IN TIME'S SWING.

BY LUCY LARCOM.

Father Time, your footsteps go lightly as the falling snow. In your swing I'm sitting, see! Push me softly; one, two, three, Twelve times only. Like a sheet, Spreads the snow beneath my feet. Singing merrily, let me swing Out of winter into spring.

Swing me out, and swing me in! Trees are bare, but birds begin. Twitting to the peeping leaves. On the bough beneath the eaves. Wait—one lilac bud I saw. Icy hills sides feel the thaw.

April chased off March to day; Now I catch a glimpse of May. Wait—one lilac bud I saw. Icy hills sides feel the thaw.

Oh, the smell of sprouting grass! In a blur the violets pass. Whispering from the wildwood some May flowers' breathe and insects' hum. Roses carpeting the ground;

Thrushes, orioles, warbling sound. Swing me low, and swing me high, To the warm clouds of July.

Slower now, for, at my side, White pond lilies open wide. Underneath the pines' tall spire, Cardinal blossoms burn like fire. They are gone; the golden-rod. Flashes from the dark green sod.

Crickets in the grass I hear; Asters light the fading year. Slower still! October weaves Rainbows of the forest leaves. Gentians fringed, like eyes of blue, Glimmer out of sleepy dew.

Meadow green I sadly miss; Winds through withered sedges hiss. Oh, 'tis snowing, swing me fast, While December shivers past!

Frosty headed father Time, Stop your foot-fall on the rime. Hard you push, your hand is rough, You have swung me long enough.

"Nay, no stopping," say you? Well, Some of your best stories tell. While you swing me—gently, do!—From the Old Year to the New.

EXPERIENCE.

The trees' gnarled roots in sturdy strength will cling To Mother Earth, while from her breast they gain.

Would claim subsistence, yielded not in vain; Leaf crowned in majesty again they bring.

The golden fruit to peasant and to king; Sun-flushed to ripeness, touched by dew and rain.

'Neath clouded skies fresh sweetness yet to gain. So may we all, from deep experience sing

Of Love enduring and of Beauty still, If hearts are strong, deep-rooted in the soil.

Which will, in Age, Youth's promise yet fulfill, Though brows are browned and hands are hard with toil;

This homely stamp, by duty pressed, endears A noble life, borne on to closing years.

VIRGINIA G. ELLARD.

MRS. RAYNOR'S SYSTEM.

BY FLORENCE H. BIRNEY.

Mrs. Raynor's neatness was a proverb in the neighborhood in which she lived; her brother called her "painfully neat," and sometimes thought, when driven almost desperate by her "system," that he would buy a farm for himself, and never again take any of his brother-in-law's land on shares. But once when he spoke about it while being in the field, Aaron seemed to feel so badly, that he promised not to make the change for some time, any how.

"Poor Aaron," thought Jack, when he saw how troubled was his brother-in-law's face, "he is worried at the bare idea that I might go off and leave him to that rigorous system of Emma's. For his sake I'll wait awhile; and if I owe him some consideration, for if it hadn't been for me, he would never have met Emma."

Aaron Raynor was a very quiet man, and never had much to say on any subject; it was seldom, indeed, that he gave vent to his views on anything save the farm work, but he thought a great deal, and if Emma had only been able to read his thoughts, she would have been saddened, perhaps, by their desponding and regretful tendency. He was, however, a faithful, kind husband, who did all in his power to lighten his wife's burdens, and had he not lived in an atmosphere of fault-finding, would have been both genial and affectionate.

The unhappiness and regret which pervaded the atmosphere of the Raynor home had its rise in the system, which was the one law which governed Emma's life. She ate, drank, and slept by it, and never guessed that she made the lives of her husband and brother unhappy by her strict adherence to it.

Every Monday morning the washing was done, rain or shine, and frequently on a rainy day, Jack and Aaron coming into the big kitchen wet and tired, and longing for seats by the fire, found the stove surrounded by chairs, all filled with damp clothes, from which a steam rose slowly, while across the room were stretched ropes on which hung the "small pieces." It wasn't very cheerful, certainly; but Aaron never complained, for it wasn't his way to complain about anything, and Emma never took any notice when Jack found fault.

On Tuesday the ironing was done, and well done, too. Every towel, no matter how old and worn, was faithfully smoothed, and folded evenly; the shirts were ironed on both sides, and the neighbors often remarked that the linen worn by Jack and Aaron would have done credit to a Chinese laundry.

