Bread Upon The Waters.

Mid the losses and the gains;
Mid the pleasures and the pains,
And the hopings and the fears,
And the restlessness of years,
We repeat this promise o'er—
We believe it more and more—
Bread upon the waters cast,
Shall be gathered at the last.

Gold and silver, like the sands,
Will keep slipping through our hands;
Jewels gleaming like a spark,
Will be hidden in the dark;
Sun and moon and stars will pale,
But these words will never fail—
Bread upon the waters cast,
Shall be gathered at the last.

Soon like dust, to you and me,
Will our earthly treasures be;
But the loving word and deed
To another in his need,
They will unforgetten be!
They will live eternally—
Bread upon the waters cast,
Shall be gathered at the last.

Fast the moments slip away,
Soon our mortal powers decay,
Low and lower sinks the sun,
What we do must soon be done;
Then what rapture if we hear
Thousand voices ringing clear—
Bread upon the waters cast,
Shall be gathered at the last.

THE JUDGE'S SURPRISE.

The day was bitterly cold in Virginia City, as winter days most generally are in that Alpine town, and though the sun was bright, its rays was as cheerless and chill almost as moonbeams. Wild gusts whistled through the streets, breathing icicles and frost in their furious course, and driving every living thing away to seek shelter from its biting, penetrating breath. And yet not every one was housed and sheltered from the pitiless gale, for he who had work to do or business to transact was summoned by inexorable duty to come forth to his post, or else, when the day of reckoning came, abide by the consequences. Of these luckless exceptions, Abe Denning, the baker, was one. In sunshine or storm, hail, rain or snow, people must eat; eat, in fact, all the more voraciously because it does hail or snow, as if to penetrate an unseasonable joke upon the baker, who, especially in appetizing weather, must see to it that his customer's larders be properly stored with the rarest and best productions of his oven.

Even such cold weather as this did not deter Mr. Denning from attending to the wants of his customers with the assiduity and attention characteristic of his class. While disappearing into a customer's house with an armful of bread, a girl of some fifteen years of age emerged from a miner's cabin close by, and, first casting wild and hurried glances around her, rushed to the baker's cart, and had just abstracted therefrom three loaves of bread, and was carrying them off, when the baker returned and caught her in the act.

Unfortunately, an officer was passing just at the time, and the baker, on the spur of the moment, and without giving the case that consideration which otherwise might, gave her in custody on a charge of theft. The girl, without any attempt at expostulation or explanation, burst into an agony of tears—a sufficient evidence, perhaps, that she was but a novice, after all, in the art of stealing.

"Oh!" she exclaimed, "don't take me in this way. Let me wrap a shawl around my head, or the people will know me."

The officer, consenting, accompanied her into the cabin, while the baker drove away, telling the policeman he would be in court next day to prefer the charge before the police judge.

The officer, on entering, found no one in the cabin but three children—the youngest about three years old, and the eldest six. The hut was cold and cheerless; there was no fire. The two elder children, alarmed at the presence of the officer, exhibited discolored eyes and faces, which bore evidence of suffering and recent tears; while little, Willie, the youngest, was crying and inappeasable, moping aimlessly around the cabin, looking into the empty closet, and putting his little hands mechanically into the empty dishes on the table.

"What made you steal the bread, my girl?" asked the officer. At mention of the word "bread," little Willie looked tearfully and piteously in the man's face. The girl hugged the little fellow frantically in her arms, covering him with tears and kisses.

"Oh, my poor little brother!" she cried, bitterly. "What will become of you now? This man is going to take you Lena away with him!"

The officer, suspecting the actual state of affairs, began to investigate. "Is there no coal, or nothing at all to eat in the house?" said he. "No coal, no bread, nothing to eat!" replied the girl, wringing her hands; and poor Willie and the rest of us have had nothing to eat since yesterday morning."

Here the officer went away, saying that he would be back again in a short time.

"Is the man gone for bread?" asked the oldest of the children. "Hush, Mollie, dear," said Lena. "I don't know what he is going for. He's not a bad man, anyhow, for he hasn't arrested me, as I thought he would."

In a very few minutes the officer returned, with bread and groceries, not forgetting some cakes and confections for the smallest children; while another man at his heels carried a big sack of coal on his back.

At sight of the bread the children screamed with delight, and while Lena cut up large slices of bread, and helped the children and herself, the two men set to work and made a large fire in the stove, the glow of which soon diffused warmth and comfort through the cabin. Then they cooked the meat, and made tea, and spread a steaming meal on the table for orphans, while they carved and attended to their wants till they were fully satisfied.

