WARREN LELAND,

whom everybody knows as the successful manager of the Largest Hotel Enterprises

of America, says that while a passenger from New York on board a ship going around Cape Horn, in the early days of emigration to California, he learned that one of the officers of the vessel had cured himself, during the voyage, of an obstinate disease by the use of

Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

Since then Mr. LELAND has recommended AYER'S SARSAPARILLA in many similar cases, and he has never yet heard of its failure to effect a radical cure.

Some years ago one of Mr. LELAND's farm laborers bruised his leg. Owing to the bad effects of his blood, an ugly scrofulous swelling or lump appeared on the injured limb. Horrible itching of the skin, with burning and darting pains through the lump, made life almost intolerable. The leg became enormously enlarged, and running ulcers formed, discharging great quantities of extremely offensive matter. No treatment was of any avail until the man, by Mr. LELAND's direction, was supplied with AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, which allayed the pain and irritation, healed the sores, removed the swelling, and completely restored the limb to use. Mr. LELAND has personally used for rheumatism, with entire success; and, after careful observation, declares that, in his belief, there is no medicine in the world equal to it for the cure of Liver Disorders, Gout, the effects of high living, and all the various forms of blood diseases.

We have Mr. LELAND'S permission to invite all who may desire further evidence in regard to the extraordinary curative powers of AYER'S SARSAPARILLA to see him personally either at his mammoth Ocean Hotel, Long Branch, or at the popular Leland Hotel, Broadway, 27th and 28th Streets, New York. Mr. LELAND'S extensive knowledge of the good done by this unequalled eradicator of blood poisons enables him to give inquirers much valuable information.

CHANGES.

Like one who hears with sudden throbs of sadness

The lingering cadence of an old refrain

Which wakes the echoes of some vanished gladness

With tender pain,

So stand I now with mingled pain and pleasure,

After long absence, at a well known door

Which guarded once my darling, my heart's treasure

In days of yore.

Still bloom the roses with their old-time sweetness

Round this dear cottage in my native land;

Trimmed is the hedge with all its wonted neatness;

The old clms stand.

Still slopes the lawn in beautiful gradation,

Like a soft carpet of the richest green;

Still leaps the fountain with its light pulsation,

Brightening the scene.

Years I have not changed it; now as then the river

Winds in the distance like a silver stream;

Through the old orchard still the sun-beams quiver

And brightly gleam.

Ah! but no voice of sweetest modulation

Nor rippling laughter greets my listening ear;

All the bright scene but breathes in desolation,

"She is not here!"

"Not here! not here!" the murmuring elm trees sigh it,

The rustling grass repeats it 'neath my feet,

Her cherished roses mournfully reply it

In odors sweet.

O'er the soft lawn the shadows westward creep

Darkly enfold me at the rose-gate door.

In deeper shades lies my dear love sleeping

To wake no more!

HOUSE-CLEANING.

Thank heavens, house cleaning comes but twice a year! If it came three times, we should have to return to a state of barbarism; there is no question about it.

May and October are the great house cleaning months, and, fortunately, they are the two pleasantest months in the year. We can be turned out of house and home, these beautiful days, with something like a feeling of true resignation. The smell of soap and cedar oil only makes the unpolished air of the outer world seem sweeter and purer.

The sight of a carpet hung on the line back of the house only makes an expedition return to the fairer scenery of Nature's landscape more delightful and soothing. The sound of the mop and the tack hammer makes the jangling of brooks and the wind in the trees unwontedly charming. In fact, one is almost glad to have the housecleaning season come around, in order that he may be helped to a deeper and keener appreciation of the beauties and delights of Nature. Every cloud has its silver lining.

The first intimation of the great domestic upheaval which is about to take place is the arrival of the soap man at the back door with a huge block of soap. If you are lucky enough to observe this indication of the approaching storm, you may be able to save some of your most precious possessions. Lose not a moment. Fly to your den, and gather all your treasures into an old overcoat or salt-bag. Tie the bundle securely, and place where you will not forget it on your way to business. Then look after the more bulky articles of value. If you have a gun or fishing-rod, climb up and put them on top of the book case. No woman can get up there—unless she should find out, somehow, that you have secreted part of your property there. In which case she would climb up and dust it with a wet rag if it broke a leg. Many a fine fowl ing-piece has been spoiled in this way. Your books will have to take it. You can do nothing for them. Expect, when you come home, to find them all piled out in the hall, sprawled open, mixed up, and generously sprinkled with water from the pail with which the industrious assistant of your wife's labors has wadded to and fro. Then they will have to be dusted before they can go back, of course; and if you get out of it with seven or eight whole and unsoiled volumes, you may count yourself more fortunate than the majority of your brother sufferers.