On Wednesday the baking and cleaning were done; on Thursday the house was thoroughly swept and cleaned from garret to cellar; on Friday the mending and little jobs were scrupulously attended to, and Saturday was devoted to baking and cleaning generally. Delicious bread, cakes and pies came forth from the capacious oven to be stored away on the pantry shelves, and the kitchen and hall floors were made marvelously white and clean by the vigorous use of soap and sand.

No matter what happened, the system went on as usual—nothing was allowed to interrupt that.

Aaron never thought of such a thing as coming into the house without first removing his boots in the little entry by the kitchen door, and putting on his slippers which were always in readiness in a neat bag; and he submitted to his wife's rule of retiring precisely at nine P. M., without a word of rebellion.

If Jack, in his careless indifference, sometimes crossed the white kitchen floor in his muddy boots, his sister, much to his annoyance, followed close behind him with a cloth in her hand, and, carefully wiped up his tracks, with an expression on her face which spoke volumes, and distressed him more than a good round scolding would have done.

Emma was unaware that her system was rapidly destroying her good looks. She had been a pretty, pleasant girl in the days when Aaron had courted her; a little prim and precise, perhaps, but not given to lectures on neatness and order. She lived with two maiden aunts, who had taken pains with her bringing up, and thoroughly imbued her with their system of housekeeping.

Mrs. Raynor would not have a servant, for servants were so "slack and disorderly," and she preferred to see after her household affairs herself, unconscious that her voice was from much fault-finding becoming a fretful, querulous whine; that lines were marring the beauty of her white forehead, and crow's feet gathering around her eyes; that her elasticity and energy were less with every day, and that she was deteriorating both physically and intellectually.

"If I ever marry," said Jack, one evening, suddenly dropping on the floor the newspaper he had been reading by the center table, "I shall insist upon my wife's keeping a stout girl to help her. You don't seem to be aware of it, Emma, but you are working yourself into your grave."

Mrs. Raynor rose from her seat to pick up the newspaper, folded it neatly and laid it on the table. Then she took up her mending again, saying as she seated herself:

"I could not endure a hired girl in the house, Jack. They are all so slovenly and neglectful. Mary never could remember to rub off the kettle in the morning when she fled it; Bridget always forgot to hang up the broom, and Hannah used to spill things over the stove. I tried all three thoroughly, and decided never to have another girl."

"Well, those are only minor evils compared to your becoming a fretful invalid, or dying of overwork. Brooms are cheap, and what did it matter if the kettle was dusty occasionally?"

"Jack!" Emma's tone was one of horrified disapproval. "It is the principle of the thing more than all else. I never could, if I tried fifty years, find a girl with any system about her."

Jack only smiled grimly in reply. "And I will say this in my own praise," pursued Emma, "nobody could gather a teaspoonful of dust in my house after I have swept it, if they searched from garret to cellar."

"True," said Jack. "It would be a waste of time to try."

"If you ever do marry," said Emma, paying no attention to her brother's sarcastic tone, "I hope your wife will be orderly and neat. You have no system about you, and if she is no better, I pity the house you live in—it will always be at sixes and sevens."

Jack had expected only a smile and a sigh from his brother in law in answer, but to his surprise Aaron spoke:

"I've talked to her about it often," he said, "but it will be necessary for her to have a severe lesson before she will learn common sense. I made up my mind a year ago that I would say no more to her on the subject."

"Common sense," said Emma, "I don't understand you. Would you have me sit with my hands in my lap and see the dirt rot the floors through, and the stove go to pieces with rust?"

"No," said Aaron, "but I would have you rest whenever you are tired. I would not have you polish the stove every Wednesday and Saturday, no matter how much else there is to attend to; and mop the kitchen and hall floors at regular intervals, even if suffering under a severe cold, which is liable to be increased by any imprudence."

"I never have had a severe illness, Aaron."

"That is no surety that you never will have one," said her husband.

"No; but I am well enough always. I've often felt under the weather, of course, but have always worked it off. There isn't a lazy bone in my body."

