The following verses form the prelude to Mr. Whittier's new volume, "The King's Missive."

I spread a scanty board too late;
The old time guests for whom I wait Come few and slow, methinks, to day.
Ah! who could hear my messages
Across the dim unsounded seas
On which so many have sailed away!

Come, then, old friends, who linger yet,
And let us meet, as we have met,
Once more beneath this low sunshine;
And grateful for the good we've known
The riddles solve, the ills outgrown, Shake hands upon the border-line.

The favor, asked too oft before
From your indulgent ears, once more I crave, and if belated lays
To slower, feebler measures move,
The silent sympathy of love
To me is dearer now than praise.

And ye, O younger friends for whom My hearth and heart keep open room, Come smiling through the shadows long;
Be with me while the sun goes down,
And with your cheerful voices drown
The minor of my even-song.

For, equal through the day and night,
The wise Eternal oversight
And love and power and righteous will Remain; the law of destiny

The best for each and all must be,
And life its promise shall fulfil.

A TERRIBLE ADVENTURE.

IN the spring of 1876 Mexico was in a tumult. Lerdo, the chief justice, succeeding to the presidency at the death of Juarez, and afterward elected for a second term, announced himself as a candidate for the third.— His political opponents, enraged at the thought of a third term, uprose in all directions and declared for Diaz. In March of this year only the rumblings of the rebellion were heard, but society was daily becoming more and more disturbed.— Armed men were everywhere about and many bands of lawless ruffians were scouring the outskirts of the cities and towns, stealing from the farmers, and leaving behind them desolation and despair—truly a peculiarly dangerous and unfortunate time for a foreigner to set out on a journey.

On a lovely morning in early March, a young American gentleman left the town of Matanzas, to travel to Jalapa. The narrow road at first winds up the side of the side of the mountain, turning sharply around sudden bends, where a single misstep of the horse or mule would hurl the rider far down into the valley below. It is as if the great mountain had been hollowed out, and the jagged sides left standing, with a rude path trending from the base to the summit. The American was accompanied by six native horsemen mounted on mustangs, similar to his own, and four footmen. The whole party were armed. After passing about half way up the mountain side the traveler halted, and motioned to his followers to do the same. For a long time he sat motionless in his saddle gazing out at the exquisite picture before him. In the distance, far below, lay the wonderful valley of Matanzas, the "Garden of Mexico."

The rich, excessive vegetation could plainly be discerned, and a few light and graceful clouds hung drifted against the towering rocks.
The beams of the lately-risen sun were pouring over the hilltops and illuminating the vast plain beneath with a fresh and rosy light. He must have been indeed a prosaic and unappreciative man who would pass carelessly by such a wonder-work of nature.

His reverie was suddenly broken by a shout from above. Looking up he saw a single horseman picking his way carefully toward him. He was soon recognized by the men as a resident of Matanzas. When he drew near he spoke rapidly and exactly to the escort, in their peculiar patois, gesticulating violently all the while.

The effect was immediate and startling. The entire body of native horsemen, with one exception, and all the footmen, turned sharply around and made their way rapidly down the mountain side, without a word of explanation or farewell to their employer. The only one who remained was Filomeno, who had been sent by his master, a friend of the traveler, to accompany him to Jalapa, and who understood English after a fashion. He sat motionless in his saddle, gazing after his countrymen, now fast disappearing around the curves of the pathway.

"What's the matter, Filomeno?" asked the American at length, rising in his saddle as he spoke, and shading his eyes with his hand, as he looked after the deserters, "what did that fellow say that has made all this fuss?"

"He said," replied the Mexican slowly, "that revolution has already broken out at Jalapa; that the terrible soldiers of the plains are before us, and that if you proceed you will be surrounded and killed."

"Stuff," said the American, "I am not afraid. Filomena, let us go on."
And, as he spoke, he tightened his hold on his horse's rein, and was about to proceed, when he saw that Filomeno had not stirred.

"Come, Filomeno," said he, "time is passing by and we must be off.— Surely you are not afraid to accompany me?"

"No matter," answered the Mexican, "but I cannot go as I am. All these robbers know Filomeno, and would give a good price for my head. If I go with you I must go disguised. Wait;" and, turning around, he scrambled lightly and quickly back from the road toward a little hut near by, whence a thin wreath of smoke was curling lazily up through the clear morning air.
He was gone scarcely fifteen minutes, and when he again drew near the American hardly knew him.— Filomeno had disappeared under the guise of a charcoal burner.

"Now I am ready; I have left my horse where it will be taken care of,"
he said, and now on foot he fell into his old place close behind the American's mustang.

And so they journeyed on, up into the clouds and then down again, over the rich breasts of valleys which are only found in the tropics, and along the tracks of old watercourses, and through brooks and little rivers of a peculiar greenish hue. Around them was nature in all her wasteful luxuriance, but no sign of anything human to help or hinder them.

That night they encamped in a small valley, and resumed their journey at daybreak. At eleven o'clock on the morning of this day they were drawing near Jalapa.— The sun was beating down out of a cloudless sky; the heat was intense; and a deep stillness seemed to have settled over the great plain. Before them was the valley of Jalapa; on the right the volcano of Orizaba, its sides covered with that luxuriance of foliage only known where eternal summer reigns.

The American, too tired even to notice this, was nodding in his saddle, and for a long time had not spoken to his companion. He was aroused by a low cry from Filomeno.
Turning toward him and following the direction of his eyes, he saw a large body of horsemen galloping toward him. He could see at once that they were not regular soldiers.
They advanced in confusion, and no two men seemed dressed alike. It was a squad of the dreaded guerrillas on a foraging expedition. With a terrible feeling of despair the American again looked around for Filomeno. He had fled. The American was alone, with 100 wild and lawless Mexican robbers bearing down on him, like a rushing wind across a placid lake.

In a moment, as it seemed, they were upon him. Resistance was useless. A score of pistols pointed at him, a score of swords were raised above his head, and a score of long sticks with knives on the ends, called "matchezies," were pricking him in all directions. He was pulled off his horse in a twinkling, stripped naked in the midst of a dense circle of howling savages, who were cursing and fighting for his various articles of dress. At length his clothing, arms and valuables were divided. The leader of the band, with the American's watch dangling from his belt, shouted out an order to his men. The troopers armed with "matchezies" rode up to the prisoner and commanded him to walk before them. "You American dog," they exclaimed in Spanish, "you dog of a spy, be off to Jalapa. When we get you there we'll teach you to sneak around our lines. March!"

