WARREN LELAND,

whom everybody knows as the successful manager of the Largest Hotel Enterprises

of America, says that while a passenger from New York on board a ship going around Cape Horn, he learned that one of the officers of the vessel had cured himself, during the voyage, of an obstinate disease by the use of

Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

Since then Mr. LELAND has recommended Ayer's Sarsaparilla in many similar cases, and he has never yet heard of its failure to effect a radical cure.

Some years ago one of Mr. LELAND's farm laborers bruised his leg. Owing to the bad state of his blood, an ugly scrofulous swelling or lump appeared on the injured limb. Horrible itching of the skin, with burning and darting pains through the lump, made life almost intolerable. The leg became enormously enlarged, and running ulcers formed, discharging great quantities of extremely offensive matter. No treatment was of any avail until the man, by Mr. LELAND's direction, was supplied with Ayer's Sarsaparilla, which allayed the pain and irritation, healed the sores, removed the swelling, and completely restored the limb to use. Mr. LELAND has personally used for Rheumatism, with entire success; and, after careful observation, declares that, in his belief, there is no medicine in the world equal to it for the cure of Liver Disorders, Gout, the effects of high living, Salt Rheum, Sores, Eruptions, and all the various forms of blood diseases.

We have Mr. LELAND's permission to invite all who may desire further evidence in regard to the extraordinary curative powers of Ayer's Sarsaparilla to see him personally either at his mammoth Ocean Hotel, Long Branch, or at the popular Leland Hotel, Broadway, 27th and 28th Streets, New York.

Mr. LELAND's extensive knowledge of the good done by this unequalled eradicator of blood poisons enables him to give inquiries much valuable information.

HAGAN'S

is a secret aid to beauty.

Many a lady owes her freshness to it, who would rather not tell, and you can't tell.

A LESSON TO LOVERS.

She, with a milk pail on her arm, Turns aside with her young cheeks glowing, And sees down the lane the slow, dull tread Of the drove of cows that are homeward going. "Bessie," he said. At the sound she turned, Her blue eyes full of childish wonder. "My mother is feeble and lame and old. I need a wife at my farm house yonder."

"My heart is lonely, my home is drear, I need your presence ever near me; Will you be my guardian angel, dear, Queen of my household, to guide and cheer me?"

"It hath a pleasant sound," she said; "A household queen, a guiding spirit, To warm your heart and cheer your spirit."

And keep the sunshine ever near it. But I am only a simple child, So my mother says in her daily chiding. And what must a guardian angel do When she first begins her work of guiding?"

"Well, first, dear Bessie, a smiling face Is dearer far than the rarest beauty, And my mother, fretful, lame and old, Will require a daughter's loving duty; You will see to her flannels, drops and tea."

And talk with her of lungs and liver, Give her your cheerful service, dear; 'The Lord He loveth a cheerful giver.'

"You will see that my breakfast is piping hot, And rub the clothes to a snowy whiteness; Make golden butter and snowy rolls, And polish things to a shining brightness; Will darn my stockings and mend my coats."

And see that the buttons are sewed on tightly; You will keep things cheerful and neat and sweet. That home's altar fires may still burn brightly.

"You will read me at evening the Daily News, The tedious winter nights beguiling, And never forget that the sweetest face Is a cheerful face that is always smiling."

In short, you'll arrange in a general way For a sort of sublimity heaven, For home, dear Bessie, say what we may, Is the highest sphere to a woman given."

The lark sung out to the bending sky The bobolink piped in the nodding tushes, And out of the tossing clover blooms Came the sweet, clear song of the meadow thrushes;

And Bessie, listening, paused awhile, They said, with a shy glance at her neighbor— "But, John—do you mean—that is to say, What shall I get for all this labor?"

"To be nurse, companion and servant girl; To make home's altar fires burn brightly; To wash and iron and scrub and cook, And always be cheerful, neat and sprightly; To give up liberty, home and friends, Nay, even the name of a mother's giving."

To do all this for one's board and clothes— Why, the life of an angel isn't worth living!"

And Bessie gayly went her way Down through the fields of scented clover, But never again since that summer day Has she won a glance from her rustic lover.

The lark sings out to the bending sky, The clouds sail on as white as ever, The clovers toss in the summer wind, But Bessie has lost that chance for ever.

MY LUCK IN A TUNNEL.

AN OLD MINER'S STORY.

I am an old miner. Not one of the nowadays stripe, but an old forty-nine Californian miner. I have been engaged in all descriptions of mining transactions, except the new-fangled one of mining stock in companies "feet," I believe they call it. Among my varied undertakings was one operation in a tunnel, in which I and my partners engaged in the summer of 1882.

One afternoon in that year, as I was carrying up a bucket of water from the river to our tent at the top of the bank, my foot caught under a large stone, and my perpendicular was at once changed to a horizontal posture, while the water from the overturned bucket spread itself in various directions.

I raised myself to my feet again, and picking up the bucket was about to retrace my steps to the river, when my attention was attracted by a folded paper, which had been placed under the stone causing my fall. When my foot tripped, the stone was overturned, and the paper, folded in letter form lay exposed to view. Bending over, I picked it up, and proceeded to examine it. It was written with pencil, in characters very irregular and stiffly formed, as if made by a person with a wounded hand. The contents were as follows:

If this letter should fall into the hands of any person, I wish to inform them that I have been attacked and mortally wounded by my two partners who wish to obtain my money. Failing to discover it, after wounding me, they have fled, leaving me here to die. Whoever gets this letter will find, buried in a ravine at the foot of a blazed tree, twenty-five paces due north of this, a bag containing five thousand dollars in gold dust. That it may prove more fortunate property to him than it has to me, is the hope of—

ANDREW FORREST.