"If you were taken sick, the house would be handed over to the tender mercies of a servant. That fact, if no other, ought to make you prudent, and careful of your health," said Jack. "And another thing; when we come in at night, you are completely tired out, and consequently depressed and often fretful. Now, if you husband your strength you would feel bright and cheerful every evening. Women who work as you do, wear out before they reach middle age, or else go insane. Farmers' wives help largely to keep the insane asylums full. And it makes such a difference to a man whether his wife is glum and cross, or—"

"It seems to me," interrupted Emma, "that Jack has a great deal to say lately about wives. I hope he won't bring home one of those Hopsan girls and ask me to welcome her."

"And why not?" asked Jack, with a sudden flush.

"Your eyes ought to tell you why not," answered Emma, "their house is forever littered up with all sorts of trash. Books, newspapers, birds and plants scattered all around the best parlor, and no attempt to systemize the work of the house."

"The family is very large," said Jack, "and of course the girls can't keep things in such apple-pie order as you do. But they are all amiable and full of fun—it's a treat to go there."

"Less fun and more work would be better for the house," said Emma. "I don't mean to say that I ever saw soiled curtains there, or rusty knives, but there seems to be no system about the work. Now I should have each girl perform certain duties on certain days—"

"In short, make herself into a patent machine to go by regular winding," interrupted Jack. "Well, Emma, perhaps it is as well to tell you now as any time that I am engaged to Fannie Hopsan, and we are to be married in May."

"Jack!"

It was all Emma could say, so shocked was she at this piece of news.

"Of course you pity me from the bottom of your heart," said Jack, "but no machine woman for me! I've had enough of systems, and I should hate Fannie if she followed me around to wipe up the tracks I made on the kitchen floor, or made a point of washing the windows at a certain hour on certain days of the week."

A GALE of wind sprang up here about noon on last Friday, which blew the dust and the leaves and everything movable along the streets in a terrible conflagration but by evening there was calm again.

ACCORDING to our experience and observation, when the snow falls this early, sleighing may be expected very soon, and of several weeks continuation. This is for the encouragement of our young folks

SOME of the Baltimore papers on Tuesday, gave currency to a report that the Baderstrom murders had been arrested, along with details that had a bloody aspect, all which has proven a wicked hoax.

The Frederick Citizen of this week in an article on their proposed "New Post-office" twice used the expression "in our midst," where is it? what does it mean? in either case the words "among us" would have been English.

PLEASE send us the news of your locality, our friends and yours, wish to know of the occurrences around you. By informing us you can convey pleasure to many, send us the items, or come & tell us. It is our business to give them expression.

We had a pleasant call on Monday from Mr. Jos. E. Simons, of near Mechanicstown. Along with his farming operations Mr. S. is conducting some experiments in Carp raising. He has a fine pond, favourably located near his home, and the fish are flourishing and have gone into winter hibernation. He contemplates building another pond in the spring. He is the man to make the undertaking successful, and awhile we shall expect to taste the qualities of the highly prized ribe.

Cyclonic.

During the gale of wind on last Friday, a carriage that stood at Mr. N. Baker's Shop had its entire top blown off, and was carried bodily into the adjoining lot by the wind.

"Runs in the Vein."

Mr. Charles B. Wilson is making handsome improvements at his residence in the west-end of the town, erewhile the place may be recognized in accord, with the above heading.

Ice.

Ice houses should now be in complete order to receive the new crop. As soon as you can get ice four or six inches thick, get it, and don't delay, you may miss entirely, if you put off for better.

Money to Loan in Sums to Suit. Notes cashed and collections made at Reasonable Rates. Checks Cashied and Accommodation Checks given free of charge. Call at the old established Loan and Broker Office of W. G. Horner, West Main street, opposite Peter Hoke's Store.

REV. H. L. BAUGHER D. D., of this place has been tendered the professorship of Greek Language and Literature in Howard University, Washington D. C. He will commence his professorial duties the beginning of January, but the family will remain in Gettysburg for the present.—Star and Sentinel.

MR. SANFORD the gardener at Mt. St. Mary's College, sent us some delicious celery for Thanksgiving, which made us doubly thankful. It was equal to the best we ever saw, and bore testimony to his skill, in all that pertains to gardening, in which profession he certainly takes a first degree.

Advent.

To-morrow, the First Sunday in Advent, marks the beginning of the Church Year. The Scripture lessons and the entire Church services are now directed to the grand Festival of Christmas, the anniversary of the birth of the World's Redeemer, hence the very appropriate term Advent.