And in order to add emphasis to their words they prodded the prisoner with the points of their "matchezies" till the blood started from more than one wound on his arms and legs. Angry, faint and sore, and half blinded by the fierce rays of the sun, the American wheeled around and upbraided the leader for these indignities, and especially for depriving him of his clothes. In reply one of the soldiers pulled out from under his saddle a piece of coarse and filthy matting, which he carelessly tossed to the prisoner.

"Take this," he said; "it is too small for you, but the fleas in it will keep you warm."

And so, wrapping his dirty covering about his shoulders, our countryman started on his painful march to Jalapa.

At three o'clock in the afternoon they reached the town. The American was hustled into a wretched adobe hut on the outskirts of the village, and the Mexicans, after posting a guard around the place, tied their horses under a shed and gave themselves up to rest and boisterous recreation. Inside the hut on a rude bench the American sat silent hour after hour. At length he walked to a little window and begged for water. There was no response. The bare walls only echoed his cry of "Aqua! aqua!"

All the next day, too, the prisoner was kept without food or drink or clothes. At times his mind wandered a little. At sunset the cool evening air somewhat revived him. He moved his bench under the window of the hut, and stretching himself under it listened carelessly to the idle conversation of the soldiers outside. Suddenly his heart gave a terrible throb; a cold perspiration overwhelmed him, and he fainted.

What he had heard was this:
The soldiers were talking about a fair that was to open in Jalapa on the morrow, and they were detailing to a new-comer some of the amusements that had been planned for the occasion.

"We are going to have a shooting match at noon," said one; "we have got an American spy in that box yonder, and we are going to tie him to a stake and shoot at him with our revolvers. Whoever kills him will get five silver dollars. The dog's hours are numbered."

These were the words which had fallen on the American like a pall.

It was probably much less than a hour that the prisoner lay insensible.
Then he roused himself and, like the brave man that he was, looked his doom in the face. So he was to die, and die the death of a miserable cur; he, the inhabitant of a pleasant Northern city, with youth, health, kind friends and fortitude. To be tied to a stake in a Mexican market place and shot for a paltry prize.

These thoughts were maddening.— He called fiercely to his captors to liberate him; he strode furiously up and down the room; he rushed to the window and rattled the bars, and finally from sheer exhaustion he sank down on the floor in despair.

He lay still for a long time.

He could not mark the hours, but at length he knew by the cool wind that crept in through the bars, that day—his last day—was not far away. Then he heard a cock crow; and then he saw a bright ray of sunlight come flashing into his hut, and he was sure that he had but a few hours more to live. He made up his mind that he would die bravely.
He rose to his full height, stretched his limbs, and raised his head proudly. As he did so he heard the soud of horses galloping toward him. He rushed to the window and looked out. A cavalry officer in a fine uniform, with flashing arms and equipments, and followed by a squad of men, was coming every moment nearer and nearer.

The lounging guerrillas around his prison started up and stood respectfully aside; several who lingered were knocked over by the hurrying hoofs of the horsemen. The officer rode close up to the hut, and, pulling his horse almost on to his haunches, he leaped to the ground.
With a quick and angry command to the guard at the door the bolt was drawn back.

The American, entirely naked, was standing in the middle of the room. Advancing, and speaking in English, the officer said:

"Who are you, and where do you come from?"

"I am an American traveler from the State of Massachusetts," was the reply.

"Massachusetts!" said the other;
"that is near Connecticut. I went to school in that State years ago. I like Americans. Yesterday I heard in this city that some rascally fellows had captured an American and were going to torture him at the fair to-day. It is fortunate for you that I have come."

Then taking off his coat he insisted on the American wearing it, and, in response to his call, other garments were soon obtained.

"Now," said the officer, "take this horse and come to my quarters."

Then, turning around, he shouted out in Spanish to the chief of the guerrillas:

"Francisco, if I hear of another prank like this, I shall send my orderly to blow out your brains."

At the officer's quarters in the city, our countryman received every possible attention, and as soon as he was rested and refreshed he was furnished with horses and money and escorted safely to Vera Cruz.

A Louisville, Ky., dispatch of April 29th says: What is regarded as an incipient volcano has broken out on the farm of N. A. Jarnagin, in the southern part of Ohio county, this State. One day last week Mr.
Jarnagin was attracted to the place by noticing gas escaping from the earth, and he found upon examination that the ground was seemingly on fire. There was a pile of corn shucks over the place and the heat caused it to ignite. Many persons have visited the spot, and it is a source of great wonder to all.

Great Merit.

All the fairs give the first premiums and special awards of great merit to Hop Bitters, as the purest and best family medicine, and we most heartily approve of the awards for we know they deserve it. They are now on exhibition at the State Fairs, and we advise all to test them. See another column.

A Sad Picture.

Discussion in the House of Commons has revealed a state of deplorable depression in the agricultural districts in England, as well as in Ireland. The repeated failure of crops and the continued high rents for land notwithstanding, has ruined many farmers. The general poverty produced by these causes has greatly affected trade and serious commercial difficulties are imminent.
Thousands of acres are reported as lying idly and unproductive for want of tenants in various parts of the island.

A clergyman writing from Nottinghamshire to a London paper says: "There seems to be a better state of affairs in towns than in the country. Here, general bankruptcy seems imminent. Hundreds of farms are to be let, and few farmers seem to have any capital left to take them. * * Sheep are dying by hundreds, floods are ruining the grass lands in this part of the country to an unparalleled extent. What is to become of us is hard to tell." In view of this and many similar reports, the London Telegraph says:

"If this is the real state of rural impoverishment existing in such counties as Nottinghamshire, Lincolnshire, Warwickshire, and many others, it is not to be wondered at that manufacturers and tradesmen complain of a lack of orders for goods. No reform of more urgent interest could possibly be taken in hand by any Ministry than the raising of British agriculture from its present drooping condition."— Systems of political economy cannot prevent the failure of crops, but if the several successive unproductive seasons in England should so open the eyes of the people as to cause them to think for themselves and force a radical change in the oppressive land, tax and monetary systems of that country, then these afflictions will prove to be blessings in disguise.
That is a great deal to hope for from a government guilty of so much wrong as the British government is, but still it is barely possible that radical reforms can be effected even in Great Britain. Probably greater personal efforts and sacrifices were never made than at present, with the sole hope of effecting changes in political systems, that will benefit mankind generally.

Sleep and Sleeplessness.

