WARREN LELAND,

whom everybody knows as the successful manager of the

Largest Hotel Enterprises

of America, says that while a passenger from New York on board a ship going around Cape Horn, in the early days of emigration to California, he learned that one of the officers of the vessel had cured himself, during the voyage, of an obstinate disease by the use of

Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

Since then Mr. LELAND has recommended AYER'S SARSAPARILLA in many similar cases, and he has never yet heard of its failure to effect a radical cure.

Some years ago one of Mr. LELAND'S farm laborers bruised his leg, owing to the bad state of his blood, an ugly scrofulous swelling or lump appeared on the injured limb. Horrible itching of the skin, with burning and discharging great quantities of extremely offensive matter. No treatment was of any avail until the man, by Mr. LELAND'S direction, was supplied with AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, which allayed the pain and irritation, healed the sores, removed the swelling, and completely restored the limb to use.

Mr. LELAND has personally used for Rheumatism, with entire success; and, for careful observation, declares that, in his belief, there is no medicine in the world equal to it for the cure of Liver Disorders, Gout, the effects of high living, Salt Rheum, Sores, Eruptions, and all the various forms of blood diseases.

We have Mr. LELAND'S permission to invite all who may desire further evidence in regard to the extraordinary curative powers of AYER'S SARSAPARILLA to see him personally either at his mammoth Ocean Hotel, Long Branch, or at the popular Leland Hotel, Broadway, 27th and 28th Streets, New York.

Mr. LELAND'S extensive knowledge of the good done by this unequalled restorer of blood poisons enables him to give inquiries much valuable information.

BY THE POOL.

From All the Year Round.

Surely he took the hard first prize in suffering's bitter school, Who lay for eight-and-thirty years, By Bethesda's wonderful pool; Who watched for eight-and-thirty years Of desperate struggle and prayer, Till strife to dull quiescence sank, And hope died to despair.

So often the rush of the miracle, Proved Faith's best dreaming true; So often the merciful angel's wings Cleft down the Syrian blue, And swept the placid waters, Till they ruffled and flashed in light, And of all the halt and plague-struck there, Just one might prove its might.

And there was never a kindly grasp To raise or succor him; Never a strong true hand to help, As he dragged him close to the brink; So very near to the healing wave The crippled form had been, And always, just as he reached it, Had some one stepped between.

What throes of mortal anguish, What bitter, helpless wail, What bursts of hard, defiant wrath Had known each effort fail! Ere conquered pain won patience, And quietly he said: "Sir, there is none to help me," To the Lord of quick and dead.

So many lie in impotence 'Neath sorrow's heavy rod; So many wait and watch and pray For the descending God. One day when hope has soared to faith, And the spirit owned its rule, The words "Rise up and walk" will come, As erst beside the pool.

GOD AND THE RIGHT.

REV. DR. NORMAN MACLEOD.

Courage, brother, do not stumble, Though thy path is dark as night; There's a star to guide the humble— "Trust in God and do the right."

Let the road be long and dreary, And its ending out of sight; Foot it bravely, strong or weary; "Trust in God and do the right."

Perish "policy" and cunning, Perish all that fears the light; Whether losing, whether winning, "Trust in God and do the right."

Trust no forms of guilty passion, Fiends can look like angels bright; Trust no custom, school, or fashion; "Trust in God and do the right."

Some will hate thee, some will love thee Some will flatter, some will slight; Cease from man, and look above thee, "Trust in God and do the right."

Simple rule and safest guiding; Inward peace and inward light; Star upon our path abiding; "Trust in God and do the right."

How to Give Good Gifts to Men and Women.

Gifts are not always blessings. It is not blessed either to give or receive, unless the gift be made in keeping with the circumstances and surroundings of the giver, and appropriate to the occasion and the circumstances and surroundings of the receiver.

Gifts are not good gifts when bestowed unseemingly and selfishly, or when accepted unappreciatively or for form's sake alone. Many a one has suffered harm, and there are instances where families have been crippled in their material resources, from the inopportune and inappropriate giving or receiving of gifts.

We have an instance in mind where a peaceful and happy home was made anything but peaceful and happy from its inmates being the recipient of an untimely and unseemly gift. The circumstances of these recipients, who had done the donor a marked favor, were moderate and measurably close, those of the giver, who was generous and "good," as the world goes, full and abundant. The latter desired to make acknowledgement of the favor, but did not know how to do so modestly and properly.

At the moment of decided action in the case, a pair of elegant, expensive and very noticeable vases attracted attention and were purchased and presented, with some flourish and both parties.

But no serpent ever entered and Eden with more subtlety than did these vases go into their new home. There was nothing in the house at all in keeping with them. Everything else was dwarfed, became insignificant and looked mean. The story of those vases is a long and sad one, leading up, by degrees, to a still sadder sequel. A suitable place must needs be provided for the vases, then this piece of furniture and then that, and another and another still, was replaced by something more in keeping with the elegant vases, until the limited means of the household were strained, not only to their strength of tension, but to breaking. Then came discord, dissension and divorce, the wife taking the baby and the vases, and the husband agreeing to maintain the baby but not the vases.