Anything that you have around in the way of papers, manuscript, note books or anything of the sort, you will, of course, look to first of all. If you have a drawer with a good stout lock on it, put them in there. Your wife will rummage all your old trousers for the key, so that she can gather up the thimbleful of dust which she is sure must have accumulated inside your table; but, if you have room in your pockets, take every key with you. If not, drop them down the well. They can be fished up afterward with a magnet. Don't let your wife see you carrying out your sack of valuables. If she does, she will insist on justifying every particular article.

Well, you are safely away from the house, having taken all the above precautions, and, albeit with somewhat of a heavy and apprehensive, you take your way to store or office, and bury you apprehensions in business cares. At midday—or at evening, if you are a city man—you return in an abstracted frame of mind, but are brought to a disagreeable consciousness of the state of affairs by a distant, sickening smell of soap. Then you get the whole blast right in the face—soap, cedar-oil, benzine, tar, burned cloth, dust, boufire smoke—but no dinner. Entering with sad heart, you find yourself in the midst of a scene of desolation and confusion which would make the most affectionate husband in the world long for the days of bachelorhood.

No carpets on the floors; no curtains on the windows; no furniture on its own legs; no pictures on the walls; no dry place to step; no wet place to wash; no sort of a place to sit down; no room to stand up—worse of all, no sign of a repast or stand forlorn and weak-kneed, trying to make out what room you are in, anyway, and where the stairs are, and what there is left to make life worth living, a howl of disgust drives you half way across the room, and you turn to see the buxom genuine of all this desolation, pointing to the floor and wailing in shrill tones: "Oh, mum! mum! Come here and see what Misster Jones has brought in on his shoes—oh, mum!"

You look down and perceive that your dusty soles have left a dim print on the moist floor, and horror seizes you and great trembling. Your wife comes in and joins her voice to that of the virago with the mop, and you are glad to flee away with a whole skin, albeit empty as you came. A benevolent restaurateur-keeper satisfies the cravings of your exhausted system for fifty cents, and you return to your office, or wander in the dewy fields until it is time to seek the embraces of restoring sleep. You find your wife in a state of great indignation because she has been obliged to keep your supper waiting so long; and a gleam of hope rises in your breast that perhaps the horrors of dining at a cheap restaurant are over. But when you see your supper, and excuse yourself on the ground that you are not hungry, and straightway fly to the vendor of doubtful edibles and replenish your system and his coffers to the extent of fifty cents more.

Then you sneak home to find out what sleeping arrangements have been made. As you enter the door you reflect that you had about as soon sleep in a vault, anyway, so far as humidity is concerned; and you wonder if your wife won't be laid up with rheumatism to-morrow. You find her, however, peacefully reposing on the lounge, and a blanket is spread out on the floor, apparently for the comfort of your weary bones. The three children are slumbering in the only infant bed in the house. You groan in spirit; but there is no alternative. All night long you flatten yourself against those hard, wet planks; and when you get up—not wake up—in the morning, you find that you, and not your wife, have the rheumatism.

So it goes on, for four or five mortal days. Your strength is gradually exhausted; your health is breaking down. On the fourth day you call upon a divorce lawyer and inform him that unless something extraordinary happens you will give him a job to-morrow. But to-morrow comes, and the prospect is brighter. Carpets are going down again. Meals are being cooked, beds corded up. By night the house looks quite home like. You are reconciled. Peace returns; the soap smell drifts away. In a week things are as dirty as ever.

PAUL PASTOR.

An Inquisitive Man.

"Well, sir, he was the blamest man to ask questions I ever saw in my life."

"And a stranger, too, you say?"

"Yes; I never laid eyes on him before. And such intrusive questions, too, they were. He even wanted to know if our silver was real or plated, and how much money I had in the bank, and then he tried to find out to a dollar what I was worth, and how much I owed."

"I should have ordered him out of the house."

"Well, I felt like doing it, but I didn't. I put up with him the best I could, and let him rattle on to see where he would bring up; and finally he wanted to know how many dogs I kept."

"Oh, get out!"

"He did for an honest fact, and what's more, he even pumped around and tried to find out if I had made any money in the whisky business lately, and me a St. John man, too. What do you think of that?"

"I don't see how you stood it."

"I had to."

"Oh, nonsense? I'd a shot him out too quick."

"No, you wouldn't."

"What's the reason I wouldn't?"

"He was the assessor."—Chicago Lawyer.

Counterfeiting a Valuable Article.

The publisher of the Madison County Record writes from Huntsville, Ark., as to the effect of Brown's Iron Bitters on his wife. Mr. Daugherty says, "My wife has been using the Bitters for some months; the effect in her case is remarkable." He also writes that owing to counterfeits and imitations, it was difficult to get the genuine article. That difficulty has now been remedied; imitators have been exposed and put to flight. There, as elsewhere Brown's Iron Bitters can be had of all the respectable druggists at a dollar a bottle.