Dr. J. M. Granville, in his work on this subject, says, with reference to the difficulty some persons find in getting to sleep: "Habit greatly helps the performance of the initial act, and the cultivation of a habit of going to sleep in a particular way, at a particular time, will do more to procure regular and healthy sleep than any other artifice. The formation of the habit is, in fact, the creation or development of a special center, or combination, in the nervous system, which will benevolently produce sleep as a natural rhythmical process. If this were more generally recognized, persons who suffer from sleeplessness of the sort which consists in simply being 'unable to go to sleep,' would set themselves resolutely to form such a habit. It is necessary that the training should be explicit and include attention to details. It is not very important what a person does with the intention of going to sleep, but he should do precisely the same thing, in the same way, at the same time, and under as nearly as possible the same conditions, night after night for a considerable period, say three or four weeks at least."—Scientific

THE ANTI-MONOPOLY LEAGUE.

At the close of the month of November last, we laid before our readers a summary of an article on "Rail Roads and the People" from Scribner's Monthly for December, in which was graphically portrayed the workings of the great corporations of the country, and exhibiting their vast and overshadowing influence upon its business generally, its legislation, and all its interests.

Our unpretending sheet was the first one in the State to call attention to this subject, so deeply affecting the public interests. Since then, it has received no little attention from almost every quarter, and the discussion of the monopolies has occupied no small space in the newspapers, and in other forms. There have been several meetings held at various points, under the auspices of the "The National Anti-Monopoly League," in which representative men, without regard to past party affiliations, have taken prominent and active part, and determined to have a hearing and to make their movements felt throughout the land.

The significance of these gatherings will hardly be overlooked by the shrewd gentlemen whose statesmanship begins and ends with party organization. Experience has taught them to anticipate the smashing of some existing piece of political machinery, when intelligent men who have been acting in opposition are drawn together by the feeling that a great public interest is being sacrificed between the apparently rival, but frequently confederated, sets of wire pullers who operate under the chief party names. Such movements, like that against slavery, either compel an essential change in the attitude of one of the parties, or ultimate in the rise of a new body composed of elements drawn from the old divisions. This anti-monopoly agitation cannot be stopped until the objects in view are accomplished. There are no arts of rhetoric or appeals to frothy passions which will permanently prevail against the determination to subject every corporation in the United States to the common welfare. The plain issue is made up, and cannot be obscured. Every day the thoughtful men of the country are being brought to see that more pressing than any other question is this one: Shall the corporations be the masters or the servants of the public? To defer the struggle which this inquiry points to is but to strengthen the evils complained of and perhaps make their eradication impossible. Not to recognize the necessity for the attack is to be blind to the most obvious facts in the legislation of our time.

As significant of the real aims of the league, further on the Eagle remarks: It ought in this relation to be borne in mind that there is no war proposed upon corporations as such. These merchants who are most active in this movement are not blind to the advantages which the country reaps from corporate capital justly used. The war is upon abuses. Its purpose is to make the man who handles $100,000,000 of stock live subject to the law made by the people, as much as a man who transacts the humblest kind of legitimate business. There is nothing proposed that will prevent the building of railroads or the construction of telegraph lines. What is aimed at is to prevent the controllers of these enterprises from emasculating all the other enterprises and industries of the country. Nobody desires to see impoverished railroad corporations, or to have those who honestly invest in them deprived of a fair return on their capital, or a reasonable compensation for the risk they run. Indeed, the disposition is to err on the side of generosity. It is, however, a different matter when those corporations are so managed as to present the spectacle of fortunes of hundreds of millions wrung by a few men out of the industry of the country, and the political rights of the people assailed with corrupt weapons, to the end that the work of plunder may go on unchecked. To this it is proposed to object. To this objection is decidedly made, and on this line there is going to be a struggle to fifty summers.

Among the documents issued by the League, it may be interesting to read the one distinguished as No. 3, entitled, "How Did they get it?" The following are recent estimates of the suddenly accumulated wealth of a few men: Jay Gould & Co., seventy millions in fifteen years. The Vanderbilts, one hundred millions in twenty years. Huntington, Hopkins & Co., (the Central Pacific Syndicate,) one hundred and eighty-six millions in fifteen years. (From an investment of Twelve Thousand five hundred dollars. See speech of Congressman Daggert, Feb. 21, 1881.) Hundreds of others are worth from one to twenty millions made in the same way during the same time by the operation of the rule "What the traffic will bear."

It concludes thus—"What can the People do?" "They can organize an Anti-Monopoly League in every State and county and district in this broad land. They can put votes and an honest, patriotic purpose against money."

They can combine those who believe in public morals and in the principles upon which our Government was founded, against those who think they are obsolete and that money is king. They can disregard party lines, and "in every district and at all times" throw a solid vote against candidates who will not pledge themselves to protect the public interest against the encroachments of corporations.

We believe that these encroachments were never contemplated by our forefathers, who rebelled against unjust taxation and threw the tea into Boston harbor, upon which it was sought to levy taxes. We believe that the men who abolished the laws of primogeniture and entail, in order to insure the more equal distribution of wealth, would not justify a system of freebooting under the guise law, which places the production and commerce of a continent at the mercy of a few men who "recognize no principle of action, but personal or corporate aggrandizement."

OUR PRINCIPLES. Anti-monopoly. We advocate and will support and defend the rights of the many as against the privileges of the few.

Corporations, the creation of the State, shall be controlled by the State.

Labor and capital— allies, not enemies; justice for both.

All persons approving of these principles should send to The National Anti-Monopoly League, L. E. Chittenden, President, 7 Warren St., New York, for further particulars, and for instructions how to organize branch leagues.

The monopolists falsely claim that this is a communistic raid against capital. This is answered by the following from the Daily Graphic:

"If ever we have a conflict between capital and labor in this country it will be because of the injustice done the masses by corporate monopolies. It therefore behooves all classes of citizens, and particularly those who have property, to sustain the efforts now being made by reasonable and intelligent citizens to limit the power of men who, to use the words of a committee of the United States Senate, 'recognize no principle of action but personal and corporate aggrandizement.'"

A part of the profit of every merchant, every farmer, every laborer, every citizen has to go to swell the profits of monopoly. The Standard Oil monopoly is delaring dividends estimated at one million dollars per month, while tramps and beggars increase.

There is manifest throughout all the acts, the publications, and other proceedings of this organization, an independence determination and spirit, which argues most hopefully for the creation of such sentiments among the people as must result eventually in corrective influences upon the legislation of the country, and the consequent elevation of the tone of business in favour of the general prosperity as over against that of the few.

On Wednesday morning there occurred a terrible calamity to an excursion party, at London, Ontario, Canada. An over-crowded steamer shipped water, the stanchions supporting the upper deck gave way, and the upper decks with their crowds of human beings came down on those who were below, crushing them and rendering escape impossible. 238 bodies were recovered at last accounts.

