Yes, less and less service at more and more cost to users of the mails seems to be paramount policy in the Post Office department. Latest additional burden to be placed on mailers is ZIP (Zone Improvement Plan), to become operational July 1 next year. Companies sending a large volume of first-class mail (and Postmaster General Day defines as "large volume" anyone who sends a couple of hundred letters a week) will be asked to pre-sort their first-class mail by attaching a five-digit code to the envelopes. The first three digits of the code will reflect the particular one of 637 sectional areas designated by the Post Office; the last two will pinpoint local destination.

NOTE: It will be the mailer's responsibility and expense to hire, train and pay personnel on his staff to do this work for the Post Office. Maybe that's one of the Postmaster General's contributions to solving the unemployment problem.

How many (or rather, how few) months ago was it mailers had their first-class rates hiked a huge 25%? And what's your guess as to the total number of postal employees before the rate increases and now? Who's so naive as to believe it has fewer employees now? Are more and more employees needed to provide less and less service? Perhaps the time has come to consider this government department's function as being to render "postal-without-service" (enforced do-it-yourself regimentation for postal users). — Stanford.

"SPICE 'N' EVERYTHING NICE"

With all my heart, I wish you every morning a smile that shall last until the next day's dawning. I wish you health—life's greatest wealth; I wish you always near so that I may help to cheer. Each future day and in some way—help to bring you happiness!

HAPPY, HAPPY NEW YEAR and that the best one ever for you and you and you, my dear Readers! Thank you for all the cards and messages!

The trip of just four days were delightful ones in Philadelphia. Chestnut St. is truly glamorous and decorated differently than anything I have ever seen and that for 18 long blocks. All the stores appear glamorous and the Wm. Penn Shop was really breath-taking as one enters. 1520 is the number, so if you are going to spend a few days, whatever you do there don't miss this store. All kinds of their own candies and fruits done up so beautifully. To give you an idea of the titles of their packages — Crystal Twin Pack, Hamper of Fruit, Fruit Baskets, Living Centerpiece, Temptation Tray, Imperial Box of Fruit, Tole Tray of Fruits, Pin-Point Perfection in Cor-sages, Holiday Traditions for the Flower arrangement which was the largest Poinsettia Plant that I have ever seen; Dish Gardens, Pretty Planters for children and then the Sweets came next, such as the titles of: Sweet Pack, Hospitality Basket, Goodies galore in Vanity Case, Bon-Bon Server, Mobile Carafe and — oh — so much else. Well, it is something to remember! One can enjoy themselves in four or five days, perhaps more so than remaining two weeks on a trip and every minute of the "Philly" trip was delightful. Dining in the Swathmore Inn, one evening at The Green Hedges in Germantown, and of course I would not miss Tad's Steak House — "Charcoal as you like them!" Driven around places bringing back the memories of yesteryear and they were all beautiful ones! Going into Wanamakers with the religious and Biblical decorations. Towering high above the Wanamaker Grand Court, facing the Christmas Cathedral, the Magic Christmas Tree of a Million Lights adds brilliance to the holiday season. As though touched by a Magic wand, the colors flash and change before your eyes while the Enchanted Fountains rise and fall to the accompaniment of Christmas music. Even to the Court Yard and there is something about that yard that takes me back in books of memory as to the Colonial times. The huge lighted tree in the center with the shoppers at any time of the day and night walking through. There is something so fascinating about the city of Philadelphia as to its vastness and the bird's eye view as the bus enters the city of West Philadelphia.

The beautifully decorated Altar of the Mount Vernon Place Methodist church where I was Christened many years ago and then becoming a Member five years ago in Baltimore at the Washington Monument. Pictures of the Altar being taken. All the Poinsettias in circles fully around the entire Altar. Another thing happening the new mail box just in time for Christmas Greeting cards adds something of the city to this country street. And here is one and that is one that on me — I mailed ten cards in the pile without the stamps in the big bunch and I realized what I did a minute later and quickly phoned the P. O. in Randallstown and they said they would hold them for me. Good thing they will do that as they recognize my handwriting!

Then the beautiful letter arriving from the 88 year old patient or guest in the Middleburg, Maryland, Convalescent Home.

A card that I was to mail to a Mr. and Mrs. already stamped ready to go when a phone message arrived that the nice Mr. passed away suddenly!

Decorating the last time here for the Holidays as I expect to be located in Baltimore after February 15th.

The new baby arriving across the street just in time for Christmas!

Now, folks if there are going to be made any resolutions by all means keep them for the New Year.

One big thing start attending church — any Denomination — as long as it is The House of God. That way you positively will have a year of Peace and contentment in your heart of 365 days.

Until next week D. V. when you and you will read of Capricorn. From Dec. 20 as to your birthday to Jan. the 20th.

I am,
Faithfully,

HIGHWAY FATALITIES

Fourteen persons were killed on Maryland highways last week according to the weekly survey published by the Maryland State Police.

Four of those killed were drivers; four were passengers; and six were pedestrians.

Alcohol was a contributing factor in four of the deaths; speed in six; and "driver error" was present in eight.

Five of the deaths were attributed to the snow of last Friday.

"Alcohol, speed, and slippery roads, singly or in any combination," said Colonel Carey Jarman, Superintendent of the Maryland State Police, "are killers when associated with highway traffic. The motor vehicle operator's obligation to himself, his family, and to the other users of the highway demands that he take positive action to avoid such hazards."

He cautioned, "Stay sober, stay awake, and stay alive."

