THE BOYS.
There come the boys—Oh! dear, the noise;
The whole house feels the racket;
Behold the knee of Christie's pants,
And weep o'er Bertie's Jacket.

But never mind, if eyes keep bright,
And limbs grow straight and limber;
We'd rather lose the tree's whole bark
Than find unsoiled the timber.

Now hear the tops and marbles roll;
The floors—Oh! woe betide them;
And I must watch the banisters,
For I know the boys who ride them.

Look well as you descend the stairs;
I often find them haunted
By ghostly boys that make no noise,
Just when their noise is wanted.

The very chairs are tied in pairs,
And made to prance and caper;
What swords are whittled out of sticks;
What brave lists made of paper.

The dinner bell peals loud and well
To tell the milkman's coming,
And then the rush of "steam-car trains"
Sets all our ears a-buzzing.

How oft I say: "What shall I do
To keep these children quiet?"
If I could find a good receipt
I certainly should try it.

What to do with these wild boys,
And all their din and chatter,
Is really quite a grave affair—
No laughing, trifling matter.

"Boys will be boys"—but not for long;
Ah! could we hear about us
This thought; how very soon our boys
Will learn to do without us.

How soon, full-grown and deep-voiced men
Will gravely call us "Mother,"
Or we be stretching empty hands
From this world to the other.

More gently should we chide the noise,
And when night quells the racket,
Stitch in but loving thoughts and prayer,
While mending pants and jacket.

"THE PIECE THAT WAS LOST."

It was a midsummer morning,
The grass was waiting for the scythe;
but after breakfast Silas Rogers took down the old Bible that had been his mother's daily companion for eighty years, and he sat reverently down to worship. The reading was that tender lesson of the wandering sheep, and the lost piece of silver, and ended with the heavenly rejoicing "over one sinner that repenteth," and then, after an earnest though homely prayer, they were ready for their work. Abner, the hired man, and Reuben, the boy, as they started out of the house, almost stumbled over a woman sitting in the doorway absorbed in thought. Silas looked at her, but did not stay to question her. And when they were gone she rose abruptly and said, "Will you give me some breakfast?"

Mrs. Rogers looked at her. She saw a tall and not uncouthly woman of about thirty, but with something undefinably evil about her face. The hard mouth, the bold defiant eyes repelled her, yet it seemed as if at any instant they might break into scornful tears.

"Who are you?" asked the good wife, coming nearer, with a pan of bread in her hand. Again the face lightened and darkened, grew hard and yielding, with the sudden declaration:

"I am the piece that was lost!"

Martha Rogers had not a particle of poetry in her nature, but she had the most profound reverence for the Scripture, therefore the words both puzzled and shocked her. But she was not the woman to refuse food to the hungry, so she placed food upon the table, and motioned the woman to a chair, saying, "Sit up and eat."

All the time that the woman was eating, and she did not hasten, her eyes followed the mistress and Hetty, the bright young daughter, until Martha Rogers grew nervous and sent Hetty to "red up the chambers."

As soon as she was gone the woman turned abruptly from her breakfast.

"Will you give me work to do?" she demanded rather than asked.

"Who are you?" asked Mrs. Rogers again, simply to gain time.

"I thought you knew. I am Moll Pritchett; I have turned me out of my house; burned it over my head," and her eyes grew lurid.

"What can you do?" asked Mrs. Rogers.

"Anything that a woman can do, or a man. I can work in the field with the best of them; I have done it many a time; but I should like to do what—to be like other women."

"Are you a good woman?"
The question came straight and strong, without any faltering. She had heard of this Moll Pritchett, a woman who lived alone in an old tumble-down hut below the sawmill, and won a meager living by weaving rag carpets, picking berries for sale, and it was suspected, in less reputable ways; but Martha Rogers took no stock in idle rumors. If she had not divine compassion, she had something very like divine justice, which is altogether a sweeter thing in its remembering of our frame than the tender mercies of the wicked."

The woman looked at her curiously. At first with a mocking smile, then with a sullen, and at last with a defiant expression.

"Is it likely?" she said fiercely.

"A good woman! How should I be a good woman? I tell you I'm the piece that was lost, and nobody ever looked for me. If I was a good woman do you suppose I should be where I be—only twenty eight years old, well and hearty, and every doc in the world shut in my face? I tell you the man that wrote the story didn't know women; they don't hunt for the piece that's lost; they just let it go. There's enough on 'em that don't get lost."