HISTORY REPEATS ITSELF.—We had the Credit Mobilier and the Whiskey rings a few years ago, and now the Star-route business premises to outline those memorable developments.

WASHINGTON CORRESPONDENCE.

Washington, D.C., May 24th '81. Washington is absorbed in watching the contest now going on at Albany over the vacancy in the Senate caused by the resignations of Senators Conkling and Platt. The latest reports from Albany are that the Conkling stalwarts have received the order from their leader to go ahead on the line of campaign he has decided upon—namely—a vigorous contest in the legislature for the re-election of himself and Platt to the United States Senate. There has been a false rumor put upon the wires that Secretary Blaine was going to New York to use his own and the administration influence against the re-election of Conkling. Of course such is not the fact. Possibly the Secretary may go to New York, but he would hardly stoop to mix himself up in a fight he can be so little interested in.

Senator Conkling is coming in for a good share of current public ridicule for his childish action in making a private citizen of himself. By Puck he is likened to a balloon ascending from the floor of the Senate Chamber, bursting in mid-air—harmless—while the Senators in a circle beneath dance for glee. By another, he is compared to the foolish man who climbed a hundred feet into the air and then sawed off the limb which supported him, falling to the ground. At any rate the course he has taken will add no new lustre to his hitherto brilliant career, and if he manages to be re-elected—very doubtful—I think he will have learned a much needed lesson of humility. Of Mr. Platt's chances not much is said. But it is thought that as Platt has no following of his own, Senator Conkling will have none to spare for him and that he will consequently fail to be returned.

The failure of the Vice President to give opportunity for the election of a president pro tempore of the Senate, prior to final adjournment, taken in connection with the fact that there is now no Speaker of the House of Representatives has led to considerable comment and speculation as to what would occur should President Garfield and Vice President Arthur both die before the meeting of the next Congress. After providing that the Vice-President shall succeed the President in case of death or resignation, the constitution remits the duty of making further provision in this line to Congress. This is no provision for an ad interim President further than that relating to the Speaker, and the question is would the government move along in its functions without a responsible head until the assembling of Congress next winter.

The excitement here in Departmental circles is the investigation that is being made into the affairs of the custodian of the Treasury Building. Nothing criminal has yet been discovered but wanton extravagance and ignorance of business are displayed to a startling extent. If any one received benefits from the wholesale purchases made it is those above the Custodian in authority.

Mrs. Garfield is improving slowly. She has had a hard time of it, and will probably not recover her usual health during the summer.

"My Tormented Back," is the exclamation of more than one poor hard-working man and woman. Do you know why it aches? It is because your kidneys are over-tasked and need strengthening, and your system needs to be cleansed of bad humors. Kidney-Wort is the medicine you need. "It acts like a charm," says a well known physician, "I never knew it to fail." Liquid or dry sold by Druggists.—Boston Post.

Emmit House! EMMITSBURG, MD.

DECORATION DAY next Monday. Have you got your revised New Testament?

WASHINGTON county almshouse has 113 inmates.

We are indebted to Mr. Samuel Gamble, for some fine head lettuce.

MR. CLIFFORD KRISH has our thanks for a lot of prime goose quills.

THE Democratic State Convention will meet in Baltimore, on the 23rd of June.

STRAWBERRIES are coming in. They are particularly nice when mixed with ice cream.

HON. JOHN STEWART, of Chambersburg, is spoken of as the next Republican candidate for Governor of Pennsylvania.

MR. JOHN NYMAN of Hanover, died there last Sunday night, aged 71 years, 8 months and 25 days. His remains were interred in Boonsboro.

The gold watch for the benefit of St. Joseph's Church, referred to in our last issue, was won by Mr. William G. Blair, on No. 100. There were realized from it, $62.

A TOWN election is to be held in Gettysburg on the 18th of June to decide whether the debt shall be increased $35,000 in order to provide the town with a better supply of water.

THE General Synod of the Reformed Church, in session in Tiffin, Ohio, has selected the Third Reformed Church, Baltimore, as the next place of meeting, which will be May 7, 1884.

The adjutant-general has commissioned J. Thos. Bussey as captain; S. N. McNair, first lieutenant, and Geo. T. Gelwick, second lieutenant of the Border Guards, of Emmitsburg.

THE Baltimore Item says that early in the coming fall Miss Helen Abell, third daughter of Mr. A. S. Abell, of the Baltimore Sun will be led to Hymen's altar by Col. L. V. Baughman, of the Frederick Citizen.

Messrs. JOHN H. WILLIAMS and J. F. McMillen, agents of Mrs. Joseph Baugher, will sell the valuable wood lots advertised in our columns, at Rocky Ridge, to-day instead of the 25th, the time heretofore given.

A LADY friend of ours called the other day and stated that her husband had seen St. Jacobs Oil advertised in our paper; he used it for rheumatism and was convinced of its merits.—Cambridgeport, (Mass) American Protestant.

SINCE the fine rains of last week, and the pleasant sunshine which has continued, the grain crops have greatly improved. The wheat has heaved very generally, and presents a more promising appearance than it did last week.

THE County Commissioners appointed the Judges of Election, for the different election districts of the county, last week, those for Emmitsburg District, are James T. Hays, Andrew A. Annan and James W. Troxell.

THE young folks will be glad to know that their entertaining friend St. Nicholas has again arrived, brim full of pictures and fun, and can be had as usual at all book sellers, for 25 cts a number, or $3 a year. Scribner & Co. 743 Broadway, N. Y.

PRESIDENT GARFIELD and several members of his Cabinet, have been expected to visit Gettysburg on Decoration Day, next Monday. It is however now doubtful whether the President will be there.

QUITE a number of our young folks attended the German Baptist Love Feast at Rocky Ridge, on Wednesday night. Without intending to be censorious, we doubt the propriety of persons indulging mere curiosity in matters which to others are most solemn and sacred.

ASCENSION DAY was observed as a general holiday. There were services as usual in the Catholic church. The people from the country flocked into town, and everybody that could, went a fishing, in all which the brightness of the day and the genial air made the occasion most enjoyable.

OUR acknowledgments are due to Misses Young, Baughman and Henderson, committee of the "Ladies Monumental" and "Confederate Memorial" Associations of Frederick county, for an invitation to be present at the unveiling of the Monument to the unknown Confederate dead, on the 2d of June.

JAMES HURLEY, of Hagerstown, died in Harrisburg, on the 18th inst., from a stroke of paralysis, while on a visit to a son. Mr. Hurley was born in Frederick county, Md., in 1800, January 16. He afterwards moved to Washington county, Md., where he taught school for fifty-seven years. His remains were taken to Hagerstown for interment.