Happy, happy childhood, whose prerogatives are innocence, mirth and joy! The children, after their dinner, didn't look like the same children at all. Their faces were bright and joyous, happy and handsome; and in a few minutes they were playing and laughing and romping, as happy as if they had never felt the pangs of hunger.

"And now," said the officer, delighted at seeing the children so happy, "sit down, Lena, and answer me a few questions. Have you no father or mother?"

"We have no mother," was Lena's reply. "She died about a year ago, and father went away to Eureka, to work, about eight months ago, and we haven't seen him ever since."

"What is your father's name?" "Dawson—Jim Dawson."

"And he has sent you no money—nothing?" "Nothing. Never heard of him since he went away. But when he was going he left us a bag of flour, and lots of groceries and things—as much as would last us for six months; and he'd be sure and be back before the provisions were all out."

"And you got no letter from him at all?"

"Not one," replied Lena, with a deep sigh.

Poor Dawson had written to his children, however, but postal communication being at that time very irregular and uncertain in the Silver State, the children did not receive his letters.

"Well, I must go now," said the officer, after a pause, "but I will call for you to-morrow, and you'll have to accompany me to the police office, for I must do my duty, you know.—Good-bye." And Lena Dawson was left alone with her little brothers and sisters. She felt sad and lonesome after the departure of her kind benefactor, but the buoyancy of childhood soon gained the ascendancy, and before bed-time the orphans were as happy as any group of little children in Virginia City.

Meantime, the report about the stealing of the bread and the destitute condition of the children got abroad. Jim Dawson, a miner himself, was wellknown and popular among the miners, and the case created such sympathy, and elicited so many reminiscences and commentaries that quite a crowd was attracted next day to the police court—Judge Moses presided. The judge bore the name of being an upright and honest, kind and benevolent, and if fault he had at all, it was thought to be a somewhat uncompromising rigor in the discharge of his official duties. It was hard to say how the case would go. After the transaction of some preliminary business, the case was called. The baker swore to the stealing of the bread, and identified the defendant as the thief. The officer testified to the famishing condition in which he found the children, but said not a syllable about what he had done to relieve them. Poor Lena stood trembling before the judge. Thereupon a miner rustled through the crowd and stood before the bench, eyeing the judge with a deprecating look. "I declare to the Almighty, judge," said he, "I never knewed the state of Jim Dawson's children, and if I did—" he dropped a twenty into Lena's trembling hand.

"You jest knowed as much about it as other folks," exclaimed another miner, excitedly, walking up and putting another twenty into the girl's hand with an indignant air that flung back any latest suspicion that he knew anything of the children's distress any more than anybody else.

Here Long Alec, a miner—so called on account of his height and size—slid timidly and bashfully up to Lena's side. "Leeny," he said, in a half whisper, "hold yer pinafore," and he slipped two twenties into her apron, and then slid back behind the crowd in a corner, and, holding his hat to his face, glanced timidly around, to see that he was completely out of sight.

Then came Wabbling Joe, who was far more bashful than even Long Alec, but put on a bold face, and laughed and talked loud to make believe that he was not bashful at all.

"Judge," said Wabbling Joe, laughing and nodding familiarly at the court to disarm that functionary of possible rigor in the trial of the case in hand—"judge, let the girl slide. She ain't done nothing but what you or I would do if we was hungry!" And poor Lena was once more the recipient of another present.

The court held down his head and smiled gravely at Wabbling Joe's defense of the accused; but immediately recovering his gravity, said:

"Gentlemen, I appreciate your liberality and generous sympathy for the young offender, and am particularly impressed with the ingenious defense made by my friend, Wabbling Joe," here a good-natured laugh escaped the whole crowd, as if to put the judge in good humor—"but," continued his honor, "whatever might be the sympathy of the court for the sad condition of the accused, there is a public duty to be performed, and the case must therefore proceed."

"What is your name, my girl?"

"They call me Lena Dawson, sir," was the reply.

"Call you Lena Dawson! And I suppose Lena Dawson is your name, is it not?" observed the judge.

"No, sir, it ain't," returned the girl. "My father died when I was only three years old, and my mother got married to Mr Dawson some time afterward. My proper name is Madeline Winters, but they call me Lena, for short."

