SIX LITTLE FEET ON THE FENDER.

In my heart there liveth a picture
 Of a kitchen rude and old,
 Where the firelight tipped o'er the ratters
 And reddened the roof's brown mold;
 Gilding the steam from the kettle
 That hummed on the foot-worn hearth,
 Throughout the livelong evening
 Its measures of drowsy mirth.

Because of the three light shadows
 That freckled the rude old room—
 Because of the voices echoed,
 Up 'mid the rattlers' gloom—
 Because of the feet on the fender,
 Six restless, white little feet—
 The thoughts of that dear old kitchen
 Are to me so dear and sweet.

When the first dash on the window
 Told of the coming rain,
 Oh! where are the fair young faces
 That crowded against the pane?
 While bits of fire light scalding,
 Their dimpled cheeks between,
 Went struggling out in the darkness,
 In shreds of silver sheen.

Two of the feet grew weary
 One dreary, dismal day,
 And we tied them with snow-white ribbons,
 Leaving them there by the way
 There was fresh clay on the fender
 That weary wintry night,
 For the four little feet had tracked it
 From the grave on the brown hill's height.

Oh! why on this darksome evening,
 This evening of rain and sleet,
 Rest my feet all alone on the hearthstone?
 Oh! where are those other feet?
 Are they treading the pathway of virtue
 That will bring us together above?
 Or have they made steps that will dampen
 A sister's tireless love?

The Forlorn State of Friendless Women Who Were Not Taught Self-Reliance.

[DETROIT FREE PRESS.]

"Only a bright woman with a touch of genius."
 So runs a fragment of a letter written by a good man to a woman who had asked him for work. He further told her that he was engaged in the unpromising labor of trying to develop certain sectarian literature, but she was neither priest nor Levite—"only a bright woman with a touch of genius"—and he could offer her no encouraging prospect.

The question naturally uppermost is: What shall this woman do? She is one of a numerous class whose cries smite our ears and hearts at the birth and death of every hour. Of what value to her are power, capacity, will, equipment, genius, when opportunity is denied her? "The lamp of Genius, though by Nature lit, If not protected, pruned and fed with care, Soon dies or runs to waste with fitful glare."

If I were not certain that this young woman's environment bears close resemblance to that of many thousands of her sex I should be much disinclined to violate private feeling by any allusion to it; but she represents in her own experience the difficulties of a problem the solution of which is of far-reaching concern.

Here is a woman of tender rearing, whom certain not unusual calamities of life have deprived of those material supports upon which she was always taught to lean, thrust inexorably forth into the world to learn the costly lesson of woman's self-reliance—to learn it unaided—and to put her native forces in training, when she is heavily handicapped by previous disuse of them. It is not a question of ambition, of so called great achievement, with her; but the dire, imperious question of living. Who will encourage her? Whither shall she turn? In what mill may she grind her grist of genius? She does not ask alms, albeit she suffers the blood-sapping pangs of poverty. She has power, but no means of applying it; the will to work, but no work on which to expend her willingness; courage, but no rock of opportunity whereon to plant her feet. Here is the appalling struggle of the human being who is sinking, sinking in the merciless quicksand—sucked down to death—perishing almost within reach of a hundred hands stretched out, alas! too late. Her death is murder. Who is the murderer? I do not know.

The beautiful Capulet foresaw her doom in the tragic dispensation of her only love sprung from her only hate. Perhaps a too tender love murdered this fellow creature, is "only a woman with a touch of genius." It is possible that she had been loved as wisely as tenderly she had not been flung into the quicksand to die like a rat in a hole.—Babes have sometimes been smothered by too many blankets, when the bracing outer air was what they needed most, could a wiser love have known it. To be too tenderly reared is to be robbed of self-sustaining power. And that, I suspect, is a true bill of indictment against most persons on whom is laid the high and solemn office of accountability for woman's worldly weal.

