so many children and yet it meant in the end "Over The Hill to The Poor House"! And thinking about shows — such terrible sexy ones appear in all the houses in town and it really is dis-gusting. Dear Observer:

I am at my wit's end and hope you can aid me in solving this problem. I am going on 73 years of age and am still working daily in an office. (Please do not mention the office) I am a ried and divorced and will soon be 50 years of age. He recently had an operation for which I paid and he lives with me in a tiny apt. He does not want to go out to work and remains in bed all and plays the T.V. all night and I am losing so much rest as I have to get up early each morning. I feel as though I am going to collapse with this good for nothing son. He is now begging me to buy him a car and that I do not want to do. He keeps asking me for fare to go out to the mid-west where he lived until two years ago. A friend of mine tells me not to give him the money to go away but somehow I feel that would be it. This close friend said that I should throw him out now that he is strong and healthy again. I hesitate doing this. I am just about frantic! Please answer as soon as possisble.

MEETING OF MAYOR AND CITY COUNCIL Changes Will Be Made in the Street Lights

The Mayor and City Council held their regularly scheduled meeting on Monday, September 4, at 7:30 p.m. in the Firemen's Building. Our street lighting system has been under close examination for some-time now and it has been decided to change the system as follows: Two change the system as follows: Two new fluorescent fixtures will be installed at the square; stronger bulbs will be installed in the present fixtures throughout our business district and new fixtures will be installed at the following new locations—one on George Street Extended near Frank Dunhams, three in Taney Heights, one of them at Richard Koontz's house one at Bill Stonesifer's house and the other one at Dean Brown's house, one at Truman Hahn's house on the Park Entrance Road and one in the Trailer Court. It is hoped that this will eliminate many dark spots throughout our town.

The condition of the road beside the Potomac Edison Building was discussed. David Lawrence writes, in U. S. News & World Report: "If ... the Soviet Premier does miscalculate the resourcefulness and determination of the free West, he should not fail to take into account the basic antipathy toward war which the Russian people feel today. No dictator in Russia can count on historic 'patriotism' to protect him in his folly. For the Russian people, even in the midst of World War I, rebelled and made a separate peace with the enemy... As we trace the Khrushchev policies to the consequences that will inevitably follow any of his miscalculations, the West today has but one course to pursue. It is to prepare for war and to do so with a sincere hope and prayer that a conflict will be averted."

When you go on a summer picnic do you make up a hamper of sandwiches, load it into the baking hot trunk of your car, head for the beach, and finally haul out the hamper for dinner hours later? If so, you're flirting with food poisoning, says the American Medical Association. It advises that you take along the sandwich ingredients in their original wrappers and containers and make up your picnic meal on the spot, just before mealtime.

According to Newsweek, consumers have been cutting back on plans to buy many big-ticket items such as omes, and various major household appliances. Possible reasons given are a 20 percent increase in vacation plans and the uncertainty of the international situation. On the more optimistic side, the magazine adds that economists express confidence that consumers "will fall into step" as the economic recovery gains momentum.

S HELL scientists spend much of their working lives figuring out how to get the most mileage out of a gallon of gasoline. Here are some of the things they've learned.

1. Don't race a cold engine. When your engine is cold, it uses up more fuel. You're also in danger of underlubrication. You pay in greater engine wear.

NOTE: Today's Super Shell has fast warm-up ingredients to save gasoline. 'And Shell X-100[®] Premium Motor Oil moves freely even when cold-saves fuel and reduces engine wear.

2. Use a light touch on the accelerator.

Tromping down on the pedal is an expensive habit. Starting up, it holds your automatic transmission in a lower "gear" longer - makes the engine turn faster, wasting fuel. Under way, uneven pedal pressure is costly, too. Feed just enough fuel to maintain even speed.

3. Drive "ahead of your car." Watch for slowing traffic and red lights as far ahead as you can see. Then coast up to the stopping cars, instead of braking heavily when you get there.

4. Don't let fuel costs creep up at the stop light. If your car "creeps" when idling with the automatic transmission engaged, have your idle speed adjusted. If you drive a stick shift, remember that pumping the accelerator won't change the light. It only uses up gasoline.

5. Don't indulge in jack rabbit starts. Racing starts are fine on race tracksbut the drivers of those cars are lucky to get 6 miles per gallon. NOTE: Air resistance at high car speed is the biggest single drain on power. It increases approximately as the cube of the vehicle speed. Even fox tails on aerials may cost you gasoline.

6. Check your tire pressure regularly. Under-inflated tires increase friction and cut mileage.

NOTE: Tire pressures build up during a long run. Don't let air out to bring the pressure down-it makes the tires run even hotter. Check cool tires only.

7. Check for dragging brakes. Have your Shell dealer check for wheel drag next time you're in for a lubrication. If

8. Get these fuel-saving adjustments. If spark timing is off, for example, you pay in wasted gasoline-and possibly in engine damage. A compression check can reveal power-wasting valve and ring conditions. Other essentials:

A. Keep your spark plugs at peak efficiency. Use Super Shell gasoline with unique TCP* additive to give them extra life.

B. Adjust carburetor.

C. Have automatic choke checked.

- D. Clean or replace filters for air, fuel, oil as manufacturer recommends.
- E. Tighten fuel line connections.
- F. Have automatic transmission or clutch checked regularly.