FACTS AND OPINIONS

From National Review: "The only road to sound (tax) reform is the road that works against the present errors. Tax rates from top to bottom must be reduced, proportionally; to avoid enormous initial federal deficits, the reductions should be staged over a number of years. In all likelihood the increased economic activity arising from increased incentives will generate tax revenues to offset the losses from rate reductions. If not, some sort of consumption or turnover tax, rather than an inhibiting tax on individual effort, would provide the offsetting tax revenues. This is all that is needed, and this is enough. Tax reform should not be tied to irrelevant social or economic notions...."

Nation's Business polled 225 leading business and industry executives on prospects for 1963. Sixty per cent of them say they expect business to continue on a somewhat sluggish plateau, with the year's over-all performance approximating that of 1962; 22 per cent forecast a general business decline, and 18 per cent predict improvement.

Government subsidy to competitors has created a surplus capacity in the nation's railroad system, according to a vice president of the Pennsylvania Railroad. In his view, the problem "can only be met by the rearrangement of railroad plant and operations through mergers."

The Wall Street Journal observes: "Plainly enough, the President and his advisers believe in expanding the scope and cost of Government. But whatever else this course may entail, it cannot be the way to healthy economic expansion. It inevitably means further intrusions into the conduct of business, moving more of private decision-making into the offices of Government, reducing the possibilities of profit, savings and investment. In practice it also means heavy Federal spending, oppressive taxes and continual deficits."

On January 1, Social Security tax will rise once more. Both employees and employers will pay at the rate of three and five eighths per cent on earnings to $4800. The self-employed rate will be 5.4 per cent on earnings to that figure. Additional increases are scheduled, by law, for 1966 and 1968.

"Jane's Fighting Ships," the London-published standard authority on world navies, says in a new edition that the U. S. fleet comprises "the most imposing array of warships the world has ever known in peacetime." The Soviet Union has concentrated on submarines and has many more than we. However, Jane's reports that the modern U. S. undersea craft pack the greater punch. As for the British Navy, that once dominated the oceans of the world, Jane's finds that it may be dropping "to the status of a second-class naval power."

A recent Gallup poll reports that a great majority of Americans approve a plan for establishing an annual National Honors List in this country, comparable to the Queen's Birthday List in England. It would be a means of recognizing U. S. citizens who have made outstanding contributions in the various phases of our national life. According to Dr. Gallup, 70 per cent of those polled consider this a good idea as against only 11 per cent saying No, and 19 per cent holding no opinion.

Parade Magazine quotes the Public Health Service as saying it's wise to get re-vaccinated for smallpox every three years. There have been a number of smallpox scares in this country during the past year.

HEALTH HINTS FOR THE FAMILY
COLDS MAKE THEM CROSS.
by Margaret Little*

Six year old Jack sat at the dinner table toying with his food. He was cross and irritable—he had already picked a silly fight with Ellen before dinner. Mother took a more careful look at him; Jack was usually so cheerful, she felt sure something was amiss. Sure enough, there was the tell-tale drip on his upper lip, and now that she was paying attention, she observed that he did have a hacky cough. She heaved a sigh—another cold to cope with.

"Jack," she said, "How would you like a big glass of orange juice instead of that dinner?"

"Can I have ginger ale in it?"

"All right, I'll fix it for you, then you can go lie on the couch until we are through dinner. You can pick out a story and I'll read it to you after a bit."

Jack drank his orange fizz and went to bed early, with relatively little fuss. Mother read to him, eased the tickle in his throat with cough syrup, tucked him in, and told him not to get out of bed in the morning but to call her. Jack's mother used a simple syrup; she knew better than to use any medicine that had either narcotic or antihistamine in it.

Jack was, for a couple of days, kept in bed. He knew the routine, this wasn't his first cold. Jack didn't really mind, he got a lot of attention—it wasn't so bad staying in bed. He loved orange fizz and the cough medicine mother gave him tasted good; it was fun to play with his special sick-a-bed toys.

By keeping him in bed Mother not only helped Jack recover quickly from his cold, but by isolating him in his room, she kept his germs away from Ellen. One cold at a time in a family is enough.

What's in a Name?

Every Tom, Dick and Harry has a name with special significance. The first, short for Thomas, means good company. Dick or Richard means stern but just. Harry, a form of Henry, means ruler.

Perhaps you share your name with a lady of song. Sweet Sue's trusting, Irene's peaceful. Matilda's courageous. And Adelaide's a beautiful princess.

One famous American fellow, known only by his last name, is running a contest to find a suitable first name. He's Mr. Clean, renowned household helper—and riches await the contestants who suggest the most exciting first name for him.

Looking for a mate? You may find the right one—in a name. Ruth and Winslow make a happy pair—both names mean friendly. Vince and Eunice are unbeatable together—his name means invincible and her name means victorious.

ODDLY ENOUGH by Waldman

ELECTRICITY

The electricity which serves us in every walk of life terrified primitive Europeans who thought lightning was sent down by a mighty dragon who clashed two stones in his claws (thunder) and lashed the sky with his fiery tale!

Modern New York City is the most concentrated electric power market in the world! The 9 square miles in Manhattan below 59th Street can absorb twice the normal output of electricity from the American portion of the St. Lawrence power project!

Today, practically all electric power and communications lines, used in commercial and industrial building are carried by galvanized steel conduit! Steel conduit also protects the wire supplying indispensable electricity to traffic signals, railway line controls, telephone and telegraphic lines.