I will not stop here to discuss the accusation (under which society has wined so many times) that girls are trained for no future beyond their wedding day; that their habit of thought is directed to that one object, making girlhood a mere period of patient probation, and marriage the extinguishment of and glimmerings of responsibility they may have caught while fishing, lamb-like, in the parental fold. This is deplorable enough, but to deplore it is not to remedy it. Just now it better becomes us to ask ourselves what shall be done to succor those who are walking blindly into the devouring sands, even as the woman with a touch of genius walked, with no voice to call her back, no wise and guiding love to set her feet up on the solid earth. I am not sure that human wisdom is penetrating enough to find the solution of this involved problem, so far as it relates to those women who have suddenly been called to face the darker issues of life alone. I speak now with more particular reference to such as have come to womanhood dandled in the arms of fond, mistaken love—love that sees nothing beyond the present soft and enervating luxury of its object. Take away their sheltering shield and the first November breath will topple them over, mere helpless heaps. They moan with the pain of the unaccustomed blast, knowing that action is their only hope, and yet bitterly realizing their incapacity for it. There is the suffering, but not theirs the sin. Much cherishing has been to them a kind of moral morphia, unfitting them for any act requiring vigor of mind or body and subjecting them to the trappings of busy millions who are too intent on reaching their own goals even to foot them out of the path. I do not know that there is in the world a more helpless and forlorn condition than theirs. There are no asylums for such women, and I see no escape for the greater number of them. I fear they must lie where they have helplessly fallen until their breath is trampled out.

I wonder how many such have gone to judgment embittered accusers of the fatal folly that destroyed them!

I wonder how many fathers and mothers, who are dandling daughters in that mistaken fashion to-day, are conscious of the wrong they do!

The daughters of luxury demand the right to know what possibilities lie beyond the gardens in which they bud and blossom; and woe unto those who deny that right!

The daughters of toil have tasted the elixir distilled from conscious power, and it tingles through all their veins, sending flashes of light to eyes that dare face and do hourly face life's responsibilities, and flushing cheeks with the pride of independence. I do not doubt their frequent yearnings for the other state Home, elegance, rich drapery and all those harmonies that make up the sum of that intangible beauty which is called refinement, are very dear to woman, and it is not surprising that her nature covets them. But the independent observer, man, sees always the self-reliant, self-hopeful woman's self-did superiority, and measures his honest admiration of her by his pity for the other. If he does not see and confess that superiority, his claim to generous manhood is impertinent pretense, and it were a righteous penalty to load him down with the dandled darling for life.

I see scores of these frail shoots daily whom one could easily break in two with thumb and finger. For them I have no sentiment but commiseration; but my wrath blazes at sight of those who are chargeable with their frailty. There is a homely proverb to the effect that it is easier to take care of a peck of fleas than of one woman; but too much care is the death of women whom the tempestuous seas of human life cast desolate upon the shores where lie wrecked and broken the stately ships in which they sailed so merrily when the sea was still and the sky was blue.

How Young Men Fall.

"There is Alfred Sutton home with his family to live on the old folks," said one neighbor to another. "It seems hard, after all his father has done to fit him for business, and the capital he has invested to start him so fairly. It is surprising he turned out so poorly. He is a steady young man, no bad habits, as far as I know: he has a good education, and was always considered smart; but he doesn't succeed in anything. I am told he has tried a number of different sorts of business and sunk money every time. What can be the trouble with Alfred, I should like to know, for I don't want my boy to take his turn?"

"Alfred is smart enough," said the other, "and has education enough, but he lacks the one element of success. He never wants to give a dollar's worth of work for a dollar of money, and there is no other way for a young man to make a fortune. He must dig if he would get gold. All the men that have succeeded honestly or dishonestly in making money had to work for it, the sharpers sometimes the hardest of all. Alfred wished to set his brain in motion, and let it take care of itself. No wonder it soon ran off the track, and a smash-up was the result. Teach your boy, friend Archer, to work with a will when he does work. Give him play enough to make him happy and healthy, but let him learn early that work is the business of life. Patient, self-denying work is the price of success. Ease and indolence not only eat away the price of capital, but worse still, all a man's nerve power. Present gratification tends to put off duty until to-morrow or next week, and so the golden moments slip by. It is a rare thing for the sons of rich men to die rich. Too often they squander in a half-score of years what their fathers were a lifetime in accumulating. I wish I could ring it in the ears of aspiring young men that work, hard work, of head and hands, is the price of success."—Country Gentleman.

Benevolent Mr. Wixham.

At a meeting of the Detroit Ladies' Benevolent Society, held the other day, it was resolved that a committee of four ladies be appointed to canvass for donations, and in the course of their peregrinations, this committee dropped into Mr. Wixham's office. He received them as a gentleman should, and after the usual formalities one of them began.

"Mr. Wixham, we are asking aid for benevolent purposes."
 "Ah, yes. Benevolence is a bump which should be cultivated. Are you looking after poor folks?"
 "We are."
 "Very proper—very proper. You all have children of your own?"
 "Oh, yes."
 "All of them are well fed, well clothed and well cared for, are they?"
 "Yes, sir."