9. Get regular oil changes and lubrication-including transmission and differential. Your Shell dealer knows what to do. And he has the finest equipment and lubricants. Your car will last longer. Your gasoline will go farther.

10. Show this advertisement to everyone who drives your car-especially if you pay their gasoline bills. We can't guarantee 30 extra miles per tankfulbut the closer these suggestions are followed the better your mileage will be. To start off right, fill up with today's Super Shell. Its nine ingredients mean top performance.

#1 is TCP for power and longer plug life. #2 is Pentane mix for fast warm-ups. #3 is anti-knock mix to resist all knocks. #4 is Alkylate to control "high-speed knock." #5 is Butane for quick starts. #6 is "cat-cracked" gasoline – for power. #7 is "anti-icer"—added in cold weather. #8 is gum preventive for clean carburetors. #9 is Platformate for extra mileage.

At Shell, 1997 scientists are working to make your car go better and better.

Selection of the National Champions will be made as a result of televised competitions at a home game of each of the 14 National Football League teams.

The Taneytown P.P. & K. competition is open to grade school boys aged six through 10, and will be held early in October. Registration for the event will be at Crouse Motor Sales, Taneytown, from August 28 through September 25. There is no cost, but entrants must be accompanied by a parent or guardian. Each entrant will receive a P.P. & K. badge, an instruction book written by NFL stars Johnny Unitas, Yale Lary and Paul Hornung, and an official 1961 NFL Guidebook.

After the Taneytown competition is held, the scores of the most skillful punters, passers and place-kickers -one in each age group—will be com-pared with the scores of boys in the other competitions held in the area covered by telecasts of the Colts.

The top five boys in this region and their fathers then will be given an all-expense trip to see a home game of the Colts, and the boys will punt, pass and kick at the stadium either just before the game starts, or during half-time.

The five top winners in the Taneytown contest, whether or not they qualify for the national eliminations, will receive National Football League type uniforms, the five boys who place second will receive warm-up jackets. and third place winners will receive footballs.

Scores of competitors in the 14 NFL regions will be compared to determine the five National Champions. Special arrangements will be made to play off all ties both regionally and nationally. Mr. George Crouse said the P.P. & K. competition had been developed by Ford Division and the NFL to give every boy a chance to take part in football competition, and to encourage physical fitness. He pointed out that early development of physical condi-tioning on the part of the nation's youth is one of the prime objectives of the President's Council on Youth Fitness. The Council, he added, will present letters of commendation to the five National Champions during their White House visit.

Registration begins immediately for the nationwide Punt, Pass and Kick competition, in which Taneytown area grade school boys aged six through 10 can compete in a test of football skills for prizes ranging from footbal equipment to a trip to the National Football League Championship game and a visit to the White House. Eligible boys may register, without cost, at Crouse Motor Sales, Taneytown, between the hours of 8 a.m. to 9 p.m. Each must be accompanied by a findings and recommendations

The Governor noted that during the decade, 1950-1960, the State debt increased 600 percent, and that during the first two years of the present decade, $86,300,000 has been authorized to finance much-needed projects.

"I am convinced", the Governor id, "that the entire field of State said. bond financing, other than revenue bonds, should be subjected to a thorough study by qualified fiscal experts who are familiar with the State's financial structure and also acquainted with our long-range program for capital improvements.

He suggested that the study should include, but not necessarily be limited to, such questions as the magnitude and composition of capital outlays, bonded authorizations outside the capital budget, encroachments of the State property tax rate upon the most important source of local revenue, the effect of growing indebtedness on the State's credit and the cost of borrowing and the degree current revenues are being deflected to the payment of principal and interest on debt

State officials asked to serve on the committee are Louis L. Goldstein, State Comptroller; Hooper S. Miles, State Treasurer; James G. Rennie, Director of Budget and Procurement; Albert W. Ward, Director of the De-partment of Assessments and Taxation, and James J. O'Donnell, Di-rector of the Department of Planning. ector of the Department On Sunday, September 3, Governor Tawes took part in the rededication of a cemetery in Hagerstown which the State of Maryland, a nonseceding State during the War Between the States, created and made provision for the reburial of Confederate soldiers slain in the Battles of Antietam and South Mountain. The ceremony was held in connec-tion with the observance in Maryland of the Civil War Centennial. In the same exercises, former President Dwight D. Eisenhower was pre-sented the Centennial Gold Medallion. The presentation was made by Gener. al U. S. Grant, 3rd, chairman of the National Civil War Centennial Commission. In a speech on the occasion, Governor Tawes noted that Maryland sought to honor the rights of both sides in that fratricidal struggle, but, because of its geographical position with relationship to the Capital of the United States, was the scene of some of the bloodiest battles fought in the War.

Bible Material: Acts 18:1-3, 18-21, 24-28: Romans 16:3-5a. Devotional Reading: 2 Corinthians 4:7-18.