CURRENT EVENTS
FIFTY YEARS AGO

For the first of the season, the snow on Monday night was a "whopper" and perhaps a record breaker for this latitude. As the road bed was in good condition, sleighing on Christmas day was fairly good, and with the bright skies and frosty air, the day was almost ideal.

Miss Isabella McKinney gave a party to her friends of both sexes, on Thursday night, which was one of the most enjoyable social events of the season.

Cutsail-Bowers. — Lester A. Cutsail and Miss Retta Bowers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Bowers, were quietly married at the U. B. parsonage at 6:00 P. M. Christmas eve by their pastor, the Rev. L. A. Stangle, D. D.

Moser-Forney. — On Christmas morning, at the Lutheran parsonage, Taneytown, by Rev. L. B. Hafer, Mr. Wm. R. Moser of near Emmitsburg and Miss Carrie E. Forney, of Keyville were married.

Harney. — J. Morris Eckenrode of Oklahoma City, spent Christmas Day with his parents, Morris is one of the district managers of the American Tobacco Co., and has made a success in the business. The service at the Lutheran church on Christmas night was largely attended, every part of the church was packed on last Friday afternoon our public school room was filled to overflowing to hear the excellent program given by the school children.

Tyrone. — Claude Reifsnider and family spent Christmas Day with James Yingling and family. Joseph Formwalt built an addition to his barn. The Christmas service at Baust was well attended, the church was crowded to its capacity. The Lutheran congregation remembered their pastor, Rev. Baughman, with an envelope containing money; also the organist, Wm. Flohr was presented a gold watch. The Reformed Congregation presented their Pastor, Rev. Schweitzer, with an envelope containing money and their organist, Mrs. Wm. Flohr, with the same. Chas. Maus and wife of Baltimore, Mrs. Ellen Rinehart and family of Frizellburg spent Christmas with L. D. Maus and family.

REFRIGERATION

Beginning of the end of the natural ice trade came during the Civil War when the South—its northern ice supply cut off—began using an 1851 French invention to make artificial ice from ammonia and water!

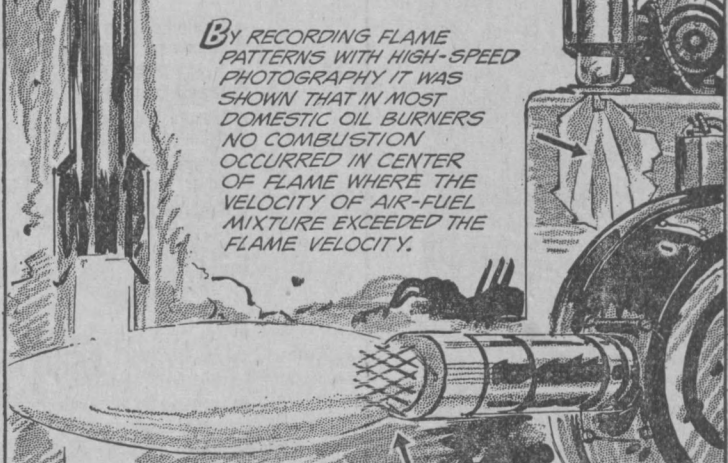

Miles of modern steel pipe refrigeration lines give us all the ice we need for deep freezing of foods, refrigerated fruit and food ships, butcher shop coolers, commercial ice-making plants and even ice skating rinks.

IN THIS WORLD by Pfeiffer

JUST AS COMBUSTION RESEARCH IS PROVIDING MAN WITH THE MEANS TO PUSH FARTHER INTO SPACE, IT IS PROVIDING HIM WITH MEANS TO IMPROVE THE HEATING OF HIS HOME...

By recording flame patterns with high-speed photography it was shown that in most domestic oil burners NO COMBUSTION OCCURRED IN CENTER OF FLAME WHERE THE VELOCITY OF AIR-FUEL MIXTURE EXCEEDED THE FLAME VELOCITY.

With facts known, the ESSO RESEARCH CENTER INVENTED A DEVICE NAMED THE MAGIC-GRID, USED WITH AN ELECTRIC-EYE TYPE IGNITION CONTROL. ATTACHED TO BURNER NOZZLE, IT CREATES LOW VELOCITY AREAS IN CENTER SO FLAME CAN BURN COMPLETELY. TESTS DURING 1961 PROVED IT SAVED 21% ON AVERAGE FUEL BILL. NEARLY ALL FLAME RUMBLE WAS ELIMINATED.

Homes, Industry Harmonize In New Chicago Suburb

Homes and industry are growing up together in contented co-existence in Elk Grove Village, Ill.

The prime reason for this harmony is that from the start, a modern industrial park was planned for the community and carefully located where it would not encroach on residential and commercial areas. In addition, all industrial buildings must meet architectural standards designed to preserve the overall beauty of the community.

Taxes Shared

With this arrangement, both property owners and industry benefit. The factories shoulder a large share of the tax burden and help provide jobs, while Elk Grove Village homes provide housing for plant employees and attract a particularly desirable type of worker.

Imaginative planning, good location and transportation facilities have been instrumental in the explosive growth of Elk Grove Village, but the homes themselves have proved to be the big attraction.

Among the features included in these homes are brick veneer, ceramic tile bathrooms, ample closet space, paved driveways, UL labeled asphalt shingle roofing, wood windows and doors, underground power and telephone lines, 100 ampere electric service entrances, oak floors, individual home fire alarm systems, fireplaces and built-in television antennas.

Wood Replaces Metal

At first Elk Grove Village homes were equipped with metal windows. Now, however, wood windows are specified for all models.