This is a true story and there are many more just such left untold, and a world full of similar ones. In fact there seems to be a vein of insanity running through the American mind—perhaps the human mind is not too broad a statement—regarding this matter of gift-giving and especially so, in the line of wedding, anniversary and holiday presents. The disposition to make a showy and attractive present, without any especial regard to fitness, on such occasions, is an alarming one and the penchant for making a pompous display of these is a crying evil, demoralizing in its effect on the minds and lives of those most deeply interested, whether giver or receiver. In fact the cravings of vanity induce many a victim to pare and scrimp in the ways of legitimate and necessary expenditure, despoiling their own comfort and convenience and hanging on the ragged edge of an unsatisfactory credit system, that they may appear on the "list" as having "made an elegant present."

Such gifts have their greatest charm and value in being the means of gratifying the curiosity of prying, and envious eyes. Nothing is more cold, forbidding and heartless than the lynx-eyed procession of present examiners on public occasions, unless it be that of formal lines of morbid humanity passing by and gazing at the empty tenement which a human soul has just vacated.

Many a bride goes out from an old home to a new one loaded down with what is really little else than a stock of goods that would only be at home in a show-case of silver-plated ware or among the treasures of a "rolled gold" brass foundry. This craze of miscellaneous gift-giving has reach such mammoth proportions and taken on such objectionable features, that a gift has come to be looked upon as "small potatoes" and the giver as being "mean" unless it shall be expensive and pretentious.

This condition of the present giving market—for it is little else than a market—robs the soul of man of one of its most sacred elements, that of the privilege of making proper expression of the existence and strength of personal regard and true friendship. An appropriate, appreciative and appreciated gift, passing unostentatiously from friend to friend, tends to permanently cement the bonds of good-fellowship, to keep bright the sunlight of affection and personal regard, which the coarser elements, that prompt to giving for fame or fashion's sake, or from selfish motives and purposes, know not of.

Lovers too often impoverish themselves and do violence to good judgment and sound sense and insult the sentiment they seek to serve, by injudicious, inappropriate and untimely gifts. A love that may be bought by show and pretense alone is neither worth the giving or receiving, or of having about the house in any form.

Volumes might be written on this subject, bristling with good and telling points, but Good Housekeeping has only space here to ask this question of its readers: Is it not high time for the Higher Life of the Household to command a halt of the popular gift-giving procession, with the view of making a right-about face in the direction of better judgment, better sense and a better purpose in the matter of Giving Good Gifts to Men—and Women?

Good Housekeeping.

AN Irish officer, giving orders to a sentinel, commanded him "not to stir a foot, but walk up and down and see what he could hear."

Josiah and Samantha at a Rink.

BY JOSIAH ALLEN'S WIFE.

When Josiah Allen and me wuz in New York village on our tower, I should have took sights of comfort if Josiah hadn't talked so much about fashion and high life, and wantin' to enter into 'em.

And one night he came into our room at Miss Astor's tavern—all roused up with a new idea. He wanted to go skatin', and I says coolly,

"How be you layin' out to skate on bare ground Josiah Allen?" And he says, "I am goin' to a Rink."

"Rink?" says I. "What's that?" That word has a strange sound to me Josiah Allen.

"Well," says he, "it did to me at first, before I got more used to fashionable life. Rink, Samantha, is, I s'pose, derived from the Greek word Rinktum, sunthin' new, a new Rinktum, you have heard of that, hain't you?"

Says I, lookin' him coolly in the eye, "I have heard of a good many things Josiah Allen, and Think of a good many, when I hear you talk."

"Greek," says I, "you don't know any more about Greek than some of the critics of old Homer do."

"Well, I know I want to skate," says he doggedly, or some doggedly—not so much dog as I have known, but considerable dogged.

Says I, "in the first place you would break your neck, and you know it."

"Well, it is my neck, hain't it?" says he cross.

"No," says I tenderly, "no, it is my neck, the neck I wedded at the altar of Jonesville and pure love. And I can't seem to understand how you are agoin' to skate on a Rink."

And then he explained it to me, how a Rink wuz where they went a skatin' on little rollers, and slipped and slid round, jest like puttin' a man on castors and pushin' im. And says he pleadin'.

"Do less go Samantha—less go to-night. I have got my skates all ready—less go."

"Oh no," says I, "I have got to go to meetin' to-night."

It was Wednesday night, and I had hunted up a prayer meetin', and I beset him to go with me, but he said he couldn't go.

Says I, "you will not deceive me and go forth alone to the Rink-tum?"

No, he said he wuzn't goin' to the Rink—but he had a pressin' engagement—and he as good as told me it wuz a case of life and death with him. And I gin in, seein' how earnest and determined he looked. Why, he wuz fairly pale, he wuz so earnest in it. But he wouldn't confide, and I sot out immediately after supper.

And when I got back from prayer meetin' I heard a strange sound inside our room, and for one-half a moment was fearful of bein' burgled, the sound wuz so uncommon strange and wierd.

I opened the door cautious, and there stood Josiah Allen in the centre of the room, on castors, a movin' himself round like a buro.

