LABOR AND TRUST.

Wearily I sit and weave
The tangling web of life.
The pattern which my hands have wrought
Is but a bit of color fraught
With daily, hourly strife.

Longingly I seek to trace
The unwoven threads I span;
To know how this and that unite,
For bringing forth the figures bright
That form the perfect plan.

Rapidly the shuttle flies
When heart and hope are mine;
When on the loom the sunlight hours
The flecks of gold like summer flowers
In wondrous beauty shine.

Gloomily the fingers move,
Dark-tinted is the work,
When 'mong the threads an evil knot—
Envy and malice—love forgot—
Doth unexpected lurk.

Patiently, with bowed head,
I weave in sorrow's day,
Scarce can I tell what threads I hold,
I only know that grief untold
Hides all but sodden gray.

Trustfully I sit and weave;
I know 'tis mine to do
That which He gives into my hands.
Complete in Him who wisely planned
Shall be the pattern true.

IF WE ONLY HAD A PIANO.

"This is pleasant," exclaimed the young husband, taking his seat cozily in the rocking chair, as the tea things were removed. The fire glowed in the grate, revealing a pretty and neatly furnished sitting room, with all the appliances of comfort. The fatiguing business of the day was over, and he sat enjoying, what he had all day been anticipating, the delights of his own fireside. His pretty wife, Esther, took her work and sat down by the table.

"It is pleasant to have a home of one's own," he said, after taking a satisfactory survey of his snug little quarters. The cold rain beat against the windows, and he thought he felt really grateful for all his present enjoyments.

"Now if we only had a piano!" said the wife.

"Give me the music of your voice before all pianos in creation," he declared complimentarily, despite a certain disappointment that his wife's thankfulness did not happily chime with his own.

"Well, we want one for our friends," said Esther.

"Let our friends come to see us, and not to hear a piano!" exclaimed the husband.

"But, George, everybody has a piano, now-a-days—we don't go anywhere without seeing a piano," persisted the wife.

"And yet I don't know what we want one for; you have no time to play on one, and I don't like to hear it."

"Why, they are so fashionable—I think our room looks so naked without one."

"I think it looks just right."

"I think it looks very naked—we want a piano shockingly," protested Esther, emphatically.

The husband rocked violently.

"Your lamp smokes, my dear," he said, after a long pause.

"When are you going to get a solar lamp? I have told you a dozen times how much we needed one," said Esther, pettishly.

"Those will do."

"But you know everybody now-a-days wants solar lamps."

"Those lamps are the prettiest of the kind I ever saw—they were bought at Boston."

chair. "We want to live within our means, Esther," exclaimed George. "I am sure I should think we can afford it as well as the B—s, and L—s, and many others we might mention—we do not wish to appear mean."

George's cheek crimsoned. "Mean!" he cried angrily. "Then you do not wish to appear so," said the wife. "To complete this room and make it like others, we want a piano and a solar lamp."

"We want—we want!" muttered the husband; "there is no satisfying woman's wants, do what you may!" and he abruptly left the room.

How many husbands are in a similar dilemma! How many homes and husbands are rendered uncomfortable by the dissatisfaction of a wife with present comforts and present provisions. How many bright prospects for business have ended in bankruptcy and ruin, in order to satisfy this secret hankering after fashionable necessities. If the real cause of many a failure could be made known, it would be found to result from useless expenditure at home—expenses to answer the demands of fashion, and "what people say of us?"

"My wife has made my fortune," said a gentleman of great possessions, "by her thrift, prudence and cheerfulness, when I was doing well."

What a world does this open of the future prosperity of her family! Let the wife know her influence, and try to use it wise and well.

Be satisfied to commence small.—It is too common for young housekeepers to begin where their mothers ended. Buy all that is necessary to work skillfully with, adorn your houses with all that will render it comfortable. Do not look at richer homes and covet their costly furniture. If secret dissatisfaction is ready to spring up, go a step further and visit the homes of the poor and suffering; behold dark and cheerless apartments, insufficient clothing, and absence of comfort and refinement of social life; then return to your own with a joyful spirit.—You will then be prepared to meet your husband with a grateful heart, and be ready to appreciate that toil and self-denial which he has endured in his business world to surround you with all the delights of home; then you will be ready to co-operate cheerfully with him in so arranging your expenses, that his mind will not be constantly harassed with fears lest family expenditures may encroach upon public payments.—Be independent; a young housekeeper never needs greater moral courage than she does to resist that arrogance of fashion. You know best what you can and ought to afford; then decide with strict integrity according to your means. Let not the censures or the approval of the world ever tempt you to buy what you barely think you can afford. It matters little what they think, provided you are true to yourself and family.

Thus pursuing an independent, consistent, straightforward course of action, there will spring up peace and joy all around you. Satisfied and happy yourself, you will make your husband so, and your children will feel the warm and sunny influence. Happy at home, your husband can go out into the world with a clear head and self-relying spirit, domestic bickering will not sour his heart, and he will return to you again with a confiding and unceasing love. Depend upon it, beauty, grace, wit, accomplishments, have far less to do with family comfort, than prudence, economy and good sense.

A woman who pretends to laugh at love is like a child who sings at night when he is afraid.