I stood for some minutes after reading the letter like one awakened from a dream. I could not convince myself that the letter in my hand was a genuine document, and read it over and over again, thinking I might get some clue from the handwriting to the real author. It might be a trick got up by my partners to raise a laugh at my expense. No, the place where it was found, and the purely accidental discovery, rendered such a surmise very improbable. I sat down on a log and turned the matter over in my mind for some time. At last I got up, and pacing off the required distance in the direction mentioned in the letter, I came to a large tree. Carefully examining it, I discovered a scar clearly indicating that the tree had been "blazed" at some remote period. This was confirmation strong as proof of Holy Writ; and I immediately went to work to discover the locality of the ravine. Here I was at fault. Nothing of the kind was to be seen. To all appearances a stream of water, never had passed in the neighborhood of the tree. This was not encouraging; and I sat down on the ground and read the letter again, to see if I had not mistaken some of its directions. No, I was in the right place, but where was the ravine?

A tap on the shoulder aroused me from my meditation, and on looking up I saw my two partners, who loudly abused me for having neglected the preparations for their supper. As an excuse I showed them the letter, and detailed the manner of finding it. To my surprise, they were as much excited by its perusal as I had been, and looked around perseveringly for the ravine, but without effect for some time. At last Jack Nesbitt, who had been a miner since '48, said:

"I think there has been a ravine here, but it has been filled up by the rains."

On close examination we decided that his suspicion was correct, and after some consultation we determined that the next morning we would commence digging.

Morning came, and we repaired to the spot with pick and shovel. Jack proposed that we should follow the course of the ravine, which appeared to run into the body of the hill, rather than to dig in any one place. The result was that in a few days we had formed quite a cave in the side of the hill.

We worked at this tunnel for four days without finding the bag. On the fourth day Jack promised that he and my other partner, Bill Jennings, should carry the dirt down to the river, and wash it, leaving me to dig in the tunnel. In that way, they thought, we might at least "make grub," while searching for the hidden money. I thought the idea foolish, but as they had entered so eagerly into my views regarding the buried bag of dust, I made no objection to the plan, and dug away with redoubled energy. In fact, I had thought so much about the object of our search that I had become utterly regardless of anything else. I had dreamt of it when sleeping, mused on it when waking, and it had obtained complete control of my mind. Day after day we worked—I digging and my companions washing; yet, strange to say, I did not become discouraged. They said nothing about the bag of gold dust, and I asked them nothing about the result of their washing the excavated soil.

We had worked about three weeks, and had formed a tunnel extending about fifteen feet into the hill, when, on one afternoon, completely tired out, I sat down to rest in the cave. I had only intended to sit a little while, but five minutes had not elapsed before I was fast asleep. I was awakened by a crash, and found my feet and legs completely covered by a mass of dirt and stones. The front part of the tunnel had fallen in, and I was in a manner buried alive. About ten feet of the tunnel remained firm, and from my observation of its structure prior to the accident, I was convinced that I had no reason to apprehend any danger in that quarter. My partners had carried dirt enough to the river to keep them busy for the rest of the day, so I had nothing to hope from their assistance. The question that first presented itself to my mind was, How long can life be sustained in this confined state? I had read a dozen times statistics in relation to the amount of air consumed hourly by a human being's lungs, but, like almost everybody else, had merely wondered at the time and then forgot the figures.

How much would I have given then to have been able to recall them! The next thought was, How can I proceed to extricate myself. This question was difficult of solution. If I went to work with a shovel and pick to clear away the dirt that had fallen, it was extremely likely that all which I could be able to remove would be immediately replaced by that which would fall from above. This was pleasant. I racked my brains to devise some means of liberating myself, but without effect.

Leaning against the wall in utter despondency, I was about to throw myself on the ground and await my fate, when I observed quite a current of water, on a small scale, was making its way down the side of the cave. At first I was alarmed, as I thought it might loosen the earth above, and bring another mass down on my head. The next moment the thought struck me that might be turned to my advantage. Why could I not so direct it that it would wash away sufficient earth in its progress to the outlet of the cave to make an opening large enough to allow me to crawl through it? If it only succeeded in making an air-hole, it would enable me to exist till my partners could come to my rescue.

Carefully examining the course of the water, I succeeded in finding the spot where it entered the cave, and to my great joy ascertained that I could easily direct it by cutting a channel out of the side of my prison on to the mass of earth that blocked up the entrance to the tunnel. The air at this time was quite hot and stifling, and I became aware that whatever was done must be done quickly, or I should perish for want of oxygen. After I had cut a channel for the water to flow towards the entrance, I enlarged the opening by which the stream entered the cave, and was delighted to observe that it flowed with redoubled force. Taking my shovel, I forced it through the moistened earth as far as I was able, and then awaited the further action of the water. In a few minutes I was enabled to push it still further, till at last it was out of my reach. Then, placing my pick-handle against it, I pushed both as far as I could. With what eagerness did I watch to see the first opening made by the water, and I was soon gratified by observing that it flowed in a steady stream in the direction in which I had pushed the pick and shovel.

In a few minutes I discovered a faint glimmering in the distance, which might be an opening or the effect of an excited imagination, I scarcely knew which. But the doubt soon resolved itself into certainty, and an opening some five inches in diameter speedily disclosed itself. Larger and larger the opening grew; lump upon lump was washed away by the stream until the channel became large enough for me to place my head in and halloo lustily for assistance. Just as I was drawing my head back I caught sight of a buckskin bag. Hastily seizing it, I found it was the one we were in search of, and which, but for the accident, I would never have found. Wishing to surprise my companions, I concealed it and redoubled my cries. In a few minutes they came running up the hill, and soon liberated me from my unpleasant position.

On opening the bag we found about five thousand dollars worth of gold. We could never ascertain anything about Mr. Forrest, so we divided the money among us.

The World's Colossal Statue.