"That's very proper. I presume their stockings are properly darned, buttons in their places, and they say their prayers when they go to bed? Am I correct?"
 The women looked at each other in a sly way, and then at him, and one of them said:
 "We shall be happy for any contribution."
 "Yes'm, yes'm. You don't want this contribution for your own families, eh?"
 "No, sir!" answered four voices in chorus.

"Well, I am somewhat inclined to benevolence. Hardly a day passes that I don't do something for charity. Here's an old account of $26 against Mr. ——. I know he's hard up and having a close time to get along, and yesterday I canceled the debt."

One of the canvassers turned red, white, and blue, and looked out of the window. That was her husband, but Wixham didn't know it.
 "And yesterday I found a poor, forlorn-looking little boy out here crying with hunger and cold. He said his name was Tommy —, and he lived at 36 — street. He hadn't been washed or combed for a week, and I felt sad for him. I was going to take him home and feed him, but he slipped away."

Another woman suddenly looked out of the window, and her pulse ran up to one hundred and twenty a minute, but Wixham was as innocent as a lamb of any knowledge that it was her boy.
 "Then you won't aid us?" queried the spokesman.
 "Oh, yes; certainly I will. I was simply figuring to see how much I could spare. I signed a note with Mr. — last fall and I had to pay it yesterday. That makes me feel rather poor."

The third woman didn't turn red, but green, but Wixham couldn't have possibly known that it was her husband.
 "Let's see. Let's see. I want to give you all I can spare. Mr. —, on — street, owes me four months' house rent, and I'll give you an order on him for twenty dollars."

The four women rose up. They rushed in a solid body for the door. They went out in a heap. Some were red and some were pale, and all mad. They tried to speak, but they couldn't, and as they hastened to get away from each other, Wixham held up the half written order and gasped:
 "How very, very singular! Perhaps they thought they couldn't collect the money."—Detroit Free Press.

THE principal streets of Liverpool are to be lit with electricity. The Council has given the contract for a year, the lamps to be kept lighted from sunset to sunrise. The sum to be paid is $14,475.

About the Moon.

Professor Legate of this city, has been experimenting for some time for the purpose of ascertaining what effect the moon has upon fish, and the result of the investigations go to substantiate what old fishermen have always said, namely, that it spoils them. The rays of light, or something carried in the rays, cause the fish to decay very rapidly.—Even catfish all alive and kicking when exposed were in a bad state in a few hours. Professor Legate is a firm believer in the influence of the moon on man and on all things mundane. The atmosphere being attracted by the moon the same as the waters of the ocean, only to a much greater extent, he is of the opinion that effects are produced by the aerial tide which are generally attributed to other causes. A gentleman in this city, hearing of the fish experiments, stated that some years ago, while on the west coast of Africa, he one night slept on the deck of a vessel under the rays of a full moon, and the result was that he was totally blind for three days. The bad effect of the rays of the moon appears to have been known, or at least suspected, ages ago. In the Bible, in Psalms, we read: "The sun shall not smite thee by day, nor the moon by night."—Virginia (New) Enterprise.

That American Stove.

A physician calls on one of his patients, a lady who was complaining of sick headache and general unwellness.
 "I'll tell you what's the matter with you, madam," he says promptly, "it's that American stove you have over there! Those coal-burning stoves are reservoirs of poison—the deadliest things in the world."
 "But that stove cost me 100 francs!" protests the lady.
 "Never mind that; better lose any amount of money than your life. I'll tell you what I'll do; I'll give you twenty-five francs for it, and find some way of getting rid of the pernicious object."

The lady consents and the doctor removes the stove.
 A few days later the patient, who thinks of changing her residence, goes out to inspect a suite of rooms, and the first thing that meets her gaze is the stove.
 "Who lives here?" she asks of the servant who is showing her over the rooms.
 "Mme. A., madam," says the servant respectfully, "Doctor B's mother-in-law."—French Paper.

The First American Railway in Asia.

The first section of railway built by Americans in Asia was opened for traffic the first week in January, just twelve months from the date of the order for its construction. The completed division is twenty-three miles in length. The line is from Otarunai Harbor, on the west coast, via Lapparo, the capital of the Northern Island, Yezo, to the Paroni coal fields. It cost $20,000 per mile, which includes rolling stock, motive power, machinery for terminal repair shops, etc. The English line built between Tokio and Yokohama, cost nearly $200,000 per mile, and it took five years to complete eighteen miles. The Japanese officials are said to be greatly encouraged by the prospect of an American system of rapid transportation.—Scientific American.