The husband moved uneasily in his

THE LAST DEAL.

THE CONFESSION OF A REFORMED GAMBLER.

"I never dealt again."

The words fell from the lips of a gentleman well-known in Leadville, yet few recognize in the easy going man who now commands the deep respect of his fellow citizens, the once cool headed, imperturbable gambler, who, in his day, figured prominently along the Pacific coast, and was almost universally recognized as the shrewdest faro dealer in the West.

"Some three years ago I ran a high toned game at a certain place you probably know. It was a square game as I will leave any one to say—a thriving game, for I dealt for half the bloods in town, and often I had as many as five lay-outs at a time, with too much business on hand to ever get them to rest.—One evening a young chap strolled in, with a sort of curious stare on his face, and I concluded right there that he was green. He had fair hair and had a pair of blue eyes and clear cut features—an innocent-looking young fellow, if ever I saw one. It only required a glance to convince you that he was a stranger in the gambling room. He soon was at home, though, for I saw in his blue eyes the love of play, and after that evening he was a constant visitor. He played his pile right up, and never growled if his luck was hard, and on every second card he stacked the limit up in blue. Take it altogether, his luck was hard—sometimes the hardest, I think, I ever saw. I've known him to loose at a single deal seven double shots.

"Business for me, of course, but somehow it seemed almost too bad. I couldn't say a word, though, and yet I liked the boy. He had lots of the filthy. I think from the day he began he must have dropped a cool $100,000 on the game and he never growled.

"We both quit gambling the same night—he, poor lad, for sufficient reasons, and I because I loathed the game. It was in this wise: His coin gave out in a deal or two, and he put up a diamond ring, just to see his ill luck out, you know.—The chips soon went. He had a gin—a flaming stone in massive metal. He passed that in without a word and drew out fifty dollars, cold. So help me God! I wished him luck as any player there; but no, his last stack went my way on a losing ace. He drew three hundred dollars more, I think on his watch and tried his line of bets again, but his luck was gone. My God! I'll never forget the pale, haggard look that crossed his face; but he was game. He never uttered a word and kept his chair like a pillar of stone. For a moment he seemed dazed at his reverses, but suddenly his eyes caught the thin worn circlet of dull gold on his little finger. He looked at it a little while, and a dark wave of hot crimson blood passed over his face, for this circlet seemed to cling even faster than the flashing gem he had passed in before. He at last striped it off his finger, and handed it to me. It came reluctantly, this old worn ring.—"What can I have on this?" he asked. I don't know what its value is, but I'll redeem it first of all. It might have cost five dollars new, but it was worthless now.

"Still, I passed out a fifty stack in return, just to let him try again.—He plunked it down in the pot, and then low upon the table he laid his face on his folded arms. Well, for a wonder, his luck changed and he won three times. He took no notice of me when I told him the limit barred, and so we played two fifty on each card. Would you believe it? In the deal the pot won out and never lost! And still he lay with his head in his arms. The deal was out and I shook his up, but not a muscle moved, and raising his face I started back in horror at the glassy expression of his eyes, for the boy was dead.

"I've often wondered to myself since that night what thoughts went flitting through his brain as he bowed his head and hid his face from our sight, what pledges for a better life, regrets for a fortune he had thrown away with a lavish hand and loathing of his irrevocable course. Who can tell? We can but guess at them, but may never feel. His face showed years of hell endured in that brief game, but it was not until the coroner's jury sat that I learned all. Before them it was developed that the ring which had changed his luck as his existence, was one given him by his dear dead mother years before. Poor boy! I never dealt again."

Brother Gardener Discourses.

"A nite or two ago," began the old man as the meeting opened in due form, "a sartin member of dis club cum softly inter my house an' axed me if I had any objectshuns to his enterin' into a walkin' match. Yesterday anodder member hinted aroun' about organizin' a cull'd base ball club to sweep the kentry. Today, a third member serusly proposed de ideah of fastin' fur fo'ty days on de Tanner principle. Fur two long hours dis afternoon I sot on de back step an' pondered ober dese fing's, an' bine-by I got what I believe am de k'rect ideah. At sartin sezuns of de y'ar de atmosphere am 'pregnated wid some sort o' vapor dat creates a desiah on de part of aboue six men out of ten to make fools of demselves. Dis vapor am now prevalin' aroun' dis nayburhood at hullsale rates, an' if it affects de white folks, why shouldn't it have mo' or less influence on de cull'd people? In order to diski-ver what effect it has on dis club, I now inwite all pou who am in favor of base ball, fastin' and walking matches to rize up."

Not a foot moved. The hall was as quiet as a cow in a garden after cabbage.

"Waal, den, all who am 'posed will please stretch up," continued the president.

Every person in the hall got his feet in under him as soor as possible and stood erect for a full minute.