"Madeline winters! Where were you born?" asked the judge.

"In Kansas City, sir," was the reply.

"In Kansas City!" echoed the court, in a voice of still deeper gravity than before. "And what was your mother's maiden name, do you know?" "Madeline Moses, sir," responded Lena.

"Madeline Moses! My God!—my God! She was my sister!" And Judge Moses, overcome with emotion, bowed his head on the desk, while a torrent of tears flowed down his face. Just as the crowd, in obedience to the dictates of delicacy, were emerging from the police court, to let uncle and niece indulge the sacred joy of mutual recognition, Jim Dawson appeared at the door, having just returned from his prospecting ture in Eureka, and, with an innate sense of propriety that did honor to his acquaintances, who were all rejoiced to see him, was quietly permitted to join his relatives inside.

Getting a Boy to Take Castor Oil.

His loving mother said, "If you take some of the castor oil, I'll let you go to the circus."

"How much?" he cautiously inquired.

"Oh, only a spoonful; just a spoonful," she replied.

"And you'll give me some sugar besides?" he asked.

"Of course I will—a big lump."

He waited until she began pouring from the bottle, and then asked—"And you'll give me ten cents, too?"

"Yes, of course."

"And you'll buy me a shoofly kite?" he went on, seeing his advantage.

"I guess so."

"No kite, no ile," he said, as he stepped back.

"Well, I'll buy you a kite," she replied, filling the spoon up.

"And a velocipede?"

"I'll think of it."

"You cant think no castor oil down me!" he exclaimed, looking around for his hat.

"Here—I will, or I'll tease father to; and I know he will. Come, now, swallow it down."

"And you will buy me a goat?"

"Yes."

"And two hundred marbles?"

"Yes. Now take it right down."

"And a coach dog?"

"I can't promise that."

"All right, no dog, no ile."

"Well, I'll ask your father."

"And you'll buy me a pony?"

"Oh, I couldn't do that. Now be a good boy, and swallow it down."

"Oh yes; I'll swallow that stuff, I will," he said, as he clapped on his hat. "You may fool some other boy with a circus ticket and a lump of brown sugar, but it'll take a hundred dollar pony to trot that castor oil down my throat."

Taking Him at His Word.

Never get out of temper with a barber. A gentleman not long since was sitting in a barber's chair trying to read the morning newspaper while having his hair cut. The barber in the meantime was worrying him with a long story about the barber's boy and the shoemaker's daughter at a ball, a story that was strung out until forbearance ceased to be virtuous, when the man being clipped, looked up somewhat annoyed, and exclaimed: "Oh, cut it short!" which remark the barber understood as referring to the head of hair he was operating on; so he cut it shorter and went on with his story. "Cut it short," again said the customer, and the barber cut it still shorter. His story was a long one, and the unfortunate customer had occasion to ejaculate "cut it short" a dozen times before he got through. The barber did cut it short. When that man left the chair he was as bald as a new-born baby. He wears a smoking cap in church now.

THERE is some humor in Texas.—The other day a man brought out a forlorn, spavined looking steed, and addressed the spectators thus:

"Fellow citizens, this is the famous horse Dandy Jack. Look at him. He's perfect. If he were sent to the horsemaker nothing could be done for him. What shall I have for the matchless steed?"

"What will you take for him?" yelled the crowd.
"Two hundred dollars."
"Give you $5."
"Take him. I never let $195 stand between me and no horse trade."
That's business.

THE ANNIVERSARY WEEK.

A week among weeks has been the one through which we have just passed; one to be remembered through generations to come.

In the very heat and passion of political warfare, seemingly unmindful of its momentous issues, a renowned city, a great and populous city of the land, lays aside the contemplation of political matters, and gives itself up to hilarity and rejoicing, with all the resources of numbers, wealth, science and art, not forgetting the sacred influences of religion at its command.

Baltimore city, the pride and glory of our noble State of Maryland, renowned in every department of art, manufactures, agriculture, commerce, for the glory of her military achievements in the past, and known and honored in all lands, as the very citadel of freedom, of civil and religious liberty, has been celebrating the anniversary of her one hundred and fiftieth year; the gay and glorious season still continues amid surroundings of beauty to which the very elements seemed to have loaned their loveliest charms of bright skies, gentle winds and genial influences.