Poor Martha Rogers was sorely perplexed, all the more her way had lain so smooth and plain before her that she might have walked in it blindfolded. If this was a lost piece of silver, it was not she who lost it; but what if it were the Easter's precious to her heart, and a careless hand dropped it, and left it to lie in the dust? And what if He bade her seek it, and find it for Him? Should she dare refuse? On this very day, when she needed so surely the help which she had so looked for in vain, had not this woman been sent to her very door, and was it not a plain leading of Providence? It is a blessed thing for us that we are usually driven to act first and theorize afterwards, even thought sometimes brings repentance. The bread was ready for the oven, and the wood-box was empty.

"You may fetch in some wood," said Martha Rodgers, and the woman promptly obeyed, filling the box with one load of her sinewy arms, and then stood humbly waiting. Hetty came into the kitchen and began to clear the table, but her mother said:

"Go up stairs and fetch a big apron and one of our sweeping caps, and then you may get at your sewing and see if you can finish up your dress."

Away went Hetty, her light heart bounding with the unexpected release; and the mother turned again to the woman, furnished her with a coarse towel, and sent her to the wash-house for a thorough purification. Half an hour afterwards, with her hair hidden in the muslin cap, her whole figure enveloped in the clean calico apron, a comely woman was silently engaged in household tasks, doing her work with such rapid skill, that the critical housewife drew a sigh of relief.

"There's a han'ful of towels and coarse clothes left from the ironing; you might put the irons on, Mary, and smooth 'em out."

The woman turned a startled face upon her, and then went quickly for the clothes but something—was it a tear?—rolled down the swarthy cheeks, mingled with the bright drops she sprinkled over them. When had she ever been called Mary? When had she ever heard anything but Moll? Not since away among New Hampshire hills a pale woman had laid her hand upon the tangled curls of her little daughter, and prayed that from the strange world to which she was speeding she might be allowed to watch over these wayward feet lest they should go astray. Had she watched? Did she know? Moll hoped not; it made her shudder to think of it. What would heaven be worth if she could see and know? and yet, what did she know about the joy in heaven over one sinner that repenteth? If there was joy it must be that they were carried there.

Silas Rogers listened to the day's story, as he sat mending a bit of harness with clumsy fingers, and among his other thoughts grasped the idea that his wife had secured a valuable and much needed helper.

"It seems a risk to run," said Martha, anxiously; "and I don't know but it's presumptuous; there's Hetty, and there's Reuben—"

"And there's the Lord," said Silas, stopping to open his knife.

"Yes," said Martha, with a little start, "and I can't quite get rid of what she said about 'the piece that was lost,' though to be sure, the woman that lost it ought to hunt it."

"She never does; folks are losing things for somebody else to find; 'taint many of them can say, 'those that thou hast given me I kept,' right straight along."

"But if you lose your own piece looking after other folk's—"

"Well, there's risks, as you say, but I'd rather take a risk for the Lord than agin Him."

Martha Rogers took the risk for the Lord, and He abundantly justified and rewarded her faith. For the piece that was lost becomes my piece to the heart that finds it agin in the Master's hand; and locking the story of the wanderer in her own breast, it was only to the angels that she said, "Rejoice with me."

And when, years afterward, the woman herself said before the committee of the Church, "I am a woman over whom there is great joy in heaven," there were not wanting those who thought she was presumptuously claiming to be a saint.—Emily H. Miller.

The Nubian Desert.

I soon fell into a regular routine of travel, which, during all my later experience of the desert, never became monotonous. I rose at dawn every morning, bathed my eyes with a handful of the precious water, and drank a cup of coffee. After the tent had been struck and the camels laden I walked ahead for two hours, often so far in advance that I lost sight and hearing of the caravan. I found an unpeakable fascination in the sublime solitude of the desert. I often beheld the sun rise when, within the wide ring of the horizon, there was no other living creature to be seen. He came up like a god, in awful glory, and it would have been a natural act had I cast myself upon the sand and worshipped him. The sudden change in the coloring of the landscape, on his appearance—the lighting up of the dull sand into a warm, golden hue, and the tints of the purple and violet on the distant porphyry hills—was a morning miracle, which I never beheld without awe. The richness of this coloring made the desert beautiful; it was too brilliant for desolation. The scenery, so far from depressing, inspired and exhilarated me. I never felt the sensation of physical health and strength in such perfection, and was ready to slout from morning till night from the overflowing of happy spirits. The air is an elixir of life, as sweet and pure and refreshing as that which the first man breathed on the morning of the creation. You inhale the unadulterated elements of the atmosphere, for there are no exhalations from moist earth, vegetable matter, or the smoke and steams which arise from the abodes of men, to stain its purity. This air, even more than its silence and solitude, is the secret of one's attachment to the desert. It is a beautiful illustration of the compensating care of that Providence which leaves none of the waste places of the earth without some atoning glory. Where all the pleasant aspects of nature are wanting—where there is no green thing, no fount for the thirsty lip, scarcely the shadow of a rock to shield the wanderer in the blazing noon—God has breathed upon the wilderness his sweetest and tenderest breath, giving clearness to the eye, strength to the frame and joyous exhilaration to the spirits.—Bayard Taylor.