How to get Sick.

Expose yourself day and night; eat too much without exercise; work too hard without rest; doctor all the time; take all the vile nostrums advertised, and then you will want to know How to GET WELL. Which is answered in three words—Take Hop Bitters! See other column.

HONOURABLE LIVING.

"Honour and shame from no condition rise. Act well your part, there all the honour lies."

Diversity marks the course of human existence, in all its surroundings, there is everywhere found the greatest difference in talents and capabilities, in mental and bodily development, in natural and acquired habits, and courses of life.

The spirit of unrest shows itself in every direction, and the antagonisms which grow out of this great diversity, are continually revealing themselves in the grand conflict, which is necessarily maintained in the hope of getting beyond present inconveniences to a state of comparative repose.

In the natural order of life, the diversities of gifts show themselves under the forms of the rulers and the ruled. The rich and the poor, the high and the low, the prince and the beggar, have ever furnished the themes upon which the history of our race has been composed, in all the endless course of its vast proportions.

The counterbalance of forces, at last preserves the equilibrium of things; age rolls into age, and the story of trial and suffering, of hope and despair is handed down from generation to generation.

Genius, industry, thrift, perseverance must have some results, though these be but the lessening of the general sum of misery, which without them would overwhelm mankind.

Aside from the moral considerations, which might be embraced in this subject, it would seem that, the spirit of discontent is one of the most potent elements of unhappiness. This often shows itself in the vain efforts to appear differently from what we really are.

A NUMBER of English coal mines are being worked under the ocean. In Northumberland the net available quantity of coal under the sea is estimated at 403,000,000 tons, and on the Durham coast under the sea, including a breadth of three and a half miles, with an area of seventy-one square miles, 735,500,000 tons.

In its sketch of Thomas Carlyle, of last Monday, the Baltimore Sun sums up his literary career, as follows:

"In that secluded corner of London, Cheyne Walk, Chelsea, he passed his latter years, a lonely man, who had outlived nearly all of his contemporaries, yet cheered by the occasional visits of a few friends to whom he was especially endeared, and welcoming with a crabbled, but not ungenial courtesy, pilgrims from across the sea, who sought by their introduction to him to show their appreciation of his writings and to do honor to his genius."

ITEMS OF INTEREST.

MR. THOMAS CARLYLE died Saturday morning.

A fire on Sunday nearly swept out of existence the town of Walnut, Iowa. Loss from $50,000 to $60,000.

MR. JOHN I. BLAIR, of Blairstown, N. J., has given $40,000 for the endowment of the presidential chair of Lafayette College.

A MAD dog was killed in Thirteenth street, New York, Friday afternoon after biting and tearing four persons in a shocking manner.

MRS. FRANCIS COLLIER, 50 years old and well-connected, residing in Blanford, Va., was fatally burned by falling with a kerosene lamp in her hand.

THE large Italian villa of Jacob Hoy, in Easton, was destroyed by fire Saturday morning. Loss $250,000. The fire originated from an overheated furnace.

HENRY HOLLER, a lad of 15, was kicked to death at Marion, Ohio, on Wednesday by a vicious horse in the stable of William Fies an undertaker.

T. J. Marsh, of Charleston, Ill., slept for many years on an old lounge, and after his death $11,000 in bonds and gold were found concealed in the stuffing.

NATURE'S SLUICE-WAY.—The kidneys are nature's sluice-way to wash out the debris of our constantly changing bodies. If they do not work properly the trouble is felt everywhere. Then be wise and as soon as you see signs of disorder get a package of Kidney-Wort and take it faithfully. It will clean the sluice-way of sand, gravel or slime and purify the whole system.—Druggists sell it both liquid and dry, and it is equally efficient either way.—Independent.

WASHINGTON CORRESPONDENCE.

Washington, D. C., February 8th. By the action of the House yesterday in refusing to suspend the rules and pass the River and Harbor bill, it is much feared that the bill will fail of passage this session.

There is more opposition to the bill this year than there has been for many. The trouble is the River and Harbor bill has become no more nor less than a menestrum by which members can dispense favors to their districts at the Nation's expense. The vote for or against it is always decided by the number of members favored and the amounts.