Osborne Fernald, vice president of Centex Construction

Wood windows and shutters are features of attractive entrance area of Larchmont model home at Elk Grove Village, Ill., shown above.

Company, builder and developer of Elk Grove Village, explained: "There is more warmth to the wood window than there is to any metal window. There is no question about the versatility of wood windows, but I feel that most important of all is the insulation value of wood windows as opposed to any type of metal window."

A preference for wood is also seen in the use of panel doors throughout the houses and bi-fold lower doors on all closets. Even medicine cabinets have wood doors. All doors and windows are stock ponderosa pine units.

Centex is one of the largest home-building firms in the country. At Elk Grove Village, they offer 7 basic homes, each with 3 variations, for a total of 21 different models. Prices range from $18,950 to $27,990.

WIVES OR HUSBANDS?

Who handles the budget in YOUR family? Is it Dad who wrestles with the bills and the family's savings program all by himself? Or does the little woman "go it alone" in the effort to match family income to family needs?

Many families are adopting the "Divided Responsibility Family Budget Plan," a system in which both Mom and Dad share the budgeting responsibility—and even the older youngsters are brought into the act to learn how to handle money and credit properly.

Developed by the Educational Services Division of the National Consumer Finance Association, the "Divided Responsibility" concept makes the man of the house responsible for shelter, transportation and the catch-all category of "personal advancement." The latter includes expenditures for health insurance, education, recreation, vacations, personal allowances, church and charity contributions, hobbies, club and union dues, newspapers and magazines, and even the baby-sitter.

Mom's Responsibility Mom, on the other hand, rides herd on expenses for food, house operation and clothing. Then the husband and wife put their heads together to plan and nurture the family's savings program — including premiums on life insurance; that part of the home mortgage that is applied to principal; stocks; government bonds; and payments on a retirement plan.

The NCFCA "Divided Responsibility" idea also calls for family pow-wows to give everybody a chance to participate in the family's money and credit management plan. At such conferences each member of the family can let his or her wishes be known — whether it's a new bike for Junior, a party frock for Sis, a power lathe for Dad, or a larger hair-dresser allowance for Mom. A definite order of priority can be established for these spending goals, and the youngsters will begin to see "the big picture" in family finances. They will also learn the importance of saving for future expenses — from higher education to long-range retirement plans.

Moreover, the family pow-wow can be used as an opportunity to teach youngsters the true value of installment credit. Credit, like fire, can be a great benefit to family living. We use fire to cook our food and to warm our homes — but we teach our children not to play with matches. Youngsters can also be taught how to use consumer credit properly!

Credit and the Budget

In our modern consumer credit economy, the family that has No budget plan is headed for trouble. Without a clear picture of what it costs THEM to live — and of how much is left over after living expenses and savings are provided for — some families obligate themselves for more in installment credit payments than they can safely afford.

Used wisely installment credit in its credit used to buy automobiles, furniture, household appliances and other consumer goods on the installment plan, or credit used to borrow cash for consumer purposes — means better living for more people in a healthy American economy. The wise use of credit, however, must always involve some sort of a family financial plan — no matter WHO handles the budget in your family!

The Sportsman's Corner

by Dr. Joe Linduska, Remington Wild Life Expert

The early bird hunter went afield loaded down with powder, flasks, shot pouches, wads and percussion caps. His muzzle-loading fowling piece took about two minutes to ready, and one chance with each barrel was all he got. Shot pattern was mainly a matter of luck.

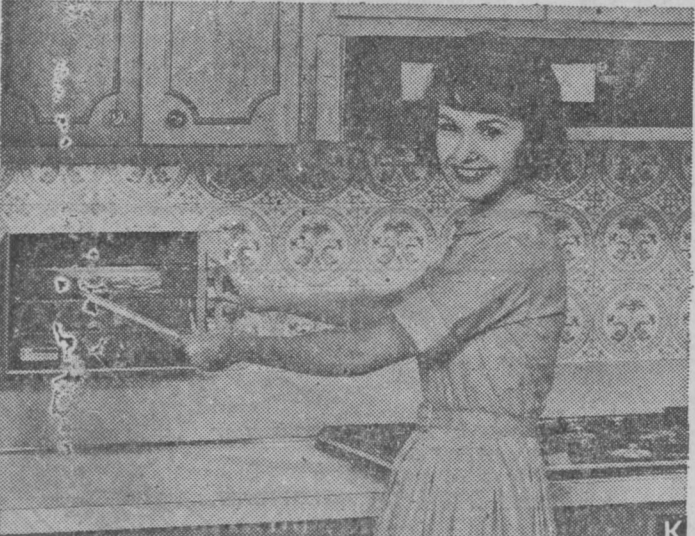

In the 1850's a French gunsmith named Lefauchaux paved the way for modern smoothbores when he developed a pin fire cartridge and the first practical breech loading shotgun.

Today's shotgunners make cleaner kills by putting more pellets on target faster. Better loads, such as Remington's plastic shells, deliver dense patterns at long ranges, are waterproof and retain power and reliability even after months of storage in all climates.

Kitchen Idea File:

STORING HOUSEHOLD WRAPPINGS

The old adage, "A place for everything... and everything in its place" is as good advice today as it was in great-grandmother's time, especially in the kitchen.

Modern homemakers have things to store that grandmother never dreamed of. Household wrappings like aluminum foil, waxed paper, and plastic wrap, for example.