Can there be a Maryland heart that does not rejoice in the contemplation of the rich and varied pleasures which have made up and are yet filling the measure of these enjoyments? Is there a soul throughout our borders, so contracted, so narrow in its estimate of the pride of life, and honorable remembrance of the successes achieved by a noble line of ancestry, as coolly to sit down and enquire—what good? wherefore this waste, why not direct these resources to the benefit of the poor, and the founding of institutions for the relief of the children of sorrow and suffering?

It will be remembered that an offer was made by the Government, of men and stores for this expedition, but were afterwards refused because of the unseaworthiness of the vessel. The misfortunes of the expedition, and their return to this city prove that the Naval Board that pronounced the "Gulnare" unseaworthy, knew its business, and that those who insisted to the contrary, did not. The expedition will make another start next spring, and it is hoped they will select another vessel.

It is even thus with the passing generations of the human race. The memory of the accomplished deeds, is handed down from father to son, and these serve as inspirations to nerve the arm of industry, expand the wings of commerce, broaden the conquests of art and science and keep the wheels of progress in motion.

Like "bread cast upon the waters," Baltimore is sowing the seeds of advancement, which will show themselves for generations to come. The outgrowth of her present demonstrations will be visible in her growth in every department of activity.

Such unity of purpose and action, such devotion to a common object of affection and pride, over-riding as it has done, all differences of political and religious opinions, cannot but bind a people in the common ambition of maintaining the good name and promoting the future advancement of the city, and this advancement by its own reflex action must and will permeate every nook and corner of the State.

Rejoice then and be glad we say, all ye people! for the honour and the glory of your fathers diffuses itself around you, and bids you transmit it to your descendants with the heightened glory of your own added advances.

CHILI and Peru have accepted the offer of mediation by the United States.

WM. LASSELL, F. R. S., LL. D., the eminent English astronomer, is dead.

WASHINGTON CORRESPONDENCE.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 12th. This letter, written before any returns are received here from Ohio or Indiana, can of course give no reports, and the writer will not, under the circumstances, prophesy as to results. But every good citizen, Democrat, Republican or Greenback, ought to deprecate the violence which has been threatened in both States. There can be no possible good result from this sort of thing. Every fair man will be ashamed of it after the election is over. Why not in the name of sense, prevent the evil rather than lament over it?

Of the line Justices of the Supreme Court there are now three unable to perform their duties. The Court is, therefore, in no better condition for the transaction of its increasing business than before the addition made under the Grant's administration to the number of Justices. Justice Hunt is permanently disabled. Justice Clifford, it is feared will never be able to take his place again. There are conflicting reports concerning Justice Fields' health, but I am informed he will not reach here until the 18th of this month, and that thereafter a prolonged rest will probably be necessary for even a partial restoration of his health.

The steamer Gulnare last night returned to the wharf in this city, from whence she sailed on June 21st last. She left St. John's August 1st, and, encountering rough weather, the deck load of lumber and other articles had to be thrown over board to save the vessel from going down. There was no lack of coal on the voyage. She encountered some rough weather outside the capes on her return here, and by some mistake was carried out of her course southward, but, coming across a three masted schooner bound for Georgetown, the Gulnare followed her into the bay and river where she entered Saturday night. The crew are all healthy, no sickness having troubled them. She brings back nearly all her stores. Dr. Pavy and Mr. Henry Clay were left at Disco, with lumber for a house, ammunition and stores.

It will be remembered that an offer was made by the Government, of men and stores for this expedition, but were afterwards refused because of the unseaworthiness of the vessel. The misfortunes of the expedition, and their return to this city prove that the Naval Board that pronounced the "Gulnare" unseaworthy, knew its business, and that those who insisted to the contrary, did not. The expedition will make another start next spring, and it is hoped they will select another vessel.

THREE political battles were fought this week. The Republicans carried the state of Indiana by a majority on the state ticket, as far as known, of 6,889 in 85 counties, with a majority on joint ballot in the Legislature of 14. The net majority is put down at 5,325. The Republicans also carried the state of Ohio, by an average majority claimed at 21,000, and fifteen congressmen elected. In West Virginia the Democrats claim the state by from 12,000 to 15,000; the Republicans concede it by at least 8,000.

THE Turkish evacuation of Dulcigno has taken place, and thus for the present, the threatening aspect of a European war has been averted. The vessels of war which the great Powers held in threatening array to compel the fulfilment of treaty stipulations having performed their offices, may now retire from the scene, and the little seaport on the Adriatic now forms part of Montenegro.