MRS. PARTINGTON says that before the late war circumstances were seen round the moon nightly, shooting stars perambulated the earth, the disc of the sun was covered with black spots of ink, and comets swept the horizon with their operatic tales. Everybody said that it prophagated war, and, sure enough, war did come.

THE REVISED OLD TESTAMENT.

America's Part in the Translation.

LONDON, May 16—Copies of the revised version of the Old Testament were given to the newspapers at midnight last night. All the papers this morning contain copious extracts from the work. In a review of the work the London Times says of this close of the labor of fourteen years: This revision is the most important event in the history of the English Bible since the publication of the King James translation in 1611. The success of the Old Testament may not be as great as that of the New, of which more than a million copies were sold on the day of publication and more than three millions of copies before the close of the year. But it will probably be more favorably received and less severely criticised. For it involves no changes of the Hebrew text—no older manuscript than the Masoretic having been discovered—and the idiom of the authorized version is most carefully preserved, out of regard for the conservative feeling of the church in its attachment for the language of the old version. All errors of translation, however, have been removed, and the revision will be pronounced by every competent Bible reader to be a very great improvement.

It presents the results of the combined labor of a large number of the best Hebraists and biblical scholars of England and the United States, most of them professors of Hebrew in universities and seminaries. It has, moreover, the advantage of the vast advances of the last fifty years in Oriental philology, biblical geography, history and antiquities, all of which were but imperfectly understood by the forty-seven translators of King James, although it is freely admitted that they did the very best in their day. The new version is not a good version in the place of a bad one, but a great improvement of a good version.

The first meeting of the New Testament Company in England was held June 22, 1870. On the 7th of July following the two houses of convocation voted to invite the cooperation of some American divines, and to Bishop Wilberforce and Dean Stanley was assigned soon afterwards the duty of securing this result. They authorized Dr. Angus, who was contemplating a visit to America, to open correspondence with the Rev. Dr. Schaff, and other American scholars, while in the United States, in regard to this work. In August, 1870, Dr. Angus sent letters to various American scholars, in which he explained the plan of the English work, and suggested the formation of an American committee of twelve or eighteen, to which the work of the English revisers could be submitted for criticism and suggestions.

A large proportion of the suggestions of the American committee were adopted and embodied in the Revised Version. Many others, not adopted in their exact words, were inserted in a modified form, which satisfactorily expressed the American views. The reader of the Revised Version will discover in the appendix only a small part of the result of the work of the American committee. These results are found everywhere throughout the book.

"In the poetical books sheol replaces 'hell,' which has been changed in prose passages to 'the grave' and 'the pit,' with 'sheol' in the margin. 'Of these renderings, hell,' says the preface, 'if it could be taken in its original sense, as used in the creeds, would be a fairly adequate equivalent for the Hebrew word, but it is so commonly understood as the place of torment that to employ it frequently would lead to inevitable misunderstanding.' In Isaiah XIV, where 'Hell' is used in more of its original sense, the revisers have left 'Hell' in the text, putting 'Sheol' in the margin.

"The several days of the creation are made more prominent by breaks of a line between the verses. The expedient has enabled the revisers to make use of the dialogue form, and to show the dramatic character of the Song of Songs, the first chapter of which, for example, is divided into seven speeches. A striking improvement is the printing of all poetical passages in poetical form.

"Examination of the more familiar passages and phrases discloses the fact that care was taken in preserving intact household words of the Old Testament. The old literary form has been held sacred and the revisers cannot be charged with any pedantic straining after the original text; but not all the familiar features of the Scripture have escaped untouched.

"The 'apples of gold,' of Proverbs xxv, 11, are now encased in 'figured work' of silver, not in 'pictures,' Vanity and vexation of spirit," (Ecclesiastes ii, 17,) has become 'vanity and striving after wind.'

"The authorized Psalm cxvi, verse 11, 'I said in my haste, all men are liars,' is revised, 'I said when I made haste to escape, all men are a lie.'—Ballo Sun.

Signature of the Cross.

An exchange gives the reason why the mark which persons who are unable to write are required to make instead of their signatures is in the form of a cross. This practice having formerly been followed by kings and nobles, is constantly referred to as an instance of the deplorable ignorance of ancient times. This signature is not, however, invariably a proof of such ignorance. Anciently the use of the mark was not confined to illiterate persons, for among the Saxons the mark of the cross is an attestation of the good faith of the persons signing. It was required to be attached to the signature of those who could write, as well as to stand in the place of the signature of those who could not. In those times if a man could write or read his knowledge was considered proof presumptive that he was in holy orders. The clerics or clerk was synonymous with penman; and the laity, or people who were clerks, did not feel any urgent necessity for the use of letters. The ancient use of the cross was therefore universal alike by those who could not write. It was, indeed, the symbol of an oath, from its sacred association, as well as the mark generally adopted. Hence the origin of the expression, "God save the mark," as a form of ejaculation approaching the character of an oath.

