> P.-T.A. MEETING IN ELEMENTARY SCHOOL

On Sept. 17 at 8:00 P. M. in the Taneytown Elementary School, ap-proximately three hundred parents met with their child's teacher in the class room for the first P.-T.A. meeting.

There the teacher very carefully, systematically and thoroughly discus-sed with the parents what the child was doing, and what was expected of the parents to do for the year '63-'64. This was a wonderful ex-perience; for the representation of interested parents and teachers pres-

MEADE MARKER TO BE UNVEILED

A plaque to mark the site of Gen-eral Meade's headquarters near Taneytown just prior to the Battle of Gettysburg will be unveiled on Sun-day, Oct. 20, at 2 o'clock opposite the home of Charles Eckard on the Lit-tlestown Rd. This was the location of the former Benjamin Shunk farm.

Acting as master of ceremonies Neal Powell will announce the fol-lowing program which is being ar-ranged by the Federation of Repubranged by the Federation of Repub-lican Women of Taneytown. The Rev. Howard Miller, pastor of Trinity Lutheran Church, Taneytown, will deliver the invocation after which the local high school band will play a medley of Civil War songs. Charles Fisher, attorney of Westminster and chairman of the Civil War Commis-sion of Carroll County, will relate the historical background of the marker. Harold Manakee, director of marker. Harold Manakee, director of the Maryland Historical Society and donor of the plaque, will make the presentation to Mayor Raymond Perry. The marker will be unveiled by Richard and Robert Reindollar, twin great-great-grandsons of the Rev. Williams who was minister of Trinity Lutheran Church in Taneytown at the time when Meade's men used the church tower to send signals to Get-tysburg. A member of the band will sound taps and the Rev. Miller will.

OCTOBER VIEW FROM MY KITCHEN WINDOW

This is a lovely, exhilarating Octo-ber morning—truly a great day to be alive! Once again, I am stationed at my favorite observation post, the kitchen window. From here, I get quite a nice view of what is taking duce on the farm on this autumnal day. The wide window-sill of our pre-Civil War house serves as an excellent writing place. There is room for my note pad, a cup of coffee, a bowl of bright red apples, a vase of late pink roses, and various other smaller items.

Our house was built in 1858, ac-cording to the inscribed date. It is made of fieldstone and rather resembles the New England 'salt-box" type of architecture. The little red kitten is gamboling about, chasing a stray fly and playing with his rubber mouse. What an entertaining little fellow he is! Before I begin on my "view," I would like to say a word about the thoughtful, delightfully old-fashioned gift which my sister brought up the other day. She picked $2.00 YEAR IN ADVANCES

Whatever you do, don't miss the grand "Ice Capades" at the Civic Cen-ter as I stated in last week's Column. It truly tops all others I have seen! The original scenes, the gorgeous cos-tumes and for those gals—well, never have I seen such beautiful legs and that as to all of them. And they have the beauty plus to go with it! LIONS CLUB HOLDS SONS AND DAUGHTERS MEETING

The Taneytown Lions Club met for a regular Dinner Meeting Tuesday evening, Oct. 8. The occasion of the meeting was to entertain the sons and daughters of the members. After the dinner, Lion Delmar Riffle, Pro-gram Chairman for the evening, showed a film, 'Light for All," from the Baltimore Sun Papers. This film depicted the intricacies, and the technical know-how involved in the printing of our newspapers. One could but wonder at the miracle of the 'Press' and realize that it has come a long way since the printing of the first book from movable type by Gutenberg in the middle of the 15th century.

wound. Pressure and compresses are recommended over tourniquets. Then, place a blanket under the patient as well as over him. Keep him warm and as comfortable as possible. If the wound is in the chest or abdomen, give nothing by mouth.

"Do not attempt local treatment, washing or examination of the wound -these are jobs for the doctor or hospital. A clean pad plus a mild antiseptic such as first aid cream are the only things that should go on the wound. If there is a "sucking" chest puncture, make the bandage as air-proof as possible. Do not change bandages. If more are necessary on way to doctor, place a new one on top of the first."

Ted and the Wood Pile

"I'll be glad when I get that whole pile of wood in, then I'll be through with it won't I, Mother?" "No, Ted, you know I shall want you to carry out the ashes after the wood is burned up," answered Mother. "Then I'll be through with it, Mother?" "I think not," answered Mother. Ted's eyes grew big with wonder. "You will scatter the ashes on the corn field and father will plow them in the spring. Then you will help him plant the corn, you know. The corn will grow, eating the ashes and ground about it, and by-and-by you will eat the sweet corn." 'Oh, we'll sort of eat the wood ourselves, and that will be the end of the old wood

'Not quite," said Mother, "there will be cobs left and stalks of corn. We may feed them to the pigs, or to the cows and that will give us meat or milk." "Well, I never knew before that there was so much in a wood pile," said Ted. — Selected.

What Then?

Asked an unbeliever of an aged Christian: "Suppose you discover after death that there is no such place as heaven and through the years you have been laboring under a delusion, what then?" "Well, I still would be the gainer, for I have had a most wonderful and joyous time getting there! Suppose you, on the other hand, make the discovery after death that there is a hell, what then?"