The statue of Liberty Enlightening the World, says the New York World, is the largest work of its kind that has ever been executed. The famous Colossus of Rhodes, according to the proportions which the legends attribute to it, was but a miniature in comparison. Other great statues are also in comparison quite small beside this gigantic copper figure. Thus the Bavaria, at Munich, measures 15 metres, 70 centimetres; the Virgin of Puy, 16 metres; St. Charles Borromeo, 22 metres. The Vendome Column in Paris is only 44 metres in height, and Liberty Enlightening the World measures 46 metres from the base to the top of the torch, or 305.11 feet above mean low water-mark. An idea of its size may be formed from the following figures: The forefinger is 3.45 metres in length and 1.44 metres in circumference at the second joint. The nail measures .35 metre by .26 metre. The head is 4.40 metres in height. The eye is .65 metres in width. The nose is 1.12 metres in length. (A metre equals 39.368 inches.) About forty persons can be accommodated in the head. It is possible to ascend into the torch above the hand. It will easily hold twelve persons. The total weight is 200,000 kilos, and the entire work represents an outlay of more than a million francs.

The statue is a relic of repose, or sheets of beaten copper, fixed on a pylonic iron trusswork. This trusswork serves as a support for the copper form of the statue. The copper plates, kept in shape by iron bands, are supported by iron braces which are clamped on to the central core. They do not bear in the least upon the lower plates, and their weight is always independent of all that is above and below. Exhaustive mathematical calculations were made upon the resisting power of the iron pieces, upon the centre of gravity, and upon the action of high winds. The calculations were made by taking as a base the most powerful hurricanes which have been recorded in America or Europe. The copper sheets are 2½ millimetres in thickness. The copper plating of the statue of St. Charles Borromeo is only one millimetre, and it has stood two centuries.

The total height of the first model was 1.25 metres. This was the study model. The next statue measured 2.85 metres. This statue was reproduced four times as large, the result measuring 11 metres in height. This statue was divided into a large number of sections, destined to be reproduced separately at four times their size. After this enlargement reproductions were no longer possible. The rest was accomplished in enormous fragments executed in wood and in plaster. This process necessitated a number of difficult measurements—9,000 in all. The profile of the forms were again taken in detail with sheets of lead pressed upon the model and the copper again worked according to the profiles. There were 300 sheets of copper used, each from one to three yards square, and weighing in all eighty-eight tons. These from the outside of the statue.

A Sacred Chamber.

A long time ago I went over the house and came to a room which had been religiously closed for years. It was opened by special order, and there issued from it a certain halcyon odor which exhales an opening a long closed sanctuary. The blinds were drawn and a certain brightness prevailed. We drew near a table, and my guide explained that this was the late Prince Consort's room, and everything was just as he left it when he died. The dust was nearly an inch thick on his writing-desk; a half-used quill was lying crosswise where he had fallen from his hand on his rack. There were several articles about, a paper weight, a book, and to the right, near the abandoned quill, a little carved frame, and in this frame a portrait. I think I can see it now—the youthful Victoria painted by Winterhalter. Her Majesty has a sweet, fair face and rosy mouth, and she wears an apple green gown, the tint just glimmering through some folds of lace. This picture was always by the Prince Consort's side, and when this sanctum was vacated forever no one dared to touch it or even the smallest object in the room. By the Queen's orders it stands to day as it stood then. The dust is a little thicker on tapestry, chair and table, the quill still lies in its old place, and the little royal picture smiles as of yore from its half-dimmed frame. I need not say that this chamber is never opened on a royal night, but I could not help thinking of it as we walked once more through other lovely but less sacred apartments.—Charles Town News.

A Sad Career.

The divorced wife of a Bonanza millionaire recently came to a mournful death principally from taking chloral, which unsettled her mind and demoralized her whole physical system. She had been weakly and ailing and felt her need of something to drown her sorrows and brace her up. Had she taken Brown's Iron Bitters she would have been invigorated so that she could have fought her sorrows off, and enjoyed healthy life. This valuable medicine cures general debility, tones the nerves, strengthens the muscles and aids digestion.

PROFESSOR MACKINTOSH, of Edinburgh, who ranks high in the medical profession, and who was physician to an extensive cholera hospital, states "that drunkards were the persons generally attacked."

In contrasting the causes predisposing to cholera, he also remarks: "And, above all, the dissipated, particularly those addicted to the habitual use of ardent spirits. It has been computed that five-sixths of all who have fallen by the disease in England were taken from the ranks of the intemperate and dissolute."

THERE are nineteen known metals valued at over one thousand dollars per avoirdupois pound. The most costly is vanadium, which is said to be worth ten thousand dollars a pound. Of nineteen metals only one is produced or used to any considerable extent, and that is iridium, which is valued at $1,000 per pound. It is sometimes, but very sparingly, used in electrical experiments.

DUTY is the power which rises with us in the morning, and goes to rest with us at night. It is co-extensive with the action of our intelligence. It is the shadow which cleaves to us, go where we will, and which only leaves us when we leave the light of life.—Gladstone.

SATURDAY, AUGUST 8, 1885.

THE WHOLE COUNTRY JOINS IN PAYING TRIBUTE TO THE DEAD.

There is a sense of indescribable solemnity, in contemplating the grand exhibition of the national regret over the death of the Country's great Commander.

The time devoted to the obsequies and the magnificence of the pageantry, are simply such as become a great and glorious country. History is ever repeating itself; the examples of the ages are not to be lightly overlooked, hence in all times, all peoples have shown their appreciation of their illustrious dead in the respect exhibited in the funeral rites observed, and the reverential care with which their remains have been deposited in the tomb. It is in the very nature of our institutions to open the way, to the highest honours for all who may prove worthy of them.

The numbers who have arisen from obscurity to the highest posts of renown, have grown wonderfully since the organization of the government, and they may be expected to come forward continually, as the public needs may require, for it seems to be a settled point in the evolution of history that every demand of every age will bring forward the agent or agents fitted to do the work. Washington may justly be regarded as the providential agent of the Revolutionary period, and in due order many of his successors may be accorded the glory of having filled the trusts for which they were specially needed. Looking to the developments of the past quarter of a century, it seems wonderful as an historical fact, that General Grant, from being an humble citizen should have arisen, in that time to the position, not only of the first citizen of his own country, but that he should have earned fame throughout the civilized world.