Prus IX prescribed in his will his burial place and that not more than $400 should be expended on the monument above it. Leo XIII, desiring to do his predecessor due honor, has asked a commission of cardinals how this could be done without seeming to be disrespectful, and the cardinals have suggested spending the $400 in a small monument, around and over which a costly one may be reared at the expense of the prices of the church of the late Pope's creation.

The casting was an anvil block for a seventeen-ton steam hammer, and its weight was 160 tons. Five furnaces were built expressly for melting the iron, and seven hours were occupied in running the metal. The hammer will be the largest in the country, the next largest (ten tons) being at Nashua, N. H.

JAMES BROWN is the name of a man at Centerville, N. J., who, though at one time a New York broker, is now employed a hod carrier. The other day, as he was about to ascend a ladder with his hod, a letter was handed to him announcing that he had fallen heir to $54,000, by the death of his father. He told the news to his fellow workmen, but continued his employment, and was promptly on hand the next day, as usual. Seven women applied to him for the position of house-keeper.

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—In Central Park this afternoon was laid the cornerstone of the great historic obelisk of Alexandria, the gift of the Khedive of Egypt, lately brought to this country by Commander Goringe. The ceremony was performed with Masonic rites and the event was looked forward to by the Masonic organizations throughout the country for a long time with more than ordinary interest. The arrangements for the laying of the cornerstone and the accompanying ceremonies were all completed last evening. The Masonic procession was large and imposing.

TO THE MEMBERS OF THE Agricultural Society AND People of Frederick County!

At a special meeting of the Board of Managers of the Frederick County Agricultural Society held September 27th, 1880, the action of the Board of the Saturday previous was unanimously reversed by the substitution of the following:

Resolved, That the Annual Exhibition of this Society as advertised to commence on Tuesday, October 12th, be postponed to Tuesday, October 26th, and terminating on Friday, October 29th, 1880, subject to the same rules and regulations as prescribed in the regular premium list.

With the announcement of the above, the undersigned Committee was unanimously instructed by the Board to present succinctly and briefly the reasons which induced their actions.

With a just appreciation of their responsibilities as the custodians of the welfare and prosperity of the Society the Board felt assured that the Exhibition, as previously announced; in view of the obstacles opposed, would prove a lamentable failure.

To summarize briefly: The overshadowing influence of the grand Sesqui-Centennial (Baltimore's one hundred and fiftieth anniversary) progressing the same week as our proposed Fair, whilst attracting thousands of our citizens and farmers, the main stay and support of our institution, at the same time would draw from our country, many, very many, of the fair wives and daughters whose encouraging smiles and presence redound so largely to our success, and whose skillful handiwork has rendered our Household Department the centre of attraction and an object of admiration and pride. The Board deem it unnecessary to enlarge on the subject as its influence extends to every family, and is patent to all. Besides the development and prosperity of Baltimore should elicit the pride of every Marylander, and we should rejoice in the opportunity which presents to evince our interest in the great commercial city with which we are connected by all the ties natural to man.

Also, the "Great Fair" at Washington under national auspices, with its $25,000 in premiums and but an hour or two distant by rail, in progress at the same time, would further tend to deplete our population and leave, we sincerely believe, a meagre representation for us.

Also, by this action of the Board our Society avoids conflicting with her Sister Societies, Washington county, Gettysburg, and Winchester, all commencing October 19th, and those persons whose feelings point to "Pimlico," can indulge the bent of their inclinations without expatriating themselves from their own Society.

The Railroad fares so low, the attractions so many, the opportunities so great, what could we then present to stem the outward torrent. While a few tried and faithful friends would remain true to their first love, by far the largest number who seek excitement and pleasure and at little, if any additional expense, would be conspicuously absent.

Actuated by a sincere desire for the permanent success of our institution, the Board express the hope that their action will receive the approbation of every member and friend of the Society. [Signed on behalf of the Board.] JAMES H. GAMBRILL, C. K. THOMAS, GEO. WM. SMITH, J. WM. BAUGHMAN, FAIRFAX SCHLEY, FREDERICK, Sept. 27, 1880. Committee. oct2-4t.

GLANDING'S Patent Trunk, Patented September 30, 1879, by Thomas Glanding, Baltimore, Md.

This Trunk is presented to the public, and the special attention of buyers is called to its advantages. The body and lid of the trunk are made in the usual manner. The trays, which are a special feature, are divided into two sections, the smaller tray or parcel case being attached to the lid, is raised out of the body when the lid is raised.