Manners.

There is nothing which adds to a boy's success in life, next to honesty of purpose, as the practice of good breeding wherever he goes—in the sidewalks, in the buggy, as well as in the parlor. If you meet a boy who refuses to give you half the road or turn out on the sidewalk you may class him as a boy with no sense of justice in his soul.—When we speak of a polite boy we do not wish to be understood as referring to one who bows low, and takes off his hat simply, but we mean the honest face—the one who always carries a smile on his countenance—we mean the one who has a kind salutation when he meets you in the morning and a pleasant 'good-night' in the evening—a boy whose face is always void of offence.

To Remove a Finger Ring.

A tight ring may be removed from the finger by the following process: Thread a needle flat in the eye with strong thread; pass the eye of the needle with care under the ring, and pull the thread through a few inches toward the hand; wrap the long end of the thread tightly around the finger, regularly, all down to the nail to reduce its size. Then lay hold of the short end of the thread and unwind it. The thread passing against the ring, will gradually remove the tightest ring without difficulty, however much swollen the finger may be.

Profitable Advertising.

Advertising Agent (to merchant)—So you think it pays better to advertise on fences and flagstones than in the newspapers?

Merchant—It has paid me better. Advertising Agent—But you have just failed?

Merchant—I know it, but I settled for thirty cents on the dollar.

It is a remarkable fact that lots of sickness is drawn from the well, and many people kick the bucket in consequence thereof.—Lowell Citizen.

SUICIDE.

The Daily News of Baltimore of the 16th, inst., wrote under the caption of "Spring Suicides" of various developments in connection with this general subject of self murder.

"One of the most startling things in connection with suicide is the fact that the crime is increasing in a remarkable degree. The spread of education, which might be supposed to operate against it, has the reverse effect.

Of course those who are in possession of their full senses cannot be criminally guilty in the commission of the awful act of suicide!

In former times the punishment attached to the crime, was an ignominious burial in the high way, with a stake driven through the body, and a forfeiture of goods and chattels to the crown.

Hence, for the most part suicide is regarded a manifestation of some form of insanity; there must be some perversion of the emotions and passions, which are excited to their greatest capacity by favourable outward circumstances, to account for the greatest prevalence of the crime in the most enjoyable season.

It cannot be doubted with all the facts before us, that self murder has increased as education has become general, we do not believe however that the fact grows out so much from the multiplication of books, as from the ever extending range of newspaper publications, and especially such as are intent on disseminating every item of news that can be gathered up, from any and every quarter, regardless of its character.

GEN. LOGAN ELECTED SENATOR. SPRINGFIELD, Ill., May 19.—In joint assembly to day John A. Logan was elected Senator. Thus ended a contest which began in February last and owing to the equally balanced state of the parties in the Illinois Legislature, the final result was produced by the death of a Democratic member, and the Election of a Republican in his stead.

RIEL CAPTURED. WINNIPEG, MAN., May 17.—Louis Davis Riel, the leader of the half breed insurgents, was captured yesterday about a mile and a half north of Batouche by three scouts. Riel said he was coming to give himself up, and was taken at once to the camp, and conducted to Gen. Middleton's tent.

It is truly the office of a newspaper to give the news of the day and their conductors are glorified and accorded the praise of success as the range of their reportorial system in more or less extended.

There is no sane mind that does not revolt against the hideous crime, as the meanest and most cowardly in the entire calendar of wickedness. Its victim by the act is proclaimed a nully in the order of existence, unequal to bear his or her part in the duties of life; surrendering before its work is finished, and often in unnatural indifference subjecting weakness and helplessness to misery and want.

DR. TALMAGE having preached on every other subject, on Sunday levied his guns at tobacco. He abused that much abused plant rhetorically, polemically, and ecclesiastically, and so long as he told his many delighted hearers what he believed, they listened with mingled merriment and wonder at the range of his fancy.

It is amazing that Dr. Talmage, who has such an unlimited range in the domain of the imagination, and who is always listened to with much measureless jocularly when he deals with fancies, should impair his popularity and usefulness by meddling with facts.

It puzzles us to think that Dr. Talmage does not know that while tobacco is universally conceded to be the chief cause of arson, piracy, grave robbing and spinal meningitis, the world, from science down to Sunday schools, will not believe that tobacco causes cancer, any more than it causes leprosy and spontaneous combustion.

FATAL SHOOTING—A LYNCHING.

On Saturday morning last a young man named Harrison W. Terry, shot and killed T. A. Jeter, a popular citizen of Liberty, Va., because Jeter had named a dog which Terry gave him, after Terry's Sister.—The two had been intimate friends.