THE ELECTORAL COUNT.—The two houses of Congress met in the hall of the House of Representatives on Wednesday when a count was made of the electoral vote for President and Vice President of the United States, after which Vice President Wheeler announced that James A. Garfield had been elected President of the United States for four years, commencing March 4, 1881, and that Chester A. Arthur had been elected Vice President for the same period.

ADDISON ROLAND, who had lived in adject poverty at Meadville, Pa., died a few days since, and after his death, stores of wealth were found in his hut, the money alone amounting to $5,000. There were also notes for a large amount, much jewelry, and the deeds of a farm valued at over $12,000. He has relatives living in Dublin, Bucks county, Pa., to whom his wealth will be a surprise, as it was to the neighborhood where he dwelt so long.

GERTRUDE THORNTON, a girl six years old, was buried at Middletown, New York on the 4th inst., from blood-poisoning. She had worn a pair of stockings while coasting and absorbed poison from the coloring matter used in producing a resemblance to old gold.

On Friday morning early, after a clerk had opened the bank at Coudersport, Pa., two men came in, and throwing a blanket over the clerk's head, fastened him in a brick vault in the rear of the banking room. They then carried off about $1,000, which was in a table drawer. The clerk was released on the arrival of the cashier.

THE steamship Bohemian, from Boston for Liverpool, was wrecked in Dunlough bay, Ireland, Saturday night. Thirty-two lives were lost. The ship Bremen, from Bremen for Baltimore, was wrecked near Lerwick, Shetland Islands, Friday.—Thirteen of the crew were drowned and seven saved. The steamer Batavia, which left New York January 19 for Liverpool, has not yet arrived out.

LOCALS.

Sale Register.

Saturday, Feb. 12, Mary Josephine Shorb, household furniture, canned fruits, smoked meats, &c.

Persons who intend to have Public Sales this season, will do well to have their names, the date of sale, &c., placed upon our register, and thereby prevent the occurrence of two or more sales on the same day.

SOFT weather truly. How is your coal bin. DORA! Dora! is the talk. A PLANE man—The carpenter. The grain sales have been active.

STOVE EXPLOSION.—About daylight on Tuesday morning a week, a coal stove burst in the room of B. H. Knode, Esq., of the Honover Cotta, scattering the burning coal and fragments of the hot stove over the room.

ARM AMPUTATED.—Referring last week to the singular accident which happened in August of last year to Mr. Calvin Snook, a youth about 17 years of age, residing near this place, we stated that the wound in his right arm was giving him considerable trouble, and that Dr. Wm. E. Boteler, J. E. Beatty, and E. L. Beckley, of this place had met in consultation on Thursday morning to determine what was best to be done in the case.

THE RABBITS HEADED.—A gentleman in Chester county has found a way to save his trees and nursery plants from the rabbits. Every evening he places a heap of clover hay in the haunts of the rabbits, which collect there in large numbers and devour it with apparent genuine satisfaction and relish.

DRUNKEN STUFF.—How many children and women are slowly and surely dying, or rather being killed, by excessive drinking, or the daily use of some drug or drunken stuff called medicine, that no one knows what it is made of, who can easily be cured and saved by Hop Bitters, made of Hops, Buchu, Mandrake, Dandelion, &c., which is so pure, simple and harmless that the most frail woman, weakest invalid, or smallest child can trust in them.

OFFICERS ELECTED.—On Monday last the Trustees of Montevue Hospital met at that institution and elected the following gentlemen officers for the ensuing year: President, William F. Johnson; Treasurer, L. E. Hedges; Secretary, Lewis R. Cochran; Superintendent, Henry Snyder; Clerk, W. Scott Vanfosse; Physician, Dr. J. Dunott; Chaplain, Rev. John J. Kantner; Engineer, J. E. Pampell; Baker, Joseph Blair; Farmer, Solomon Reynolds.—Examiner.

THE "Every Tuesday Club" will perform on Tuesday evening, March 1st, the drama, "My Brother's Keeper," in three acts, at "Annan's Hall." We doubt not the entertainment will be one to be remembered. The projectors of it have all the ability and energy to make it successful. They highly deserve, and we trust will meet encouragement accordant with the generous spirit, which prompts their efforts to amuse the public.

THE BANK.—We are pleased to learn, that the project for the organization of a Bank in this place, has taken a practical form. The number of those who are already obligated to take the stock, is quite encouraging. We trust the undertaking will go steadily forward, until the needed amount of capital stock is secured. Every person interested in the progress of the community, should now come forward and help to supply this great want in the business of our town and neighbourhood.