"Werry well, gem'len—you kin sot down," remarked the old man as a smile crept into the corner of each eye. "I guess I am all right about de vapor, but I guess de vapoe sorter slides away from de cull'd race. Now let me say to one an' all as follows: Two weeks wid a spellin' book will do any of us mo' good dan two y'ars wid a base ball club. If you want to walk go out an' look for work. As to de queshun of fastin', dar's a full dozen of you in heah who'll git all you want of it afore nex' spring unless you make your brushes fly faster dan you have fur a month past. De man who builds up his frame on an empty stomach will drap out o' sight all of a sudden. It's pleasant to be a hero, but de man who aims his dollar a day, pays his debts, speaks de truf, brings up his chill'en in de right way and wins de respect of his nayburs am sailin' his sand scow 'bout as high de true light as he kin go. We will now attack the usual order of bizness."

A LITTLE boy on the night preceding the departure of the family for their Summer vacation amended his regular prayer by adding, "Good-by Lord; we are going to the country to-morrow."

FOR THE LADIES.

Undressed kid gloves must be in light shades.

In trimmings of bonnets and dresses red predominates.

Beads in profusion are the ornaments most in vogue.

Diamond epaulettes are replaced by those of flowers in Paris.

These is a tendency to revive the simple dresses of former days.

Yellow, red, heliotrope, and ecrú grow more and more fashionable.

Towels are beautifully decorated with cross stitch and other embroideries.

Brides' travelling costumes are called "going away dresses" in England.

Flower epaulettes will be the feature of summernight festival and ball dresses.

Artificial flower aprons are the latest novelty in these lovely, frail art creations.

Pointed corsage, though much worn, have not superseded round waists with belts.

Lisle thread gloves come in great variety, finer finished and cheaper than last year.

Low coiffures are worn by young ladies, high Roman crown braids and puffs by matrons.

Nun's veiling is the latest white and cream-colored novelty for summer toilets of ceremony.

Bow and arrow combs and ornaments for the hat and hair show the tendency of popular fancy for archery.

PEARLS.

A secret passion defends the heart of a woman better than her moral sense.

There is for adversity but one refuge—the tomb.

Fate gives us parents; choice gives us friends.

Memory is the granary of the mind and of experience.

Moderation is the pleasure of the wise.

As soon as we have learned how to live we must die.

It is sad but true that we can silence our consciences easier than our desires.

Happiness is like a sunbeam which the least shadow intercepts, while adversity is as often as the rain of spring.

Let him who regrets the loss of time make proper use of that which is to come in the future.

To change and to be better are two different things.

All men look to happiness in the future. To every eye heaven and earth seem to embrace in the distance.

Our own hands are heaven's favorite instruments for supplying us with the necessaries and luxuries of life.

Took His Word For It.

A conspicuous-looking man, lame and feeble, and carrying a pint bottle full of something, halted a pedestrian on Bates street yesterday and said:

"I found this bottle on the corner back there, and I wish you'd tell me what's in it."

The other took it removed the cork and snuffed in a full breath.—the next instant he staggered against a wall, clawing the air and choking and gasping, and it was a full minute before he blurted out:

"Why, you infernal idiot, that's hartsborn."

"Well, I'm perfectly willing to take your word for it without extra insults," observed the invalid in an injured voice, and he took his bottle and walked off like a man who had been abused without the least excuse.

"Is business good?" inquired a friend of an undertaker. "Business good?" he reiterated. "You bet—two in walnut, two in rosewood, and three on ice at this blessed moment."

THE SCHOOLS.

As the schools are about to begin their sessions, it behooves the officers to see that everything is in readiness for the effective prosecution of the duties.

The surroundings of a school house have more to do with the success within, than is generally accorded in the case. A neat yard with a clean play-ground, shade trees, and some attention to shrubbery, not only give an air of neatness and taste to the locality, but have a moral and refining influence upon the pupil, making the school attractive to him, inculcating lessons of tidiness, and calling forth a sense of pride, in the place, which thus begets in him a feeling of personal interest.

Merely book learning without regard to the education of the heart, and the refinement of the feelings, can never produce a beautiful and properly rounded character. The outward must keep pace with the inward. The principle holds good in all the departments of life. A church cannot grow possibly where these conditions are overlooked or neglected, for the principle of godliness, necessarily associates itself with the graces and beauty of outward, as well as spiritual life.

The efficient regulation of the school demands a capable and efficient internal government, this implies proper qualifications on the part of the teacher, of head and heart, and personal character. To draw affection, to be capable of teaching, from being himself well instructed, and by dignity of manner, and gentility of deportment, commanding the respect and consideration, which shall react in the calling forth of the self-respect, and the ambition of his pupils.

To succeed in this wise the teacher must be in love with his calling, studying continually for his own individual improvement, that he may gain knowledge, to be thereby able to impart it; seeking to know the natural dispositions and capabilities of his charge, so that he can best influence them for their good. An incapable or inefficient teacher may leave the impress of his incapacity upon a generation.

It is most important therefore, that the tests of scholarship should be of a high order, and in no case be lowered, to the idea of expediency.

The recent legislation, which has made provision for the continuance of teachers of approved character, in the same locality is worthy of commendation, as it cannot fail to produce beneficial results. It must be evident on all sides, that acquaintance with the characters and capacities of the young of any neighborhood, will give the teacher a great advantage in his work, and hence a good instructor should not be discharged for trivial and unimportant reasons.

The signs of the times indicate a growing interest in school matters, and we wish teachers and scholars, and the entire interest, a happy and successful course, in the new school year, upon which they are about to enter.