Says I, "Josiah Allen what are you on castors for?" Says I, "Has luny overtaken you, and do you think you are a piece of furniture—or have you bought some castors for our buro, and are tryin' em to see if they are good ones, or what daz ail you?"

"I am skatin', Samantha. These are roller skates, I am enterin' high life," says he, a leavin' the wall, and movin' towards me—"I am a bein' fashionable."

And at that very minute, both of the castors rolled out from under him, and he fell prostrate at my feet.

"Fashionable!" says I, "I should think as much." But I helped him up, and perswaded him to forego his diversions for the present, and as he had hit his head badly, he de-stisted, and I rubbed his scalp hard with ananky.

But way along in the dead silence of the night, I waked up sudden, thrilled with wierd and vague alarm. It seems to me it was about the vaguest I ever see, and the wierdest.

What wuz the matter? Where wuz I? The wall paper looked strange to me and the pictures. Then it come to me that I wuzn't in my own cozy bedroom at home, I was on a tower.

But as my senses came back, this thought pierced me like aro—"Where wuz my Josiah?" His place by my side was vacant.

"Where wuz my beloved companion?" I nearly screamed, but held back my emotions with a iron grip, and only groaned. Then I riz up to explore. And as I advanced towards the door into the hall I heard a strange sound proceedin' out of it.

I advanced with tripadation and bare feet, and glanced cautiously out. And then I see a white ghostly form glidin' afar down the corridor, and anon, it turned and mov-towards me.

I felt myself glued with glue to the spot—I could not move, for I felt that I wuz beholdin' a fantem. Says I to myself, "I have always been lookin' out for it, and now the time has come that I am bein' appeared to. Be calm, Samantha! Be calm! John Rogers—the Twins—"

Thus did I strive to strengthen myself, as the fantem advanced towards me—but as it drew nearer, I see sunthin' familiar in the appearance of the shade. And I murmured to myself. Did a ghost ever ap-in a tall hat, and not much other clothes to speak of—I will challenge the shade.

And as it drew still nearer, movin' along in a curious glidin' way, I says,

"Whence comest thou? and why?" And you could have knocked me down with a pin feather, as it were, as a familiar voice replied,

"I am a practicin' skatin', Samantha. I couldn't sleep, and so I got up, and have been skatin' a little."

Says I, "Do you realize how you look, Josiah Allen—why haint you dressed?"

"Oh! I took it into my head sudden, and didn't premeditate any—I didn't make no great preparations, as you may say."

Well, if you haint dressed, why did you put your hat on?"

Oh! I thought that in a careless way, I would have a little regard for appearances, if I happened to meet any lady. Hats are easy to get on—and hats are very fashionable.

Well, says I, sternly, "Do you come right in here this minute. It would disgrace us to the last days of our life if anybody should ketch you in this condition!"

"Oh!" I groaned, as he complied with my wishes. This is indeed hard for her whose name wuz once Smith. It is fearful hard.

"Wall, it is just what I have always heard, Samantha, that fashion wuz hard—that its votaries had to work hard to keep up with it."

Fashion! says I

Mr. James T. Hays has completed his new shop, with its fine roomy and well ventilated sales-room and office, it presents a very inviting appearance.

Mr. Ashbaugh has finished the paving of the alley to the Elias Church.

Mr. DAVE DEWEY, Editor of the Spirit of the Valley, Harrisburg, Pa., dropped dead of heart disease at that place Sunday morning May 31. Mr. DeWey at one time was editor of the Hagerstown Mail. His remains were interred at Shepherdstown, W. Va.

A Survey of Taneytown has been made by Mr. Paul Craver, of York, Pa., within the past few days. The object is the leveling of grades; construction of sewers, &c. The improvements will be marked, and have been long needed in that thriving little town.—U. B. Era.

When the work of the Town Hall shall have begun, there can be no just reason why the shell of a building called, "The Engine House," should not be sold, and the money invested in the Hall, with cells for law-breakers; firemen's rooms, &c., hence we call for a building with entrances on two sides.

All Together.

Our Masons, Carpenters, Plasterers, Painters, Plumbers, Store-keepers, Capitalists, &c., are all about equally interested in the erection of the Town Hall, and should move on to the work in concert, and not wait for others to do it, and then grumble and growl and get generally crooked for being overlooked.

The following letters remain in the Post Office, Emmitsburg, Md. June 8, 1885. Persons calling will please say advertised, otherwise they may not receive them:

Mrs. Annalyn Brown, Wm. J. Callend, Miss Helen Gross, Wm. H. Hall (2), Miss Kate Shindler, &c.

A Triumph for the Girls.

Annals, June 6.—In a game of base ball played this morning between the boys and girls, the latter defeated the boys by four runs, the score being 26 to 40. The game was very amusing and at times exciting. The boys feel quite sore over their unexpected defeat.—Frederick News.

The Frederick Weekly News appeared on Saturday last as a mammoth ten paged paper, having much matter descriptive of places of business; the history, growth and present condition of the City and County of Frederick. They achieved the greatest newspaper success ever attained in the County, and illustrated the same with excellent maps.