FURSTENFIELD, in Germany, boasts of the oldest tree in the country. It is a huge linden, believed to be one thousand years old, and growing at the back of the village church, in the midst of the tombs of two centuries. Its trunk is fully fifteen feet in diameter, and its twisted branches stretch out far and wide, seemingly covering the entire enclosure. It is still growing.

An Embarrassed Undertaker.

Early one morning an individual walked into a down town undertaker's office, remarked on the weather, spoke of the Fair, and seemed to be going away without making an errand, when he suddenly turned and said:

"My old woman died last night, and I'm thinking some of buying a coffin and having her buried. Got time to figger a little?"

He said he lived in Springwells, and the undertaker "figgured." The man wanted a plain coffin and the services of the undertaker to make things go right. Two of the neighbors had teams and they would be enough.

"This is business as well as grief," observed the man as they figgured. "Of course I want a decent coffin, but nothing gaudy. I want a fair funeral, but no scollops. Put everything right down on the cash basis, and your money will be ready as soon as the procession moves."

The undertaker discounted until he could go no further and it was agreed that he should drive down with the coffin at 2 o'clock.

"Two o'clock or thereabouts," said the man as he left. "There's no great rush, being the weather is bad. Any time from 2 to 3 will do. There's no children to wash and comb, and the neighbors have begun to put on clean shirts before this."

Soon after 2 o'clock the undertaker reached the house. The vehicle containing the coffin was being backed up to the gate when the man came out and said:

"Wait a minute, Kurnel. Come in here."

They entered the house, and propped up in bed and vigorously sipping soup was a woman.

"That's her," said the man, "I thought she was as dead as a crow bar when I left home, but I'll be hanged if she didn't come to! The doctor says it was a case of suspended agitation."

The Undertaker sighed and sat down.

"I know just how you feel about it," continued the man. "Fact is, I'm rather disappointed, but what can we do? It's kinder embarrassing for you to drive up here with a coffin and find the victim eating mutton soup, but sich is life. Them fellers across the road are tickling and laughing at the box you are in, but don't blame me. I come home with all plans laid, and she smashed them to slivers."

"How do you feel?" asked the undertaker of the woman.

"Bully!" she replied, as she licked the spoon. "You'n Caleb won't hold no funeral on me just yet!"

"Don't mind her," said her husband, in soothing tones.

"She was allus kinder singular, and I assure you she wouldn't hurt your feelings for a thousand dollars. I'm awful sorry about this, for I know how cheap you feel. I dasn't kill her, you know?"

"No."

"Course not, but when she goes for good the job's yours, and you can count on it."

The undertaker mounted his vehicle and started off, and when he was a quarter of a mile away the man called him:

"I know how you feel, but you must brace up! The next time will fetch her, sure pop."—Detroit Free Press.

Incident of the War.

Artemus Ward once said he "would love to die for his country," but, if it was all the same to the country, he would like to die of old age." An amusing anecdote, which shows that Artemus' philosophy is widely entertained, is told by a writer in the Philadelphia Times.

It was told by one of the boys who were present at the battle of Murfreesboro', Tenn.

When the lines of both armies were advancing to the charge, a rabbit, or more properly a hare, was aroused from his quiet seclusion immediately in front of the Confederate line, and went bounding away to the security of the hills, making at each jump a large exhibit of white buttocks.

In the line there was a great, raw-boned North Georgian, who was celebrated for his indomitable courage and reckless bravery.

He had the reputation of being willing to fight anything, and was supposed not to know the meaning of fear; but his apostrophe to the vanishing rabbit not only put the matter in a different light, but caused a burst of laughter from all who heard it. He said:

"Go it, little cotton-tail! Go it while you've a chance. I'd run, too, if I didn't have any more reputation at stake than you've got!"

Important, if True.

Little Emma Butt and Franky Elmore were making a doll baby bed of leaves in the former's front yard when the following important conversation occurred:

"Which would you sooner be, Franky, when you get married, a man or a woman?"

"I'd sooner be a man, 'cause pap he's a man, and he can go out when he pleases, and go a-huntin' and do most anything. Which would you sooner be, Emmy?"

"I'd sooner be a woman, 'cause my ma she's a woman, and she can go out, too, when she wants to, and kin git sich fine close and can boss pa and make him do just what she wants to."