P. S.—We should like to see our beautiful new school house either painted, or in some way appropriately coloured, so that the walls may be relieved of the mottled aspect they now present, from the old bricks used in their construction. Its present appearance is that of a beautiful form enveloped in patchwork.

DURING the recent great storm in the Rio Grande valley three hundred houses were demolished or unroofed in Matamoros, Mexico, and large stocks of goods were destroyed, involving $500,000 loss.

WASHINGTON CORRESPONDENCE.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 24th.

Washington is now wholly given up to politics. The situations both Democratic and Republican are discussed on the streets, in the cars, in the Departments, and in the quiet of households. Every one is interested. Those not in office are anxious for "a change" that they may secure office, and the "ins" grasp every word of encouragement that is received here from the country, anxious lest they lose office. With Washingtonians everything is "office." To the average Washingtonian life's highest ambition is satisfied when a government situation is secured. On last Thursday night the Republicans here had a large ratification meeting, the largest ever known in the city of Washington. Next Thursday night the Democrats ratify. A number of prominent gentlemen will speak, and the affair, if it can be made possible, will exceed the Republican meeting in number and enthusiasm. Hon. J. W. Daniels of Virginia who so eloquently seconded Hancock's nomination at Cincinnati, will address the meeting.

The Republicans are highly pleased over reports just received from Indiana. The leaders there promise to give 5000 Republican majority in both the October and November elections. The news from Maine, New York and Connecticut tends also to elate them. But on the other side of the situation, the Democrats are as confident of Hancock's success as ever. The reports received here, are to the effect that Hancock is sure to carry Illinois in November, and that Ohio will be Democratic in October. They claim an increased majority in Indiana, and do not for a moment doubt that New York is solid for the "superb soldier." To one not partial to either side, a reading of the partisan papers of the day is rather confusing, and it is utterly impossible to predict the result in November.

Shortly after the opening of Congress in December there will come before it a question for final settlement, long debated upon in previous Congresses. It is the distribution of the balance of the Geneva Award fund now in the Treasury. There are various schemes before Congress in relation to this money. Great questions of justice and of equity are involved. Distinguished lawyers have argued the claims of the Insurance Companies, and others equally distinguished, have argued the claims of those who actually suffered by loss of ships, or by the payment of immense war premiums, or by enforced idleness because merchants were unwilling to risk their goods in American ships, which, if captured by Confederate cruisers, would be lost. From the sentiment of members, and by votes taken in Congress, it is evident that the men who owned ships and lost them, or who lost by the payment of these heavy war premiums, have every advantage in the contest. Their claims are just, and a knowledge of their suffering during the war to uphold their country's flag and maintain its honor among the nations of the world, will appeal to the patriotism of every American citizen. I will write more upon this subject in the future.

General Halbert E. Paine, late Commissioner of Patents has entered upon the prosecution of and soliciting of Patents for inventors under firm name of Paine, Grolton and Gadd. MERRILL.

EARLY on Monday morning a service was held in the New York Catholic Cathedral for the ordination of priests. The candidates were the Rev. R. J. O'Keefe and the Rev. James S. Kelly, two young students from Mount St. Mary's Seminary, at Emmitsburg, Md., which institution has come to be known as the "Cradle of Priesthood." Bishop Watterson, who was recently elected ordinary of Columbus, O., and was ordained with imposing ceremonies at that city, acted as the officiating bishop. The Cardinal was not present. The presence of Bishop Watterson and the fact of his officiating in preference to some near-by bishop is explained by his having until recently been the president of the seminary at which the candidates graduated.

TOBACCO was first discovered at St. Domingo in the year 1496, and was used freely by the Spaniards, in Yucatan, in 1520. It was introduced into England in 1565, by Sir John Hawkins.

The following from an exchange, we trust may meet the views of our patrons and readers, as heartily as is our own concurrence:

THE LOCAL PAPER.—The columns of a paper are the publisher's stock in trade, and the parties who ask us to use them for their special benefit must expect to pay for the same, and we hope that they will after due consideration, view the matter in the proper light. As every public-spirited citizen of a place should have pride in seeing his town and surrounding country improved,—Every new house or barn in the town or county, every fence, road, shade tree, every new manufacturing establishment erected, every new business opened, enhances the value of property in a community. Every honest, reflecting mind knows this to be true, and should not forget that the local newspaper adds much to the general wealth and prosperity of the place, as well as increases the reputation of the town abroad. It benefits all who have business in the place, enhances the value of property, besides being a desirable public convenience, even if not conducted in the interests of the ruling political power. If its columns are not filled with brilliant editorials, still it benefits you in many ways. It increases trade, it cautions against imposition, it saves you from loss, it warns you of danger, it points out different advantages and increases your profits. Now if you want such a newspaper you must support it by advertising your business in it, and assist us in increasing its circulation by getting your neighbors to subscribe with you for it. If you want such a paper you must not consider it an act of charity to support it, but as a means to increase your own wealth as well as that of the place in which you live. The local press is the power that moves the people, therefore support it by advertising and subscribing and paying for it. The latter is the most essential to the welfare of the publisher and of the paper.