CALL and see "Hill's Lightning Bag Ties" at this office. Farmers, millers, housekeepers, everybody who has occasion to tie a bag needs them. There are no knots to bother with, they can't come loose until you arrange for it, and the entire thing of securing or opening a bag is done in a jiffy.—See adv.

The Supreme Court of New York has granted the order to change the name of the corporation of "Scribner & Co." to "The Century Co."—the order to take effect on the 21st of June. The July issue of Scribner's Monthly and St. Nicholas will have the new corporate imprint.

MR. JAMES A. ROWE is erecting a sort of a porch over the pavement in front of his store. The upper floor when finished will be just outside of our office windows. Whilst it will not afford us any shade, it will be a pleasant resort betimes. Mr. R. says it will be known as "THE CHRONICLE OBSERVATORY."

HAVING made a visit in Washington county, last week, we are able to report knowingly that the grain crops there are highly promising, though not by any means, as luxuriant as they have been, in other years. The pastures were greatly affected by the winter, and with some exceptions, the grass crop will prove very poor.

DR. GEO. M. ZIMMERMAN lost a valuable horse on Sunday last. The cause of his death is not known; he was apparently all right at noon when he was fed and on going to the stable a short time afterwards was found lying dead in his stall. It was one of a pair of matched sorrels, a fine draught horse.—Clarion.

LIST OF LETTERS.—The following letters remain in the Post Office, Emmitsburg, Md., May 23rd, 1880. Persons calling will please say advertised, otherwise they may not receive them: Baker, Adam; Bell, E. G.; Eyer, John; Fleener, Faham; Eckenrode, Miss Kate M.; Little, Miss Maggie S. Sebald, Miss Mary E.; Shriner, Miss Irene.

THE mandamus case to test the legality of the adoption of local option in Haver's district, this county, which has been occupying the attention of the Circuit Court for the past few days, was concluded yesterday, Judge Lynch rendering his decision in favor of local option, thus sustaining the vote cast in its favour at the election in August last.—Gazette.

PERSONALS. J. DeBarth Sho, Esq., a native of this neighborhood is among the visitors at the time.

Mr. Cyrus D. Hoover of near Cavetown made a visit of a few days.

Miss Manie Hamilton, of Washington, D. C., visits at Prof. J. D. Hickey's.

Mr. Mark Keopert, of Littlestown, also was in our village.

LIGHT.—Our Town Commissioners are experimenting with some tubular burner lamps, desiring to improve the lighting of the streets. The lamps give a very bright light, a vast improvement on the faint flickering one we have been obliged to endure. We trust they may prove satisfactory, and fit to be introduced.—There must be good light in a well ordered town. Evil doers love darkness rather than light, because their deeds are evil.

WHAT may come of an ear for music, and a clear conscience, is illustrated in the following outburst of the Clarion:

The magnificent discharges of the electric artillery during Saturday night's storm disturbed the slumbers of many and was quite a terror to the nervous and thunders pain. For our part we hear in it more sublime music than of band or orchestra, and while we appreciate the fell power of lightning, to destroy, we can do nought but admire the grandeur of a night storm with its tableaux of fire and a majestic bass accompaniment.

Proposed New Theological Seminary. Bishop Payne, of the New England M. E. Conference, colored, was in Mercersburg, Pa., during last week negotiating for the purchase of the seminary building and grounds of the old Marshall College. The building was offered for sale recently by the sheriff to satisfy a claim against it but it was bought in by prominent members of the Reformed Church in Mercersburg. It is probable it will be sold to the bishop and will then be converted into a theological college for the colored Methodist Episcopal students.—Globe.

The display made by our State militia yesterday (Monday), in celebration of the fourteenth anniversary of the Fifth Regiment, was in all respects—except possibly in point of number—a creditable one. Our home regiment never presented a handsomer nor more soldierly appearance and they marched with the steadiness of veterans. The visiting militia also looked remarkably well in their handsome uniforms, the Frederick Riflemen making a particularly handsome appearance.—Gazette.

MR. JOSEPH T. FLORENCE erected the platform in front of our office windows. The object of the structure is to shade our Landlord's boots. Florence is a skillful workman, and usually careful, yet on Tuesday, in walking over the joists, he incautiously stepped upon a projecting board, which tilted over, and he began to descend with it, saw in hand, but fortunately by a dexterous gymnastic movement, he seized hold of a fixed timber, and arose sailing on top of it. To have gone down twelve feet on the brick footwalk, might have been disastrous. When we look upon that platform, we can't help thinking of St. Peter, as he took his mid-day nap and saw snakes and other hideous sights.

We are strongly disposed to regard that person as the best physician who does most to alleviate human suffering. Judge from this standard, Mrs. Lydia E. Pinkham, 233 Western Avenue, Lynn, Mass., is entitled to the front rank, for her Vegetable Compound is daily working wonderful cures in female diseases. Send for circular to the above address.

Run Over by a Train and Killed. FREDERICK, Md., May 20.—John Whisner, a respectable citizen, living at Lime Kiln switch, on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, was struck by a western-bound emigrant train near that point, this evening, and instantly killed. He had been pasturing his cow and horse and was returning home, driving the one and leading the other, when on crossing the track the cow ran directly in front of the engine, and in making an effort to save his he became confused and was struck and killed. The cow and horse were also killed and all were horribly mangled. Whisner was aged about 57 years, and leaves a wife and children.—Sun.

Our Brave Soldier Boys. The Frederick Riflemen, commanded by Capt. James McSherry, with the Drum Corps attached, accompanied by the Frederick Cornet Band and a large number of citizens, left this city at 7 o'clock last Monday morning for Baltimore, to attend the anniversary celebration of the Fifth Regiment. Their ranks were full, they marched well, looked splendid, enjoyed the hospitable treatment they received at the hands of the soldiery and citizens of Baltimore, and at about 3 o'clock on Tuesday morning returned by special train, under the command of Captain A. S. Turpin, alias "Chickahominy," who for lightning speed, skillful engineering, and at the same time his great care and forethought, has established for himself a reputation second to that of no other engineer in the country.—Md. Union.

NOTICE TO FARMERS AND OWNERS OF PRIVATE RESIDENCES.—The safest and best company in which Farmers and owners of Private Residences can insure their Property, is the Time-Tried and Fire-Tested Agricultural Insurance Company. It insures nothing but private Residences and Farm Property. In the last 27 years it has not had a loss of over $5,000, in one Fire, and it cannot be affected by sweeping conflagrations, as its risks are all detached. It insures against damage by Lightning, whether fire ensues or not, and insure Live Stock against being killed by Lightning anywhere on the farm. The Agricultural Insurance Co., is a stock company, and the strongest and largest company, doing an exclusive Dwelling Business in the United States, if not in the world, and is now issuing 50,000 Policies a year. For further particulars, apply to W. G. HORNER, Agent, Emmitsburg, Md.