Those who recognize the course of his work, as elevating and extending the glory of the Country, and as benefitting it, in all directions, cannot fail to accord the highest honour to his memory; and as the grave buries remnants, even those who were opposed to his work, in a political bearing, join heartily in the tributes of respect, which his death has elicited, and none more so than those who fought against him on the fields of battle.

The movement now, in progress to collect the means to raise a monument in his honour is but right, and proper, at this time before the emotions of sorrow shall have subsided. It is proposed to erect the monument at the tomb at Claremont in Riverside Park in New York, the place selected by the family for his final resting place. It may however prove a question as to whether there is a necessity that the tomb and the monument should be contiguous.

There can be but little doubt, that the monument should be located at Washington City. The Capital of the country should be the site of such structures in honour of its glorious dead; there have been, and again may be reasons for a departure from the idea; but in the case of General Grant there are no binding considerations that should give the site to New York.

A PICTURE FOR PATRIOTS.

With Sherman and Sheridan, now the two foremost of Union soldiers in rank and popular estimation, will walk Johnston and Buckner, two of the most distinguished ex-Confederate Generals. These four, clasping hands across the bier of Grant, fittingly and beautifully testify to the realization of the desire for peace and perfect reconciliation which was dearer to the heart of Gen. Grant than the memory of his victories. Any lingering sectional animosity must shrink in very shame from such a spectacle and disappear forever.—Philadelphia News.

THE CHOLERA.

The latest accounts of the cholera in Spain and in France are: On the 4th of August there were reported 4,282 new cases of cholera and 1,570 deaths in Spain and at Marseilles, France, there was 30 deaths. The French press continues to suppress reports of the outbreak of the disease in France.

THE JOURNEY TO THE GRAVE.

The remains of General Grant were removed from Mt. McGregor at one o'clock, p. m., on Tuesday. At 10 o'clock services were held in the grove before the cottage where he died; there were over a thousand persons present. The ceremonies opened with the reading of the 90th Psalm, which was followed by an impressive prayer by Bishop Harris. The hymn, "My Faith Looks Up to Thee," was joined in by the whole assemblage present. Dr. Newman then came forward and delivered a sermon on the subject of the dead General, the family meantime sitting about the remains in the parlor. At the conclusion of the discourse the hymn "Nearer, My God to Thee," was rendered very impressively by the congregation. The services ended with the benediction. The military being in line, a salute was paid to the remains as they were borne to the depot. The representatives of the military present were Gen. W. S. Hancock, Gen. W. T. Sherman, Gen. Rufus Ingalls, Gen. H. A. Perry, Col. Sutherland, Col. John P. Nicholson, Lieut-Col. Finley Anderson, Capt. G. S. L. Eugene Griffin. The guard of honor, U. S. Grant Post, of Brooklyn, consisted of Col. W. H. Barker, Maj. B. R. Corwin, Dr. Geo. W. Brush, Reese B. Twilling, J. H. Howatt, Commander John H. Johnson, Henry W. Knight, R. F. Mackellar, George J. Collins, Noah Tibbetts and George B. Squires, and six men of the Loyal Legion. The general mourners were represented by William M. Evans, Admiral Rowan, Warner Miller, Jos. W. Drexel, Potter Palmer, Gen. J. A. J. Creswell and others.

Mrs. Grant concluded not to go to New York that day, the family party consisted of Mrs. Col. Fred. Grant, and two children, Mrs. Jesse Grant, Mrs. Sartoris, Mr. and Mrs. Potter Palmer, ex-Postmaster General J. A. J. Creswell and wife and W. J. Arkell, arrived at Saratoga, the remains were quietly transferred to the funeral train, and proceeded to Albany, where the tolling of bells, the boom of cannon, and a score of bands with muffled drums, announced the coming; at 3:40 the cortege wound its way up to the capitol. 20,000 people jammed shoulder to shoulder, filled the side-walks overflowing into the gutters, and crowding the windows and roofs along the line of march, the body lay in state until the next day, and was viewed by the vast concourse of people, with the reverential observances due to the occasion. On the arrival at New York city on Wednesday the body was conveyed to the City Hall by an imposing escort of Soldiers and Citizens, the route of march was down fifth avenue to Waverly place, to Broadway and to the City Hall, awaiting amid the grand ceremonial that occurred the completion of the preparations for the funeral that occurs in the afternoon of to-day.

TWO AERONAUTS FALL FROM A BALLOON.

At Winsted Conn., a balloon ascension was made on Wednesday of last week. The balloon was 80 feet high and 120 feet in circumference. Great preparations were made for the occasion, and an immense gathering of spectators was present. The centre of the public square was the starting point. But just at the appointed hour for the ascension a heavy shower was threatened, but nevertheless the cables were cast off and the big machine sped up into the air. The party soon reached the elevation of 2,000 feet and were caught in the storm. The terrific lightning caused them to descend; when within 100 feet of the ground the machine was rocking violently from side to side. "As they fell the two men threw out sand bags, and losing too much ballast the balloon careened wildly. The gas escaped, the car was over turned, Brooks and Moore lost their hold on the slippery rail and fell headlong from the car. The crowds that had been cheering wildly a few moments before stood out in the pouring rain in their eagerness to see the decent, and did their best to catch the aeronauts as they fell. Brooks was picked up very badly hurt. He is expected to die. Moore's injuries are not so serious. Both men had considerable experience in ballooning."

IMPRESSIVE memorial services were held on Tuesday in Westminster Abbey in honor of Gen. Grant, and an appreciative address was delivered by Canon Farrar.

THE SURVIVING GENERALS.