READING, PA., August 23.—A great sensation has been caused throughout Berks county by the discovery of Benj. Zechler, a lunatic, who had been confined in a house in Albany township by his brother Jacob Zechler for twenty-seven years. When found he was chained to the floor in a small house built specially for him and in a room about eight feet square, with only one window for ventilation. This chamber was in a shocking state, the filth being a foot thick on the floor. The man was perfectly nude and in the entire twenty-seven years he had never been washed, combed or shaved.—The madman made a desperate resistance when the officers attempted to remove him, but he was subsequently taken to the insane asylum. The case is to be investigated by the authorities. Some persons believe this.—Ed.

GLANDING'S Patent Trunk, Patented September 30, 1879, by Thomas Glanding, Baltimore, Md.

This Trunk is presented to the public, and the special attention of buyers is called to its advantages. The body and lid of the trunk are made in the usual manner. The trays, which are a special feature, are divided into two sections, the smaller tray or parol case being attached to the lid, is raised out of the body when the lid is raised.

The larger or main tray is attached to the ends of the body by means of parallel arms, so that the tray may be raised and carried back into the lid in its original horizontal position, and is supported on the arms, thus giving access to the body of the trunk. The arms are pivoted to plates of suitable metal, on which are knobs or projections to stop their motion and prevent the tray from falling back against the lid.

We ask the ladies when in town to call and examine the Trunk at GEO. A. GILBERT'S Hat, Boot & Shoe Store, NO 16 N. MARKET ST., Frederick City, Maryland. Ask for Glanding's Patent Trunk. Use no other. mar1 1880

At a Democratic Primary held in this District last Saturday evening, of which Edward S. Taney was made chairman, and L. Edwin Motter, secretary, the following persons were chosen as Delegates to represent Emmitsburg in the County Convention, which meets in Frederick City on August 28th: Edward S. Taney, E. L. Rowe, S. G. Ohler, Joseph C. Rosensteel, Edward McIntire, Felix Dieffenhall, James Crosby and Joseph Byers.

REGISTRATION.—The officers of registration in this county have given notice that they will sit with open doors in their respective Districts between the hours of 9 o'clock, a. m., and 6 o'clock, p. m., on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, September 6th, 7th, 8th, 9th and 10th, for the purpose of registering new voters, issuing and receiving certificates of transfer and for correcting the lists. Every one interested should take notice.

A RAPID TURN.—Aloysius Fox, an old man well known in this community, met with a serious accident on last Tuesday. He works as a farm hand for Mr. Christian Zacharias. Whilst they were threshing, he stepped across the connecting rod, the knuckle of which caught his clothing, pulled him down, and he was hurled around furiously. He was severely bruised and cut, and had his clothing torn entirely off his body, his shoes and stockings only remaining. Dr. R. L. Annan rendered the needed surgical treatment. At last accounts he was doing well under the circumstances.

A SAD AND FATAL ACCIDENT.—On Tuesday afternoon, a son of Mr. E. U. Knobe, was returning a farm-roller to Mr. Joshua Hobbs, when near the place for leaving it, a saw-buck was in the way; this he desired a boy near by to remove; whilst doing so, little Alice a five-year-old daughter of Mr. Hobbs, climbed upon the roller unnoticed by the driver, who started his horses, and the roller passed over the child unknown to him, until he saw her dead in the arms of the mother, who picked her up in the road, she having died in a few minutes.

PERSONS who are disposed to find fault with the Editor will do well to call upon him and represent their grievances in a respectful manner. We have no tricks about our work, everything is open and above board, and to be taken as represented. Our communications are all from responsible sources and are just as they appear and not as if with any covert meaning or intent. Whilst we work hard for the common good, we desire the approval of our friends. Help us in our efforts and don't obstruct our work by unkind innuendoes. If a correspondent says what you don't approve, answer him, we are not answerable for what we don't write.

THE warm weather we have had with in the last fortnight, has been owing not so much to an actually high temperature, but to the amount of moisture, which has caused the clouds to hang low, and thus contracted the space between the earth and the aerial regions. The predominant sensation has been one of oppression. We have appreciated the idea which may have originated Sidney Smith's desire to lay aside his flesh, and sit in his bones.

NEWSPAPERS.—Small is the sum required to patronize a newspaper and amply remunerated is its patron, I care not how humble and unpretending the journal which he takes. It is next to impossible to fill a sheet with printed matter fifty-two times a year, without putting into it something that is worth the subscription price. Every parent whose son is away from them at school should supply him with a newspaper. A newspaper is a history of current events, as well as a copious and interesting miscellany, and which youth will peruse with delight when they will read nothing else.

WE have had occasion to change our views about the weather since writing another paragraph which appears elsewhere: The thermometer reached 92 degs. on Tuesday. The rain of Wednesday night has changed the face of things completely and it needs closed doors, on this, (Thursday) to be comfortable, they had the heaviest rain storm of the season in the afternoon of that day at Baltimore, 1 1/2 inches of rain descended in a few minutes and considerable damage was done in various directions. We had no storm here.