DEATH OF JOHN C. MUNSHOUR.—On the 26th of December last, John C. Munshour, son of Mr. Henry Munshour, of this place, stopped at a hotel in Fairfield, O., and slept by the stove. Some time during the night his clothing in some way took fire, and before the flames could be extinguished, he was badly burned on the left side from his shoulder to his hip. His father was informed of the accident, and shortly after received word that he was getting better, but on Tuesday of last week a telegraphic dispatch informed him that he would be decently buried at Fairfield. The deceased was in the 34th year of his age.—Banner of Liberty.

NOTICE TO FARMERS AND OWNERS OF PRIVATE RESIDENCES.—The safest and best company in which Farmers and owners of Private Residences can insure their Property, is the Time-Tried and Fire-Tested Agricultural Insurance Company. It insures nothing but private Residences and Farm Property. In the last 27 years it has not had a loss of over $5,000, in one Fire, and it cannot be affected by sweeping conflagrations, as its risks are all detached. It insures against damage by Lightning, whether fire ensues or not, and insures Live Stock against being killed by Lightning anywhere on the farm. The Agricultural Insurance Co., is a stock company, and the strongest and largest company, doing an exclusive Dwelling Business in the United States, if not in the world, and is now issuing 50,000 Policies a year. For further particulars, apply to W. G. HORNER, Agent, Emmitsburg, Md.

ONE of the wise men who knows everything declare that in a few years every physician in the country will prescribe Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup to his patients. We believe it.

A LARGE sleighing party from Gettysburg visited this place on Monday evening, stopping at the Emmitt House, where music was provided, dancing held sway, and a fine supper was served. They returned home well pleased, at a late hour.

DEATH OF JOHN H. HILLERY.—This estimable and well-known gentleman formerly of Petersville district, died last week at the residence of his son in Montgomery county, in the 73rd year of his age.—Union.

LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND has done thousands of women more good than the medicines of many doctors. It is a positive cure for all female complaints. Send to Mrs. Lydia E. Pinkham.

ORCHESTRA.—An Orchestra was organized on Monday evening, with the following gentlemen as officers: President, Dr. J. T. Bussey; Vice President, Marshall Hyder; Secretary, James O. Hopp; Treasurer, William Bushman.—They will assuredly be successful.

It is asserted that a constable in Franklin county, Pa., a few days ago, served a writ upon a man as he was standing by the open grave of his father, paying, with the other members of his family and their friends, the last sad rites to his memory.

That looks hard upon the constable, but if the necessity for the writ had not arisen, the whole affair could have been avoided.—Be just in condemning.

WHY are you Bilious? Because you have allowed your bowels to become costive, and liver torpid. Use Kidney-Wort to produce a free state of the bowels, and it will stimulate the liver to proper action, cleanse the skin of its yellowness, cure bilious headache, and cause new life in the blood. Druggists have it, both dry and Liquid.—Zion's Herald.

PERSONALS.—Miss Emma Rowe returned last week, from a visit to Baltimore. Miss Annie Bingham has returned to her home in Smithburg. Miss Mamie McConaughy has returned to her home in Gettysburg. Miss Minnie Waddle is visiting her sister at Montevue Springs.

CLAIMS ADJUSTED.—The following claims were adjusted by the Southern Penna. Mutual Relief Association, Feb. 1st, 1881: 1. For the death of Mrs. Catharine Gift, of Franklin Township, Snyder County, Penna., who became a member, June 15th 1880, and died Sept. of acute diarrhoea.—Proof received and approved by the Executive Committee Nov. 6th, 1880. Amount realized by the Beneficiaries, Amos Gift, and Jacob G. Snyder, of Beavertown, Snyder Co. Pa., $3,397.

THE ASSOCIATION is in a flourishing condition. During the month of January, they issued certificates amounting to $2,115,000. Their weekly average is over $500,000. For further particulars concerning rates, terms, &c., address W. G. Horner, Agent, Emmitsburg, Md.

The conclusion was at once arrived at that the limb must be amputated in order to give the young man a chance of life, but in consequence of the exhausted condition of his system some fears were entertained that he might be unable to withstand the operation. Dr. John M. Gaines, of Boonsboro, was then sent for, and upon his arrival Thursday evening, he proceeded to amputate the arm, being assisted by the physicians named above and by Dr. Wade, of Boonsboro. The arm was taken off a few inches below the shoulder joint. The unfortunate young man cheerfully submitted to the operation and stood it much better than was expected. At last accounts he was doing exceedingly well, and we are happy to say gives hope of a speedy recovery.—Middleton Register.