An Age of Suspicion.

Truly, this is an age of suspicion. Nevertheless, Capt. F. M. Howe, of the steamer William Crane, Merchants' & Miners' Transportation Line between Boston and Baltimore, who suffered severely from rheumatism, caused by the exposure incident to his profession, was cured by St. Jacobs Oil. This is no suspicion.—Boston Globe.

Three Legs.

Mr. E. S. Tancy, of "Tanglewood," near this place, has a half-grown chicken that has three legs. The chick has managed to grow in its own way, Mr. T. having but recently noticed the irregularity. No doubt the extra leg may afford additional support for an uncommonly high crowing, if that is the kind.

That's What's the Matter!

"The old Man" has been as cross as a bear for a week past. No wonder that bread is heavy enough to kill an ostrich. Go right to Bussey's and get a package of "Dry Hop Yeast," it will cost you but 10 cents for one dozen cakes. Give the "Old Man" some light bread, and he will "smile again."

Washington County Jail.

The grand jury of Washington county, Md., in their recent report, called the attention of the court to the condition of the county jail, which they describe as wholly unsuited for the purpose for which it was originally erected. "It is gloomy, badly lighted and badly ventilated. It is an unfit place for the confinement of human beings."

Public School Report.

The annual report of the Public School Board of this county, for the year ended September 30th, will show the following exhibit: Receipts, $67,826.15. Amount disbursed $63,751.92. Number of teachers, white, 165, colored 23. Scholars in attendance, white, 8829, colored 1206. Number of new buildings erected during the year, 9.

A Fall.

The Venerable Wm R. Harley whilst getting ready to hang the doors on Dr. A. Auman's corn crib last week, whether from vertigo or otherwise, stepped suddenly backward, and fell from the platform to the ground, receiving injuries to his spine which have confined him to his bed, ever since the occurrence. Although he is gradually improving, "Uncle Billy" as he is familiarly called, is 75 years of age, and being a great favourite among his neighbours, his accident calls forth much sympathy. Dr. R. L. Aunan is attending him.

A Powerful Contrast.

When the soldiers of the dark ages were attacked with tetter, they could do naught but suffer. Medical science had not yet developed a cure. This labor of love and humane duty was left for Dr. Swaynes, whose Ointment for skin diseases is infallible in its results, as was the inspiring potency of Patrick Henry's memorable words, "Give me liberty or give me death."

The Fire in Frederick.

A fire occurred in Frederick last Friday afternoon, the origin of which has not been clearly defined, in the very height of the wind storm which then prevailed, in the building of Mr. John W. Whalen, occupied by his brothers in the shoe, hat and trunk business, on the first story; and in the second by the Daily and Weekly Times establishment, Messrs. Cauffman and Bouldin proprietors. By the superior excellence of the equipments and their skillful use of them, the firemen succeeded in extinguishing the flame so expeditiously and effectively that the owners of the building and of the stock before named, sustained but about $1,000 damages, covered by an insurance of $20,000. The Times establishment suffered loss from water only, about $200 in amount, and issued its weekly edition on Saturday. The City Hotel adjoins the premises injured, and, together with other very valuable property surrounding, escaped uninjured. All honour, to the Frederick firemen.

List of Letters.

The following letters remain in the Post Office, Emmitsburg, Md., Nov. 27, 1882. Persons calling will please say advertised, otherwise they may not receive them. Mrs Ida E. Hahn, Samuel Ott, Miss Maggie O. Riley, Mrs. Clara Waitz.

A Christmas Gift.

In looking around for a Christmas gift for a friend, or a relative, at home or abroad, the claims of THE EXHIBITION CHRONICLE, should be considered. It will be a present that will renew itself every week, through the year, and be a constant medium of communication between home, and those at a distance.

DR. CHRISTOPHER C. COX, A. M., M. D., LL. D., a native of Baltimore, for many years one of its most prominent citizens and an officer of the State of Maryland in several distinguished positions during the war, died at Washington, D. C., last Saturday night. He was the only Lieutenant Governor Maryland ever had, and served during Governor Swann's term. His age was about 66 years.

Town Clock.

A Town Clock is wanted in Emmitsburg. We have four church spires, so a place to locate a clock is certainly at hand. There used to be a clock, what ever became of it we don't know. Let some person or persons move in this matter of time, and we shall soon have a condition of things that will indeed be striking.

