THE OLD CHURCH.

Years it has stood there lofty and worn,
Greeting the sun in the quiet morn;
Years it hath given to God its soul,
Reaching to heaven, the highest goal.

Now in the morning it lies at our feet,
Symbol of sorrow and life incomplete;
Shorn of its beauty, dismantled of grace,
Dying in glory, with martyr-like face,

Once it uprose in its beauty untold,
Gilding its dome in the sunrise gold;
Stained were its windows of every hue,
Bright with the sun that came stealing through.

Glad was the earth on this fair morn,
Joyfully proud in the Faith new-born,
Giving deep thanks for the triumph of grace,
Lifting to heaven its unsullied face.

Deep in its centre the life-throbs beat,
Swelling their tones to the outer street;
Solemn and sweet on the morning air
Sounded the hymn and the low-voiced prayer.

Visions of love in the starry eve—
Wcbs of sweet sorrow the angels weave,
Longings for light in the days gone by—
Memories of these in the old church lie.

Hushed are the voices that once in prayer,
Fretted the waves of the silent air;
Saddened the faces and wearied the eyes,
Watching for light in the star circled skies.

Temple of worship, dismantled and torn,
Hearts would say much on this sad new morn:
But the things we have cherished, must pass away

As the yesterday dies for the glad to-day.
Up from thy grave will spring in the night,
Art's fair temple of grace and light,
And Fate from her shattered altars will rise,

Fair and serene as the stars in the skies.

THE FORGETFUL HUSBAND.

"Oh, dear what shall I do? The hoop has burst off my wash-tub, and my suds are all over the floor!" said Mrs. Alden in a tone of despondency to her husband, as he came to wash his hands in the sink after oiling his new horse rake.

"That is bad, Julia. You will have to let your washing go until to-morrow, then you can borrow Mrs. Seldon's tub."

"But this will all fall to pieces if it stands, and we are expecting company to-morrow."

"I can't help it; I can't stop the work to go off with it now. You make hay while the sun shines, if you make it at all. Can't you tie it up so that it will do for to-day? I should think that you might."

"Perhaps so, if you will help me. But what can I take?"

"Oh, anything for this time; but really, I ought not to stop a minute. Where is the clothes-line?"

"The colored clothes are on it to-day."

"Hang them on the fence, and let me have the line quickly."

Mrs. Alden went out and moved her clothes and took the line down, while Mr. Alden stood in the door and whistled impatiently.

"Do mop up this water, Julia. How can you stand such a puddle? There, I forget to get you a mop-handle, but you can make the old one do to-day, can't you?"

"I suppose I shall have to. You promised to get me one three weeks ago, when you broke this."

"I know I did, but I never think of it—a man has so many things to see to. There that will do this week, it doesn't leak much. I don't see what made it break."

"The hoop rusted out. The old tub has done good service, it has been in use fifteen years."

"There, confound it! what did you leave that wash-board there for! I have broken it to pieces."

"It is worn out and rotten. I wish you would get me a new one. I can never tinker it up again."

"Rub your clothes with your hands; my mother always did, and she never had a wash-board in her life."

Alden marched off to the hay-field before he met with another catastrophe to take up his time.

He was hardly out of sight before a tin peddler's cart stopped at the door, containing a collection of all articles used in a family, from wash tubs down to brooms, mops and pins.

"Anything in the way of trade to-day, Mrs. Alden?" asked the man.

"No, I think not. My husband does not like to have me buy of peddlars. He says I always get cheated."

"Have you not as good a right to have suitable apparatus to work with, as he has? He has a new horse-rake and a hay tedder and his wife is washing in a tub tied up with a rope, and a wash-board that looks as if Noah's wife had brought it out of the ark, and a leaky water pail, and a dipper without a handle, a broken mop handle—bless me, Mrs. Alden! What is the use? You had more money when you married than he had, and I would have tools to work with they were comfortable, to say the least. He never stops to think what a things costs if it will make his work easier. It tires you more to get along with these things than it does to do your work."

Mrs. Alden sat down and looked the property over. It was ridiculous to get along this way. The peddler was right; she had more money than her husband when they started life, and she had worked harder than ever he had. She had managed every way to get along, and he never seemed to think that she needed anything new or convenient. Her setting out was almost worn out, and nothing was ever replaced. "You must make it do; it costs everything to live?" and so she dragged along, year after year, and things wore out and were not replaced.—A big lump rose in her throat as she sat there thinking.