The Old Swimming Hole.

Being ready to accommodate its patrons with a thorough wash, is the resort of the perspiring crowds of this place. There is when they strike out, as their fathers did before them. To name the spot, is to recall bright days, to many whose failing vision and tottering limbs, leave them but happy memories of departed joys.

An Old County Resident Gone.

Elder Daniel P. Saylor, of the German Baptist, or Brethren Church, died at his residence at Double Pipe Creek on Saturday last. He was buried at the Brethren Meeting-house at Rocky Ridge, Frederick county, Tuesday. He was born near Beaver Dam, Frederick county, June 23, 1811, of parents who were among the earliest settlers of this part of the State.—Frederick News.

On Friday, May 15th, a son of Mrs. Angeline Green, of Carlisle left or was persuaded away from his home, and has not been seen since Sunday, May 17th. He is aged 17 years, five feet eight inches tall, dark hair, dark eyes and dark complexion; wore dark suit of clothes and black cadet hat. Any information concerning him will be thankful to his distressed mother. The boy's name was John Green.—Keystone Gazette.

Death of Mrs. Shaw.

Mrs. Shaw, widow of the late Frank Shaw, of Woodsboro', died at the residence of her son-in-law, J. M. Newman, in Woodsboro', on Wednesday last, in her 77th year. Mrs. Shaw was the mother of John W. Geo. W., and the present member of Congress from the 4th Congressional District, Dr. E. T. Shaw. She was an estimable lady and was beloved by a large circle of friends.—Frederick Citizen.

The Town Hall.

The course of events next demands the earnest and active attention of our citizens, to the building of the Town Hall.

What we need in the case, is simply some large-hearted person to take hold of the matter, and in a short while we can have five hundred shares of the stock taken, at $10 per share. We specify this sum, because the shares should be low enough to give every one a chance to aid in the work. Then we must have a corner lot, for a front and a side entrance, the building must be ornamental, frescoed and finished complete for its several uses, even to the minutest particulars. It must be the work of our home-mechanics, with home materials. Mr. Jno. M. Stouter, can furnish the brick, as low as they can be made, and he proposes to donate 5,000 of them to the cause. Who now first says: "I take 100 shares at $10 each, as a starter for the organization?" Everybody awaits the first move, no one doubts the investment will be a paying one. Now let Moses stand forth!

A Parsonage Robbed.

We learn from the Lewistown, Pa., Gazette, of May 27th, that the house of Rev. C. W. Heister, of that place was entered by thieves about 2 o'clock, a.m. on Sunday previous, and robbed of a suit of clothes, several coats, and other clothing, some silverware, &c., together with a draft for $40, (unendorsed) belonging to Mr. H's brother-in-law, Mr. Bingham of Iowa. The thieves were captured, and the most part of the stolen goods were recovered.

Mr. DAVID HOOVER, of Chewsville district, has the sympathy of the community in a new bereavement, the death of his eldest daughter, Mrs. Martha Spahr, which occurred last Thursday morning. This is the third child Mr. Hoover has lost within the past 9 months, his son Cyrus, a young member of the bar of this city, having died on his way home from the West last September and another son, Albert, in February or March last.—Herald and Torch Light.

More Frederick County Postmasters.

Those who have good opportunities of knowing confidently affirm that the following persons are recommended by the Central Committee for postmasterhips in the county at the places named and that their official appointment will be made in a few days—Liberty, George W. Elzler; Buckeystown, A. J. McKenna; Middletown, Dr. Emory Bowles; Adamstown, George T. Kohlberg; (present incumbent); Point of Rocks, Richard Thomas; Myersville, Mrs. Biser. It is understood that no change is contemplated in the postoffice at Emmitsburg, the present holder of the office being a deserving Union Soldier. The remaining county postmasters have not yet been decided on.—Frederick News June 9.

Extensive Lima Bean Cultivation.

Punktown promises to become the headquarters for lima beans, several parties in and near that place having extensive tracts devoted to the cultivation of this vegetable. Mr. John Rose, a short distance south of Punktown, has already planted 4,000 hills of beans, which represents to that gentleman alone, in the event of a favorable season, an aggregate yield of 4,000 quarts of beans. Messrs. Joseph and Herman Kemp have also, 2,000 hills each, and numbers of others have proportionately large tracts devoted to the raising of beans. Each hill is marked by a tall pole, and the scene thus presented is as novel to the stranger as those interested expect it to be profitable to them. Should this experiment prove a success, the acreage will be increased next year.—Globe.

A Narrow Escape.

An angur run by steam was being worked on last Monday in boring posts on the farm of Mr. James O. Bissard, two miles north of town. Mr. Jacob Earley, a young man employed on the farm, was standing against a post opposite the angur, when the tool came through, and catching in his clothing at the abdomen, quickly penetrated through two pairs of pants he had on at the time and nearly tore them off of his person. Most fortunate for the young man, just when the point of the angur had touched his skin it broke, and he was thus delivered from a horrible death.