ST. NICHOLAS for September has been received. It opens with a picture of the feeding of the pigeons at San Marco, of which church, and the swarming doves and pigeons dwelling in and about it, there is an interesting description, in connection with the general notice of the sights and historical associations of beautiful Venice, the "Bride of the Sea." "Jack and Jill," is continued, and there is quite an exciting article on Bicycles for boys, together with the stories, poems, lectures, puzzles and teachings, which make this periodical so deservedly popular with the young folks. Price $3.00 a year, or 25 cts. a number. Scribner & Co., New York.

SUDDEN DEATH.—Mrs. Emily J. Hahn, wife of Elisha Hahn, living about midway between this place and Woodsboro', died very suddenly on Sunday morning last, of heart disease it is supposed.—She had been taken medicine for several weeks, but on Sunday morning last got out of bed, dressed herself and came down to breakfast; spoke of feeling stronger and of going to camp next Sunday; after talking for some time she again went up stairs, and before reaching her bed fell on the floor, and in fifteen minutes she was dead. She was a daughter of Mr. Enoch Waltz, in the 35th year of her age, and leaves a husband and one child, the latter about 7 years old.—Banner of Liberty.

STATE elections will occur this year as follows: Arkansas, first Monday in September, Vermont, first Tuesday of September; Maine, second Monday of September; Colorado, first Tuesday of October; Indiana, Ohio and West Virginia, second Tuesday of October; California, Connecticut, Delaware, Florida, Illinois, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Mississippi, Missouri, Nebraska, Nevada, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, North Carolina, Pennsylvania, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas and Virginia, November 2; Georgia November 3.

JURORS DRAWN.—On Thursday last, Sheriff Hartsock, returned the following named jurors as disqualified. Charles E. Mullen, Peter Hoke, James H. Clemson, Henry Repp, Milton Burke, Samuel Glissan, Chas. W. Whitehill, Daniel J. Houck, Joseph Rowe, Horace J. Zimmerman, Zadoc Windsor, William Wanner, Jr. The same day the following names were drawn from the box in the place of the above gentlemen: Thomas C. Fox, Geo. M. Shaw, Frederick Holtzapfel, Joseph Hightmon, John H. Hill, Abraham Zentz, Lebbens Griffith, Jr., William S. Flook, Samuel T. Simmons, William H. Lakin, Thomas W. Anderson, William H. Lease.—Examiner.

A DISTRESSING ACCIDENT.—At the Liberty copper mines near Woodsboro' in this county, a shocking accident occurred on Wednesday a week resulting in the almost instant death of an employee named W. Scott Rippeon. He had been working upon an activity in the near vicinity where some blasting operations were being carried on, and owing to the breaking away of a partition between two holes made by diamond drills, a large plug of wood that had been put into one of the borings filled with dynamite, was blown out, and instead of ascending as is usual, took a cross direction and struck the unfortunate man near the hips with terrific force, nearly severing both legs and mangleing him in a terrible way. Physicians were immediately summoned but before their arrival death had ensued. Rippeon was a worthy young man, aged about 35 years and had a wife and three small children who were wholly dependent upon him. He had been a soldier in the regular army for a number of years.

PERSONALS.—Miss Sallie Simonton is among friends near Taneytown, Md.

Mr. Clifford Taney of Atchison Kansas, after a visit to his parents of three weeks duration, left for that place on Wednesday Morning.

Misses Hattie and Millie Birnie of Taneytown, were at Dr. Andrew Annan's this week.

Peter Grabbil, Esq., and his Daughter Mrs. Fleagle of Mayberry Carrall county, were at Mr. Lewis M. Motter's this week.

Mrs. Sheets and her daughter, Miss Minnie, of Brooklyn, N. Y., and Mrs. Miller of Baltimore, left for the latter place on last Friday.

Miss Sallie Grey of Gettysburg, is visiting friends in this neighbourhood. Mrs. M. W. Galt of Washington, D. C., and Mrs. Valentine of Gettysburg, spent Monday with Mrs. J. T. Motter.

We had the pleasure of a call from our friend E. McIntyre, Esq., of Frederick on last Friday.

Mr. Chas. C. Rowe made a visit to his mother in this place.

Miss Sallie Myers of Philadelphia, made a short visit at Mr. J. H. T. Webb's.

A RECKITON.—There was a ripple of excitement in town on Wednesday. A nephew of Mr. Jacob Reeves, who lives in the mountain near by, married a young lady in Philadelphia, whose father is, or is reputed to be wealthy, and who, it is said, has not seen her for some years. The father on learning of the turn of affairs, came home in haste from the west. The young man having violated the laws of Pennsylvania in his course of procedure, was incarcerated in Philadelphia. The young woman made her way to Baltimore, whence in company with an aunt of Reeves' she reached this place, and had taken quarters in the mountain. Her father arrived here in the train from Baltimore, desired to effect an arrest, but as there was no charge preferred, he could not obtain a warrant. Starting out with Constable Ashbaugh they soon returned with the escaper, and the father and his daughter took the afternoon train for Baltimore. Her pleading for the release of her husband, as the condition of her return, was earnest and tender. So runs the course of true love.