"I'll bet your muver can't boss my pap," said Franky, straightening up.

"Yes, she kin, for my pa is a bigger man than your pa."

"No, she can't, never. My muver is most twice as big as your muver, and she can't do it."—Kentucky State Journal.

Judge Black's Room.

The old home of Judge Black, near York, Pa., says the Lancaster Intelligencer, is kept just as he left it. In the library even the lead pencil with which he was accustomed to write with his left hand, lies on the table just as he laid them down, no change being made in the furniture except that a picture of the judge has been put on the wall, and a bust, as yet only in plaster, has been placed on a temporary pedestal. The last book he looked into was Curtis' "Life of Buchanan," and the rough edges of the leaves, which he tore apart by running his thumb through them—for he never would use a paper cutter—show how much of it he read. He had not opened that part which related to himself at all. The chapter which he had hastily torn open was that headed: "Death of Mr. Buchanan. His Character as a Statesman, a Man and a Christian."

THE teacher undertook to convey to her pupils an idea of the use of the hyphen. She wrote on the blackboard, "Bird-nest," and pointing to the hyphen, asked the school, "What is that for?" After a short pause, a young son of the Emerald Isle piped out:—"Plaze ma'am, for the bird to roost on!"

RAILWAYS are aristocratic. They teach a man to know his station and to stop there. They are eminently social, too, being held together by many ties.

MRS. M. E. RAFFLE, 129 N. Broadway, Baltimore, Md., says: "Brown's Iron Bitters gave me strength and a good appetite."

THE cellars under Philadelphia's new city hall are the largest in America, their area being four and a half acres.

EMMITSBURG, MD.:

SATURDAY, MAY 17, 1884.

THE CHOLERA REPORTS.

There is some apprehension that Europe will have a visit from cholera this season and the subject is considerably discussed in the foreign papers.

In parts of India cholera is raging with violence, and it is also present in China, and occasionally deaths are reported from Egypt.

At all events the authorities in various places, aroused by the newspapers, are taking precautions.

Apprehension may be quite without reason, but there is certainly no harm in being prepared.

The German commission sent to Egypt to study cholera arrived home some time ago.

By the death of Dr. Gross, of Philadelphia, medical science sustains a heavy loss.

A FINANCIAL PANIC.

Two Banks and several Brokers suspended business in New York on Wednesday and the wildest excitement ensued which affected all Wall street.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

[From our Regular Correspondent.]

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 13, 1884.

I suppose Mr. Arthur might as well be off junketing, or hobnobbing with his New York boon companions, as to be here where nobody, not even Congress, has any use for him.

While the politicians have carefully shelved him, because they dared not trust him, they seem to be vying with each other in giving him a character for the satisfaction of future employes.

The unveiling of the statue of Chief Justice Marshall, last Saturday, was a rather tame affair, although no more so than the statue itself, which is simply an addition to the already large stock of cheap bronzes and hybrid marble worked into all possible styles of grotesquery that confront us all over the city.

The German commission sent to Egypt to study cholera arrived home some time ago.

By the death of Dr. Gross, of Philadelphia, medical science sustains a heavy loss.

The remains of the late Dr. Samuel D. Gross, of Philadelphia, were taken to the Lemoine Crematory at eleven o'clock this morning.

Two Banks and several Brokers suspended business in New York on Wednesday and the wildest excitement ensued which affected all Wall street.

tegrity was simply boundless. Their operations seem to have been confined to fleecing the very friends whose money had given them a start, and among them was a St. Louis widow who advanced $10,000 which was returned to her with $40,000 more, the proceeds of its investment for nine months.

A STOCK GAMBLER'S PANIC.

Yesterday's panic in Wall street was emphatically a panic among stock gamblers and nothing else.

It did not proceed from a withdrawal of credits in mercantile circles. It began, culminated, and ended in stock speculation, and went no further.

As The Sun has steadily pointed out for two or three years past, the stocks gambled in by Wall street operators have been selling far above their intrinsic values, and a collapse sooner or later was inevitable.

The only serious mischief which is likely to follow this brief panic is a distrust of all banks, arising from a few failures among them which are plainly traceable to dishonesty, or, to use the mildest language, gross imprudence on the part of their officers.

EARTHQUAKES.

The number of shocks in an earthquake varies indefinitely, as does the length of intervals between them.

THE STATUE OF GEN. MUHL ENBERG.

The statue of F. A. Muhlenberg, who went from the pulpit to the Revolutionary Army, attained the rank of Brigadier General, and was afterwards the first Speaker of the House of Representatives, has reached Washington.

CHARLES O'CONNOR the great Lawyer, died at his residence, Nantucket, Mass., on Tuesday afternoon aged 81 years.