The only two great commanders now living who faced each other in making the thrilling and crimsoned annals of the late civil war are Gen. Wm. T. Sherman and Gen. Joseph E. Johnston. Grant met Lee, Joseph and Sidney Johnston, Beauregard, Buckner, Bragg and Pemberton in battle as chief commanders, and of them Joseph E. Johnston, Beauregard and Buckner survive. Meade who met the terrible shock of battle at Gettysburg, was borne to the city of the silent within a short time of the imposing Southern pageant that committed the dust of Lee to the mother dust, and Thomas and Hood, who fought the last great battle of the war at Nashville, both sleep the dreamless sleep of the dead. Sherman and Johnston alone remain of the great commanders who locked horns with each other in the flame of battle. Their campaign from Chattanooga to Atlanta, and from Atlanta to the sea, was the most brilliant of the war, and they are the only two great commanders who are left to sit down and talk their battles over, as they often do in the heartiest good-fellowship.—Of the many commanders of the heroic Army of the Potomac none remain, with the exception of Gen. McClellan. Scott McDowell, Burnside, Hooker, Meade and Grant, who in turn commanded that magnificent army, have all gone to join the great majority, and Longstreet is the only one of Lee's great lieutenants who lingers with the living. Jackson, Hill, Ewell and Stuart, who were in every great conflict of the Army of Virginia, rest with their great chieftain of Arlington. Joseph E. Johnston and G. T. Beauregard are the only surviving Confederate commanders who led great armies to battle, and they are whitened by the frosts of time.—Philadelphia Times.

PROCLAMATION BY THE GOVERNOR.

STATE OF MARYLAND, EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT, Annapolis, Md., July 29, 1885. The people of Maryland, in common with their fellow-countrymen, have heard with deep concern of the long suffering and the fatal illness which has terminated the life of the soldier, statesman and patriot, General U. S. Grant. They sympathize fully and very deeply with the devoted wife and sorrowing family in their bereavement, and but one feeling, that of pure and simple sorrow, prevails all sections and classes.—Henceforth his enemies will reverence his memory for magnanimity in the hour of his triumph, his friends for his fidelity to convictions and devotion to his country's call. In deference to a sorrow so general and sincere, all state public offices will be closed and their business suspended on the day of the lamented dead's funeral and the people are requested to repair to their respective places of worship and engaged in services appropriate and befitting the sad and solemn occasion.

HENRY LLOYD, Governor.
GEORGE B. MILLIGAN, Secretary of State.

A PRAYER FOR PEACE ANSWERED.

LANCASTER, PA., August 1.—Gen. Simon Cameron sent the following telegram to-day: "Donegal Farm, Lancaster, Pa., August 1.—Col. Fred. Grant, Mt. McGregor, N. Y.: I am glad to know that Generals Johnston, Buckner and Gordon are going to act as pall-bearers with Sherman and Sheridan. Your father's prayer for peace to his country has been answered, and the last bitterness of the war wiped out forever."
SIMON CAMERON.

MARSEILLES, August 4.—The cholera panic is increasing. Many persons are fleeing the city in dread. The local press has been ordered to preserve silence respecting the existence and ravages of the scourge. It is reported that no less than eighty persons have died from cholera in Marseilles within the past few days. The health authorities say that most of the recent deaths in this city which have been attributed to cholera are declared to have really resulted from typhoid cholera.

WALLS FALL ON ELEVEN MEN.

In Wilmington, Del., on the afternoon of the 29th ult., a large brick building 240 ft. by 70 ft. being erected by the Diamond State Iron Company was blown down by a sudden gust of wind, killing two men outright, and wounding nine severely, the walls were only nine inches thick.

A SEXTON in Plymouth, Mass., lately deceased, dug no fewer than 3,250 graves.

SUMMARY OF NEWS.

MINISTER COX has arrived at Constantinople.

THE remains of Sir Moses Montefiore were buried at Ramsgate, England, 31st ult.

THE venerable Louis Kossuth is summing in the Lanzo Valley at the foot of the Savoy Alps, but in September will go to reside with his son, Louis Jr., at Naples.

ASHVILLE, N. C. Aug. 3.—A tremendous waterspout passed over Transylvania county to-day, carrying away bridges and washing away houses. The water is said to have rolled over the country in a perpendicular wall twelve feet high and a quarter of a mile broad. The destruction of crops is complete in the section over which the storm passed.

THOMAS TENANT of Vineyard township was born in 1771, now 114 years ago. He came to Arkansas about the year 1819, and settled near Little Rock, where he followed the calling of an itinerant Methodist preacher. He came to this country and settled in what is now Vineyard township in 1828, and has lived here ever since. He represented the county in the Legislature at an early period of his history. He has lived a most exemplary life and is revered by all who know him. He is one of the oldest men living, and probably the oldest minister in the world.—Payetteville Standard.

In 1303 and 1304, according to a French periodical, the Rhine, Loire and Seine ran dry. In 1615 the heat throughout Europe became excessive. Scotland suffered particularly in 1625; men and beasts died in scores. The heat in several departments during the summer of 1705 was equal to that in a glass furnace. Meat could be cooked by merely exposing it to the sun. Not a soul dare venture out between noon and 4 P. M. In 1718 many shops had to close, the theatres never opened their doors for several months. Not a drop of water fell during six months. In 1773 the thermometer rose to 118 degrees. In 1779 the heat at Bologna was so great that a great number of people were stifled. There was not sufficient air for the breath, and people had to take refuge underground. In July, 1793, the heat became intolerable. Vegetables were burned up and fruit dried up on the trees. The furniture and woodwork in dwelling houses cracked and split up; meat went bad in an hour.

AYER'S PILLS.

A large proportion of the diseases which cause human suffering result from derangement of the stomach, bowels, and liver. AYER'S CATHARTIC PILLS act directly upon these organs, and are especially designed to cure the diseases caused by their derangement, including Constipation, Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Headache, Dysentery, and a host of other ailments, for all of which they are a safe, sure, prompt, and pleasant remedy. The medicinal properties of these PILLS by eminent physicians in regular practice, shows unmistakably the estimation in which they are held by the medical profession.

These PILLS are compounded of vegetable substances only, and are absolutely free from calomel or any other injurious ingredient.

A Sufferer from Headache writes: "AYER'S PILLS are invaluable to me, and are my constant companion. I have been a sufferer from Headache, and your PILLS are the only thing I could look to for relief. They will quickly remove my bowels and free my head from pain. They are the most effective and the easiest physic I have ever found. It is a pleasure to me to speak in their praise, and I would do so when occasion offers."