A distiller of Allegheny county, Pa. has invented a new process of distilling whiskey, which he claims will revolutionize the trade. He converts his liquor into a solid substance which, on being dissolved in water, is pronounced by judges to be equal to the best rye whiskey. The new material can be carried in the pocket, like tobacco, and in a few minutes can be transformed into the ardent liquid.

THERE is living in Cumberland a soldier who was wounded in the battle of Gettysburg, and the wound in healing up shortened his right leg, so that he became permanently lame. Recently he had his left legs hattered at the thigh, and when he recovered and was able to walk again, the limp had disappeared. The leg injured in the accident had also shortened, and his two extremities were on a par again.

HAVING received from a friend, a copy of Mrs. Virginia G. Eldred's delightful Christmas story, entitled "Grandma's Christmas Day," we take pleasure in recommending it to those who are seeking suitable and attractive presents for the holidays. The book is handsomely bound and illustrated, while the well merited reputation of the gifted authoress cannot fail to insure its popularity.

An advertisement in the Greenleaf Echo, signed by Rev. Wm. A. Stively, D. D., 58 Tenth St., Brooklyn, N. Y., requesting all descendants of the Saively family, to send to the above the names of themselves, their parents and children with dates of births, marriages and deaths, for the purpose of completing the Genealogical Record of the family, was that commenced some years ago by the late Joseph Saively.

How Long a Sermon Should Be. At the Middle Conference of the Lutheran Church held at Harper's Ferry last week, Rev. Dr. Diehl, of this city read an essay on the subject "How long should a sermon be on ordinary occasions." The conclusion reached was that its length should be determined by the occasion, the circumstances, the subject and the speaker, and that ordinarily it should not exceed 30 or 35 minutes. The object of a sermon, said the speaker, is often defeated by its excessive length.—Examiner.

On Tuesday of last week a cow belonging to Mr. John Gardner, living a couple miles east of this place, fell into a dry well about eighteen feet deep on the farm of Mr. John Dutrow, in the same neighborhood. Ropes were secured and passed around the body of the animal, and with the assistance of a number of persons in the vicinity she was drawn to the surface again, when it was found that she had not sustained the slightest injury. As soon as terra firma was regained by her, she went to grazing, as though nothing unusual had happened.—Valley Reg later.

DR. M. E. CASS, a real or fictitious personage, as the case may be, of Jersey City, a few weeks ago, sent us an advertisement, for publication, entitled "Consumption Cured," on which he contracted to pay a stipulated price in advance for one year, on receipt of paper containing the ad. As he has failed to comply with the terms, or give any explanation in the matter, it is evident, from the number of our exchanges who are running the ad, that he adopted the plan to get a large amount of work without paying for it. We have shut down on the scheme, with regrets for having noticed it at all.

MALARIA, Chills and Fever, and bilious attacks positively cured with Emory's Standard Cure Pills—an infallible remedy; never fail to cure the most obstinate, long-standing cases where Quinine and all other remedies had failed.—They are prepared expressly for malarial sections, in double boxes, two kinds of Pills, containing a strong cathartic and a chill breaker, sugar-coated; contain no Quinine or Mercury, causing no griping or purging; they are mild and efficient, certain in their action and harmless in all cases; they effectually cleanse the system, and give new life and tone to the body. As a household remedy they are unequalled. For Liver Complaint their equal is not known; or a box will have a wonderful effect on the worst case. They are used and prescribed by Physicians, and sold by Druggists everywhere, or sent by mail, 25 and 50 cent boxes. Emory's Little Cathartic Pills, best ever made, only 15 Cents.—Standard Cure Co., 114 Nassau Street, New York. apr 22-8m

THANKSGIVING DAY was observed in this place by a united service on the part of the Protestant Denominations. Rev. Wm. Shannon preached an interesting and edifying sermon on the text: "Let the people praise Thee, O God: let all the people praise Thee," in the Reformed Church. The attendance was good, but many remained away by reason of the roughness of the wind. The usual services were held in St. Joseph's Catholic Church. The stores were mostly closed and the town presented a holiday appearance, and quiet and good order throughout. Festivities here and there were held in a sociable way, according to personal surroundings.