Narrow Escape. Last Friday afternoon, Mrs. H. S. Stephens and little daughter Alma, of this place, met with an accident which might have resulted fatally. They had been spending the day at the residence of Mr. J. D. Miller, near town, and when on their way home, while crossing the foot-log over the stream near Mr. Miller's house, little Alma got her foot fast in a hole in the log, and while Mrs. Stephens was endeavoring to extricate it, both she and Alma fell off the log into the stream ten feet below. The water at this point is only about two feet deep, but the bed of the stream is very rocky, and consequently their escape from serious injury was narrow. As it was, Mrs. S. was severely bruised on the back and side.—Valley Register.

On a Tour of Inspection. Last week Messrs. John W. Ramsburg, Geo. W. Etzler, Wm. H. Lakin, James U. Lawson, our County Commissioners, visited various portions of the county inspecting sites for new school houses and new bridges. There are petitions before the board asking the erection of twenty new school houses and for the construction of nearly as many new bridges. Two of the bridges asked for are to span the Monocacy, one at Reich's ford and the other in the vicinity of Greenfield Mills. It is the purpose of the Commissioners, we understand, to select such sites for school houses and bridges, where, in their opinion, the necessity is greatest, as they are unable to grant the request of all the petitions.—Exam Problem Solved. Sheriff Grove and the Board of Correction and Charities were yesterday afternoon before the County Commissioners and came to terms as regards the salaries of the sheriff, his deputies and other expenses. Sheriff Grove, through his counsel, Messrs. John C. Motter and Wm. P. Maulsby, Jr., made a proposition which was accepted by the Board. The sheriff is to receive $3,000 per annum, his office deputy $1,200, riding deputy $800, county deputies $300, janitor at the court house $25, for telephone $50, for counsel fees $100, warden and clerk $800, for books, stationery and postage $75, and for keeping two horses $300. The Board of Correction and Charities will furnish provisions and clothing for the prisoners. The Board was represented by Hon. Milton G. Urner and Capt. James McSherry.—Morning Call of Tuesday.

Our Mountain Resorts. From present indications this season promises to be an exceptionally prosperous one for the landlords on the South Mountain. At the Blue Mountain House from 500 to 700 visitors will be comfortably accommodated, and judging from the rush now being made for rooms the hotel will be taxed to its utmost capacity, and no doubt numbers will be turned away for the want of accommodations. At Clermont and Monterey, also, a similar rush is made for accommodations and these pleasant hotels promise to be swarmed with gay city folks. At Monterey a number of handsome cottages are being erected, and it is expected before the season is over it will present the appearance of a thriving young village. South Mountain is becoming famous as a summer resort, and we will be surprised ere many years roll by, to see it thronged with handsome hotels and private residences.—Keystone Gazette.

Capture of an Alligator. Yesterday morning, whilst George Awall and P. A. Gorsuch were engaged in building a culvert across a little stream that flows through the premises of Col. Wm. A. McKelip, this city, they saw a queer looking object in the water and caught it. To their surprise it proved to be an alligator, eleven inches long. The appearance of such a creature in this section, except in captivity, caused some unfamiliar with them to question that it was an alligator, but there is no room to doubt it. How it got in this section is also a query, but it undoubtedly was one that had been brought to this county from Florida by recent visitors, and escaped.

The capture gave rise to many jokes. Some said it was the first product of a Parisian sewer; others said that it was evidence that Westminster was a seaport town; others said he came to view the street improvements.—Westminster Advocate.

From the Maryland Union of last week. John H. Williams, Esq., president of the Frederick County National Bank, and family, have removed to their delightful summer residence at Fairview.

On Tuesday morning David H. Lease was before Justice Turner on a charge of beating his wife. Lease was held in $200 bail for his appearance before court.

On Monday articles of incorporation were filed in the Clerk of the Court's office for the Reliance Mutual Live Stock Insurance Company of Emmitsburg, this county. The incorporators are C. T. Zacharias, I. M. Fisher, John G. Hess, Theodore L. Nail, M. J. Eichelberger and J. T. Bussey. The principal office will be in Emmitsburg.

Last Thursday Mr. William Single, an aged and respected citizen of Woodsboro, died at the advanced age of 79 years, after an illness of some time. Mr. Single was born in Pennsylvania, but many years ago came to Frederick county, and resided in the vicinity of Woodsboro, being a farmer by vocation until advancing years compelled him to relinquish active life. He leaves a wife and a number of children, all of whom are married. His funeral took place last Saturday morning and was largely attended. Rev. D. M. Lamotte, pastor of the Lutheran church, officiated, and interment was made in the Woodsboro cemetery.