THE $1. BALTIMORE WEEKLY SUN $1. IS AS GOOD A FAMILY PAPER AS IS PUBLISHED IN THIS COUNTRY. Its original and Selected Stories are full of interest and constitute choice family reading. Its lyrical pieces are also of a high order of merit. Besides these merits it is a compendium of THE NEWS OF THE WEEK, well collated and of infinite variety. All fresh occurrences at home and abroad find a place in its columns. The bright and graphic letters of the special correspondent of THE SUN at the capitals of Europe, in California and elsewhere, are published in the Weekly, and, in addition to describing the course of political events, will give the gossip of the day and the drift of events. The WASHINGTON BUREAU of THE SUN will keep the readers of the Weekly well informed in respect to everything of interest, politically and socially, transpiring at that point. Whatever besides, that is serious or joyous, that tends to give a piece of variety, will be supplied to make the Weekly attractive. ITS MARKET AND FINANCIAL REPORTS are brought down to the latest hour of publication, and every pains taken to make them trustworthy. AGRICULTURAL MATTERS are not neglected, and the farmer will find in the columns devoted to this subject many valuable hints and suggestions. Sound editorial discussions always have place in the Weekly; and, with its stories and other light literature, its well-written letters from places at home and abroad its political and general news and gossip, and its excellent MARKET AND FINANCIAL REPORTS, THE BALTIMORE WEEKLY SUN commends itself to all who desire to have a thoroughly good paper at a very low price. Cleanliness in the Cow Stable.
Nearly all the cows one sees now are disfigured about the quarters with filth. Such things ought not to be, nor need they be so. Stables can easily be so arranged as to keep the cows more cleanly and comfortable and to make the milking, to say the least, a more agreeable job. We have seen cows, and cows we would dislike to be obliged to milk, and which we could not ask a cleanly, respectable persons to milk. Ordinary carelessness and slovenliness are bad enough, but when it comes to such filth as is to often seen in cow stables, it is past the endurance of decent people.—These remarks will unfortunately fit a good many dairymen, but if they pinch, there is a way to make them fit easy and comfortable.

About Sheep.

One of the greatest difficulties in keeping sheep arises from the attack of the liver fluke. Upon wet lands and in very wet seasons the danger is greatly increased. The past year has seen the English flocks reduced at least one-fourth by this destructive parasite. Only one known breed is proof against this pest of marsh pastures and low lands. This is the Romney Marsh sheep, and it is curious that none of our speculative breeders have as yet made this sheep fashionable. Its value is not only in its adaptation to low lands, but it yields excellent mutton, and a fleece greatly in demand for mohair and other lustrous fabrics.

Horn shavings are valuable as manure, by reason of their slow decomposition, giving out ammonia for a long time. They also contain a small quantity of carbonate and phosphate of lime.

It always pays to keep young stock in a thrifty, growing condition. Better to feed a little corn and roots now than to defer it until next month.

VALUABLE RECIPES

SALLY LUNN.—Take four eggs, 1 pint of milk, 1 lb butter, 3 pints of flour, 1 gill of yeast made up into batter; bake in two pans.

To remove ink stains from printed books, procure a pennyworth of oxalic acid, which dissolve in a small quantity of warm water; then slightly wet the stain with it, when it will disappear, leaving the leaf uninjured.

To clean marble take chalk (in fine powder), one part; pumice, one part; common soda, two parts, mix. Wash the spots with the powder, mixed with a little water; then clean the whole of the stone and wash off with soap and water.

To boil eggs properly, place them in a dish having a close cover; pour over boiling water; cover and set away from the fire for ten or fifteen minutes. Eggs cooked in this way are more delicious and digestible than when allowed to boil in the old way. The heat of the water cooks them to a jelly-like consistency, leaving the yolk harder than the white.

Any one who is piecing a silk quilt, or expecting to piece one this winter, will be glad to know how to dye silk or satin a beautiful old-gold color. Take green horse-radish leaves, steep them in water, make a strong dye; after dipping the silk or satin into the dye thoroughly, wash in soft-soapsuds; iron while damp, laying a cloth over the silk. This should always be done when ironing silk or ribbon, even if it has not been washed but simply sponged.

To do up lace curtains, wash and starch them the same as you would lace collars. It is a good plan to put a little gum arabic into the starch. Wring very carefully, as there is danger of drawing or breaking the threads. After they are washed and starched, take clean sheets and spread on the carpet or floor of an unoccupied room. Then shake the curtains out carefully, and spread them on the sheets. Be careful and smooth every wrinkle in the lace. Now open all the windows, and your curtains will be dry in a few hours.