W. L. PAGE, of W. L. Page & Co., 1882.
Franklin St., Richmond, Va., June 3, 1882.

"I have used AYER'S PILLS in numerous instances as recommended by you, and have never known them to fail to accomplish the desired result. We constantly keep them on hand at our home, and prize them as a pleasant, safe, and reliable family medicine. FOLY DYSPEPSIA they are invaluable."

Mexico, Texas, June 17, 1882.
The Rev. FRANCIS B. HANCOCK, writing from Atlanta, Ga., says: "For some years past I have been suffering from Headache, from which, in spite of the use of medicine of various kinds, I could obtain no relief. In consequence, until some months ago I began taking AYER'S PILLS. They have not only relieved my Headache, but I have been enabled to perform my duties with ease and vigor."

AYER'S CATHARTIC PILLS correct irregularities of the bowels, stimulate the appetite and digestion, and by their prompt and blood-giving tone and vigor to the whole physical system.

DURING the late fires at Crampton's Gap, on South Mountain, several shells exploded, scattering the fragments in every direction. These shells were dropped, no doubt, in September 1852, during the skirmish at that place.—Hagerstown Globe.

WE saw some remarkably fine sweet potatoes, the other day raised by Mr. Harry Maxell, which if they are fair specimens of his crop, are something to be proud of, as it is very early in the season for this desirable vegetable to mature in our neighborhood.

FOR its soothing and grateful influence on the scalp, and for the removal and prevention of dandruff, Ayer's Hair Vigor has no equal. It restores faded or gray hair to its original dark color, stimulates the growth of the hair, and gives it a beautiful, soft, glossy and silken appearance.

A GENTLEMAN of Allegany county, largely interested in farming, has obtained from his correspondents in the different districts of the county statements of the number of acres sown in wheat and the estimated wheat yield. The total is 6,698 acres and 29,666 bushels, averaging a little over 4 bushels to the acre.

KILLED BY LIGHTNING. Squire Gieseman of Pikesville below Pen-Mar was killed by lightning on Saturday last, he was sitting at his door with one of his children in his arms, the child was not injured. He was struck in the face and the fluid passed through his body into the ground. He leaves a wife and eight small children.

AYER'S Sarsaparilla is designed for those who need a medicine to purify their blood, build them up, increase their appetite, and rejuvenate their whole system. No other preparation so well meets this want. It touches the exact spot. Its record of forty years is one of constant triumph over disease.

Desiring to make the Personal department of our paper as complete a representation as possible, to friends at a distance, of the moving events of the village, we invite the co-operation of our home readers to that end. Send us the names of visitors at all times; but be sure to write legibly, and to spell correctly, so that all may identify the persons.

A FRIEND who visited Mr. Frederick A. Black, reports the venerable mountaineer, as having tomatoes that weighed two and a-half pounds each, and he drank from Mr. B's cup that was made in 1754, being 90 years old when he (Mr. B.) got it, and the old gentleman reminded his caller that the day was just six years since the murder of James L. Wetzel.

BARN BURNED. About 7 o'clock on Saturday evening, during the heavy storm which passed south of this place, the barn of Mr. John Eckenrode, in Mountjoy township, was struck by lightning and burned to the ground. Mr. Eckenrode was fortunate enough to save all his livestock, but his crop, farming implements and wagon were consumed. No estimate of the loss.—Star and Sentinel.

A Large Snake. On Friday last the two youngest sons of Mr. R. R. Buckley were cleaning up a fence row on the home farm near Johns-ville, they came in contact with a large black snake, surrounded by a flock of partridges, which it was speedily devouring. After giving them a short chase they succeeded in killing it, and found it measured six feet and one inch in length and 5 inches in circumference.—Banner.

THE EMERALD BENEFICIAL ASSOCIATION of this place, held a picnic at Crystal Point on Saturday last. Though clouds evering all day, the members and invited guests, had a pleasant enjoyment of the day, until about 4 o'clock, p. m., when the overcast elements, were precipitated, in a very heavy storm. The effort to reach town proved successful on the part of many, but others unable to escape were compelled to meet the rain and endure the awful thunder and lightning as best they could, until the returning conveyances gave them relief, and not a few were thoroughly soaked in the pitiless storm. The occasion will long be remembered as well for the pleasures it afforded, as the discomforts at its close.

County Agricultural Society. Marshall E. Y. Goldsborough laid a communication this morning before the Board of Managers of the Frederick County Agricultural Society, to admit the pupils and teachers of the Public Schools of the county either free or upon reduced admission on the 2nd day of the fair, and that a special programme for the day be arranged by the board. The board passed the order for the above.—Daily News August 1st.

Change of Date. The date heretofore named by us and a number of our exchanges as that on which the re-union of the 6th Md. regiment will be held here September 11th, has been changed to September 11th, one day earlier, on Friday. This change has been made to permit members living beyond Baltimore to attend and be able to get home before Sunday which they could not do, should the re-union be held on Saturday. Our exchanges are requested to make a note of the change.—Clarion.

All On the Surface. Noticing the digging of a trench across the street for a water-pipe on Tuesday, we were greatly surprised to observe that the line of moist earth did not extend over about three inches below the surface. It would seem therefore that the rain-fall coming in such vast sheets as it did, no time was allowed for absorption by the parched earth, and the waters just rolled away on the surface. We may have some dry spells yet in this season, but are not likely to have another protracted drought.

Glorious Rains. We had a grand rain storm on Saturday night last to which the thunder and lightning lent some appalling additions. Though that rain seemed to saturate the ground, another storm occurred on Sunday evening in which the clouds seemed to empty themselves in vast sheets of water, this for two or three hours and yet the storm continued with more or less intensity through the night, and gently continued into Monday, which was a day of dampness to be remembered, for everything tangible seemed sticky and even the flies confined their operations to the narrowest limits, adhering where they stopped.