The larger or main tray is attached to the ends of the body by means of parallel arms, so that the tray may be raised and carried back into the lid in its original horizontal position, and is supported on the arms, thus giving access to the body of the trunk.

The arms are pivoted to plates of suitable metal, on which are knobs or projections to stop their motion and prevent the tray from falling back against the lid.

We ask the ladies when in town to call and examine the Trunk at G. O. A. GILBERT'S Hat, Boot & Shoe Store, NO 16 N. MARKET ST., Frederick City, Maryland. Ask for Glanding's Patent Trunk. Use no other. mar1 1880

We take the following from the Valley Register:

As Mr. George Fink, son of Mr. Emanuel Fink, living near Broad Run, in this valley, was returning home from Berlin, where he had taken a load of wheat last Wednesday, in a four-horse wagon, his horses frightened at some hogs lying along the roadside near Oscar Crampton's gate, and ran away. Mr. Fink was in the wagon at the time, the horses being driven by a little nephew of his, but attempting to reach the saddle horse from the wagon he fell and the wagon passed over him, injuring him very badly. Mr. Ezra Horing came along soon after and finding Mr. Fink lying helpless in the road, managed to get him in his spring wagon and conveyed him home, when Dr. T. E. Hardy, of Burkittsville, was sent for. The Dr. says no bones are broken. The horses ran more than a mile, passing through gates by forcing them off their hinges, and only stopping when in the barnyard at home. Strange to say, the little boy was not the least injured, nor were any of the horses hurt.

Just about our time for going to press, we have received from Philadelphia our new No. 4 Model Rotary Job Press. LEFT FOR BALTIMORE.—The Frederick Riflemen, of this city, commanded by Capt. James McSherry, left this city yesterday morning, at 7:25 o'clock, as per order of Adjutant-General Watkins, to participate in the grand parade and celebration of the 150th anniversary of Baltimore city. It is a very fine looking company, and is composed of the very best young gentlemen and will reflect honor and credit upon our town. Although it has only been in existence for a short time, its members have rapidly acquired a correct idea of the duties of a soldier, and in drilling and marching, would put to shame many older military organizations.—Union.

DELEGATION OF MT. ST. MARY'S COLLEGE TO BALTIMORE.—On Thursday, the 14th inst., the Very Rev. Dr. McCloskey sent the following officers and students to represent his college in the celebration of the Monumental City: Rev. Thos. J. Fitzgerald and Thomas F. Gambon, Messrs. John McCarthy, Joseph J. Clark, and G. Kohl and Thos. H. Kinsella of the Theological department; Prof. Chas. A. Leloup, and Messrs. Allan St. John Bowie, R. O. Deppen, B. J. Duffy, F. V. King, M. F. Dunn, Jas. M. Jarboe, John E. Malone, John B. McGuire, Jas. F. Smith and Chas. B. Bayne of the graduating class, Messrs. Philip J. Cogan, W. G. Greenwall, John Callaghan, Jas. Callaghan, Richard Arnold, L. J. M. Tassau, of the classical department, Eugene Byrne, and George B. Martinez and Arthur J. Cadwalder of the Junior department.

THE Presbytery of Baltimore began its 192d stated meeting in this place, on Tuesday the 5th inst., at 2 o'clock, p. m. It embraces all the churches of Maryland west of the Susquehanna river, with their pastors at present fifty, and a membership of 5,550, and 8,691 Sabbath School scholars. During the past year these churches have contributed to Home Missions $7,646. Foreign Missions $8,101, Education $1,775, Church Education $17,856, Ministerial Relief $1,080, Congregational $74,877, Miscellaneous $10,643.

The opening sermon was delivered by the retiring Moderator, Rev. Hughes O. Gibbons, of Annapolis, Md., from Ps. 66: 18. "I'll regard iniquity in my heart, the Lord will not hear me."

The Rev. George E. Jones, pastor of the Broadway church, Baltimore, was chosen Moderator, and the Rev. J. P. Campbell and Rev. S. W. Beach, clerks. The following items of business were transacted: The Rev. J. T. Gibson, recently pastor of Govane chapel, was dismissed to the Presbytery of Allegheny, in the bounds of which he has received a call to a new pastorate.

The Rev. S. H. Thompson announced his acceptance of the call recently extended to him by the Govane congregation. Arrangements were made for his installation on the 26th inst.