"What do you ask for a wash-tub?" she inquired at length.

"Two dollars for the large one; a dollar and a quarter for the next size. Mophandles for a quarter; wash-boards for a quarter, dippers twenty cents, brooms thirty cents."

"Hand me down two wash-tubs, if you please—one of each size; a zinc wash-board too."

"Yes; and a bucket and a dipper too. I will have them."

And she did have them and sundry other necessary things, amounting in all to the sum of twelve dollars. She paid in barter, such as feathers, rags, eggs, dried apples, and butter, and went to work with renewed courage, but she knew that her husband would growl at the outlay, and expected a regular tempest at dinner.

She was not disappointed. But she got the things, and was glad of it, and so couldn't feel very bad.—Mr. Alden opened his eyes in astonishment.

"You paid twice what the things are worth. I could have bought them cheaper. We could have got along a while longer."

"I suppose I have as good a right to judge of what I need to do my work as you have to get things to make your work easy; and I have made up my mind to-day, that when I need anything hereafter I shall have it. You know that every article that I bought to-day was actually needed in the house. You have said time and again that you'd get them, but you never remember it. It is a hard place for a woman to be in—to have to do all her own work, and not a thing convenient to do it with. It is like the ancient Israelites being compelled to make brick without straw, and I'm not going to do it any longer."

"owing to the hoop bursting off the wash-tub to-day?"

"Yes that was the last feather that broke the camel's back; that and the new horse-rake came too near together. I could not avoid comparing your conveniences with mine, and you can see yourself how it stood. You have every new machine that is intended to make farm work easy, and I have no'ing at all."

Mr. Alden said no more, but ate his dinner in silence, and the hired men exchanged significant glances with each others. They had thought and spoken of the patience which the little woman had shown in working at such a disadvantage, and always trying to make the best of what she had, and they were heartily glad that she had at last made a protest against the injustice.

After the day's work was done, Mr. Alden drove his team down to the village, and when he came back he brought a new stove for the kitchen, and a new pump for the cistern, and a butter worker for the dairy, and the little wife has found, since that day, that her rough places have been smoothed in a most satisfactory manner. Her good man had never thought about. He did not mean to be unjust, but—he didn't think.

Science at Breakfast.

Under this heading the editor of Science groups together a great deal of information on the action of tea, coffee and chocolate. The latter he says, from its large proportion of albumen is the most nutritive beverage, but at the same time, from its quantity of fat the most difficult to digest. Its aromatic qualities however strengthen the digestion. A cup of coffee is an excellent restorative and invigorating refreshment even for weak persons, provided that their digestive organs are not too delicate. Cardinal Richelieu attributed to chocolate his health and hilarity during his later years. Tea and coffee do not afford this advantage. Albumen in tea leaves, and legumin in coffee grounds are represented in very small proportions. The praise of tea and coffee as nutritive substances, therefore, is hardly warranted. Tea and coffee, though of themselves not difficult of digestion, tend to disturb the digestion of albuminous substances precipitating them from dissolved state.

Milk, therefore, if taken in tea or coffee, is more difficult of digestion than if taken alone. Without milk it promotes digestion by increasing the secretion of the dissolving juices. The volatile oil of coffee, and the empyreumatic and aromatic matters of the chocolate accelerate the circulation, which, on the other hand, is calmed by tea. Tea and coffee stimulate the activity of the brain and nerves. Tea, it is said, increases the power of digesting the impressions we have received, creates a thorough meditation, and in spite of the movement of thoughts, permits the attention to be fixed on a certain subject. On the other hand, if tea is taken to excess it causes an increased irritation of the nerves, characterized by sleeplessness and a general feeling of restlessness and trembling of the limbs.

Coffee, too, if taken in excess, produces sleeplessness and many painful effects very similar, to those arising from tea drinking. Coffee also produces great excitement, and a sensation of restlessness and heat ensues. For throwing off this condition fresh air is the best antidote.

Oiling Machinery.