In the Whole History of Medicine

No preparation has ever performed such marvellous cures, or maintained so high a reputation, as Dr. A. J. S. Gray's Eucoronal, which is recognized as the world's remedy for all diseases of the throat and lungs. Its long-continued series of wonderful cures in all climates has made it universally known as a safe and reliable agent to employ. Against ordinary colds, which are the forerunners of more serious disorders, it acts speedily and surely, always relieving suffering, and often saving life. The protection it affords, by its timely use in throat and chest disorders, makes it an invaluable remedy to be kept always on hand in every home. No person can afford to be without it, and those who have once used it never will. From their knowledge of its composition and operation, physicians use the EUCORONAL extensively in their practice, and clergymen recommend it. It is absolutely certain in its action, and will always cure where cures are possible.

Hymenial.

The event of this week was the marriage of Mr. Oscar D. Fraley to Miss Clara M. Hoke on Wednesday. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. E. J. Wolfe at Gettysburg, and in the evening a reception was held at the residence of the bride's parents in this place, where a sumptuous entertainment, was provided for the numerous callers. The wedding presents were valuable, and marked the good taste of the donors by their general character of usefulness. Of the supply we note a large chromo, wall-pocket, china tea-set and pitcher, a glass pitcher, cherry stand, majolica fruitstand, silver caster, pitcher, cake-basket, nickel-stand, glass fruit-dish and set, napkins towels, patent sad-irons, parlor lamp, silver knives, forks and spoons and gravy spoon, glass dishes, salt cellars, goblets, tin-ware, table cloths, set of furniture, cane-seat chairs, one tea plate, a cook stove, clock and sewing-machine. Later in the evening, the Band of which Mr. Fraley is Leader, gave a serenade, and everything was satisfactorily conducted throughout, to the delight of all concerned.

A Heavy Tumble and Its Outcome.

In the evening of the 22d ult., Messrs Motter Maxell & Co., express agents at this place were delivering the large safe, weighing between 3000 and 4000 lbs. for the Banking House of Annan Horner & Co., when they came very high having a serious accident. Having brought the safe in front of the Banking House, they proceeded to unload it from the wagon, but the unusual weight proved too much for the appliances at hand, and the momentum caused the safe to slide away from all hands; it struck the curbstone with a heavy thud, and keeled over square on its front, crushing the handle to atoms; fortunately the "Combination lock" was unharmed, and excepting some defacements of the fine painting, was otherwise intact. Quite a large gathering, assembled sometime after the above mentioned occurrence, and put the safe in its position for use, with the well merited thanks of the Expressmen as well as of the Banking firm, for the aid so timely being given. One or two persons came near being caught under the safe in its fall. The crushed handle has been replaced by a new one, and the energetic firm being now supplied with all the requisites for receiving and safe-keeping of money, &c., are progressing in their business very satisfactorily, and advantageously to the community, which hitherto has had to transact its banking business through distant agencies.

Periodicals.

The Eclectic Magazine for December is one of the best of the entire year. The vivid sea-story, "The Lady Maud," is brought to a conclusion, and every variety of taste will find something to suit it in the varied and entertaining contents of this number. "Comets," by Richard A. Proctor; "Songs without Words," a curious study in natural history, by Dr. Andrew Wilson; "Dreams," by Walter Herries Pollock; "A Glimpse of the United States"; "The Work of Rivers"; "Moslem Pirates in the Mediterranean"; "Atheistic Scientists," by John Stuart Blackie; "A Mystery of the Pacific"; "George Eliot's Children," by Annie Matheson; "A Glimpse of Mexico," by F. Francis; "No Fiction," a strange semi-supernatural story said to be true, &c. together with Literary Notes, Science Art and Miscellany. Published by E. R. Pelton, 25 Bond St., N. Y. Terms $5.00 a year; single copy 45 cents.

The Century Magazine for December is full equal to the maintenance of the reputation this periodical has so fully established. The contents and embellishments being varied, attractive and of the very best in the line of literature they represent. The portrait of Chief Justice Marshall, on the opening page, is a fitting prelude to the description of "The Supreme Court of the United States," which follows: "The Led-Horse Claim" and "Through one Administration" are continued, and the other contents represent Science, Art, Literature and Morals, making altogether a collection that must claim the attention of every intelligent reader. Terms $4 a year. The Century Co., Union Square, N. Y.