Since the above was put in type we understand that Mr. Earley sustained greater injury than was at first supposed, that his person was penetrated by the point of the angur and that he suffers considerably from the injury. On Tuesday Mr. Bissard took him to his home, near Harmony.—Valley Register.

Precautions Against Lightning.

Deaths from lightning are being reported. Five persons were stricken down in Chicago the other week, a woman elsewhere, was killed whilst standing at work by her cook stove. Some knowledge of the laws that govern in electrical phenomena, will aid in guarding against personal injury. For general purposes it may be regarded a fixed fact that lightning will strike the highest object in its course, and thus it comes that trees are so often struck; the sap in them being a good conductor will convey it to the ground. But a person's head is a still better conductor, hence to take shelter under a tree during a thunder storm is extremely dangerous, because the fluid will leave the tree and strike the better and easier course of access to the ground.

A chimney that is foul with soot presents a very attractive course to electricity, the more so if there is a current of warm air from a fire below.

It is therefore safest for a person to lie flat on the ground when overtaken by a storm; to keep the chimneys clean, and avoid being near the draught of one during the storm. The middle part of a room is regarded the safest position to occupy, away from points of attraction, such as bright, pointed metallic substances, looking-glasses and the like, the quick-silver on the mirror often proves attractive, a recumbent posture is safer than standing. To recline on a feather-bed is very safe. The warm currents in a barn from newly stored hay or grain are the most frequent causes of such structures being injured or burnt. This may be avoided by storing the products until they are thoroughly dry. Examination of the locality where a discharge has occurred will often reveal the previously unknown cause of it, and aid against its recurrence by removing it. A good lightning-rod properly made, and attached to a building, will not fail to make it secure. Persons who become nervously excited during a heavy storm, should have their premises, thus secured, and make frequent observations to see that the points on the conductors are bright and sharp, and keep the rods painted black, so that rust will not make them inefficient. Electricity does not confine itself to the surface of the iron, but permeates the entire body, hence the need to keep the surface free of breaks from rust, &c.

The Handsomest.

Some of our contemporaries are boasting about the beautiful ladies in their home localities, and they get wonderfully mixed. Beauty at best is a relative term; we once knew of a man who married a notoriously ugly woman, and yet honestly declared her married for beauty. Isolated cases don't always admit of a correct judgment, we insist that there can be no criticism to be depended upon, until Emmitsburg is visited, we have the real article here, with many specimens, and varieties of excellence, and more of them in the proportion to the population than elsewhere. The fact is so certainly established, we don't boast about it, hence the reticence. True merit like charity, "vaunteth not itself."

A Question of Taste.

There are diversities of gifts, as also of tastes. Those who boast of bathing in the rising sun light; brushing the early dews; noting the blushing countenance of Aurora as she climbs the eastern hills, and all that, are fully entitled to all the delight they can find from thus early invading the domains of nature. But we prefer to wait until the chemical laboratories of the Sun, have commingled and purified the darksome deposits of the night, and made the air clean and sweet and habitable, ere we sail forth to the duties of daily labour. There is always more or less cunning and trickery attributed to these early birds, for which we have no affinity.

The Firemen's Festival.

The Festival for the benefit of the Vigilant Hose company of this place began last week agreeably to the programme we published, and after a most successful run of several days and evenings closed on Tuesday evening last with an auction.

The rooms were beautifully decorated for the occasion, with flags and evergreens and a profusion of flowers in vases, tastefully arranged with a variety of bright and beautiful and useful articles completed a most attractive scene of entertainment. The tables for refreshments were distributed for convenience and comfort and business, and served there object most admirably. Large crowds were in constant attendance; perfect order was maintained throughout. On Saturday Evening, not only was the room closely crowded but standing room was not easily found on the foot walks, and the sea of humanity surged mid-way into the street. The Mechanicstown band with attendant citizens came up that evening, and contributed not a little to the musical entertainment whilst visitors from Gettysburg Taneytown and other surrounding villages added greatly to the mass of patrons.

The total receipt were $720 35 of which sum $535 68 was clear profit. The whole affair passed off creditably to all who were engaged in it, and proved the most successful festival ever held in Emmitsburg. Success to the firemen.

FIRE AT WOODSBORO.

[Special by Telephone.]

WOODSBORO, MD., June 12.—About 3 o'clock, a.m., to-day, a fire broke out in the stables of Mr. James Smith's Hotel, in this place, and from there was communicated to the house, and spread to the house of Mr. George Shaw, and the house and stable of Mrs. Myers. The fire was of incendiary origin, and two painters, one named George Heffrite, have been arrested. The loss was very heavy the property was insured, but to what amount has not been learned.

Buy at Home.