SHILOH'S Catarrh Remedy—a positive cure for Catarrh, Diphtheria and Canker Mouth. Sold by J. A. Elder.

Another Game of Base Ball. The third championship game was played last Thursday, and resulted in favor of the Reveres. The Presidents had their pony battery in the field. The most noticeable features of the game were two fly catches by McGovern and a double play of Nodder. Rooney's pitching was first class, while Doyle made a poor showing in the box. He redeemed himself by the way which he used the bat, leading both sides. Several neat stops by McGarity are worthy of notice. Kelly's catching was very fine, considering this was his first time behind the bat. The score stood, Reveres 12, Presidents 6. We regret not having space to publish it in full.

Runs Earned, Reveres 3, Presidents 1; Two-base hits, Echeverria, Kelly, Doyle; Left on bases, Reveres 9, Presidents 8; Double plays, McGovern and Nodder, Nodder, Kelly and Savage; Struck out, Reveres 7, Presidents 3; Base on Balls, Reveres 5; Passed Balls, Campbell 1, Kelly 3; Wild Pitches, Doyle 2; Balls called, on Rooney 51, on Doyle 114; Strikes called, on Rooney 10, on Doyle 15. Time of game, 2 hours and 10 minutes. Umpire, P. J. Brady.

A Fatal Accident to a Little Girl. WESTMINSTER, MD., May 12.—On Saturday evening a sad accident occurred from the careless handling of coal oil, which resulted fatally at 3 o'clock Sunday morning. The victim, Emma, daughter of Mrs. H. Grumbein, of this city, aged 8 years, was with her mother on the balcony of the house and started to carry some flowers to a neighbor. A moment later the mother, hearing the screams of the child, hurried to the kitchen, where she found her enveloped in flames. She tried to smother the flames with a piece of rag carpet, but it was too heavy to wrap closely, and she turned to get a bucket of water to dash over her. The child ran to the front of the house, threw up the window and screamed for help. Several gentlemen ran over and smothered the flames with their coats, but too late to save the child from fatal injuries, as her clothing was entirely burned off her, and her face terribly scorched. Drs. Herring, Swaw, Fringer and Bott were called in and relieved as much as possible the sufferings of the child, until death came to her release. The child was conscious nearly all the time, and insisted that it was an accident, but from her statement it is safe to surmise that she was attempting to hurry the fire with coal oil when the can exploded and the burning oil saturated her clothing. The child was alone at the time the accident occurred. Her funeral took place this morning.—The Day.

Base Ball Notes. The second game for the championship of Mt. St. Mary's College took place last Saturday afternoon on the College ball grounds. The contesting nines were the Reveres and Presidents. There was a decided improvement in the fielding of both clubs, while the Reveres wielded the bat with more success than in the last game. The game was a close one till the last innings, when the Reveres took a batting streak, making seven base hits off Kelly's pitching, which with the aid of a few costly errors, yielded nine runs, thereby giving them the game. The feature of the day was the fielding of Head, who made three one hand catches of difficult flies, and accepted every chance offered. McCarty, despite the large number of passed balls charged to him, played a fine game and led his side at the bat. Kelly pitched but fairly, and was at times exceedingly wild. For the Reveres the playing and pitching of Rooney was the most noticeable feature; he was well supported by Campbell. The errors of the latter were mostly due to wild throws. This was the first appearance of the Reveres in their new suits, and the manner in which they played redounds to their success. The batting of the nine was terrific. Echeverria lead both sides at the bat, being closely followed by Donlan, Nodder and Rooney. The umpiring was the best on the grounds this year. The following is the score:

A Nasal Injector free with each bottle of Shiloh's Catarrh Remedy. Price 50 cents. Sold by J. A. Elder.

Mr. JOSEPH S. GRAY, engineer, last week completed a survey connecting the H. J. & Get. railroad with the Round Top branch of the Get. & Har. road. The present bed of the former road, from the passenger depot on Carlisle street to Washington street, is to be straightened and relaid with steel rails. The curve to connect with the Round Top branch starts a short distance beyond Stevens' run, crossing the Chambersburg pike close to the bed of the Get. & Har. road, connecting with the latter between the Springs avenue and the pike.

The work on the Round Top branch is being pushed forward rapidly, a good part of the line being already graded. But the work, as the line approaches the terminus east of Round Top, is heavy, encountering large masses of granite rock that must be removed by blasting. Col. Bush has a steam drill at work and will use dynamite as well as powder to cut his way through the rock.—Star and Sentinel.

Every bottle guaranteed. Price 25 cents. Sold by all medicine dealers. Victor Remedies Co., M'f'rs & Prop's, FREDERICK, MD.