Humorous.

A study in oil—the attempt to get a sardine out whole.

When a man has to hang to a street car strap for nearly an hour he realizes how trying is the position of the upright man.

Of a miserly man somebody wrote: "His head gave way, but his hand never did. His brain softened, but his heart couldn't."

There is nothing marvelous about curing by laying on hands. Hands laid on smartly and vigorously have cured many small boys of badness.

A burglar-alarm is a good thing. It lets you know of the approach of a burglar in time to hide under the bed before he can come up and gag you.

To use a Board or Trade phrase, now is the time to sell short on snow. It is continually coming down.—Still it differs from stocks, because the more it falls the higher it gets on the street.

A proud and anxious father asked an expert if he could give his son a collegiate education at home. The answer was: "Certainly; all you want is a base ball guide, a racing shell and a few packages of cigarettes."

"Will you please insert this obituary notice?" asked an old gentleman of a country editor. "I make bold to ask it because the deceased had a great many friends about here who'd be glad to hear of his death."

"Don't waste your time clipping off the branches," said a woodman to his son, "but lay your axe at the root of the tree." And the young man went out and laid his axe at the root of the tree, like a good and faithful boy—and then went a fishing. Truly, there is nothing like filial obedience.

WHAT BECOMES OF THE NEWSPAPER MEN.—Apropos of the coming Press Club dinner in New York, "Howard" writes: "The probabilities favor a very jolly and successful occasion—especially after the 'old uns' retire. And, by the way, where are the old ones of the press? There are none on active duty here. All our editors, except Dana, and he is hale and vigorous, are comparatively young men. So are the managers, the writers and the reporters. Newspaper men are like the pins—nobody seems to know what becomes of them."

PROVERBS.

"No one can be sick when the stomach, blood, liver and kidneys are healthy, and Hop Bitters keep them so."
"The greatest nourishing tonic, appetizer, strengthener and curative on earth—Hop Bitters."
"It is impossible to remain long sick or out of health, where Hop Bitters are used."
"Why do Hop Bitters cure so much?" "Because they give good digestion, rich blood, and healthy action of all the organs."
"No matter what your feelings or ailments is, Hop Bitters will do you good."
"Remember, Hop Bitters never does harm, but good, always and continually."
"Purify the blood, cleanse the stomach, and sweeten the breath with Hop Bitters."
"Quiet nerves and balmy sleep in Hop Bitters."
"No health with inactive liver and urinary organs without Hop Bitters."

Literary Revolution and Universal Knowledge:

An Encyclopedia in 20 Vols., over 16,000 pages; 10 per cent more matter than any Encyclopedia ever before published in this country, and sold, handsomely and well bound, in cloth for $10, in half morocco for $15, and printed on fine heavy paper, wide margins, bound in half Russia, gilt top, for $20—an enterprise so extraordinary that its success, beyond all precedent book publishing, may be fairly claimed to inaugurate a Literary Revolution.

THE LIBRARY OF UNIVERSAL KNOWLEDGE is a reprint entire of the last (1879) Edinburgh edition of "Chambers's Encyclopedia," with about 40 per cent of new matter added, upon topics of special interest to American readers, thus making it equal in character to any similar work, better than any other suited to the wants of the great majority of those who consult works of reference, and altogether the latest Encyclopedia in the field.

Specimen Volumes in either style will be sent for examination with privilege of return on receipt of proportionate price per volume.

SPECIAL DISCOUNTS to all early subscribers, and extra discounts to clubs. Full particulars with descriptive catalogue of many other standard works equally low in price, sent free.

Leading principles of the American Book Exchange:
I. Publish only books of real value.
II. Work upon the basis of present cost of making books, about one half what it was a few years ago.
III. Sell to buyers direct, and save them the 50 to 60 per cent. commission commonly allowed to dealers.
IV. The cost of books when made 10,000 at a time is but a fraction of the cost when made 500 at a time—about the low price and sell the large quantity.
V. Use good type, paper, etc., do careful printing, and strong, neat binding, but avoid all "padding," fat and heavily-leaded type, wrong paper and gaudy binding, which are so commonly resorted to in order to make books appear large and fine, and which greatly add to their cost, but do not add to their value.
VI. To make $1 and a friend is better than to make $5 and an enemy.