List of Patents. The following patents were granted to citizens of Maryland, bearing date July 28, 1885, reported expressly for this paper by Louis Bagger & Co., Mechanical Experts and Solicitors of Patents, Washington, D. C. Advice Free.

J. B. Ait, Baltimore, tobacco-drier, 323,351. Albert & H. Lawson, Baltimore, oyster dredge windlass 323,047. C. H. Collins, Elkton, whiffletree hook 323,116. W. H. Jolliffe, Baltimore, window awning, 323,338. G. W. Landon, Baltimore, automatic fire extinguisher and alarm, 323,100.

THE August Century reached us too late for notice in last week's issue. It opens with a portrait of William Lloyd Garrison, and has an interesting sketch of the origin and history of the famous anti-slavery leader; "Camp Grindstone" by Henry Eckford, is an entertaining account of The Meet of the American Canoe Association, and admirably illustrated; "The Rise of Silas Lapham" is concluded; "The Bostonians," by Henry James continued, and there is a short story by James T. McKay, an article on "Hotel Keeping—Present and Future," "The Last of the Seven Days' Battles," "Recollections of a Private," "Memoranda of the Civil War," the first paper on "Panforte di Siena," "Topics of the Time," "Open Letters," and the usual Brie-a-Brac.

Barns Struck by Lightning and Consumed. A bright light was visible from here during the storm of Saturday night, which proceeded from the burning of a Mr. Eckenrode's barn noticed elsewhere. On Saturday night the barn of Mr. David Martin between Taneytown and Middleburg was consumed. Two or three others have been reported to have been destroyed, the facts of which have not been verified to this writing.

In view of the annual losses arising through this terrible cause of natural phenomena. We have often wondered that some plan of investigation as to the causes operating in the cases, has not been instituted. There must be a cause for every effect in the order of nature's operations. Electricity necessarily will follow the laws of attraction that govern its course, and its descent must occur in accordance therewith, a surcharged cloud will be conducted to the earth by means of the nearest and best medium of attraction, whether it be a tall tree itself surcharged with moisture; heated currents of air within the building, metallic substances within the ground; gas and water pipes and other agencies against whose attractions no counter escapes have been provided. When the causes of disaster in any case are discovered the knowledge so desired, may be available for the benefit of others. The lightning rod if rightly constructed is the surest and the best medium for security from the terrible visitation of the electric fluid. As to its construction and action we have repeatedly laid every useful point of information before our readers, and can only repeat now that no man who has ever intelligently looked into the question, will permit the travelling lightning rod men to invade his premises with their useless and deceptive wares. Any sensible blacksmith will do the work completely and effectively at far less cost. This whole subject will be found exhaustively treated in the patent office report of 1859 under the head of "Meteorology" by the late Prof. Joseph Henry, of the Smithsonian Institution. Having more than once made the above reference, it is now repeated because of its great intrinsic importance as the best extant contribution for the spread of knowledge among the people.

A Child Drowned. The family of Mr. David Martin, a clerk at Mt. St. Mary's College, were most sadly distressed by reason of the drowning of their little son Charles J. on Monday. The residence is just at Beaver Dam that crosses the Frederick Turnpike road, a mile or more below the College. The culvert over the water course was washed away by the water that rushed down from the mountains, somehow the little fellow got into its current, and was washed clear down to San Marino, the residence of Mr. Charles A. Maning, where the body was recovered. The event called forth the sympathies of the whole community for the distressed family.

ONE of the most successful agriculturists in Dorchester county is a woman—a lady of superior business capacity as well as refinement and culture. Her fertile fields are always pointed out to the traveler as models of farming. The woman-farmer is Mrs. Goslin, residing near Linkwood. She directs all the details of the farm management. Though droughts or rains may come, her crops never fail. She delights in her occupation. A wheat field of 1,000 bushels has just been garnered by Mrs. Goslin, and her peach orchard will net as many dollars. The corn field on the place is admired by all the country round, so promising is the growth.—Cambridge Chronicle.

Saved Her-elf and Children. Conductor Haverstick, of the Pope's Creek train, of the Baltimore and Potomac Railroad, reported that as the train from Baltimore on Monday afternoon was rounding a curve between Marlborough and Croom a woman with a baby in her arms and leading another small child was seen on a long trestle bridge which crosses a stream. Engineer Bowen put the air brakes, but there was not time enough for the train to be stopped. The woman had crossed that portion of the trestle which covers the stream and had reached a point where the banks sloped. With great presence of mind she grasped both the children in one arm, and with the other swung on to a trestle and dropped through the bridge, landing on the soft ground below. The train passed over the bridge before it could be stopped, and when the conductor and brakeman went back to help her the woman was not walking up the steps with her children all safe and sound. Her name was not ascertained by Conductor Haverstick.—Balto. Sun.

How to Keep Cool. The following good advice should be preserved for reference, it is from an exchange as we give it: A physician who looked cool and comfortable, notwithstanding the fact that mercury in the thermometer was climbing up among the nineties, said: "It is supposed by most persons that if they bathe in cold water, drink iced lemonade, ginger ale, ice water, etc., sleep with a thin coverlet over them, eat cold dinners, and rub their faces with their handkerchief every few moments that they may be cool, or at least as comfortable as the weather will permit. Now this is all wrong. A cold drink makes one feel exceedingly comfortable for a few minutes and then the individual will feel warmer than ever and perspire more profusely. The best way to keep cool is as follows: Do not drink any ice water; take only one glass of soda or lemonade a day; eat a warm dinner, but do not eat quite as much as you want; take hot coffee or tea for breakfast just as you do in winter; sleep with a very light gauze blanket over you in the night, and take a sponge bath in tepid salt water before retiring. This makes the body cool, and keeps mosquitos away. Do not wear a heavy hat or tight collar, wear light flannels, low-cut shoes, carry an umbrella, and above all, do not rub your face too often, because the action only heats the skin to a greater degree and makes you perspire more freely. If this advice is heeded you will be cooler and healthier.