A great difficulty with all tyros in the use of machinery is the wasting of oil by its too profuse use. It often happens that a bearing will heat when supplied with too much oil, that will run cool when supplied with the proper quantity. The reason is that when the lubricator is partly worn it becomes, as Mr. Smith says, sticky; it resists removal; it remains tenaciously between the shaft and its bearings; whereas, too much of it, usually thin and limpid, serves to "wash the bearing" and let the parts into closer contact. In the working of mowing machines this point is exemplified. In grass land, where flying dust is at the minimum, the machine should be kept oiled just sufficiently so that the shafts will show an oily film as seen through the oil holes, and the lightest appearance of fresh oil at the ends of the boxes; any more is an injury. While in use for mowing grain, where dust is usually considered very destructive, all parts should be kept oiled so freely as to keep the bearings always well washed—that is, oil continually working out—then the grit cannot work in.

A Story of Steel Pens.

Few persons who use steel pens on which is stamped "Gillott" have any idea of the story of suffering, of indomitable pluck and persistence which belong to the placing of that name on that article.

A long depression in trade in England threw thousands of Sheffield mechanics out of work, among them Joseph Gillott, then twenty-one years of age. He left the city with but a shilling in his pocket.—Reaching Birmingham, he went into an old inn and sat down upon a wooden settee in the tap room. His last penny was spent for a roll. He was weak, hungry, and ill. He had not a friend in Birmingham; and there was little chance that he would find work.

In his despondency, he was tempted to give up, and turn beggar or tramp. Then a sudden fiery energy seized him. He brought his fist down on the table, declaring to himself that he would try, and trust in God, come what would. He found work that day in making belt buckles, which were then fashionable.

As soon as he had saved a pound or two he hired a garret in Bread street, and there carried on work for himself, bringing his taste and knowledge of tools into constant use, even when working at hand made goods. This was the secret of Gillott's success. Other workmen drudged on passively in the old ruts. He was wide awake, eager to improve his work or to shorten the way of working.

He fell in love with a pretty and sensible girl named Mitchell, who, with her brothers, was making steel pens. Each pen was then clipped, punched and polished by hand, and pens were sold consequently at enormously high prices.

Gillott at once brought his skill in tools to bear on the matter, and soon invented a machine which turned the points out by thousands in the time that a man would require to make one. He married Miss Mitchell, and they carried on the manufacture together for years.

On the morning of his marriage the industrious young workman made a gross of pens and sold them for thirty-six dollars, to pay the wedding fees. In his old age, having reaped an enormous fortune by his shrewdness, honesty, and industry, Mr. Gillott went again to the old inn, bought the settee, and had the square on which he sat that night sawed out and made into a chair, which he left as an heirloom to his family, to remind them of the secret of his success.

A Home for His Mother.

Business called me to the United States land office. While there a lad apparently sixteen or seventeen years of age came in and presented a certificate for forty acres of land.

I was struck with the countenance and general appearance of the boy, and inquired of him for whom he was purchasing the land.

"For myself, sir."

I then inquired where he had got the money. He answered, "I earned it."

Feeling then an increased desire for knowing something more about the boy, I asked about himself and parents. He took a seat and gave me the following narrative: "I am the oldest of five children. Father is a drinking man, and often returns home drunk. Finding that father would not abstain from liquor, I resolved to make an effort in some way to help my mother and brothers and sisters. I got an axe and went into a new part of the country to work clearing land, and I have saved money enough to buy forty acres of land there."

"Well, my good boy, what are you going to do with the land?"

"I will work on it, build a log house, and when it is all ready, will bring father, mother, brothers and sisters to live with me. The land I want for my mother, which will secure her from want in her old age."

"And what will you do with your father, if he continues to drink?"

"O, sir, when we get him on the farm he will feel at home and be happy, and I hope become a sober man."

"Young man, God bless you."

By this time the receiver handed him his receipt for his forty acres of land. As he was leaving the office, he said, "At last I have a home for my mother."—Examiner and Chronicle.

A $1,000 for a Sight of Her.

The other night Bickles went home and found his wife particularly retrospective. She talked of the past with a tear and looked to the future with a sigh.

"Oh, by the way," said Bickles, as he sat on the side of the bed pulling off his boots. "I saw a gentleman down town to-day who would give a thousand dollars to see you."

"Who was he? Does he live in Little Rock?"

"I don't know his name."

"I'll warrant that it was Oliver Gregg."

"No."

"Then he must be George Weatherston."

"Guess again. I might know his name if I were to hear it."

"Oh, I do wish I knew!" said the lady, exhibiting excitement. "Was it Oscar Peoples?"

"Guess again. I remember his name now."

"Harvey Glenkins."

"No; his name is Lucas Wentwing."

"I don't know a man by that name. Why would he give a thousand dollars to see me?"