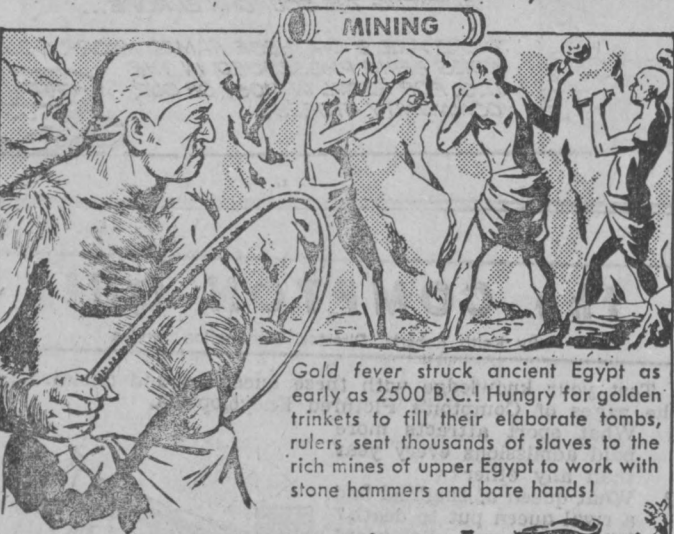

But there's no reason to let them clutter up the kitchen. A new wall-mounted dispenser, called the Caloric "Caddie," keeps them out of the way, yet handy to kitchen work areas.

Individual knobs control each roll and built-in tearoff edges are also featured. Individual rolls can be removed easily for use in other parts of the home, too.

The new units are available in seven colors including black, copper tone, pink, turquoise, yellow, chrome-tone or white.

ODDLY ENOUGH

by Waldman

Gold fever struck ancient Egypt as early as 2500 B.C.! Hungry for golden trinkets to fill their elaborate tombs, rulers sent thousands of slaves to the rich mines of upper Egypt to work with stone hammers and bare hands!

Contrary to common thought, James Watt did not invent the steam engine! His engine, an improvement upon an existing machine, was used to pump water out of mines in the 1780's. Thanks to Watt, many abandoned Cornish mines were drained and worked again.

Modern mining in the U.S. employs over 900,000... produces an annual $15 billion! Miles of indispensable steel pipe honeycomb mines—acting as feeder lines for compressed air drills, transporting power, ventilating shafts and crosscuts, and keeping mines dry.

Complaints About Russian Drug Industry:

PRICES HIGH -- QUALITY LOW -- PRODUCTION SLOW

BOSTON—In Soviet Russia, where the government owns and operates the prescription drug industry, where there are no drug brand names, no drug advertising, no profits and no chargeable research costs, people complain that the price of drugs is too high. This is one of the facts cited by two experts on Soviet economics, Professors Raymond A. Bauer, of Harvard, and Mark G. Field, of Boston University, in an article in the current Harvard Business Review.

Price is only one of the criticisms directed at the Soviet drug industry by both patients and physicians according to the two professors. Other common sources of dissatisfaction are the long delays in getting new drugs into production and into use by doctors, and the frequent appearance of low quality products.

Professors Bauer and Field explain that drug research in the Soviet Union is carried out in central research institutes which work independently of the factories that produce the drugs. There are no competing private companies, each with its own research and production facilities as we have them in the United States.

They said as a result of the Soviet system there is faulty communication and lack of co-operation between the research institutes and the production plants, accounting for the production delays, which in some cases have amounted to seven years.

However, there are further delays in getting doctors to use the new drugs once they are produced, they added. Drugs are not advertised in Russia and the result is that generally doctors are not well informed about the new products. The main source of information about the availability of new products are the pharmacists who are urged to persuade doctors to use them. Pharmacists who do a good "selling" job for new drugs are praised in the Soviet medical press. Some official sources in Russia now advocate advertising drugs to doctors.

In the United States, by way of contrast, prescription drugs are advertised in medical journals and by the mail distribution of circulars and brochures. Drug companies employ "detail men" who call on doctors and give them complete information on new products.

SERIOUS DEFECT

A very serious defect in the Russian drug system is the frequent production of low quality goods, they noted. The quality control function, like research, is separated from manufacturing and is assigned to a central government inspection system. Thus poor quality goods are caught by the inspection system after they have already been produced. This poor arrangement, they added, may be ascribed partly to the fact that there are no brand names for Soviet drugs, although brand names for other commodities are becoming more and more common. Hence there is no incentive for the manufacturer to achieve quality superior to competitors and they are content to shift responsibility entirely on the government inspection system.

In the United States, where prescription drugs have brand names, quality control responsibility is assumed by the manufacturer because he knows that only by maintaining quality can he be assured of continued sales of his product.

Professors Bauer and Field conclude by observing that before we take steps to correct our own system we make a very careful examination of the alternatives.

Fall Breakfast With Zip

Brisk fall mornings make a hot, zippy breakfast all the more inviting. And what could better send you off for the day's activity than a big bowl of oatmeal? This favorite breakfast cereal is so creamy-good, and because it's made from whole-grain oats, it's extra nutritious! To add variety to your oatmeal, top with a spoonful of rich red strawberry preserves. A smooth, sweet taste treat!

The well-balanced breakfast should provide 1/4 to 1/3 the daily protein and calorie needs and contain a variety of food, such as meat or eggs, cereal, fruit and milk. Baskets of late summer fruit brighten the breakfast table, and what fun it is to select several fruits to your liking! Small berries which might become "lost" in each fruit basket can be tucked in a paper doily cone.

Try beginning your day with this hearty breakfast. You'll be surprised at your extra alertness and vigor for the day's activity!