HOTEL ARRIVALS.—The arrivals for the week ending Thursday, were as follows:

Emmitt House—W D Jones, A J Kemp, S Shank, J Duran, P R Alger, S McComb, A F Horner, F W Weaver, Mery O F Fields, Jno Lawver, J S Egan, Miss Anna Gwinn, B T Gallagher, E A Quarman, L E Herring, Miss Newcomer, Miss H Newcomer, S Frank Fuller, Baltimore; Theo. The following we have condensed somewhat from the Baltimore American of last Wednesday: On Tuesday last the court of Frederick county was occupied in hearing the case of John Karn, charged with being a tramp, and committed to jail last week by Justice Stokes. Hon. John Ritchie defended the prisoner. Mr. R. contended he should have a preliminary hearing before being held to bail or committed to jail in default thereof. After hearing the State's Attorney Motter on the other side, Judge Lynch decided that the Justice had the power to commit, or to hold any person coming under the description laid down in the act whenever such person is charged with being a tramp in the manner therein stated.

On the same day there was an argument before the County Commissioners, on the objection laid by the School Commissioners with reference to the apportionment of the appropriations levied under the act of 1880 chapter 404. The act authorizes the county commissioners to levy a sum not exceeding $10,000 annually for the erection and furnishing of school-houses under their supervision and in accordance with the act of 1872 and chapter 377, sub chapter 6, which gives the school commissioners the right to furnish the plans and drawings. The county commissioners were under the impression that the whole matter was placed in their hands, and proceeded to act accordingly by making such appropriations as appeared to supply the demand of the applicants; but as the school commissioners contend, in a manner that conflicted with their plans. To secure their right to cooperate with the county board, the school board made the contest.

A GRAND Sunday School celebration will be held near Eyles' Valley chapel, on Saturday September 4th. The school will be addressed by the Rev. O. A. Eldridge and Rev. J. D. Freed of Mechanicstown, Rev. Shields of Graceland and Rev. J. Creager, who is called the "children's friend." The Emmitsburg Band will be in attendance. All are invited to attend.

HOSTETTER'S CELEBRATED STOMACH BITTERS

Though Shaking like an Aspen Leaf With the chills and fever, the victim of malaria may still recover by using this celebrated specific, which not only breaks up the most aggravated attacks, but prevents their recurrence. It is infinitely preferable to quinine, not only because it does the business far more thoroughly, but also on account of its perfect wholesomeness and invigorating action upon the entire system. For sale by all Druggists and Dealers generally.

Hens as Grub Destroyers. Burham's new poultry book gives the following: The French peasants have a model mode of feasting their fowls and at the same time of destroying the common grubworm with which in some districts their land is literally alive in early spring and of which pests the farmer thus there rids himself. When the plowing is being done a large coop or box is placed upon wheels and filled with advanced chickens and fowls—forty, fifty or a hundred in each—and this vehicle is taken to the newly-plowing field and follows the open furrows. The fowls are let out of the perambulating coops as soon as the ground is turned over for a given space, and they are quickly busy in gobbling up the myriads of grubworms thrown to the surface by the plow, gorging themselves with these rare pickings, of which they seem inordinately fond. The coop is moved on as the birds advance behind the plowmen, and the fowls feed constantly all day long in this way, devouring the grubs with intense gusto, and appearing never satisfied so long as there is a stray worm in sight. Thus the French peasant clears his grounds to planting very effectually from these destructive and pestiferous devourers of the rootlings of tender plants. These grubs breed in countless numbers in the fields of Normandy and Nivernais. At sunset the fowls invariably enter the trundled coops, and are thus returned to their home quarters, or are kept confined till next day for a continuance of this duty, which appears to be rare enjoyment to them.

When to Harvest Hay. There can hardly be two opinions as to the nutrition of hay which has been harvested at different stages of its growth or maturity. Clover ought to be cut when the blossoms are partially turning, and cured with as little delay as possible.—It is pretty much the same with timothy. If it is allowed to stand too long it becomes dry and hard, and loses a portion of its nutriment and fragrance, and we doubt if it pays better though it is generally believed that it does. Any judge of hay can tell whether it has been cut early or late, and will not pay by ten to fifteen cents per hundred as much as for the early cut.

A CORRESPONDENT of Vick's Monthly says that one spoonful of coarse powdered saltpetre to a pail of water will destroy potato bugs, squash bugs and other insects. For maggots that work at the root of squash vines, pour about a pint of the liquid on the root of each vine as soon as the pests indicate themselves.

VALUABLE RECIPES.

HOMINY CROQUETTES.—To a cupful of cold, boiled hominy (small grained), add a tablespoonful of melted butter and stir hard, moisten by degrees with a cupful of rich milk, beating it to a soft paste.—Put in a teaspoonful of sugar, and a stately well-beaten egg. Roll into oval balls and dip into beated egg, then in cracker crumbs, and fry in hot lard. Flour your hands before rolling them.

INK STAINS.—Ink stains can be removed from a carpet by freely pouring milk on the place and leaving it to soak in for a time, then rub it so as to remove all ink, and scoop up remaining milk with a spoon, repeat the process with more milk, if necessary; then wash it off completely with clean cold water, and wipe it dry with cloths. If this is done when the ink is wet, the milk takes all stain out of woolen materials instantly; but when it has dried a little time is required.