"Because he's blind."—Detroit Free Press.

In Washington it is no longer the fashion to invite ladies to dinner parties, so the "high teas" are in favor. They are served at 5 p. m.—The hostess of the occasion sits behind the salver, and pours out the tea, coffee and chocolate. There are, besides, salads, cold meats, ices, and jellies. The young gentlemen who love wine do not fancy these "high teas," but the ladies are very fond of them. One lady, a leader of fashion, proposes to give her guests waffles and honey.

A NEVADA ball report says: Miss Honora X, was full of eclat, in fact the eclatist lady present.

LOOK AHEAD!

In the great battle of life, there is no more important element of success, than the habit of looking ahead, taking in as it were, the possibilities of the future, and preparing to meet them.

As with individuals, so it is with communities, those that are satisfied to tread the paths their fathers trod, because it is easier and pleasanter, than heaving out a pathway for themselves, will find, that the active life of the world, with its wonderful developments of human power, its enterprise and business activity, its enlarged intellectual capabilities, which enables man to appropriate all that the finite mind can grasp; all things, that are the natural outgrowth of progress will be so far beyond their reach, that they will seem to belong to another era of the world's history, and will be as strangely out of place, as was Rip Van Winkle when he awoke from his famous nap.

The people of Emmitsburg, have begun to awaken up, and we, as one of their number, rejoice to see the stirring which indicates a shaking off of the lethargy, which has too long kept them so far behind their neighbors, and feel sure, that having once realized the fact, that intelligent, public-spirited efforts to promote our progress, is the only thing that will prevent our falling ignominiously in the rear, we will yet come to the front. Though something, we can even say such, has been already done, there is too much yet to do, for us to stop and boast of what has been accomplished.

We need a supply of water, which can easily be obtained, and an efficient fire department, which prudence would suggest, it were better to provide, before a disastrous conflagration shall make us see the necessity for it.

There is much needed in the way of beautifying our town, which, however, can best be done, by individual effort, if our people can be led to realize, that trees and grass and shrubbery, are as necessary to health and comfort as any of their domestic arrangements, the first step will have been taken towards improvement in this direction.

But one of our greatest public needs, that which demands attention at once, is a Town Hall. It is not necessary that it should be an expensive building, but neat, tasteful, substantial, and large enough for all public purposes, and in a location as nearly central as possible. If steps could be taken at once to inaugurate a movement in the matter there would hardly be a shadow of opposition, and a properly arranged building could not fail to be remunerative at once. Do not let the matter drop, but take the necessary steps at once, and when we celebrate our Centennial Birthday, we can have the grand jollification in our New Town Hall.

CHIEF JUSTICE WADE, of Montana, in a letter to Judge McKinney, of Cleveland, Ohio, gives an account of a terrible experience during a stage-coach ride from Dillon to Helena a few weeks ago. The journey of one hundred and twenty miles was made in the face of a blizzard, with the mercury at forty degrees below zero. The stage wandered from the trail and for a long time was lost in the snow, the Judge and his fellow-passengers meanwhile suffering the greatest torture of mind and body.

In the Pennsylvania House of Delegates, on Wednesday, the bill to submit to the people the removal of the State capital from Harrisburg to Philadelphia was reported affirmatively. In the Senate the bill for the permanent establishment of the Supreme Court at Philadelphia was reported negatively.

A CORNER IN EGGS.—If, as is reported, there is a corner in eggs, the hens have been most improperly and unjustifiably abused. They have been accused of withholding their supplies on account of the cold, the snow and the deficiency of gravel, whereas the actual case seems to be that speculators have been engaged in buying up eggs in every part of the interior with the view to make them scarce and high priced. The results have been disastrous to the pudding interests, and have compelled proprietors of hotels and restaurants to look with suspicion upon every one who desires to be served with boiled eggs for breakfast or ham and eggs at luncheon. The annual consumption of eggs in this country is estimated to be 1,000,000,000, which would give 20 per annum to each inhabitant of the country. Those who look upon eggs as an indispensable part of breakfast may console themselves with the reflection that Easter is rapidly approaching—a season when hens must lay eggs, whether dyed or not.—Sun.