To make a town thriving and prosperous, and for each and every one to share in the general prosperity, is to patronize home merchants, home mechanics, and buy home products. The more trading there is done at home, the more bought from home merchants and the more work given to home mechanics, will cause a larger circulation of money in and around such a town. If you want your own interests to prosper, buy from your neighbor, and bettering his condition will thereby enable you to advance your business interests. If you want a town to present a business appearance you must buy what you consume, in that town, but if you want to sacrifice the prospects and the business of your own town, go elsewhere to buy what you need, and you are enriching other cities and towns at a considerable loss to your own. If you want to drive want and misery from your town, encourage those at home to do your work and pay a living price for what is done. The idea that many people have, that they can buy cheaper in other towns than at home is very often a great mistake, for home merchants can and do sell as cheap or cheaper, if they are properly patronized, for their expenses are not nearly so great as those of merchants of large cities. What your home trade needs, to compete with the large cities, is all of your trade, to encourage them to buy largely and at the lowest prices, and in so doing you will be saved a large per centage, that is always very acceptable to every individual.—Er.

From the Compiler.

Mr. Samuel Atwell, formerly of this place, was found dead in bed at Chambersburg on Tuesday morning.

The young peaches are dropping from the trees in Delaware and Maryland in such numbers as to alarm the peach growers. They are also falling fast in this locality.

The Lutheran Synod excursion from Harrisburg to Gettysburg on Wednesday embraced about 500 people, who took in the battlefield by train and hacks very industriously and pleasantly. All seemed delighted with the excursion.

A snake, nine feet long and about seven inches in diameter at the thickest part, was found on a farm near Starbuck, Susquehanna county, Pa., last week, helpless from gorging a young lamb, and was killed with a fence stake.

Mount Holly Springs had another fire on Tuesday, the Shelly store building and dwelling and the residences of Henry Wolf and Mr. Coe being consumed. Two engines were sent out from Carlisle. The fire is attributed to a defective flue. Loss $10,000; partially covered by insurance.

Mr. Samuel McKenrick of Buchanan Valley, writes us that, on Friday, whilst hunting bees in the mountain above Pine Grove, he came across four wolves tearing a heifer to pieces. He supposes they came from the North Mountain, as wolves have not been seen in the South Mountain for many years.

We hear also that Mr. Franklin B. Weaver, of Menallen, who had young cattle running in the mountain, found a heifer so badly torn as to render its recovery impossible and had it killed.

Father Boll has purchased about 5 acres of land, between the west end of High street and the Round-top Branch Railroad, to be used as a cemetery for St. Francis Xavier's church. The location is good, easy of access, and the ground susceptible of high improvement and ornamentation. S. J. Codori purchased two lots of about 8 acres from G. F. Reichle at $1,000, and gives the church about 5 acres at the same rate.

From the Star and Sentinel.

The House of Representatives at Harrisburg has passed the appropriation of $1,000 to mark the spot where Gen. Reynolds was killed. The act provides that the money shall be spent under the direction of Corporal Skelly Post No. 9, G. A. R. The bill was introduced by Mr. Stocklegger, and through his energetic and indefatigable efforts has been passed through the House of which he is a member. Senator Wagner will take charge of it in the Senate, and the probability is it will become a law.

The General Synod of the Evangelical Lutheran church adjourned on Tuesday night to meet in Omaha, Nebraska, in 1887. On Wednesday a special train from Harrisburg brought to Gettysburg about 500 ladies and gentlemen, including prominent ministers and lay delegates to the Synod. The train moved direct to Round Top Park, returning to town between 11 and 12 o'clock. The visitors here scattered, going to the college, seminary, national cemetery, and other points of interest. At 1 p. m. the special train left for Carlisle, where the Indian school was visited.

An Editorial Spread Out.

On Thursday evening as we attempted to cross the street opposite Capt. Eyster's the support of our right side went suddenly down into an ancient post-hole, that was left uncovered by the curb-line, of course we made several undignified gymnastic performances, and landed squarely, on our back, with a terrible wrenching of the shoulders that necessitated a resort to our home hydrant for comfort. We call now upon the town fathers to visit that hole, and estimate the damages. We have no idea of becoming crippled in the public service, by way of a blasted pitfall.

Was He Stung by a Locust?

FREDERICK, Md., June 9.—Lewis Mehring, residing in Frederick, while walking in Mt. Olivet Cemetery on Sunday evening last, picked up a locust and was stung on the thumb, presumably by a digger wasp, although he thinks it was by the locust. The sensation was similar to that produced by a slight prick of a pin, and the matter was quickly forgotten. About 4 o'clock yesterday morning, however, he was awakened by an intense pain in his arm, which, with the shoulder, was very much swollen and discolored. Everything appeared dark, he says, before his eyes. He immediately called for assistance, and was advised to bathe his arm freely with whisky, and also to take a considerable quantity of the liquor internally, which he did. Since then the stiffness and swelling have become very much reduced, but even yet his thumb presents a greenish appearance. When it was suggested that he had been stung by a digger wasp, Mr. Mehring insisted that such was not the case, inasmuch as he had distinctly noted the movements of the locust. The egg depositor of the female cicada (17-year locust) somewhat resembles the weapon of the hornet. With it she makes slits in the twigs which are as clean cuts as though with the point of a lancet. The question is raised if the female locust may not poison the human flesh with this instrument.—Sun.

The Board of Public Works last week appointed Mr. Frank Brown, of Carroll county, a director of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad on the part of the State, vice Hon. Outerbridge Horsey, of this county.