Most of the evening session of Tuesday was devoted to a discussion of the following subjects: "The Conditions of Prevaling Prayer," and "The Indocination of the Young." The addresses were heard with great interest, and produced a most favorable impression upon the audience, which was large and attentive. The exercises were interspersed with singing and prayer, appropriate to the occasion.

On Wednesday morning the usual committees were appointed, and the routine business entered upon. Reports were made upon the state of religion in the different churches; and the Sessional Records were passed under review.—Detailed information respecting the work of House and Foreign missions, and the other benevolent schemes of the church was presented and read by the committees having these subjects in charge.

The question of reorganizing and reducing the number of Synods, was deferred until the next stated meeting. In the evening an interesting and impressive sermon was delivered by the Rev. A. G. Leonard, of Barton, Md., from Acts 11:26. "The disciples were first called Christians at Antioch;" connected with other public religious services.

A rising vote of thanks was tendered to the committee of arrangements, to the families entertaining the members of the Presbytery, and to the W. M. Railroad. Owing to the fact that many members of the body attended the sessions of the Pan Presbyterian Council held in Philadelphia last week, the attendance upon this meeting of the Presbytery was unusually small, and the time spent in transacting the business more than ordinarily brief. The sessions were however harmonious and pleasant, and the members returned to their homes well satisfied with their visit to Emmitsburg.

ILLUSTRATED HISTORY OF WESTERN MARYLAND.—Monuments serve to emphasize certain events, or to keep in recollection the excellencies of those who are very dear to their friends or wrought good to the race. Original letters and manuscripts present in frail but interesting form, ideas of the authors in the very hand writing in which these ideas were first expressed. To the printing press we owe the power of fixing for all time and with certainty the facts of the past, when these facts happening within a given locality, are collected and placed in a logical readable and accessible form, then history is born, and thenceforth stands out forever, as the grand imperishable and unchangeable witness of the events of time. It will doubtless be gratifying to many of our readers, to know that Col. J. Thomas Searf of Baltimore has been engaged by certain gentlemen to prepare a "History of Western Maryland, including, Frederick, Montgomery, Washington, Allegany, Carroll and Garrett counties, providing sufficient encouragement is obtained for the prosecution of the work. The plan of the work will embrace a description of the general historical events pertaining to the territory embraced within the original limits of the counties from the earliest times to the present, also geographical, topographical and geological data, together with special chapters upon the bench and bar, medical interests, press, schools, churches, manufacturing and mining interests, early settlers, &c. The wars and muster rolls of 1776, 1794, 1812, 1847 and 1861. In addition to this the work will embrace lists of the county officials, from the earliest times down, and a correct statement of the organization of the county governments. There will follow a complete history of every town and district in the counties, with local events of importance pertaining to each, and lists of town officials. These town histories will be made especially interesting, by the careful manner in which points of interest will be elucidated and the presentation of the genealogical family histories of the early settlers and their descendants. The work if undertaken will be issued from the famous press of J. B. Lippincott & Co., of Philadelphia. The thoroughness and fullness with which it is intended the "History of Western Maryland" shall be written, are sufficient guarantees of the good faith of the undertaking, and we doubt not, that our citizens within the limits of the counties named, will respond with interest to the call for co-operation, which is to be made upon them.

The Use of Potash.

From such facts as have come to my notice, I am led to the conclusion that when potatoes, and, indeed, all, or nearly all vegetables, and perhaps the cereals, which have originated in cool climates, are grown under a warmer latitude than where they make the strongest and best development, they require a soil very much stronger in the inorganic elements of plant food, such as potash, lime, magnesia and phosphoric acid, and demand also to be grown wider apart, one from the other, because, perhaps, the extra stimulating forces of hot climate shorten the period of growth, and there must not only be room enough for the feeding roots, but the soil must be full of plant food. Going south one notices that all common northern vegetables have a tendency to grow above ground, and I was told that unless the soil is heavily manured with stable manure it is nearly impossible to get cabbages to head, turnips to bottom, or potatoes to come to full growth. In the truck patches about Mobile, where cabbages are planted out in November and potatoes in February, an experienced grower informed me that his success with cabbages and potatoes was just in proportion to the amount of stable manure and cotton seed meal he used in the case of the cabbages, and potash in the form of the ash of cotton seed hulls, in an incredible quantity absolutely essential to success with the potato crop. Perhaps the absence of vegetable gardens in the south, which so forcibly strikes the northern observer, is quite as much due to want of manure (on account of the limited quantity of stock of all kinds, which is seldom yarded and rarely stabled) as to any indisposition to do the word of successful truck patching. Potash in the soil is not only essential to the vine growth of the potato, but to its quantity, since the meanness so much sought after results from the presence of starch in the tuber, not a grain of which can be formed in the absence of this salt. In cool climates, the growth and ripening of the potato extend over some months, and the processes of the elaboration of starch occupy many weeks; hence it will be found that a poor soil, in a high northern latitude, will grow better potatoes and more of them than a richer one farther south.—Country Gentleman.