AMONG the bills introduced in the New York State Legislature this week was one by Mr. Astor to incorporate the Mexican Southern Railroad Company. It names as the first incorporators U. S. Grant, Edwin D. Morgan, Mathias Romero, Porfirio Diaz, Miguel Castro, Edward D. Adams, Jay Gould, Thos. N. Kerkson and others. The company may erect and operate railroads and telegraph lines in Mexico. The capital stock is $10,000,000. At the request of Mr. Astor the bill was sent to the Judiciary Committee.

CLEVELAND, O., Feb. 1.—A mysterious fire broke out today in St. Mary's German Catholic Church steeple. The flames were first discovered curling around the clock dial. The tower was burned so much that the spire fell in, and part of it crushed through the roof. Three of the chime bells dropped upon the organ underneath and demolished it. The fire was confined to the steeple. Loss, $10,000; insured.

WASHINGTON CORRESPONDENCE.

Washington, D. C., February 1st. The Democrats of both House and Senate have about concluded, in view of the able Republican resistance in the House, to drop the Morgan resolution. The caucus of Democratic Senators held yesterday concluded to offer the following resolution and to insist upon the passage. It is that, on the day fixed by law, the House will assemble in the Senate Chamber, and the Houses in joint convention shall appoint tellers, who will count and formulate the electoral vote, informing the Vice President of the result, and he according to law shall declare the persons receiving the majority of votes duly elected. I think the Democrats deserve praise for the sensible manner in which they have concluded to adjust a very difficult matter as this resolution, so fair and just to all cannot well be resisted by the Republicans, and especially the Democrats have determined to incorporate in the resolution the following language: that in any event James A. Garfield and Chester A. Arthur, have received a Constitutional majority of all the electoral votes and are duly elected President and Vice President.

There is no doubt that the Democrats have placed in the hands of their opponents material with which to make party capital in the future by their action in this matter. In their anxiety to pass a resolution establishing unquestioned precedents, and fixing the duties of the President of the Senate they have overlooked public opinion.

All but three of the appropriation bills have been reported to the House by the Appropriation Committee. These are the Legislative, Executive, Judicial, the sundry civil and general deficiency bill, which amounts to $25,000,000. Some think a possible failure to pass one or more of these bills will necessitate an extra session.

The gentlemen who have expended so much time and brains labor this winter in selecting a Cabinet for Gen. Garfield are turning their attention now to the more difficult task of selecting candidates for the minor offices, the Commissioner of Agriculture is made unhappy by the large number of Statesmen who are inspecting his flower gardens.

Senator Sheron has been at the Capitol so rarely during his eight years of Senatorial "service" that he has never quite got the hang of the place. The other day he engaged in a frantic search for the "Democratic Club Room" instead of "cloak room," and when set right was much at loss as before.

Mr. S. S. Cox is quite sanguine that he can persuade the House to pass his Reapportionment bill providing for 307 members before the close of the session. There are some doubts, however, as the 307 is an intensely partisan affair.

Gen. Grant arrives here afternoon. He will remain a few days, and then go to Mexico, where he has large interests in several railroad enterprises.

The indications now are that when the funding bill comes up in the Senate, the Democrats will vote unanimously to retain in the bill the Carlisle section relating to National Banks. But the vote will be increased and the time lengthened. MERRILL.

CINCINNATI, Feb. 1.—Information received here states that Archbishop Purcell has suffered total paralysis of the left side, at his retreat, St. Martin's Convent, in brown county, Ohio. The venerable prelate is now almost helpless, though his mind had not been at all affected by the fearful affliction. As he is over eighty years old his physicians have but little hope of his living much longer, especially as he has been much affected by the death of his brother, Rev. Edward Purcell, which took place two weeks ago. Ever since the appointment of Bishop Elder as the coadjutor of the Archdiocese Archbishop Purcell has been practically relieved of official functions.

GREEN canaries were exhibited at a recent bird show in Berlin, Germany. Others were red, light brown, and gray. The variations in color has been produced by the daily use of cayenne pepper in their food.—The pepper was at first given in small quantities, and the birds appeared to like it, but the feathers soon fell, giving them a molting appearance. In a short time new feathers of divers colors sprouted.—The variations were ascribed to the various qualities of the pepper and to the quantity given.

Will you be saved by them? See other column.

SUDDEN DEATH.—Mr. Wm. Null, residing with his son George W. Null near Graceham was found dead in his bed on the morning of December, 30th. He retired on Wednesday evening in his usual good health, complaining of nothing whatever, and when his daughter-in-law called him to breakfast the next morning she found him dead. It is supposed he died from heart disease. His remains were interred in the Catholic burying ground at Mechanicstown of which church he was a member.—Clarion.