Too Inquisitive

"You must find that impediment in your speech rather inconvenient at times," said the inquisitive young "Oh, n-n-no; everybody has his man. little p-peculiarities, s-stammering is m-m-mine. THE WAY I SEE IT Observations on the World of Sports

The 1963 World Series is now his-tory and I must say the participants didn't play it according to the script. This past series puts me in mind of the 1954 series when the Cleveland Indians were playing the then New York Giants. All the papers were saying Cleveland in six just as they did for this year. Well, we all know that the Giants threw out the script and won it in four straight. This year everyone was saying the Yankees, in six, including yours truly, and you see what happened. I'm sure glad that the Dodgers pulled the big upset and did what they did. It might make the American League look bad but it does us all good to see the mighty Yankees humbled just as they tramp-led the league all year long. Now it's the New Yorkers turn to say, "Wait 'till next year." What a difference a year makes.

Anyone who mentions the word pitching to New York manager Ralph Houk between now and spring train-ing had better be ready to duck. Houk and the Yankees had been warned about the Los Angeles Dodgers' pitch-ing before the World Series, and they knew what to expect. But, not in their wildest nightmares could the Yankees have imagined it would have been that good. They were the vic-tims of one of the most powerful World Series. In four games, and World Series games, no less, the Yankees were restricted to but four runs. They were the victims of all sorts of strikeout records—most in one game, 15; most by one pitcher, 23; and most for a four-game series, 37. Which means that the Yankees were struck out at an average of better than nine per game. That such a humiliation should be inflicted on the winningest baseball team of all ranks as one of the sports shockers of our time.

The two fantastic pitching performances by Sandy Koufax will go into the annals of sports as a true classic The opening game victory by Koufax, in which he struck out 15 Yankees, put the New Yorkers in a state of shock from which they never recovered.

In every game after that, the Yankee batters seemed haunted by what Koufax did to them in the opener, Don Drysdale and Johnny Podres showed no mercy to the numbered Yankees and, while they did not have the strikeout touch that Koufax showed, Drysdale and Podres were equally brilliant. Podres allowed only one run and Drysdale none. There may never be another World Series pitching performance like it again.

The New York Yankees made only one error in the World Series but they made quite a few mistakes. At least one in each game contributed to their downfall—four straight at the hands of the Dodgers. In the first game—Whitey Ford made the big one -a hanging curve that John Roseboro hit for a three-run homer, the first all year for John against left-handers. In the second game the Dodgers got off to a 2-0 lead when Roger Maris fell trying to catch a long fly. In the third game, the lone Los Angeles run came across after a walk, a wild pitch, and a bad-hop grounder hit to Bobby Richardson. In the fourth game, the Dodgers scored the deciding run on the Yankee's only error by Joe Pepitone. The Dodgers made only three er-rors and they didn't figure in the scoring. To show how confident the Yankees were of LOSING on Sunday, some of them had already checked out of

THE BIBLE SPEAKS BY DR. KENNETH J. FOREMAN

Christian Purity Lesson for October 13, 1963

Bible Material: Matthew 6:25-33; I Co-Devotional Reading: I Thessalonians 4:1-12

THE WORD "purity" has almost lost its meaning. When a man is recommended for a position many questions are asked, but a question about his "purity" would be puzzling to many. Such is the degradation of the world in which

Dr. Foreman body - whether Christian or pagan-knows what you mean by that, even if he does not know harmony on the Christian level, or does not know that harmony at its deepest and best is not to be found outside the Christian faith. But purity-what's that?

The Christian view of sex

If your denomination has a bookstore, as most denominations do, you can buy from it one or more books recommended by leaders in your church on the subject of the Christian view of sex. There is no room here even to review any of these, only to say that there is more guidance available than you might have thought possible. Some basic elements in the Christian view will now be mentioned.

First of all, as we understand the New Testament, sex is not sinful in itself. If it were, all mar-riages would be wicked, and we should have to blame God for making the human race male and female. Sex is neither a bestial necessity nor an end in itself. The Christian ideal is that sex finds its rightful expression in marriage, and that before marriage virginity is God's ideal both for men and women. (The notion that purity is a strictly female virtue is pagan, not Christian.) -

Christian motives again

There are many arguments for chastity. Margaret C. Banning wrote an article in which she makes the point that even from the standpoint of personal satisfaction and happiness, chastity is the ideal. But the Christian view goes farther than this. The New Testament teaches that each person's body, once God's Spirit has come to him or her, is now a temple of the Holy Spirit, and that fornication or adultery is a profanation and a sin, for that reason if

About the turn of the century there was a young Austrian who had been a lifetime member of the church, yet whose life was a constant series of sins against the Seventh Commandment. He did not believe that chastity was either possible or desirable. Then in God's providence he was led to make the acquaintance of two young priests about his own age. He discovered, somewhat against his will, because at first he could not believe they were genuine, that these men lived lives that to him were a continuous miracle. How can this be? he asked himself. He finally came to understand that chastity, like every Christian virtue, is supernatural. It is not possible (just as love in the Christian sense is not possible) without the Holy Spirit. This discovery was the turning point in his lifetime.

Sin against whom?

The sin of unchastity, or sinsfor they have many forms-are like all sins, against what? Against marriage, against the love that is life's greatest human joy, against oneself, and against society. But the important fact is deeper. When Joseph was tempted by Potiphar's wife, he might have said, "How can I sin against you?" for the lady was really asking him to commit a crime against her. He might have said, "How can I sin against my employer?" against loyalty, against friendship? "How can I break the law of the land?" (for the Egyptians knew well that adultery was wrong) or "How can I sully my family's high ideals, and my own?' Joseph said something that must have sounded as strange to Potiphar's wife as it would to many ears today. "How can I . . . sin against God?" Joseph was not a monk, he was a highly practical and brainy young man, who later had a happy marriage. Yet it was not the future marriage which lay on his mind and heart; it was not just a family ideal. It was God who was more real to him at that moment than any woman there or in the future. The "practice of the presence of God" is the surest armor against sin.