Mrs. ADAM GRUBB, 231 Walnut street, has been a great sufferer for a number of years from extreme pain in the feet, something like rheumatism. She was also very much troubled with corns and bunions. It was with great difficulty that she could walk, and sometimes when she would visit her husband's shoe store or any of her children, she could not get home again without assistance, and often when she was walking along the streets she would be seized with such acute pain that she was compelled to stop in at the neighbors on the way until she got better. Some two weeks ago she heard of the wonderful cures St. Jacobs Oil was effecting and she at once commenced to use it and experienced great relief immediately. The pains have left her feet and ankles and the inflammation has left the corns and bunions. She is now tripping up to her husband's shoe store and out to see her children without experiencing any pain.—Wilmington, (Del.) Daily Republican.

The American Revised New Testament. The Literary Revolution is prompt with its edition of the Revised Testament. The British monopolists "unchained" their edition on the morning of May 20th, and at 8:30 P. M., the same day, the American edition was all in type, and of the various editions of the entire Testament and the Gospels published separately as many as 50,000 copies a day will be manufactured till the demand is met. The prices for the very handsome editions, in type nearly double the size of the British edition, are as follows: The New Testament complete for 10 cents. The Gospels complete for 7 cents. The Gospels separately, each for 2 cents. And in various forms and styles, up to full Turkey Morocco, gilt edges, for the new and old versions on pages facing for $1.50. This edition is for sale by the leading booksellers of the United States, or they will be sent by mail on receipt of price. Liberal terms are allowed to clubs. Address, American Book Exchange, 764 Broadway, New York.

Truth and Soberness. What is the best family medicine in the world to regulate the bowels, purify the blood, remove costiveness and biliousness, aid digestion and stimulate the whole system? Truth and soberness compels us to answer, Hop Bitters, being pure, perfect and harmless. See "Truths" in another column.

The Mountain View Cemetery. A certificate of Incorporation has been duly executed by a company under the name of "The Mountain View Cemetery," of Emmitsburg, in Frederick county, Md., which but needs the approval of the Circuit Court, and its order for record. The incorporators, who are also the directors, for the present, are Messrs. Henry Stokes, Uriah A. Lough, Lewis M. Motter, Isaac S. Annan, J. Taylor Motter, Lewis A. Bollinger, Jacob L. Hoke, William S. Guthrie and Samuel Motter. Books for subscriptions to and the sale of burial lots will proceed, as soon as a plat of the grounds may be completed. The location is on the hill north-west of the village, just outside of the corporate limits.

Boating and Fishing Party. One of the most pleasant events of the season was the social gathering, which adopting the name of "Fishing and Boating party," assembled on the banks Tom's Creek, about two miles south of town, on Ascension Day. The party, consisting of a number of ladies and gentlemen from town and vicinity, arrived on the spot at an early hour, and spent the entire day in fishing and boating, and enjoying themselves generally. It seemed to be the effort of each individual to make the day one of complete enjoyment, and the smiles which lightened the countenances of the party on its return, were evidence that their labors in that direction were successful. The essential part of all such occasions—the eatables—deserve special mention, and proved that the contributors—the ladies—are adepts in the culinary line. The party owes no little gratitude to Mr. Gilson, whose unbounded kindness and liberality, added so much to the pleasures of the day. NEMO.

OUR highly esteemed friend, H. M. Schmuck, Esq., President of the First National Bank at Hanover, Pa., has sent us a recent report on the condition of that institution. We are not by any means familiar with banking affairs, and yet are not averse to receive an occasional check for a good round sum of money. But here are the figures, (world acknowledged evidences of reliability) and they show the Bank to be in a most healthy and flourishing condition. Not content however, to excite our wonderment with an array of figures, extending into the hundreds of thousands dollars, a few days afterward, as if by way of illustrating the whole matter, our friend sent us a check in payment of his subscription to "THE EMMITSBURG CHRONICLE," for two years in advance, for all which he has our warmest thanks.

On reference to the first page of this issue of our paper, it will be seen, that one more number will complete the second volume. In order that we may begin the third volume under the most encouraging auspices, we call upon our patrons respectfully, to send in their subscriptions, upon our business men to give us their advertisements in time, that they may be properly arranged in the new volume, and those who have not paid their accounts to do so at once, our determination is to move forward with our enterprise, and shall aim not only to maintain in the future, the acknowledged excellence of the EMMITSBURG CHRONICLE as a family newspaper, but we hope by diligence and faithful efforts on behalf of our patrons to improve and enhance its value, we deal not in idle and empty words, nor in boastings and promises for effect. Our work shall be the proof of our intentions. Let our friends yield us their trustful, and hearty cooperation, and note the results.

THE June number of the Eclectic appears as a "Carlyle Number," and contains no less than four of the most important papers that have been called forth by his death and the appearance of his "Reminiscences." One of these papers is by Mrs. Oliphant, another by Leslie Stephen, another by R. H. Hutten, and still another by Professor J. S. Cotter Morison. The remaining contents of the number comprise the following articles: "On Fruits and Seeds," by Sir John Lubbock; "The Thorn," a poem; "On the Moral Character of Man," by the Duke of Argyll, being Part VII. of his series on "The Unity of Nature;" "Haroun Alraschid," the Caliph of Bagdad; "Russian Nihilism," by M. Kaufmann, M.A.; Chapters XI. to XIII. of "Kith and Kin," a novel, by Jessie Fothergill, author of "The First Violin;" "What is a Cold?" by a Medical Man; "The English Penny Press," by Francis Hitchman; "The Boers at Home," by J. J. Muskett; Literary Notices; Foreign Literary Notes; Science and Art, and Miscellany. This number also contains the Index to the volume.—Published by E. R. Pelton, 25 Bond St. New York.

RHEUMATIC DISEASES.—These ailments follow from torpid liver and costive bowels, the skin, bowels and kidneys failing in their proper work, an acid poison is formed in the blood, which is the occasion of these acute diseases.—Kidney-Wort produces healthy action of all secretive organs, and throws off the rheumatic poison. Equally efficient in Liquid or Dry form.—Inter Ocean.