In the notice of the entertainment given on Thursday evening of last week, there was a mistake as to the management and control of the Orchestra, which arose from ignorance of the fact that it was under the direction of Mr. Charles A. Manning, through whose energy and musical taste, it is indebted for its origin, and acknowledged proficiency. Mr. M. is certainly entitled to commendation for his successful efforts to develop the musical talent of his neighborhood, and it gives us much pleasure to recognize his claims.

DIED.—On Thursday morning, February 3rd, of pneumonia, Isabel D. King aged 64 years. The deceased had been a domestic in the family of Dr. James W. Eichelberger, for forty-five years, and by her faithfulness, honesty, and christian character had well earned the respect and affection with which she was regarded by every member of the family. She was buried on Friday morning at 10 o'clock, the funeral services being conducted by Rev. E. S. Johnston, of the Lutheran church, with which she had been many years connected.

Speculation in life insurance policies, it now appears, has been quite extensive in this county, and as the various transactions are becoming known discussion on the practice is becoming general.—The arrest of two parties engaged in the business has made some others feel nervous, and the result of the preliminary examination to-morrow is anxiously awaited. It is said that parties hold policies on the life of an old colored man in this city to the amount of fifty or sixty thousand dollars; a considerable insurance is said to be held on the life of an aged pauper at the almshouse, and every day new cases are coming to light. A recent decision of a Pennsylvania court, it is said, gives the insurance to the heirs of the assured where it can be shown that the beneficiary has no interest in the assured.

NOTICE TO FARMERS AND OWNERS OF PRIVATE RESIDENCES.—The safest and best company in which Farmers and owners of Private Residences can insure their Property, is the Time-Tried and Fire-Tested Agricultural Insurance Company. It insures nothing but private Residences and Farm Property. In the last 27 years it has not had a loss of over $5,000, in one Fire, and it cannot be affected by sweeping conflagrations, as its risks are all detached. It insures against damage by Lightning, whether fire ensues or not, and insures Live Stock against being killed by Lightning anywhere on the farm. The Agricultural Insurance Co., is a stock company, and the strongest and largest company, doing an exclusive Dwelling Business in the United States, if not in the world, and is now issuing 50,000 Policies a year. For further particulars, apply to W. G. HORNER, Agent, Emmitsburg, Md.

DECISIVE BATTLES OF THE WORLD.—Creasy's extremely interesting volume narrating the history of the fifteen decisive battles of the world, those few battles of which a contrary event would have essentially varied the drama of the world in all its subsequent scenes, is highly esteemed by all readers of history. It has a long time been on Harper's list as one of their standard books, at the price of $1.50.—Now it is issued in a very handsome cloth-bound volume, by the American Book Exchange, New York, at the nominal price of 35 cents. It forms one of their Acme Library of History, which includes Macaulay's England, $1.25 (reduced from $7.50), Gibbon's Rome $2.00 (reduced from $9.00), Rollin's Ancient History, $1.75, Froissart's Chronicles, $1.50, and to which list will soon be added, at equally low prices, Grote's Greece, Green's (larger) England, Mommsen's Rome, Mason's Guizot's France, Carlyle's French Revolution, Schiller's Thirty Years' War, and others. Catalogues of the standard low-priced books of the Literary Revolution will be sent on application to the American Book Exchange, Tribune Building, New York.

THE death of "Aunt Lizzie" King, as she was familiarly called, noticed in its appropriate place in this issue, leaves a vacancy between the present and the past generations of our coloured folks, which will long be noticed. She was the mother of six children, of whom three survive her. Her husband died many years ago; until her last sickness, which ended in drowsy, she was never known to be ill: The fitting word to express her course of life would be fidelity. She became a member of the Mottier family when a young woman and obtained her freedom in accordance with the will of her "mistress," in 1858, but, except for a short interval, she remained in the family with whom so much of her life had been passed, and over fifty grand children of that family grew up around her, and ever held in memory her constant kindly interest on their behalf.

She was visited in her sickness by her Pastor, Rev. Fr. White, C. M., who administered to her the rites of the Roman Catholic Church, of which she had been a member from her youth. Her funeral took place on Tuesday afternoon, and notwithstanding the blinding snow storm, was largely attended. Fr. White officiated.