Various Causes.—Advancing years, care sickness, disposition, and hereditary predisposition—all operate to thin the hair gray, and either of them inclines it to shed prematurely. AYER'S HAIR VIGOR will restore faded or gray, light or red hair to a rich brown or deep black, as may be desired. It softens and cleanses the scalp, giving it a healthy action. It removes and cures dandruff and humors. By its use falling hair is checked, and a new growth will be produced in all cases where the follicles are not destroyed or the glands decayed. Its effects are beautifully shown on brassy, weak, or sickly hair, on which a few applications will produce the gloss and freshness of youth. Harmless and sure in its results, it is incomparable as a dressing, and is especially valued for the soft lustre and richness of tone it imparts. AYER'S HAIR VIGOR is colorless; contains neither oil nor dye; and will not soil or color white cambric; yet it lasts long on the hair, and keeps it fresh and vigorous, imparting an agreeable perfume. For sale by all druggists.

Ma. JOSEPH S. GRAY, engineer, last week completed a survey connecting the H. J. & Get. railroad with the Round Top branch of the Get. & Har. road. The present bed of the former road, from the passenger depot on Carlisle street to Washington street, is to be straightened and relaid with steel rails. The curve to connect with the Round Top branch starts a short distance beyond Stevens' run, crossing the Chambersburg pike close to the bed of the Get. & Har. road, connecting with the latter between the Springs avenue and the pike. The work on the Round Top branch is being pushed forward rapidly, a good part of the line being already graded. But the work, as the line approaches the terminus east of Round Top, is heavy, encountering large masses of granite rock that must be removed by blasting. Col. Bush has a steam drill at work and will use dynamite as well as powder to cut his way through the rock.—Star and Sentinel.

April, with all its showers, was a disastrous month for property owners.

ABOUT $3,000,000 worth of Property Was destroyed by fire during the month.

Pennsylvania, just adjoining us, lost over $1,000,000. Maryland only lost about $100,000, while Frederick County escaped with about $2,000. We were fortunate, but who knows how long our good fortune will continue?

The prudent man is always on the safe side. When he sees a good thing he generally takes right hold of it.

Agricultural.

Volunteer Distribution of Seeds and Cions.

There are centers in almost every agricultural town where people gather for business and trade, where each family cultivating a garden, could be furnished with the choicest varieties of fruits and vegetables. This would in no way interfere with the sales of the seedsman and nurserymen, but rather increase the demand. The best districts for their business are where the taste for good gardening is already established, and every man is experimenting, and adding to the valuable things already possessed. The great difficulty in any community in improving horticulture is to get a few neighbors to make their first investment in improved varieties. When one has planted his first Bartlett pear tree, his first Delaware or Concord grape, his first improved strawberry or raspberry, and eaten the fruit, there is no man more ready to invest in seeds and plants. Seeing is believing. Eighty years ago or more there was a clergyman settled in one of the feeble country parishes of Connecticut, whose horticultural tastes were as sound as his views in theology. He preached good gardening six days in the week, by example as well as precept, cultivated fine apples, pears, and grapes, made his home an oasis in the wilderness, and distributed seeds, cions, and plants with a liberal hand. Great improvement in the horticulture of the whole town resulted, and the impress of his ministry in the pulpit and the garden is still visible there in almost every home. This ministry in horticulture is within reach of almost every farmer, and is one of the easiest and most effective ways of doing good. It has an important bearing upon morals and the right training of the rising generation. Stomachs fed with the milk and honey of fine gardens, are not so likely to crave alcohol and tobacco. The distribution of seeds and plants is in order now.—Wm. CLIFT, in American Agriculturist for April.

MANY wonder why the brute creation excel mankind as a rule when it comes to a question of health. Investigation quickly ascertains the cause. It is because the brute naturally obeys every law of health, while mankind is constantly degenerating owing to excesses of our ancestors and our own individual imprudence. Sudden exposure to extreme climatic influences, gluttony, improper food, alcoholic stimulents, over exertion of mind and body, worry, anxiety, care, etc., all have a marked effect on the human system. Be cured by using Brown's Iron Bitters. A remarkable remedy for restoring health.

To Drive Away Rats.

Mary Hadlem writes that rats have so strong an aversion to the odor of peppermint, they will not enter rooms or bins where it prevails. She says of the peppermint plant: "We place it in the oats, rye and corn, when they are brought in, and some goes under the pigstye. Though we no longer have any rats, we continue to use the plant, for fear they may make us a visit." If this is so, in absence of the plant, probably a few drops of the oil of peppermint would answer the same purpose.—American Agriculturist for April.