On Sunday last Miss Rose Marcell, an aged and respected lady, died at the residence of Dr. William Baltzell, on East Second street, in the 73rd year of her age. Miss Marcell formerly lived at Natchez, Miss., but for many years past has resided in Frederick. The funeral of the deceased took place on Tuesday morning, and interment was made in St. John's Catholic cemetery. Rev. Father Ciampi officiated.

At two o'clock last Sunday afternoon the new Reformed church at Buckeystown was dedicated with appropriate ceremonies. There were present Revs. Dr. Eschbach, T. F. Hoffmeyer, N. H. Skyles, H. W. Hoffmeyer, A. Shulenberger and A. J. Heller, the pastor. The dedication services were conducted by Rev. Mr. Heller, who was assisted chiefly by Dr. Eschbach, the other ministers present also participating. The sermon was delivered by Rev. T. F. Hoffmeyer. There was an immense concourse of people present, only about half of whom were able to get into the church during the services. The church is built of brick, Gothic style, recess pulpit and entrance and with tower. The entire cost was about $2,500. A debt of $1,300 was provided for on Sunday, nearly $600 being collected at the time, and the balance subscribed. The church is one of the Manor charge.

Agricultural.

Beans as a Farm Crop.
 "I should think," said the Doctor, "that the farmers on the new, cheap land of the Northwest would go into the raising of beans on a large scale." "When I was in Minnesota and Dakota last fall," said I, "the same idea struck me. The soil and the climate are favorable. But possibly there would be a difficulty in procuring the necessary labor to pull the beans." "If they should grow the crop on a large scale," said the Doctor, "they would very soon have a machine to pull the beans, or, possibly, to thrash them where they stand. We ought to raise beans enough to supply the world. As matters now are, beans are grown on a comparatively circumscribed area, and any trivial cause may greatly enhance prices and thus effectually stop the foreign demand. Some years, beans are down to a dollar a bushel, and then up to three dollars per bushel. Of course, such extreme fluctuations seriously interfere with foreign trade. But let the Northwest take hold of the matter, and we should have a large area to draw from, and steadier prices and a larger trade would be the result. Beans are the most nutritious of all vegetables. They will keep from year to year. They do not need grinding into flour, like wheat, and moreover can be easily transported any distance. Let us have more beans—especially for export."—JOSEPH HARRIS in American Agriculturist for June.

Baltimore County Figs.

Mr. Wm. Fowler, of Clifton Park Garden, the late John Hopkins' estate, says he has cultivated figs for the past twenty-five years with success, and in that time has never failed in securing a crop. The method of treatment used by him he gives as follows: From the 10th to the 20th of November we dig a trench around the bushes, cutting away about half of the roots they have made the late season, when the bushes are growing vigorously, and less when they are not so robust, bending down the branches to the ground in the form of a cross and covering them with earth from the trenches from three to four inches in thickness, and in spring uncovering them from the 1st to the 10th of April. They bear fruit abundantly, ripening about the 1st of July, and continuing to bear until November, and later if not destroyed by frost. Of about twenty-four fig bushes, each covering eighteen feet in diameter, we have in one year sold over twenty bushels of fruit, besides supplying the table. The soil here is a poor, gravelly loam, with clay sub-soil, but requires no manure for figs. So far as I know, the fig is exempt from disease and insects in outside culture.—Baltimore County Union.

Cheese for Poultry.

Mr. Young will use nothing else. Brown Chemical Co., manufacturers, Baltimore, Md.

A LEMON Pudding may be quickly made by taking three tablespoons of corn starch mixed with a little cold water. Pour boiling water into this, stirring until thick. Add one cup of white sugar, juice and pulp of two lemons, and the yolks of two eggs, and bake about half an hour. Beat up the whites, and sweeten; brown in the oven.

Run your black walnut sewing machine, tables, your cabinet organ, or any other piece of solid furniture you may have, with a cloth moistened with kerosene oil, and you will quickly see an improvement; but keep it away from varnish.

Miscellaneous.

A Use for Old Lace.

Who has not hoarded a piece of old black silk lace, which has finally "given out," and with all manner of fine darning refuses to do longer service on the "best black silk?" Do not throw it away; but mend it the best you can, and with colored embroidery silks work over the principal flower or pattern and the edge. In this way the darned places may be entirely covered up, and the result is an excellent trimming for a table cover and various other fancy articles; it may be used even to trim a cashmere dress with good effect. If you have a black Spanish lace fichu which is in bad order, try this method with it, and see how its beauty and its years may be extended. A white lace fichu may be treated the same way with lovely effect; only do not expect it to wash without "running" unless possibly gold-colored embroidery may be excepted. If you have no time for real embroidery, mere outline work on the figures is very pretty. We have seen black lace first basted to a pale shade of satin to stiffen it, and the embroidery then worked through the whole, finishing the scallops with button-hole stitch. Old white lace edging which has been stained with weak coffee can be prettily embroidered in colors and utilized as frilling to put around handkerchief boxes, pin-cushions, etc., and will last a long time.—The Household.