He was a good citizen and took an active part in the affairs of this community, having been a town commissioner, and in various positions of trust. He was the proprietor of the Emmitsburg Foundry, in which by close attention to business, and untiring industry, he made his establishment one of great usefulness. THE CHOICE OF BOOKS.—A very elegant little volume with the above title, by Charles F. Richardson, is just issued by the American Book Exchange, Tribune Building, New York, at the very low price of 25 cents; also a cheap paper edition at the nominal cost of five cents. It will delight all who love good books, and in its wise suggestions will be greatly helpful to all who want help in choosing the best books. In its various chapters it treats of The Motive of Reading, The Reading Habit, What Books to Read, The best time to Read, How Much to Read, Remembering what One Reads, The Use of Note Books, The Cultivation of Taste, Poetry, The Art of Skipping, The Use of Translations, How to Read Periodicals, Reading Aloud and Reading Clubs, What Books to Own, The Use of Public Libraries, The True Service of Reading. The volume is remarkably rich in striking quotations from the world's most famous authors and thinkers, from Aristotle to Emerson, including such names as Addison, Bacon, Burns, Cato, Carlyle, Disraeli, Fenelon, Gibbon, Hugo, Keats, Lamb, Locke, Luther, Milton, Petrarch, Ruskin, Shakespeare, and Thoreau. It is a real literary treasure-house.

SCHOOL EXHIBITION.—Silver Plain School in Eyer's Valley gave an exhibition in the school-house, on Saturday evening, Jan. 29th, which was a credit to the school and should not pass by unnoticed. The house was thronged to its utmost capacity at an early hour, and many persons were hindered from hearing and seeing the exercises as they would have desired, on account of not having room. The house was very tastefully decorated with festoons and wreaths. After the audience was called to order, Miss Manzella Harbaugh, a pupil of the school, introduced the teacher in the following manner: "Ladies and Gentlemen: I have the honor of introducing to you our beloved and respected teacher, Mr. Ambrose, who will now deliver to you the salutatory." A hearty greeting and welcome were extended to all on behalf of the school, after which the programme was filled, consisting of four declamations, sixteen recitations and fourteen dialogues, interspersed throughout with appropriate vocal music. The pupils deserve commendation for the manner in which they acquitted themselves in the rendering of their various parts. At the conclusion, Mr. C. N. Sten made a few remarks, and was followed by Mr. Wm. M. Martin, teacher of Sabillasville School who congratulated teacher and pupils on the efforts they had put forth and the success they met with. In short the occasion was a very pleasant one, and long to be remembered by all that were present. S. P. A.

Tonic for Poultry.

The best tonic is iron, a few drops of the tincture being mixed with the drinking water, or half a dozen rusty nails being thrown to the bottom of the drinking vessel.

Charcoal (and you can economically use the little bits of charred wood that remains after a wood fire) is a good purifier of the digestive organs, as it absorbs fetid matter.—It stimulates digestion. Furnish it in small pieces, about the size of the grains of corn; they will swallow it when they need it, particularly if some in a powdered state has been previously added to their soft food to teach them.

Sulphur is a very valuable drug to the poultryer, but should be used carefully in case of young chicks, as many were reported killed by its use externally, and apparently more often when it is used with lard.—The fine powder has caused blindness by getting into the chick's eyes. The flour of sulphur is often contaminated with the oil of vitriol.—To get this out wash your sulphur in hot water, which does not dissolve the sulphur. To apply it to small chickens, sprinkle it from a dredging box and keep the chickens out of the wet for the day. Persian insect powder is safe, however.

CHICKEN POWDER.—Four ounces each of copperas, cayenne, sulphur and rosin; powder all and mix; two spoonfuls for each dozen of fowls several times a day.

LIME WATER.—Four ounces of lime and one of water; slack the lime with a little of the water and pour on the rest. Cover and set aside for three hours, then pour off the clear liquid from the top and use the lime that is left when wanted.—American Poultry Yard.

VALUABLE RECIPES

TO CLEAN SILVER.—Nothing is better to clean silver with than alcohol and ammonia; after rubbing with this, take a little whitening, or a soft cloth, and polish. In this way even frosted silver, which is so difficult to clean, may be easily made clear and bright.

HINT TO THE SLEEPLESS.—Wet a cloth in cold water and lay it on the back of the neck. Fold a towel smoothly over it and very often it will soothe the weary brain, and quiet the nerves better than an opiate. It is particularly useful in a case of dull headache.