On Monday morning a body of armed men went to the jail and forcibly took the young man from the prison cell and placing him on a horse took him to the South of the town, and fastening a rope to his neck attached it to a small apple tree on the roadside, and then led the horse from under him. Though the victim was regarded insane, the prejudice in the minds of the lynchers, by reason of the recent acquittal of murderers, on the plea of insanity but increased them the more.

This terrible retribution by the mob has been followed by deep regrets in the locality. As in all such cases the majesty of the law presents itself after it has been defied.

GEN. GRANT VERY BRIGHT. NEW YORK, May 20.—The usual semi-weekly conference of Drs. Douglas and Shady took place this afternoon in Gen. Grant's house. The doctors found no marked change in the patient's throat. Some part of the swelling below and behind the ear has subsided and less pain is the result. Since Sunday the General has experienced none of the darting pains that last week centred at the ear. Both physicians referred to the night of excellent rest—Tuesday night—and stated that the patient was appearing exceptionally bright to day.—N. Y. Sun.

THE DISEASE AT PLYMOUTH.

WILKESBARRE, PA., May 20.—The executive relief committee at Plymouth submitted their official report to a meeting of citizens this morning, of which the following is a summary: On May 5 there were 841 cases of typhoid fever. Since that date 64 new cases have been reported, making 905 in all. The deaths in the past two weeks have numbered 55, which leaves 850 cases, 134 being convalescent. A majority of the sick are reported to be on the mend, but many are still in a critical condition. The total number of destitute families now receiving aid is reported to be 216.

HOWARD COOPER, the colored man, who committed an outrageous assault upon Miss Gray, of Baltimore county, on April 21, was tried before the Criminal Court of Baltimore City, on Wednesday morning, and within a few hours, the jury brought in a verdict of guilty with out leaving their box.

When the courts generally shall proceed, as in this case, lynch-law will soon become a thing of the past.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 20 1885. If anybody ever knew, the fact is probably forgotten, that the last Congress condescended to confer a benefit upon the people by reducing the amount of postage upon both letters and newspapers.

This law goes into effect on the 1st of July next and provides that postage on letters shall be two cents for each ounce or fractional part thereof. From a thorough examination of the subject, it has been found that only about five per cent of the letters that are sent through the mails exceeds half an ounce in weight, so that it will be seen that the proposed reduction is no great boon after all, though it will go far to remove those exasperating doubts that frequently come over the conscientious writer, whether the envelope he has just sealed does not require double postage. Drop letters after the 1st of July will require but one cent postage, and this will have the effect to again reduce the demand for postal cards, which fell off about sixty per cent when the two cent postage law went into effect.

The project of propelling the cars upon elevated railways by electricity has long been considered feasible, but has not yet been put into practical operation because of the claims of several persons for priority of invention. Edison, who has been claiming everything in the way of applying electricity, was one claimant for the discovery of this method of locomotion, while Sir William Siemens was another, and Mr. C. W. Field, of New York, another. Through all of the stages of the contest in the Patent Office here, Mr. Field has carried off the award for the original discovery of the application, and this award has to day been confirmed by the Commission of Patents. This decision, under a recent opinion of the Supreme Court, is a finality, and Mr. Field will at once proceed to apply his invention upon all the elevated roads in New York City.

Decorative Day, which is always a day of distinguished observance in Washington, is to be more than usually attended to this year. The President is expected to speak at the exercises at Arlington, and the usual amount of bad poetry will be flung in by way of airing the ambition of those whose poetic souls were disappointed by the cold, blood spring that we have had. Col Joyce, the Poet Laureate of America, whose divine effusions, surviving which, the audience will be treated to an idyllic effort from the pen and tongue of Dr. Mary Walker. DOM PEDRO.

The EMMITSBURG CHRONICLE is now a dollar newspaper and we assert unhesitatingly, that the low price of wheat, woolens, fish and eggs even considered we do not know where more may be secured for a dollar than by paying that amount for the CHRONICLE, one year.

The EMMITSBURG CHRONICLE at intervals advocates the building of a Town Hall; it will likely succeed for it says "We must have a Town Hall."

Now that is exactly what we want and must have here, too; we have frequently said so much before, but unfortunately no one has accepted the inevitable as we make it. We shall watch with interest the CHRONICLE's method and when it succeeds, we'll borrow it (the method) peacefully if we can, forcibly if we must, for we must have a Town Hall. But please remember the royalty is payable in advance.-Ed.

The Baltimore Sun entered upon the forty-ninth year of its existence on Monday last, and it seems to grow more bright, interesting and always reliable, as the years advance. As affording the latest news, in the most readable form the Sun is second to no other journal, and therefore finds its home in all families who desire correct information. The only objection we have to it, is the constantly recurring issue of its supplements, that are enclosed loosely in the regular edition, and therefore go sailing around as often as the sheet is unfolded, a constant source of trouble and trial of patience.