ONE TEST of a successful marriage would come in this question: Do you ever think of one of them without thinking of the other at the same time? Do you often speak of one without referring to the other? We have in the Bible a notable example of a couple neither of whom is ever mentioned alone, but both always together: Aquila and Priscilla. If you had inquired around in places where they lived,

Dr. Foreman you would have heard different things about them. In Rome they would have told you: "Oh, I don't know them. Jews I think they were, and we mever mix with Jews. In fact the Emperor ran them all out, and a good thing too." If you had asked in Corinth, you would have been told: "Oh yes, you mean the tent-makers. They have plenty of business, they work all the time. But I don't remember ever seeing them out and around." If you had asked their neighbors a few years later, they might have said, "That must be the couple that have those big parties once a week. Mighty quiet parties though, 1 guess it's some new religious sect."

With things and people

So you might say that Aquila and Priscilla didn't make a very strong impression on their world, the Roman Empire. But there was more to that couple than some of their neighbors guessed. For one thing, they were host and hostess to the Apostle Paul. This (we may surmise) was before they became Christians, for at that point they are called simply "Jews." and partly because he also was a Jew, partly to set up shop with them, for all three were tent-make ;, no a year more than I did. Yet the manner in which George and his wife lived never ceased to puzzle me.

I shouldn't have said that. Helen's reply was frigid. "Perhaps you're not satisfied with the way I handle the budget?" she asked.

"Now don't gee mad, honey. I didn't mean that. After all, you do put a little in the bank each week. Maybe George and Sylvia don't worry about saving. Next time we go bowling I'll ask George how he does it. Frankly I envy them.'

"So do I," admitted Helen. The following Tuesday George and I were chatting so I brought up the subject. "Maybe you'd like to buy our house?" he asked. 'You're kidding." He shook his head. "I guess the grass on our side of the street does look a bit greener, eh Bill?

I'll make you a sporting proposition: how'd you like to trade homes with me for a month?" 'Now I know you're kidding.

Sylvia would never agree to that." "No? Tell you what. Ask Helen to put the coffee-pot on to-ight them is as workers of a different kind, not with cloth and leather but with people. These tent-makers invited to their home one of the most famous and popular preachers of his time, a man named Apollos. They did not invite him to their home just to be sociable. They took him so as to teach him-not tent-making, but the Christian faith, the "way of God" as St. Luke puts it.

We hear just a little more about these two people. Paul mentions the "church in their house." This means they must have made money with their trode, otherwise no house. But it also suggests that they were the resprisible leaders of a Christian group that Paul calls a church, not meaning that there were no other churches in the city. We wish we knew more about that. We wish also that we had the whole story of which Paul gives a tantalizing hint when he says that these friends (mentioning the lady first) risked their necks to save his life.

Teachers above all

Why are people remembered? Sometimes, like Aquila and Priscilla, for something they do "on the side," something they never get money for doing. Able and eloquent men who have been offcenter in their religious thinking have done the Christian religion much harm. It was a blessing that the early Christian church was not torn by a half-baked Apollos preaching a half-gospel. So this harmonious husband-andwife team are specially noted not for their Jewish family tree, not for their hardships as refugees. not for the skill as craft-workers, not even for their heroism. Above all, they were teachers; teaching by example, by unity in love, teaching by word and argument. They did not found a college, they asked for no pay and got none. They taught right where they were-at home. They did not wait for opportunity to teach; they made it. Of such are the great teachers.

And they were. I thought Coorge and Sylvia had both lost their minds when they offered to move into our old house for a month. I was sure of it when they even offered to trade their new car for our junk for a month, of course.

"It sounds wonderful!" said Helen. "We'll do it! I've always wanted to see how the other half lives.

"Who pays the bills for which house?" I asked cautiously.

"You pay ours - we'll pay yours," said George with a grin

I shrugged. It was a deal. And at first it seemed like a good deal. George's car handled beautifully. Helen raved over the new washer and dryer.

But on the first of the month 1 came home to a thoughtful-looking wife. She held a sheaf of bills in her hand. "Perhaps we shouldn't have moved in the middle of the month," she said.

I took the papers, fingered them. My eyes grew wider at the sight of each new bill. "Wow! Did you see what George pays on the car? Seventy three dollars a month!"

""Have you seen what they pay on the mortgage?" asked Helen. I opened the little book and gasped. Then I lowered myself into an overstuffed chair. "How do they do it?" I asked.

"And you haven't seen them all," said Helen pointing to the bills in my hand. Then she added: "I called Sylvia this afterroon. She tells me that they had a respectable bank account when they bought the house-but it's dwindling fast. They're going to sell the house to get their equity."

I grunted. "It's an expensive lesson."

"It cos. George and Sylvia far more," she said soberly. "Anyway, Sylvia says we can back out of the deal if you want to "

I studied her for a minute before answering. "No. A deal's a deal. We'll pay. Besides, I've learned something in the couple of weeks I've been here. Look at our lawn on the other side of the street - doesn't the grass seem greener to you?"

We went over to the picture window. "Why, Bill, it IS greener!" she said gayly. Funny we'd never noticed it before.

More and more architects to-day are specifying stock wood windows for their home designs. The reason?