OATMEAL

Makes 4 to 6 servings

4 cups water
1 teaspoon salt
2 cups rolled oats (quick or old fashioned, uncooked)
Strawberry preserves

Place water and salt in saucepan. Bring to a boil; stir in oats. Cook 1 minute for quick oats; 5 minutes or longer for old fashioned oats. Stir occasionally. Cover pan, remove from heat and let stand a few minutes. Top each serving with strawberry preserves.

Big Family, Little Kids? Dishwasher's Perfect Gift

Suppose that, like millions of other women, you're a grandmother. At Christmas time it's easy to buy bunnies and bears, books and baby buggies for the youngsters, but what about the young marrieds? Better than bunnies is a gift of extra time for all hands, and an electric dishwasher will give them that—and more.

Remember when your children were little—the constant clutter of dirty dishes soaking in the sink and stacked on the counter? An automatic dishwasher would have been a blessing then, wouldn't it? It's the same today—youngsters eat just as much, just as often, and their mothers get just as weary from the endless clean-up job. An appliance that saves hours of drudgery and helps wipe out kitchen clutter makes a perfect gift for harassed young parents.

When you shop for a gift dishwasher, look for one that suits the family and their kitchen. Today's electric units come in a variety of types, sizes and finishes to suit any kitchen, whether large or small, temporary or permanent, antique or ultra-modern.

In addition to built-in and freestanding models, there are portables and convertibles that need no installation and therefore can be taken along when the family moves to a new home. Both portables and convertibles are rolled to the sink and attached to the hot water faucet when dishes are to be washed, and rolled out of the way when the dishwashing is done. Built-in dishwasher-sink combinations are space savers in limited kitchens.

The new models have a greater choice of cycles, including heavy-duty for pots and pans, gentle and regular washes, rinsing and drying. Hand pre-rinsing is no longer necessary, as today's machines have an automatic rinse-and-hold cycle. This means that breakfast and lunch dishes can be stored out of sight until after dinner without having food stick stubbornly to them.

The extra time this new portable electric dishwasher saves will keep this young wife's smile bright for years by giving her hours for more rewarding activities. The Christmas tree decoration will come off after the holidays to leave the dark copertone finish flawless.

Rack designs now provide for "random loading" without lessening the efficiency of the washing action.

New impeller and propeller arms enable powerful jets of hot water to wash the dishes from every direction. Some models have two or three different water jet sources.

Larger capacities are important to growing families. Electric dishwashers now hold more table settings than ever before. Other features include self-cleaning filter systems, dual detergent cups for two washing cycles, and containers for wetting agents that help dishes dry to a spot-free sparkle.

All hands will love an electric dishwasher, so no matter what model or type you choose, you'll be giving your family pleasure by shortening their working hours while helping to "unclutter" the kitchen.

PAINTING WITH LIGHT

Greek artist Nikos Bel-Jon uses a stone abrasive to finish a section of his abstract mural—Steel in the Future—which may be the world's largest stainless steel mural ever "painted." Bel-Jon, who pioneered the technique of "painting with light," executed this seven by 28-foot mural for the American Iron and Steel Industry's forthcoming exhibit at the Chicago's Museum of Science and Industry. His technique involved the execution of millions of tiny scratches and broad swirls on the giant stretch of metal which he achieved with a variety of stone abrasives. A bank of colored lights focused on the mural bounced light at different angles and intensities on the surface of the metal sheet.

Belief In Action

Lessor for December 30, 1962

IF YOU want to knock down a stone arch, it is not necessary to knock down every single stone. All you have to do is to knock out the keystone, the center stone at the very top, and the rest will fall of themselves. Christians sometimes ask: What is the keystone belief of all the Christian doctrines? We have been looking for three months now at "Beliefs that matter," and more than one of these has been claimed to be the keystone, at some time or other. Now at the end we come to a belief which Jesus rated as indispensable. A man's house of life will fall to ruin if this is missing, Jesus said: "He that heareth these words of mine and doeth them shall be like a man who built his house on a rock." The man who hears and does not do, is building his house on sand.

What We Can Do

This indispensable keystone belief is called "Discipleship." A Christian scholar has said: "Discipleship is the process as well as the objective of belief." Let's not be shy of those five dollar words. What that sentence means is that discipleship—being a follower of Jesus—is not just something to believe in, something we call important; discipleship is belief in action. If we really think it is important we shall not just talk about it, we shall begin to do it.

There are many angles to this. You might say the whole New Testament deals with what it means to be a disciple,—to be, to think, to plan, to live, as brothers of Christ and children of God the Father. But let us pick out three angles from one chapter in Ephesians (4). Paul is writing to born-again Christians, committed Christians, committed Christians. But even such Christians need advice, warning, teaching and help. One thing Paul has to say is that believers all have "gifts" of one sort or another. People who are unbelievers, not Christians at all, of course have gifts,—that is to say, aptitudes, abilities, to each his own. The difference between Christian and non-Christian is not that one class has gifts and the other not. The difference is that the Christian will take his "gift," whatever it is, as something God has provided and will use it and increase it as a sacred trust. He will know, furthermore, that "what he can do"—his gift—is not just what he can do; it is what he can do in partnership with God.

How We Do It

The second angle of discipleship brought out in this chapter by St. Paul is the way we use gifts, the spirit in which they develop. History has many examples of brilliant scoundrels. One whose chief and perhaps only gift is an attractive, warm personality, can use that almost electric personality in unselfish ways or in ways of pure selfishness. Many a confidence man, check-forgery, embezzler, or plain liar, has been smooth as butter, bland as cream. A woman may marry the "sweetest" man she ever met only to find out, too late, that he is also the meanest. The Christian on the other hand will want to use his gift which God gave him not for selfish but for unselfish purposes.