The American Farmer of May 15th, is as usual readable and instructive throughout. Dr. Chancellor's paper on "The Drainage of Marsh Lands" is concluded, from the issue of May 1st. There is an article on "Planting and Working Corn," which was read at a meeting of the Deer Creek Farmers Club, Fertilizers, peanut culture, silk culture, livestock, dairy, poultry, vegetable gardening, bees and flowers are all discussed in turn, and valuable information given concerning all of these important methods, whilst machinery and domestic recipes have their share of notice. "Recreation of a country Housekeeper" is continued with other interesting reading matter. Samuel Sands & Son, Baltimore.

An Incendary Fire at Frederick. FREDERICK, May 16.-An incendary fire occurred early this morning which destroyed the large hay and straw-pack ing establishment of Mr. Charles H. Fleming, located in the northeastern portion of the city, along the Pennsylvania Railroad. The entire building was destroyed, with about twenty tons of straw and all the machinery used in packing. Two cars loaded with lumber and one loaded with reapers, standing in front of the building, took fire, and considerable damage was done there, and their contents. The loss is about $2,000, with no insurance.-American.

Would Not Be Without It. EAST NEW MARKET, Md., Dec. 5, 1883. G. Holdstein:—I deem it a privilege to recommend your valuable medicine—"Aromanna." A Dog Fisherman. Mr. Samuel Frantz, of this vicinity, has a shepherd dog, but as there are lots of these canines hereabouts, our readers will doubtless think there is nothing strange about this. This particular dog, however, differs very materially from other dogs. In fact it is a remarkable dog. It not only can go out into the field and bring in sheep, hogs, and cattle and do many other useful things, but supplies the family frequently with a fine mess of fresh fish. On last Saturday Mr. Wm. Crilly took the dog on a fishing excursion up the Little Antietam, and Mr. C. informs us that he and the dog together caught twenty-two nice fish. The dog would post itself in the stream, whilst he would do the stirring, and as the fish made their appearance the dog quick as lightning would make a grab and the next instant a ten or fifteen inch sucker would be writhing on the bank. It handles them so easily that they are not injured a particle, the teeth not even penetrating the flesh. Mr. Crilly says the dog can often be seen amusing itself in this manner, and if there is another dog that can beat this one we would like to see it trotted out.-Keystone Gazette.

Whit-Sunday. Ascension day occurs 40 days after the Resurrection of our Lord, and ten days after that event, Per east or Whit Sunday is observed in commemoration of the descent of the Holy Ghost, the Comforter promised to the Disciples that should "abide with them forever." White is the "colour of purity and innocence and holiness," hence emblematic of the Third Person of the Holy Trinity. It is the colour of the dress of the candidates for confirmation on Whit Sunday and hence the name. The day is everywhere regarded a most solemn festival by all who respect the orders of the Church Year, for it marks also the founding of the Christian Church.

The death of Mr. L. P. D. Newman, a member of the Baltimore Bar, after a long and painful illness, is announced. Mr. Newman was a lawyer in excellent practice up to within a few years past, when his failing health compelled him to desist from the argument of cases. He was at one time president of the Herald Publishing Company of this city and was the actual founder, in connection with Mr. Wm. J. Hooper, of the morning Herald. He was a genial, popular gentleman; an affectionate father; a hospitable and devoted friend. His disposition was generous, kindly and charitable, and his death will be deeply regretted by all who knew him.-Baltimore News May 16th.

Mr. Newman's wife was a native of Emmitsburg, a young lady of remarkable beauty, named Miss Amanda Troxell, a descendant of one of the first settlers of this place.-Ed.

The June issue of The Eclectic begins with an interesting paper combating the Spencerian theories, entitled "The State versus The Man" by M. De. Laveleye, which is worthily followed by a very important article on the burning question of "The Russian Advance in Asia" written by a great Anglo-Indian authority. Sir Henry Rawlinson, K. C. B. St. George Mivart concludes his discussion of "Organic Nature's Riddle." "Big Animals" is the title of an amusing and instructive paper in popular science. Andrew Lang is represented by an interesting study of Comparative Ghost Myths and Matthew Arnold comes to the front again with "A Comment on Christmas." Other specially notable papers are "Social Science on the Stage" by C. Sutherland Edwards, "The German Abroad" by C. E. Dawkins, "George Sand," another account of a remarkable woman and "Jules Ferry and His Friends." Interesting Law Proceedings. The circuit court for this county, on Thursday of last week, decided that the judgment of the Burgess of Emmitsburg, against Miss H. A. Offutt was a nullity; E. L. Rowe for Miss Offutt; Capt. McSherry for the Burgess.

