

AFFABILITY.

In the intercourse of society, there is nothing which so much gives pleasure, and lends a charm to its circles as affability of deportment.

This trait, whilst cultivation may greatly enhance its power, is not so much an acquirement as a gift of nature, it seems to be inherent in some constitutions.

Happy is the community in whose bounds such characters predominate. Thrice blessed is the family circle wherein the several members vie with each other to please and make happy the entire body.

In matters of trade it is ever most pleasing to deal with men, whose kindness of disposition and geniality of manner, gives one the consciousness that efforts are honestly made for our accommodation.

One may smile and smile and be a villain. "A smooth answer turneth away wrath." We have often thought that if persons would but reflect a moment, they would be incapable of that brusque manner which is so often crushing in its effects.

We take the following from the Baltimore Sun of the 11th inst., if we mistake not the signora is the same person who operated successfully in Europe some years ago for a dislocation in the case of one of the daughters of the venerable Dr. Nevins at Lancaster Pa.

A FAMOUS ITALIAN WOMAN.—At long intervals of time, stretching through many years, fragmentary accounts have reached this country of the remarkable skill of an Italian peasant woman in the treatment of all kinds of dislocations.

There are many cases in which dislocations naturally inclining in the direction of civility and pleasantness, are warped and misdirected by reason of evil surroundings, either in the home circle or those outside of it.

Just so the rude, rough, crusty man will be reflected in his clerks, and whatsoever employes may be under him. To counteract these influences he will often be put to his wits' ends, and may need extraordinary efforts to promote his trade.

But all selfish considerations apart, the truly affable man is governed by the love of right, the inward consciousness of walking according to the golden rule—Doing unto others as we wish them, do unto us.

In a long list of preachers in Connecticut who have held long pastorships over a single church society, the two who have had the longest terms are the Rev. Noah Porter, of Farmington, father of President Porter of Yale College, who was for sixty years pastor of the Congregational church there, and the Rev. Samuel Kuott, who was for seventy years pastor of the parish at Franklin.

It augurs well for the spirit of "fair play," which seems to actuate the people of Maryland, to note their general willingness to accord to the administration of Gov. Hamilton a feeling of trust and confidence on all sides, such as we have never known to be done in any proceeding case.

It can scarcely be expected however that there will be a full realization of the ideal picture which has been drawn in the way of economy and improvement. There may be extremes in even good things.

RUMORED MUNIFICENT CONTRIBUTION.—A rumor was in circulation in the lobby of the English House of Commons that the Baroness Burdett-Coutts intends giving half a million of pounds sterling ($2,500,000) to some plan for permanent relief in Ireland.

From the fact that four per cent bonds have gone up to one hundred and six cents, it is intimated that Secretary Sherman inclines to modify his views in favour of a still lower percentage of interest.

What will kill milk weed in a meadow? The same treatment that will destroy Canada thistles and other weeds with creeping roots.

Salt as a Fertilizer.

If thousands of pounds of salt were used on the land where hundreds are used now, such an increase would proportionately advance agricultural production.

Character of Ute Indians.

A reporter interviewed Gov. Pitkin on the Ute question. The Governor said, when asked: 'What is the condition and character of the Utes?'

The people of Colorado, he said, regard the Utes as a menace and source of danger, and an impediment to the opening of the best land in the State.

The people of Colorado wish its government to take the matter in hand and protect the whites.

'What remedy would you suggest?' 'The prompt and effectual interference of the general government.'

'What will be the final result of this matter? I mean the ultimate fate of the Indians of Colorado?'

'The Utes must go.'

'How is your wife, Mr. Smith?' Says Smith, pointing to where his wife sat, in the next room, at work upon his coat: 'She's sew-sew.' Mr. Jones: 'Oh, I see; she is mending, sure enough.'

The Moss Industry in Louisiana.

The Louisiana moss business is one of the important industries of New Orleans. In common with all Southern manufacturing interests, it has had its days of flush and its days of gloom in business.

The history of the manipulation of moss is very simple. It is gathered mostly by negroes, who devote a spare hour of the day to such work. After a tree is stripped it is allowed to rest for seven years, during which period of time the moss renews itself.

The gatherers of late seem surprised at the falling off in the prices paid for moss. The reason is simple. The demand is not great, or rather has not been up to within the last two months, and the quality of the moss gathered has not been of a good grade.

After the moss reaches the factory it is subjected to the action of the washer, which is a large cylindrical arrangement with a wheel inside, which pulls the moss hither and thither and dashes it through a vat of boiling water and soap.

Have an Object in View.

There is nothing which tends more to render pleasant the lives of young people than the pursuit of some settled object.

A clergyman in New Orleans was agreeably surprised to find a plump turkey served up for his dinner, and inquired of his servant how it was obtained.

'Papa,' said he, as he was shown some pictures in a book Santa Claus had left him, 'papa, why does camels have such big hunches on their backs?'

Fashion Notes.

Painted faces increase in popularity. Many ladies now wear chamois leather skirts, covered with silk or flannel.

The sleeves of newly imported mantles are gathered at the top and have epaulettes of cords.

Round waists, called Spencers, of a different material to the remainder of the costume, are worn in the house by young ladies.

The patterns of the richest brocades are so intricate that it requires a close inspection to decide whether the designs are Pompadour or Oriental.

Long scarfs of striped India camels' hair are very stylish, worn doubled high on the shoulders, and fastened by a brooch-clasp of oxidized silver.

A new walking boot for ladies has made its appearance, which laces over the instep like a gentleman's shoe, instead of buttoning at the side.

The correspondent of Harper's Bazar, writing from Paris, says that the fashion of a corsage different from the dress will prevail also in the spring.

The coming coat for early spring is a sort of ulster, close-fitting, with coat-seams across the waist-band, long skirt, with lapped folds and square pockets.

An Englishman arrived in this country a few weeks ago, and as he stepped on the pier at New York a cable dispatch was placed in his hands summoning him home.

Reports received at the agricultural department of Georgia show that eighty per cent. of the farmers of that state who raise their own supplies make money by farming, whilst seventy-five per cent. of those who give liens and mortgages and pay high rates of interest on supplies fail to make expenses.

By six causes a fool may be known: Anger without cause; speech without profit; change without motive; inquiry without an object; putting trust in a stranger; and wanting capacity to distinguish between friend and foe.