Why We Do It

Why does a Christian, a disciple and follower of Jesus, hold his gifts in a spirit of helpfulness? In other words, what is the Christian's motive for acting and serving as a Christian ought? Paul gives us the answer in the first sentences of Ephesians 5. He holds up two motives, which are really the same. First he tells us to imitate God "as beloved children." And if imitating God seems too high for us, Paul is ready with another thought which is yet the same: Walk in love, he says, "as Christ loved us." If it seems too hard to imitate the invisible God, we can remember that he becomes visible in Jesus. So at the end of the Christmas season we may be grateful above all for the one great Gift of Christ himself. For he is not only God's word to us, he is the pattern of our response to God.

The Tale of Time

When was the first Christmas? No one knows for sure, but biblical scholars believe Christ was born in 7 or 6 B.C.—not 1 A.D. Saint Luke's description of the Holy Night indicates the Nativity was in spring not winter.

Why then do we celebrate during the last week of December? It's the time of the winter solstice, when ancient Romans marked Pagan holidays with festivities and gift-giving. Early Christians used the merrymaking as a disguise for their holy rites.

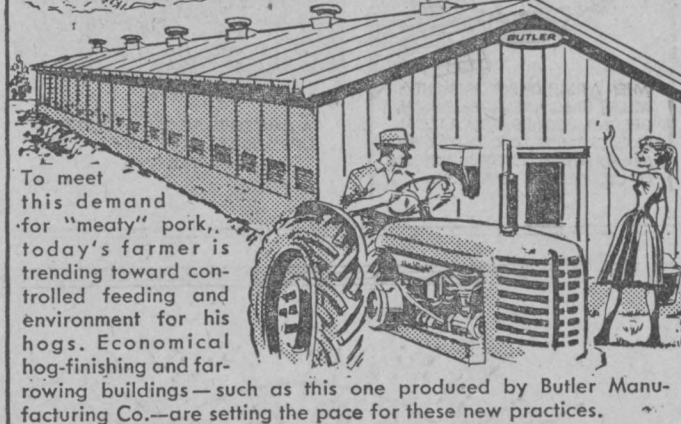

The festive air and practice of gift-giving continued even after Christianity flowered. Traditionally, one of most prized Christmas gifts of all time has been a watch—since 1892 the world famous Hamilton watch has remained the most popular—timely present in any season.

WHAT'S NEW in AGRI-BUSINESS?

"Pigs are pigs." The old saying may have been true in grand-daddy's day—but no more! The modern housewife shops for lean meat, and the modern farmer profits more by raising hogs with less fat.

To meet this demand for "meaty" pork, today's farmer is trending toward controlled feeding and environment for his hogs. Economical hog-finisher and farrowing buildings—such as this one produced by Butler Manufacturing Co.—are setting the pace for these new practices.

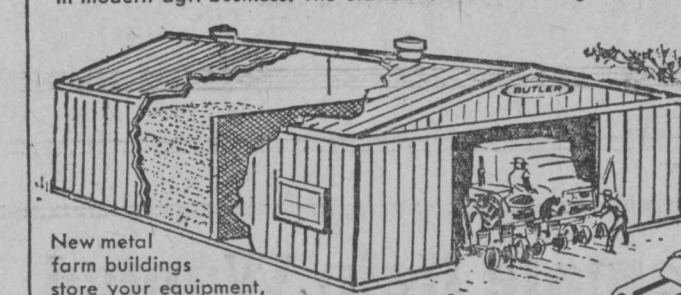

This permanent metal building gives the hog farmer an interior without posts—plenty of room for pens; insulated walls and roof—vital for climate control; and factory-applied color—for attractiveness and ease of maintenance. Automatic feeding is part of this system geared for modern agriculture.

WHAT'S NEW in AGRI-BUSINESS?

Think of farm buildings as being suited for one purpose only? Not in modern agri-business. The old farmstead has changed!

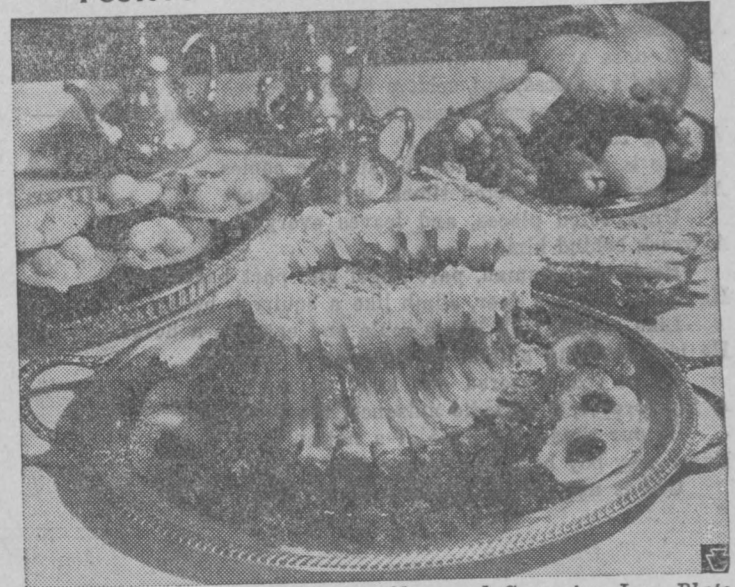

New metal farm buildings store your equipment, your grain, or both—and can even become the heart of a push-button feeding center some time in the future. They are flexibly designed to meet the many challenging needs of today's efficient farming methods.