The above case has been one of considerable interest among the Lawyers and others of this county. The Burgess of it is placed in the above named citizen, for permitting the existence of a nuisance on her premises, as alleged. An appeal was taken from the decision, to the Circuit Court; the appeal was dismissed, on the ground that the Charter of Emmitsburg did not provide for any appeals, thereupon the counsel for the petitioner, obtained a writ of Certiorari with the result as above stated, it being the first time such a writ has been tried by the Frederick County Court.

A Runaway Accident. Last Friday ex-Marshall Edward Y. Goldsborough made a narrow escape with his life while on his way to his country residence, about four miles west of this city. He was driving a spirited horse, which from some unknown cause became frightened and ran away. Not all of it was upset and dragged for a considerable distance with Mr. Goldsborough inside of it. In his flight the horse struck a tree and broke loose from the shafts. The collision with the tree stopped the buggy, and this probably saved Mr. G. from more serious, if not fatal injuries. He nevertheless was considerably bruised and scratched. The horse, after breaking from the vehicle, attempted to jump a high fence, and struck a rail which penetrated his body to a depth of five inches. Union May 12th.

Clean up All Around. Whilst naturally the greatest demand is made upon the towns, to institute measures of cleanliness as promotive of health, the law of self-preservation calls none the less loudly, for every property holder, wheresoever situated, to see that his or her surroundings are free from all causes tending to breed disease. It is next to suicidal for any one to occupy premises with mud-holes near them, particularly on the west side of the place of abode, or to have the drainage from barn yards, stables, &c., to run unconcealed across the roadway that leads to the residence; pig-pens are often sources of great annoyance when not properly kept, as well to those who travel near them, as to the residents of the place. The constant inhalation of foul gases may become a habit, in which the injury is apparently unnoticed, but none the less surely, however apparently unnoticed, the work of undermining health proceeds, until the overtaxed powers rebel, and the full grip of raging fever lays some loved one low. Rubbish in any form around buildings denotes slovenly management, and may occasion much disease. Whitewashed out-buildings, fences &c., indicate prudence and genteel bearing in the family. But above all things, the great gift of life is health, therefore to maintain this boon without which all others are in vain, have everything around you neat and cleanly, that you may enjoy life and enjoy it long. After all is said, about the boasted advances of modern civilization, the Mosaic law still holds its place as the best order of precepts on hygienic regulations, from its beginning to the end, it everywhere proclaims be clean!

The Seventeen Year Locust. Unless all signs should fail, the seventeen year locusts will make their appearance in about a month. From the Baltimore Sun we gather some interesting facts about the curious insect. A locust, though it has a beak, cannot bite with it, as it is too soft and flexible to penetrate the human skin. Neither can locusts sting or sting; they are harmless as far as biting or stinging is concerned. The reason so many persons are reported as killed by locusts in locust years is probably because they are stung by large digger wasps, which stop their burrows with dead locusts. This wasp, the "Stizus Grandis," searches for locusts, stings them, and flies with them toward its burrows, prepared beforehand for their reception. The locust being about as heavy as the wasp, the latter has a burden, and consequently its flight is irregular and awkward, so much so that frequently the two fall to the ground or on people passing. The sting of the wasp frequently produces death in two hours. The damage done by the locust is confined entirely to vegetable life, and is not as great by any means as has been claimed; and as a rule, indeed, the year following a locust year is a good fruit year, because the summer pruning done by the locusts is an advantage to the trees. The locusts, laying their eggs in young branches up to an inch in diameter, kill the portion above their eggs and produce in certain localities a rather severe pruning. Almost all kinds of trees share alike in this pruning, and only young pine trees escape to any great extent. Locusts can be made useful by keeping fowls and chickens enough to devour them. Young orchards can be protected by keeping large numbers of fowls in them. These will eat up the locusts as soon as they come out of the ground, while they are yet in a helpless condition. The locusts that come out this season were hatched from eggs laid in 1868. The eggs were hatched in the branches that same year. The larvae crawled down the tree and entered the ground, following the larger roots to their very ends, where they attached themselves to the fine fibres to remain until this time. Now they are making their way slowly towards the surface in the pupa state, its little flaps holding the embryo wings. It crawls out on the ground still in the pupa state, and fastens itself to some object, its back splits open and the still soft locust issues with wings still short. In about an hour these wings expand to full size, the body dries, and the insect is ready for business.-Ed.

Important. It is highly important that we should receive the returns on the circulars we have recently issued among our subscribers and friends. Our movements admit of no delay that may be available. We desired the return by the 1st of June, but where the work has been done, there is no need for delay. We trust the interest of every friend of the EMMITSBURG CHRONICLE will manifest itself, so as to enable us to perfect the proposed "New Departure." The time is short; the work to be done will be heavy and laborious. We are precluded from a recess. We mean business. The nature of our work rejects the idea of our requests being for personal favour; working for this community we claim its support as our reasonable due. Mr. D. L. Morrison of Washington city, and Mr. S. I. Smith of St. Joseph, Mo., have our grateful acknowledgements for very encouraging lists received from each of them.