The American Agriculturist for December is very attractive and so full of just such practical hints, directions and suggestions as to make it indispensable to those living in the country. Published by Orange Judd Co., Broadway, N. Y.

The Annual Report of the Board of County School Commissioners appears in the Frederick papers this week, dated Nov. 30th we are at a loss to understand why, they should monopolize the work, seeing it concerns all persons everywhere.

It is about time that the Country papers should move on the general question of a body. Let all the people be enlightened on all their affairs. We call on the Valley Register to head the column with its heaviest artillery in front. The Banner and the Clarion will render effective support, and we shall protect the rear. Every body knows we cannot run—and the entire situation would lack inspiration, from any leadership on our part.

Weather Notes.

About 10 o'clock, on last Sunday morning, the first snow flakes of the season descended here, irregularly, and at intervals, until towards one o'clock, when the weaver of earth's spotless carpet, got to work in earnest, and vigorously did he ply his treadles and shift his shuttles, hither and thither in blinding confusion, and flow the flakes, crossing and recrossing each other, yet true to the law of gravitation, each one seemed intent on being first to reach the ground. The snowing lasted for about two hours, and then it lay for universal admiration, in unspilled whiteness over every external object about an inch in depth. In the evening a calm ensued, which was followed on Monday, with a bright, clear, crisp and invigorating air, the beginning of winter. Tuesday was cloudy a first installment of the chilling depression which is the general drawback to our winter weather; in the evening snow again fell deep enough for rabbit tracking, and if the ground had been frozen, for sleighing. Wednesday was pleasant on the whole, though cloudy, with occasional snowing. Thursday came in bright and clear, with the N. W. wind moderating before noon and the remainder of the day was seasonably pleasant, heightened in a degree by the brilliancy of the firmament at night, when every star seemed to shine with unwonted lustre. To-day (Friday) started cold, but has gradually warmed to the degree that makes out-door exercise highly pleasurable.

MARRIED.

FRALEY—HOKE.—On Wednesday November 29th 1882 in Gettysburg, by Rev. E. J. Wolfe, Mr. Oscar D. Fraley to Miss Clara M. Hoke, daughter of Mr. Peter Hoke, all of this place.

The printers were not forgotten on this occasion, and return many thanks, for the liberal supply of cake, with which they were regaled, and wish the happy couple a bright and prosperous future.

PRIVATE SALE

OF VALUABLE REAL ESTATE. THE subscriber offers at private sale, that Valuable Farm, known as "Loretto" of which the late Rev. Dr. John McCloskey, died, seized, and possessed. The farm is situated near Mt. St. Mary's College, Emmitsburg, Md., and borders on the Furnpike road on the one side, and on the Mountain road on the other, and contains more or less, a part of which is covered with three or four acres of valuable Timber Land, all under good fencing, and is also improved with a small TWO-STORY a spring of good water on the premises, also about 74 ACRES OF TIMBER LAND, on the side of the Mountain, and but a few hundred yards from the farm, and very accessible, which will be sold entire, or in lots to suit purchasers, to whom a deed or deeds will be given by the heirs or their attorney.

There is a mortgage of $2,000 on said lands, $1,000 of which can remain, provided, interest be paid promptly. The remainder of the purchase money to be paid in installments, of one half on the day of sale, and on the balance a credit of two months will be given on note, with interest from date with approved security.

The location of the above property makes it a very desirable one, the markets at times giving better prices than those of the city, for poultry, butter, eggs and early vegetables. For further particulars enquire of— ANTHONY McBRIDE, Agent. nov 4-82

REAL ENGLISH PLUM PUDDING.—Three pounds of stoned raisins, one pound of currants, one pound of finely chopped suet, two quarts of flour, or one quart of flour and one quart of bread crumbs, four eggs, one coffee cup of sugar, one grated nutmeg, one teaspoonful of cinnamon, half a teaspoonful of mace, one tablespoonful of salt, and milk enough to moisten the whole so it will adhere, mix thoroughly and divide in two parts and tie in strong pudding cloths, allowing a little room for the swelling of the fruit, (I use the heaviest unbleached cotton cloth for my pudding cloths,) put in large kettles with plenty of boiling water adding more as it boils away. When the pudding is done dip it in cold water for a moment, then take from the cloth. If you do not use the cold water, let it come to a boil, boil for one and one-half hours, and when served it will be as good as the first one.