AFTER several days of rain last week, the skies became clear on Friday, fires were allowed to die out, doors and windows were again thrown open, and the outside world was found most agreeable, but about 9 o'clock Saturday night, there arose a thunder shower, which continued until after midnight, the rain poured down most copiously, and the lightning continued almost incessantly to rend the thick darkness, in vast sheets of dazzling brightness, which seemed to pass athwart the firmament at once. There was not time to sleep in the intervals, every flash arousing one, however unwilling, since then the temperature has been mild, and the genial influences of May have prevailed.

SCRIBNER for June has some striking illustrations of the Farragut Monument, soon to be unveiled in New York, accompanied by an interesting review of the history of the talented artist, by whom it has been executed, which will be read with pleasure by those who have no opportunity of seeing and judging for themselves; "Along the north shore of Long Island," by Charles H. Farnham, is a pleasant record of observations made by an aquatic tramp, which with the accompanying illustrations, will be found both interesting and pleasant; "The sanitary condition of N. Y.," by Geo. E. Warin, Jr., this is the second paper on this subject, and treats of the remedy for some of the evils which threaten the crowded Metropolis; "Madame Delphine," the new story by G. W. Cable, is continued; "An August morning with Farragut," by J. C. Kinney; "The Lobster at Home," by Wm. H. Bishop, which gives one some new ideas on the importance of this interesting "hardshell;" "Practical Floriculture," by Peter Henderson, which is of itself worth the price of the publication to those interested in this pursuit; "Continuation of Peter the Great," by Eugene Schuyler; A life like portrait of Lord Beaconsfield, with a short sketch of his career; "A Fearful Responsibility," by W. D. Howels, together with the usual "Topics of the Time," and abundance of other leading matter, sufficient to fill up many a leisure hour, both pleasantly and profitably.

Training Tomatoes.

A letter in the Country Gentleman says:—The season for planting tomatoes is nearly at hand, and I fear that all lovers of this delicious fruit do not know how to grow them successfully. When the plants are ready for the garden, make a considerable hill of good compost. Chip manure is excellent, and a quantity of chicken manure is good. After the hill is made, drive a long stake through it. This may be six feet high. Set the plant near it. The training will require attention. The plant will immediately begin to sucker, or throw out side shoots, just above each leaf. These must be cut off, and then the plant will run up vigorously. Tie it to the stake, and do not be afraid to use the knife.—Keep on cutting each stem that appears in the axil of a leaf, and keep on tying. The first bearing branches come directly from the body of the plant. Remember that this trimming must be continued as long as the plant bears. Thus trained, the fruit is superior in size, quantity and flavor, besides being less liable to rot or drop off.

CHARRED CORN is one of the best things which can be fed to hens to make them lay. It must not be fed as a regular diet but in limited quantities each day.

As it takes no more hoeing or weeding to raise first-class varieties of garden vegetables than it does to raise inferior or indifferent ones, every one can see the propriety of choosing the best.

VALUABLE RECIPES.

WHEN anything is accidentally made too salt it can be counteracted by adding a teaspoonful of vinegar and a teaspoonful of sugar.

POTATOES at any time of the year can be made mealy if boiled in salt water and drained and then covered with a thick towel and left in the back of the range five minutes.

To wash red table linen use tepid water, with a little powdered borax (borax sets the color); wash the linen separately and quickly using very lily soap; rinse in tepid water containing a little boiled starch; hang to dry in the shade; iron when almost dry.

FARINA JELLY.—Boil one quart of new milk; while boiling sprinkle in slowly a quarter of a pound of farina. Continue the boiling from half an hour to a whole hour. Season with five ounces of sugar and a teaspoonful of vanilla. When done turn into a mould and place it on ice to stiffen. Serve it with whipped cream.

CABBAGE.—Chop fine one good-sized solid head. To four well-beaten eggs add four tablespoonfuls sweet cream, one of celery seed, nearly one of salt and ground mustard, one-half teaspoonful black pepper, one-half cup of good vinegar, put on the stove and stir until it just boils; if it cooks too long the eggs will become lumpy; pour over the cabbage and mix thoroughly.

CHOCOLATE PUDDING.—Soak a half pound of gelatine with a little cold water; put it in a pan with a quarter pound grated chocolate, one ounce sugar and one pint of milk; stir till it boils. Break the yolks of four eggs in a basin; stir with a wooden spoon. When the chocolate boils allow it to stand one minute, then pour it on the yolks, return to the pan and stir till it thickens, not letting it boil; pour into a wet mould.

VEAL STEW.—Cut four pounds of veal into strips three inches long and one inch thick; peel twelve large potatoes and cut them into slices one inch thick; spread a layer of veal on the bottom of the pot, sprinkle a little salt and pepper, then a layer of potatoes, then a layer of veal thus; over the last layer of veal put a layer of slices of salt pork, and over the whole a layer of potatoes. Pour in water till it rises an inch over the whole; cover it close, heat it fifteen minutes and simmer it an hour.

Humorous.

SOME wag says the Americans are a great deal like potato bugs.—They will go to Paris "green," and will suffer accordingly.

If Jacob's ladder were a reality, and it offered a free way to Heaven, how many persons there are who would wildly demand an elevator.

A PAPER giving an account of a shooting affray, says the wounded man is expected to recover, as the pistol ball lodged in his "dinner pail."

If intelligent clergymen will dispute with each other over the way of going to Heaven, they must expect ordinary mortals to become a little mixed at the cross roads.

HERE is an Ohio idea: A Buckeye widow owed her hired man $320. To square the debt she married him—then for $60 she obtained a divorce, and cleared $280 by the transaction.

"PADDY," said a joker, "why don't you get your ears cropped?—they are entirely too long for a man?" "And yours," replied Pat, "ought to be lengthened—they are too short for an ass."

"WHEN I was a young man," says Billings, "I was always in a hurry to hold the big end of the log and do all the lifting; now I am older, I seize hold of the small end and do all the grunting."

WHAT is the longest and shortest thing in the world, the swiftest and the slowest, without which nothing can be done, which devours all that is small, and gives life to all that is great? Time.

QUITE too too: The very latest, nicest little tea is, for a young lady to decorate a miniature bellows and send it to her best gentleman friend. It signifies: "Don't mind your pcverty; I will raise the wind."

STARTLING burglary: A New York "99 cent store" was robbed of a few nights ago of eleven gold bracelets, six watches, three diamond pins, fourteen gold brooches and fifty-four finger rings. The loss is estimated at two dollars and twenty cents.

CONFIDENTIAL friend (to elderly and not unattractive spinster).—"So, dear, you've given up advocating woman's rights?" Elderly spinster: "Yes; I now go in for women's 'lefts.'" "Women's lefts! What's that?" Widowers, my dear!"