"G. R. P." in the York Dispatch, says "for the benefit of inquirers I herewith furnish the following facts concerning the boundary line between Pennsylvania and Maryland. Mason and Dixon's line was begun 1763 and finished 1768. Its entire length is 244 miles. Not all of it was located by the distinguished English surveyors whose name it bears. They were prevented by fears of hostile Indians from proceeding more than 116 miles of the distance from the place of beginning. Every fifth mile someone has on one side the coat of arms of William Penn, and on the other side the escutcheon of Lord Baltimore. The other stones were simply the letters P on one side, and M on the other, meaning Pennsylvania and Maryland. The line was established by astronomical and mathematical calculation. A resurvey was made in 1844 but no change made. The temporary line between Maryland and Pennsylvania was run in 1792."

Care of Horses' Feet.

Horses in civilized lands suffer more from ailments of the feet than from any other cause. The feet of a horse are subject to many injuries, both from bad shoeing and from ill kept roads, and it is important for owners of horses, to study well how these causes of diseased feet can be avoided. But in the consideration of this question there are some points not well understood. The "London Stock keeper" gives a statement that a horse weighing sixteen hundred pounds, when drawing a load, bears a weight upon the feet of two tons, the extra pressure being caused by the downward force of the act of drawing. Now, an average horse's draft power amounts only to a forward strain of one hundred and fifty seven pounds. As the horse is only exerting this forward force by pressure upon the collar, it is clear, the feet cannot press with any more force upon the ground, so that the above explanation of the cause of injury to the horse's foot, is imaginary. It is not the force exerted by work at all. A wild horse, galloping at the top of his speed, presses upon the ground with his feet more than a horse moving a ton in a wagon upon a road at the rate of two miles an hour; and yet wild horses have excellent feet and are never lame. But they have a choice of a smooth path, and have no blacksmiths to cut away the frogs of their feet, and so deprive them of the very means nature provides for the protection of the foot. If the roads were kept in good condition and free from loose stones, and the frog of the foot were never pared, horses would rarely suffer from foot-lameness. Frog pressure expands the heels, toughens the horns, cures corns, and does much toward giving a horse sound feet.—American Agriculturist for June.

Seeding to Grass.

Our greatest need now is, to grow more grass; not more acres, but more to the acre, leaving a larger area of ground for fodder and other crops raised on a mixed farm. This can only be done by better preparation of the soil, and better seeding. Instead of throwing the seed in a haphazard way upon the hard, weather beaten surface of the ground in the spring, the seeding should be postponed until the grain is cut and harvested. The soil is then to be plowed with a shallow furrow, thoroughly well harrowed, and made fine and compact. The seed must be sown, and immediately brushed in with the smoothing and brush harrow, which is easily made. This levels and firms the soil, as well as spreads and covers the seed. It is well to use this harrow crosswise of the harrow marks, and across the line of sowing, so as to spread the seed more evenly. It is better still to sow the seed both ways, half each way, if the sower is not able to spread it quite evenly. The even sowing is very important, because bare spaces are a great injury in two ways; one, that the ground is vacant, and will produce weeds in the bare spots; the other, that the grass is too crowded where it is too thickly sown. Grass seed, if sown as here directed, will start up quickly and grow rapidly; if the seeding is done in July or early in August, the young grass will be strong enough to resist the winter safely, and a heavy crop will be the result.—American Agriculturist for June.

DR. JOHN BULL'S Smith's Tonic Syrup FOR THE CURE OF FEVER and AGUE Or CHILLS and FEVER, AND ALL MALARIAL DISEASES.

The proprietor of this celebrated medicine justly claims for it a superiority over all remedies ever offered to the public for the SAFE, CERTAIN, SPEEDY and PERMANENT cure of Ague and Fever, or Chills and Fever, whether of short or long standing. He refers to the entire Western and Southern country to bear him testimony to the truth of the assertion that in no case whatever will it fail to cure if the directions are strictly followed and carried out. In a great many cases a single dose has been sufficient for a cure, and whole families have been cured by a single bottle, with a perfect restoration of the general health. It is, however, prudent, and in every case more certain to cure, if its use is continued in smaller doses for a week or two after the disease has been checked, more especially in difficult and long-standing cases. Usually this medicine will not require any aid to keep the bowels in good order. Should the patient, however, require a cathartic medicine, after having taken three or four doses of the Tonic, a single dose of BULL'S VEGETABLE FAMILY PILLS will be sufficient. BULL'S SARSAPARILLA is the old and reliable remedy for impurities of the blood and Scrofulous affections. DR.