FLOWING FOR SPRING CROPS.—This may be done at any time now where soil is not too light, and not likely to wash during the winter. The ground should be left rough to be subjected to the fullest action of the weather, freezing, thawing, wetting, drying, etc. Should a crop of weeds come up, it will very likely pay to harrow and plow again.

VALUABLE RECIPES.

TO CEMENT BROKEN CHINA.—Beat lime into the most impalpable powder; sift in through fine muslin; then tie some into a thin muslin, put on the edges of the broken china some white of egg, then dust some lime quickly on the same, and unite them exactly.

VARNISH FOR MAPS AND PICTURES.—Put equal parts of Canada balsam and turpentine into a bottle, which place in a warm situation, and shake frequently for about a week, the varnish will be the fit for use. The picture or map must first have a coat or two of thin isinglass or gum arabic, which should be perfectly dry before the varnish is applied.

CIDER WINE.—To three gallons of new, unfermented cider, add nine pounds of sugar; dissolve the sugar by stirring it well. Put it into a sweet keg, and let it stand four weeks; then strain it through a cloth strainer, and put it either into bottles or jugs; cork tightly, and it will keep for any length of time, as age improves it. Every house-keeper knows what a luxury and convenience a pure, unadulterated wine is in a family, either for cooking purposes or medicinal uses.—Maple sugar is as nice for wine as any other.

"What's the matter with Colonel Jones?" "Nothing, boss, but to tell de troof, eber since I stole his chickens I loses all confidence in the man as soon as he looks me square in the face."

"You goin' to the State Fair this year?" queried one boot black of another, as they met at the postoffice yesterday.

There was a silence of half a minute, during which they looked each other over. Then the first one asked:

"Do you sneak in with a family or climb the fence?"

"I sneak. How do you do?"

"I climb."

There was another interval of silence, and then the little one observed:

"But there needn's be no hard feelin' between us."

"Oh, no, no," replied the other;

"all we differ on is in the minor particklers. We is just as solid as wheat on the main question. You won't give me away to the purleeco?"

Literary Revolution and Universal Knowledge.

An Encyclopaedia in 20 Vols., over 16,000 pages; 10 per cent more matter than any Encyclopaedia ever before published in this country, and sold, handsomely and well bound, in cloth for $10, in half morocco for $15, and printed on fine heavy paper, wide margins, bound in half Russia, gilt top, for $20—an enterprise so extraordinary that its success, beyond all precedent book publishing, may be fairly claimed to inaugurate a Literary Revolution.

THE LIBRARY OF UNIVERSAL KNOWLEDGE is a reprint entire of the last (1879) Edinburgh edition of "Chambers's Encyclopaedia," with about 40 per cent of new matter added, upon topics of special interest to American readers, thus making it equal in character to any similar work, better than any other suited to the wants of the great majority of those who consult works of reference, and altogether the latest Encyclopaedia in the field.

Specimen Volumes in either style will be sent for examination with privilege of return on receipt of proportionate price per volume.

Special Discounts to all early subscribers, and extra discounts to clubs. Full particulars with descriptive catalogue of many other standard works equally low in price, sent free.

Leading principles of the American Book Exchange:

I. Publish only books of real value.

II. Work upon the basis of present cost of making books, about one half what it was a few years ago.

III. Sell to buyers direct, and save them the 50 to 60 per cent. commission commonly allowed to dealers.

IV. The cost of books when made 10,000 at a time is but a fraction of the cost when made 500 at a time—adopt the low price and sell the large quantity.

V. Use good type, paper, etc., do careful printing, and strong, neat binding, but avoid all "padding" of fat and heavily-loaded type, spongy paper and gaudy binding, which are so commonly resorted to to make books appear large and fine, and which greatly add to their cost, but do not add to their value.

VI. To make $1 and a friend is better than to make $5 and an enemy.