A lover's pun: "Maggie, dear, if I should attempt to spell Cupid why could I not get beyond the first syllable?" Maggie gave it up, whereupon William said: Because when I come to c u, of course I cannot go farther." Maggie said she thought that was the nicest conundrum she had ever heard."

Mr. Gilbert Stuart once met a lady in Boston, who said to him, "I have just seen your likeness, Mr. Stuart, and kissed it, because it was so much like you."

"And did it kiss you in return?" said he. "No," replied the lady. "Then," said the gallant painter, "it was not like me."

Sign of an approaching proposal: "Mother," remarked a Duluth girl, "I think Harry must be going to propose to me." "Why so, my daughter?" queried the old lady, laying down her spectacles, while her face beamed like the moon in its fourteenth night. "Well, he asked me if I wasn't tired of living with such a menagerie as you and dad."

Pleasures of the barber shop: "There is one thing that I envy a hog for," said Spencerton to the barber. "He don't have to be shaved until after death." "Some hogs does and some doesn't," replied the tonsorial artist, calmly beheading a pimple. There's no use arguing with a barber while in his power.

SWEET agony: A very sweet agony is for a young lady to decorate a miniature broad sword and forward it to her best gentleman friend. This does not signify a direct cut. It is the old story—"No love can cut our love in twain."—How quite. How awfully quite quite.

MRS. LYDIA E. PINKHAM OF LYNN, MASS.

DISCOVERER OF LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND.

The Positive Cure

For all Female Complaints.

This preparation, as its name signifies, consists of Vegetable Properties that are harmless to the most delicate invalid. Upon one trial the merits of this Compound will be recognized, as relief is immediate; and when its use is continued, in ninety-nine cases in a hundred, it permanently cures, as thousands will testify. On account of its proven merits, it is today recommended and prescribed by the best physicians in the country.

It will cure entirely the worst form of falling of the uterus, Leucorrhoea, irregular and painful Menstruation, all Ovarian Troubles, Inflammation and Ulceration, Floodings, all Displacements and the consequent spinal weakness, and is especially adapted to the Change of Life. It will dissolve and expel tumors from the uterus in an early stage of development. The tendency to cancerous humors there is checked very speedily by its use.

In fact it has proved to be the greatest and best remedy that has ever been discovered. It permanently cures, as thousands will testify, all cases of faintness, flatulency, dizziness, all nervous ailments, and relieves weakness of the stomach.

It cures Bloating, Headaches, Nervous Prostration, General Debility, Sleeplessness, Depression and Indigestion. That feeling of bearing-down, causing pain, weight and backache, is always permanently cured by its use. It will at all times, and under all circumstances, act in harmony with the law that governs the female system.

For Kidney Complaints with either sex this compound is unsurpassed.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is prepared at 23 and 25 Western Avenue, Lynn, Mass. Price $1.00. Six bottles for $5.00. Sent by mail in the form of pills, also in the form of Lozenges, on receipt of price, $1.00, per box, for either. Mrs. PINKHAM freely answers all letters of inquiry. Send for pamphlet. Address as above. Mention this paper.

No family should be without LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S LIVER-PILLS. They cure Constipation, Biliousness, and Torpidity of the Liver. 25 cents per box.

KIDNEY-WORT
DOES WONDERFUL WHY?
CURES!
Because it acts on the LIVER, BOWELS and KIDNEYS at the same time.
Because it cleanses the system of the poisonous humors that develop in Kidney and Urinary Diseases, Biliousness, Jaundice, Constipation, Piles, or in Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Nervous Disorders and Female Complaints.
SEE WHAT PEOPLE SAY:
"Eugene B. Stork, of Junction City, Kansas, says, 'Kidney-Wort cured him after regular Physicians had been trying for four years.'"
"Mrs. John Arnall, of Washington, Ohio, says her boy was given up to die by four prominent Physicians, and that he was afterwards cured by Kidney-Wort."
"M. M. B. Goodwin, an editor in Chardon, Ohio, says he was not able to live, being afflicted beyond belief, but Kidney-Wort cured him."
"Anna L. Jarrett, of South Salem, N. Y., says that seven years suffering from kidney troubles and other complications was ended by the use of Kidney-Wort."
"John B. Lawrence of Jackson, Tenn., suffered for years from liver and kidney troubles and other ailments, and after the use of other medicines, Kidney-Wort made him well."
"Michael Cole of Montgomery Center, Vt., suffered eight years with kidney difficulty and was unable to work. Kidney-Wort made him 'well as ever.'"

PERMANENTLY CURES
KIDNEY DISEASES,
LIVER COMPLAINTS,
Constipation and Piles.
It is put up in Dry Vegetable Form in tin cans, one package of which makes six quarts of medicine. Also in Liquid Form, very concentrated, for those that cannot readily prepare it.
GET IT WITH EQUAL EFFICIENCY in either form.

Literary Revolution and Universal Knowledge:

An Encyclopaedia in 20 Vols., over 16,000 pages; 10 per cent more matter than any Encyclopaedia ever before published in this country, and sold, handsomely and well bound, in cloth for $10, in half morocco for $15, and printed on fine heavy paper, wide margins, bound in half Russia, gilt top, for $20—an enterprise so extraordinary that its success, beyond all precedent book publishing, may be fairly claimed to inaugurate a Literary Revolution.
THE LIBRARY OF UNIVERSAL KNOWLEDGE is a reprint entire of the last (1879) Edinburgh edition of "Chambers's Encyclopaedia," with about 40 per cent of new matter added, upon topics of special interest to American readers, thus making it equal in character to any similar work, better than any other suited to the wants of the great majority of those who consult works of reference, and altogether the latest Encyclopaedia in the field.
Specimen Volumes in either style will be sent for examination with privilege of return on receipt of proportional price per volume.
Special Discounts to all early subscribers, and extra discounts to clubs. Full particulars with descriptive catalogue of many other standard works equally low in price, sent free.
Leading principles of the American Book Exchange:
I. Publish only books of real value.
II. Work upon the basis of present cost of making books, about one half what it was a few years ago.
III. Sell to buyers direct, and save them the 50 to 60 per cent. commission commonly allowed to dealers.
IV. The cost of books when made 10,000 at a time is but a fraction of the cost when made 500 at a time—adopt the low price and sell the large quantity.
V. Use good type, paper, etc., do careful printing, and strong, neat binding, but avoid all "padding" fat and heavily-laden type, spagery paper and gaudy binding, which are commonly resorted to to make books appear large and fine, and which greatly add to their cost, but do not add to their value.
VI. To make $1 and a friend is better than to make $5 and an enemy.