Some rigid-frame buildings, such as the Butler RF-15, have factory-colored walls for beauty, long life and low maintenance. This clear span building is also designed with safety in mind—protection against weather, fire, lightning, and even birds, rodents and insects.

Festive Feast Fit For A King

There is something new under the sun in holiday dining whose inspiration, believe it or not, stems from the "royal coiffers" of your local butcher. The traditional roast at Thanksgiving and Christmas can be given "new dimension" by the skillful selection and cutting of two pork loins fashioned into a crown roast.

The creation of this regal repast is done in large measure by your own meat retailer. He first removes the backbone from the loins... then cuts the meat away from the ends of the rib bones. Exposing the end of a bone in this manner is known as "Frenching." When this skillful surgery has been done, your meat retailer shapes the two loins into a circle and secures the ends together with a large needle and string. This holds the meat securely during roasting and carving. After roasting, decorative paper frills can be placed over the ends.

The center of a crown roast of pork is then filled with bread stuffing made of canned French fried onions—the result is genuinely delicious holiday eating.

CROWN ROAST OF PORK

Crown Roast of Pork
Salt and Pepper
Onion-Bread Stuffing

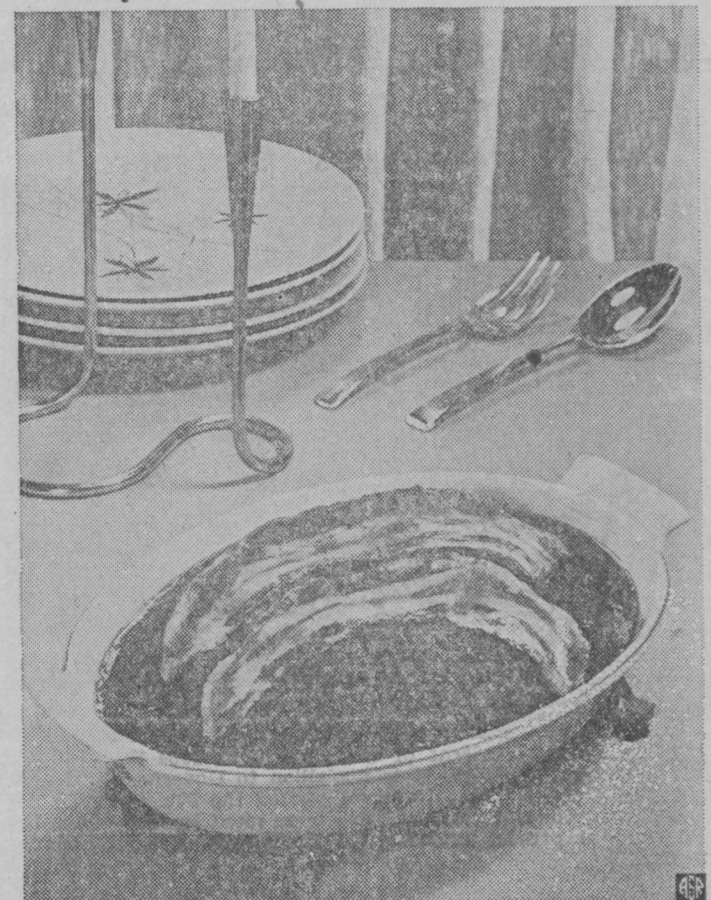

Season inside and outside of roast with salt and pepper. Place on a rack in open roaster. Fill center with stuffing. Roast in a moderately slow oven (325 degrees) for 30 to 35 minutes per pound. Before serving, place paper frills on top of chop bones. Count on 1 to 2 chops per serving.

ONION-BREAD STUFFING

1 1/2 cups butter
2 (3 1/2 oz.) cans O & C
French Fried Onions
3 quarts stale bread crumbs
(1 1/2 pounds)
2 teaspoons salt
1/2 teaspoon pepper
1 1/2 teaspoons poultry seasoning water

Melt butter. Combine onions, bread crumbs and seasonings. Pour butter over bread mixture and blend well. Add only enough water to make a crumbly stuffing. Place stuffing lightly into center of crown roast. If you are using a meat thermometer, insert into the center of the thickest part of the roast and cook until the thermometer registers 185 degrees.

Savory Meat Loaf Has Flavor Secret

Give meat loaf a zesty flavor with bottled barbecue sauce. This seasoning secret provides a delicious flavor accent. Mellow and mildly sharp, all-purpose barbecue sauce is used to season the chopped beef and also to spark the flavor of the basting sauce.

Spicy Meat Loaf

1 cup bread crumbs
1 egg, slightly beaten
3/4 cup minced onion
1 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon chopped parsley
1/2 cup shredded carrot
3/4 cup Open Pit barbecue sauce
1 1/2 pounds ground beef
1 can (8 ounces) tomato sauce
2 to 3 strips bacon

Combine bread crumbs, egg, onion, salt, parsley, and carrot; blend well. Add 1/2 cup barbecue sauce and the meat; mix lightly but well. Shape into a loaf in a shallow baking dish. Combine tomato sauce and remaining 1/2 cup barbecue sauce and pour half of mixture over the meat loaf. Top with 2 to 3 strips of bacon. Bake in a moderate oven (350°F.) about 60 minutes, basting frequently with remaining sauce. Makes 4 to 6 servings.