A WHITER, alluding to hog cholera, thinks that the disease may often be traced to bad treatment on the part of the farmer. The infamous plan of leaving the hog for months in wet, mud, sun and bad weather, now and then without food, sometimes with shelter and then none, feeding them whole corn in their own excrements and urine, and generally supposing that nothing can happen to hogs, until they are sick and nearly dead, is one that needs reform, and that of a radical character. It is much more economical to prevent disease than to allow it to get in a herd and then try to cure it.

Man, if we could just mind one thing he said it would do us guid."

AN old man who said he had two sons in the newspaper business recently applied for admission to the almshouse. The sons, who are traveling in the same direction, say they were willing to support their father, but he refused to live on cough syrups, kidney pads and liver regulator, and declined to use due bills which were good for sewing machines, melodeons and lawn mowers, by paying about eight-sevenths of their price in cash. That was the best the sons could do, and the old man preferred to go over the hills to the poorhouse.

AN exchange refers amusingly to an unquestioned case of faith cure which came under the editor's notice. A gentleman expressed his full belief in it. He had tried it successfully in his family. His boy was diseased. He "laid his hands upon him" and cured him. The disease was a chronic reluctance to attend school. The remedy was effectual.

A MAN having built a large house was at a loss what to do with the rubbish. His Irish steward advised him to have a pit dug large enough to contain it. "And what?" said he smiling, "what shall I do with the earth I dig up from it?" To which the steward with great gravity replied, "Have the pit made large enough to hold it all."

WASH a baby clean and dress him up prettily and he will resist all advances with a most superlative crossness, but let him eat gingerbread and fool around the coal-stuffer for half-an-hour, and he will nestle his dear little dirty face close up to your clean shirt front, and be just the loveliest, cunningest little rascal in all the world.

DRUNKENNESS comprises all other vices. It is the dictionary of vice, for it includes every vice. Drunkenness means pectulation, theft, robbery, arson, murder; for it leads to all these crimes.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

"I'm just immersed in my business," said the teacher of swimming.

"I SEE the French have taken umbrage," said old Gosling, as he read the paper to his wife. "More fools the Chinese for not fortifying it better," said Mrs. Gosling.—Providence Tel.

"TOMMY, did you hear your mother call you?" "Course I did." "Then why don't you go to her at once?" "Well, you see, she's nervous, and it'd shock her awful if I should go too sudden."

A YOUNG Boston lady, visiting here, sent out for a local physician, and when he arrived she astonished him by saying: "Doctah, my disorganized anatomy is refractory, with an attack of Williamousness."—Whitehall Times.

THE boy wanted to go in swimming. "But, my son," said the anxious parent, "swimming is unhealthy." It was only this morning that you were complaining of a pain in your stomach." "That's so, pa; but I know how to swim on my back."

The Bishop's Visit.
 A country minister recently made the following announcement to his congregation: "On next Sabbath morning the Bishop will be with us, and will deliver the sermon, May the Lord help and strengthen us all."

AN Eastern family received a telegram from the West announcing the sudden demise of a relative, and they replied, "Send on the remains at once." No telegram was received in answer, but in a few days a letter came saying simply: "There aint no remains. He war kiet by a mule."

At a wedding in Cork lately the bride's youngest brother, just out of a jacket, rose after breakfast, and said: "Ladies and gentlemen, I have to propose a toast, which must be drunk standing." The guests rose accordingly. "Now," said young hopeful, "if you will kindly keep on your legs for a few minutes I will find out who has been sitting on my new hat."

"I was very sorry, boss, dat I was led astray ter take de watch," said Jim Webster to an Austin justice.

"I am glad to see that you regret your crime. What was it that led you to take the watch?" replied His Honor, calmly.

"I was deluded by de chain, sah. I bleevied it was a solid gold chain, and dat ar was a gold watch hanging at de end of it. De chain deluded me, sah, inter taking de watch. De brass chain am de course ob all ob dese heah compler-cashuns."

"You will not be deceived by chains for a time at least if I can help it," remarked His Honor, giving him two months on the chain gang.

 Smith's Tonic Syrup
 FEVER and ACUE
 Or CHILLS and FEVER,
 AND ALL MALARIAL DISEASES.

The proprietor of this celebrated medicine justly claims for it a superiority over all remedies ever offered to the human race. It is a SAFE, CERTAIN, SPEEDY and PERMANENT cure of Acute and Chronic Malaria, whether of short or long standing. He refers to the entire literature of the South country to bear him out in the truth of the assertion that in no case whatever will it fail to cure if the directions are strictly followed, and that in a great many cases a single dose has been sufficient for a cure, and that families have been cured by a single bottle, with a perfect restoration of the general health. It is, however, prudent, and in every case more certain to cure, if it is continued in smaller doses for a week or two. Malaria disease has been checked, more or less, in difficult and long-standing cases, and this medicine will not only keep the bowels in good order, but the patient, however, requiring a continuance of the medicine, after having taken the first dose of the Tonic, a single dose of BULL'S VEGETABLE FAMILY PILLS will be sufficient.

BULL'S SARSAPARILLA is the old and reliable remedy for impurities of the blood and Scrofulous affections.