MOUNTAIN ASH BERRIES

are very showy, and would be of great use in holiday decoration, were they not ripe and away long before winter. If gathered when ripe, they shrivel and become discolored long before they are wanted for use. A correspondent of "The Garden" (Eng.) says, they may be preserved in perfection, if the clusters are covered with strong brine. Stick a pin here and try it next autumn, not only on the berries of the Mountain Ash, but on a number of other brilliant and perishable fruits. Let us pickle the berries.

Salt the Stock.

This is a necessary matter and one that is often overlooked. Keep a lump of rock salt in the feed box of each horse. Serve cows that are stalled in the same way. A board on which some coarse salt has been sprinkled may be placed in the yard or field in which cows are turned for exercise. Do not forget pigs and sheep. Give the former in addition a little powdered charcoal. This is essential to their health.

BEAUTIFUL surroundings are the inspiration of beautiful thoughts. Evil cannot abide where the mind feasts on the lovable things around it.

Humorous.

Mrs. ANNIE PHILLIPS, 10 Calhoun street, Baltimore, Md., says: "I suffered from dyspepsia. Brown's Iron Bitters did me a great deal of good."

A Des Moines man publishes a card announcing that "as many citizens have failed to solicit me to become a candidate for office, I have concluded to offer my services to the voters for the office of," &c.

"WHAT plaguey fools some people are?" exclaimed Mrs. Gruff, as she read the title of the tract which had just been left at the door. "Why will you die?" "Now isn't that sense? Why will I die? Because I can't help it, simpleton," and Mrs. Gruff threw the literary conundrum into the kindling box.

DURING the examination of a witness as to the locality of the stairs in the house, the counsel asked him: "Which way did the stairs run?" "The witness, a noted wag, replied: "One way they ran up stairs, and the other way they ran down stairs." The learned counsel winked his eye, and then took a look at the ceiling.

"I SAW you at the funeral the other day," said one lady to another. "Yes, I saw you, too." "I never heard a more affecting funeral sermon; did you?" "Never. And just think of it, when everybody was crying I reached for my handkerchief and found, to my horror, that it was a red one I had in my pocket." "Goodness! What did you do?" "Why, I didn't cry. How could I when every one else in the church was using white?"

"LOOK here, Pat," said a real estate owner, "you've got to move or pay your rent." "Be jabbers, I'll do nathur." "Well, I'll show you." "Now don't be ather tockin' that way, Mishter Brownin; let ush raison awhile together. Af yez puth me out by lah, it will cost yez sixh dollars an' sixty cints, an' af yez move me out yersilf, it will cost yez only four dollars. Now, what will yez do?" The owner sent a team around and moved him.

"YOUR crop seems to be considerably in the grass," said a passer by to a Georgia negro who sat on a fence. "Yes, sah, General Green's dun got it." "Did you overplant yourself?" "No, sah; planted bout nuff." "Why didn't you plow it?" "Wife tuck sick. She does de plow in' for dis place." "What do you do?" "What does I do? I preaches dat's what I does. Ef Providence comes along an' makes de 'oman sick, I can't help it. I see been called I has."

JIM WEBSTER, a hard-looking colored man, was brought to a justice in Austin for stealing some money from the house of Colonel Jones, one of the most respectable citizens. Said the judge very impressively to Jim: "Don't you know that no good can come from stolen money—that there is a curse on it?" "Boss, I didn't know that Col. Jones stole dat money, I allus 'spected him ob bein' an honest man. White folks an gettin' to be mighty onreliable nowadays."

DAVE WALKER, of Anderson's Store, was one of the best North Carolina soldiers that Lee had. Dave was in Richmond some time since, and sitting at night in the St. James Hotel he heard a fellow with a cocked hat on talking everybody nearly to death about the war. He said he had been a colonel. Finally he drew a seat up to Dave, and asked him if he was in the war. Dave said: "Yes, he was there." "What position did you hold?" "None, sir," said Dave. "I reckon I'm the loneliest man in the world." "Ah, why so?" asked the colonel. "Why," said Dave, "I was a private in the war, and I am the only one I have ever seen since."—Raleigh News.

JUDGE STORY once told a friend that the Justices of the Supreme Court were ascetics, and denied themselves wine except in wet weather. Then, bethinking himself that his words were too severe a tax on human credulity, he added: "What I say about the wine, sir, gives you our rule; but it does sometimes happen that the Chief Justice will say to me, when the cloth is removed, 'Brother Story, step to the window and see if it does not look like rain.' And if I tell him the sun is shining brightly, Judge Marshall will sometimes reply: 'All the better, for our jurisdiction extends over so large a territory that the doctrine of chances makes it certain that it must be raining somewhere.'"