LEMON MERINGUE (Pronounced Me-ang). Contributed by the American Agriculturist by a Western housekeeper: Put into a quart of milk, 1 teacupful melted butter, 1 cup sugar, 1 cup of bread crumbs, yolks of 3 eggs beaten, the juice and half rind of one lemon grated fine. Stir together well, and bake in a pudding dish to a light brown.—Then beat the white of the 3 eggs to a foam and stir into it a cup of pulverized sugar. Spread it over the top of the pudding and sprinkle a little sugar on. Then bake slightly, to a light yellow.

ONIONS AND MALARIA.—A young man in this place was quite recently taken down with malarial fever, so pronounced by the family physician, his pulse marking one hundred. In the evening the family determined to test the onion cure.—Several onions were accordingly bruised and applied to the soles of his feet and his wrists; the consequence was thorough sweating during the night and an absence of the fever in the morning, the cure being complete. We can vouch for the correctness of this statement.—Waynesboro Record.

PRESERVED POTATOES.—The great drawback in the past in the way of an extended export trade of potatoes from this country has lain in the fact that in ocean voyages the vegetable is susceptible to sweat and rot, and on arrival the losses from this cause are often found to counterbalance the profit made on the intact part of the cargo. This inconvenience seems to be overcome by the recent invention of a machine for pressing and preserving potatoes in such a manner that they may be dried and kept for a number of years in any climate.

Humorous.

"The first lady in the land" is "Mother."

It is difficult for the thrifty housewife to understand why the English aristocracy keep hares in their preserves.

Why is a fool in high station like a man in a balloon? Because everybody appears little to him, and he appears little to everybody.

A MAN writes to an editor for $4 "because he is so terribly short," and gets in reply the heartless response, "Do as I do; stand up on a chair."

THE average age of a hog is only fifteen years. This always consoles us when we see a man spreading himself out over four seats in a railway car.

JOSH BILLINGS suggests that if a man is on his way to the woods to commit suicide and a bull suddenly gives chase, the chances are that he will run for his life.

FATHER TIME is pictured as an old and bald-headed gentleman; but he manages to skip around quite lively, all the same, in spite of being handicapped by agricultural implements.

A VILLAGE pedagogue, in despair with a stupid boy, pointed out the letter A, and asked him if he knew it. "Yes, sir." "Well, what is it?" "I know him by sight, but hang me if I can remember his name."

"WHAT train is this?" asked the benevolent Mrs. Girdelee, of the gate-keeper, as she was returning from her first visit to the city.—"The mail train, madam." "Well, when'll the female train start? I ain't goin' to ride on any of your male trains."

Literary Revolution and Universal Knowledge:

An Encyclopedia in 20 Vols., over 16,000 pages: 10 per cent more matter than any Encyclopedia ever before published in this country, and sold, handsomely guaranteed, in cloth for $10, in half morocco for $15, and printed on fine heavy paper, wide margins, bound in half Russia, gilt top, for $20—an enterprise so extraordinary that its success, beyond all precedent book publishing, may be fairly claimed to inaugurate a Literary Revolution.
THE LIBRARY OF UNIVERSAL KNOWLEDGE is a reprint entire of the last (1879) Edinburgh edition of "Chambers's Encyclopedia," with about 40 per cent of new matter added, upon topics of special interest to American readers, thus making it equal in character to any similar work, better than any other suited to the wants of the great majority of those who consult works of reference, and altogether the latest Encyclopedia in the field.
Specimen Volumes in either style will be sent for examination with privilege of return on receipt of proportionate price per volume.
Special Discounts to all early subscribers, and extra discounts to clubs. Full particulars with descriptive catalogue of many other standard works equally low in price, sent free.
Leading principles of the American Book Exchange:
I. Publish only books of real value.
II. Work upon the basis of present cost of making books, about one half what it was a few years ago.
III. Sell to buyers direct, and save them the 50 to 60 per cent. commission commonly allowed to dealers.
IV. The cost of books when made 10,000 at a time is but a fraction of the cost when made 500 at a time; adopt the low price and sell the large quantity.
V. Use good type, paper, etc., do careful printing and strong, neat binding, but avoid all "padding," fat and heavily-loaded types, spongy paper and gaudy binding, which are so commonly resorted to to make books appear large and fine, and which greatly add to their cost, but do not add to their value.
VI. To make $1 and a friend is better than to make $5 and an enemy.