APPLE FRUIT CAKE.—Soak two cups dried apples over night; in the morning drain and chop fine in chopping bowl; add one cup molasses and let it boil slowly on back of stove three or four hours, until the molasses has thickened; let it cool; add one and one-half cups of brown sugar, one cup of butter, half cup sour milk, one tablespoonful each of cloves, allspice and cinnamon, one teaspoonful soda, three eggs, three and one-half cups of flour; bake in two square tins or one large five quart basin; if baked in the latter bake slowly two and a half hours. This will keep six months.

Humorous.

De big sunflower may rise above De modest 'tater vine, An' brag about its Sunday clothes An' put on airs so fine; But when de winter howls around, An' de snow lies at de loah, De big sunflower, oh! what am he? De 'tater has de floah!

ALL things are ordered wisely.—No sooner does grass get robust enough to stain light pants than the tailor begins to make the article.

"JACK, what relation are you to that old gentleman I was with this morning?" "Oh, not much; he's married to my grandmother's only daughter.

A FRENCHMAN cannot pronounce "ship." The word sounds "sheep" in his mouth. Seeing an iron-clad, he said to a boy: "Is dis a war sheep?" "No," answered the boy, "It's a ram."

A WELL near Brandon, Vt., forty-five feet deep, freezes solid in summer and contains ice the year round. It is thought that a stratum of cold air which penetrates to the air in winter causes the phenomenon.

"THAT dog of yours flew at me this morning and bit me on the leg, and I notify you that I intend to shoot him the first time I see him." "The dog is not mad." "Mad! I know he's not mad. What has he got to be mad about? It's me that's mad!"

WHEN some one remarked to Judge Black, a well-known lawyer, and a Presbyterian of the strictest school, that the lines which formerly divided people in matters of religion were fading out, he answered: "Yes, and nice distinctions between right and wrong are fading out with them."

A SOLDIER was sentenced, for deserting, to have his ear cut off. After undergoing the ordeal he was escorted out of the courtyard to the tune of "The Rogue's March." He then turned and in mock dignity thus addressed the musicians: "Gentlemen, I thank you, but I have no ear for music."

"How is this, thirty-two francs for such a lunch!" cries a customer to the waiter in a restaurant. The proprietor of the establishment comes up, looks at the man, and says in a severe tone to the waiter: "Antoine, you should have seen whether his overcoat was worth enough to pay the bill."

AN Englishman related that while at Naples recently a terrific storm came up just as he and his wife were sitting down to tea, during which the latter was struck by lightning and burned to ashes.—"My God, what did you do?" asked a horrified listener. "I rang for a servant and said: 'John, sweep up my lady.'"

If you are troubled with fever and ague, dumb ague, bilious fever, jaundice, dyspepsia, or any disease of the liver, blood or stomach, and wish to get well, try the new remedy, Prof. Guilmette's French Liver Pad. Ask your druggist for it, and take no other, and if he has not got it send $1.50 in a letter to the French Pad Co., Toledo, O., and receive one by return mail.

SAID Angeline suddenly breaking the oppressive silence: "Don't you feel afraid of the army worms, Theodore, that are coming so rapidly this way?" The question was such a strange one that Theodore's surprise caused him to look right at Angeline for the first time in his life. Why she ask that, he wanted to know. "O, nothing she replied," as she toyed with her fan; "only papers say they eat every green thing wherever they go."

Literary Revolution and Universal Knowledge.

An Encyclopaedia in 20 Vols., over 16,000 pages; 10 per cent more matter than any Encyclopaedia ever before published in this country, and sold, handsomely and well bound, in cloth for $10, in half morocco for $15, and printed on fine heavy paper, wide margins, bound in half Russia, gilt top, for $20—an enterprise so extraordinary that its success, beyond all precedent book publishing, may be fairly claimed to inaugurate a Literary Revolution. THE LIBRARY OF UNIVERSAL KNOWLEDGE is a reprint entire of the last (1879) Edinburgh edition of "Chambers's Encyclopaedia," with about 40 per cent of new matter added, upon topics of special interest to American readers, thus making it equal in character to any similar work, better than any other suited to the wants of the great majority of those who consult works of reference, and altogether the latest Encyclopaedia in the field. Specimen Volumes in either style will be sent for examination with privilege of return on receipt of proportionate price per volume. Special Discounts to all early subscribers, and extra discounts to clubs. Full particulars with descriptive catalogue of many other standard works equally low in price, sent free. Leading principles of the American Book Exchange: I. Publish only books of real value. II. Work upon the basis of present cost of making books, about one half what it was a few years ago. III. Sell to buyers direct, and save them the 50 to 60 per cent. commission commonly allowed to dealers. IV. The cost of books when made 10,000 at a time is but a fraction of the cost when made 500 at a time—adopt the low price and sell the large quantity. V. Use good type, paper, etc., do careful printing, and strong, neat binding, but avoid all "padding," fat and heavily-leaded type, spongy paper and gaudy binding, which are so commonly resorted to to make books appear large and fine, and which greatly add to their cost, but do not add to their value. VI. To make $1 and a friend is better than to make $5 and an enemy.