"Scribner's" to be Re-established. It is reported that Scribner's Monthly will be re-established by the house of Charles Scribner's Sons, and the first number will probably be given to the public early in 1886, or after the expiration of the time agreed to be permitted to elapse at the time of the sale of the old Scribner's Magazine to the Century Company.

The preparations for launching a paper of this nature, according to the published report, are necessarily so extensive that work has already begun under the immediate supervision of Mr. W. A. Paton—not Peyton, as the published report had it—formerly business manager of The World, who it is said has been specially engaged for this purpose. No official announcement of the fact has been made, nor is it possible to obtain direct information of the plan upon which the new publication will be conducted, though it is supposed that the policy will be to make the literary feature the principal one and art merely an adjunct, to which end the pictures will be comparatively few in number and of the very best and the contributions from the prominent writers of the day.

Among the leading features assigned by rumor to the opening numbers will be certain unpublished letters and biographical materials relating to Thackeray which up to the present have been jealously withheld from the public. Just what these papers reveal is not even whispered, though they are said to relate to an intensely interesting portion of his life, which his family have always hitherto been anxious to shield from the public scrutiny.

Eating Lemons. A good deal has been said through the papers about the healthfulness of lemons. The latest advice is how to use them so that they will do the most good, as follows: Most people know the benefit of lemonade before breakfast, but few know that it is more than doubled by taking another at night also. The way to get the better of the bilious system without blue pills or quinine is to take the juice of one, two or three lemons, as appetite craves, in as much ice water as makes it pleasant to drink without sugar before going to bed. In the morning, on rising, at least a half hour before breakfast, take the juice of one lemon in a goblet of water. This will clear the system of humor and bile with efficiency, without any of the weakening effects of calomel or Congress water. People should not irritate the stomach by eating lemons clear; the powerful acid of the juice, which is always most corrosive, invariably produces inflammation after a while, but, properly diluted, so that it does not burn or draw the throat, it does its medical work without harm, and, when the stomach is clear of food, has abundant opportunity to work over the system thoroughly, says a medical authority.

The Floods. The rise in the waters from the storms of Sunday and Monday, caused great losses in this neighborhood, by the washing out of the roads, the growing crops, and the removal of fences. The little stream known as Silver's Run grew higher than in many years before, fences being broken up in its course. The Bridge over Flat Run on the Gettysburg road was completely insulated by the high water around it, and the abutments were somewhat washed out. The Bridge East of town, on the road to Taneytown, was unequal to its work; there is a rack at the South side of it, this having arrested the progress of the rails that floated down the stream, damaged the water so as to make it flow around the bridge, and above the floor, thus causing some slight damage to the bridge; and a general overflow of the contiguous roadway and lots. A culvert was washed away on the Emmitsburg Rail Road, which caused some delay in the operations thereof. The Frederick turnpike road was badly washed near the College. The losses being distributed over considerable territory, have not been so great in individual cases, but will aggregate a considerable sum.

PERSONALS. Miss Elsie Bell of Seven Valley, Pa., is visiting at Mr. J. L. Hoke's. Mrs. Norfolk and sister of Baltimore visited at Mr. Charles B. Wilson. Miss Maggie Wilson returned home from a visit among friends in Littlestown. Capt. Bernard Black of Richmond, Va. and his daughter made a visit to his father and relatives in this community, and was the guest of Mr. Wilson and other relatives, and having himself returned to his home, Miss Black remains in Mr. Wilson's family. Mr. Joseph W. Latham with Mentzel & Sons of Baltimore, accompanied by his family, made a mournful visit, in attending the funeral of his mother. E. S. Eichelberger, Esq., of Frederick spent a couple of days with his aunt Mrs. H. Motter. Rev. Dr. Higbee left this place on Monday, on a visit to his brothers and his son Herbert M. in Visalia, Tulare County, Cal. Mr. Daniel Duddar of Taylorsville, Carroll Co., made a visit to Mr. S. R. Grindler's. Mr. H. W. Bennet of Mechanicstown gave us a short call on Wednesday. Mr. Rolt, B. Caverly of Washington, who spent several weeks at Mr. E. F. Krise's is now rusticating at Rehoboth Beach, Delaware. Sr. Josephine Welty, of St. Louis, Mo., visited her mother, Mrs. Rebecca Welty in this place, having been absent for 25 years. Rev. Wm. Simonton, D. D., has returned home. Mr. Jno. A. Horner is visiting near Westminster. Miss Maggie Arnold of Middleburg is the guest of Mrs. S. R. Grindler.

The Voice of the Floods. After a period of heat unprecedented in intensity since the year 1879, the drought, so enervating to all living creatures was broken by the generous showers of rain on the 26th of July, after which the heated spell resumed its course, if possible with increased vigor until August 2d, when Jupiter Pluvius, seemed to have opened the cloud lakes, which had gathered during the drought, and sent them bodily upon the parched earth, and with additional down-pourings the day after, set the rivers, and the brooks to overflowing their banks, spreading dismay over the land, everywhere however, mingled with gratitude for deliverance from the scorching power of the super-heated sun-light. There could not be a soul so insensible to the beneficent change, as not to rejoice in it; and gratefully accept the refreshing gales of wind that followed; whilst the embrowned meadows, and the wilted corn-fields, and every green thing that had sickened with the heat, renewed their life, sprang into active work and proclaimed themselves free to progress to maturity. Men and all external nature hailed their deliverance from a bondage that day by day had grown more and more intolerable. The drought having terminated so auspiciously, there can be little fear of its recurrence this season, and the rain-harvest promise of seed time and harvest, crowned the glorious change as the gift of the Most High to his hopeful creatures. The tempered air bade men forth with renewed energy to their daily work and the dreamy and unsatisfying sleep at night, gave place to the slumber that brings refreshment to wearied nature. "The floods have lifted up, O Lord, the floods have lifted up their voice; the floods lift up their waves."

Hay Fever Cured by Cream Balm. I have been a periodical sufferer from Hay Fever since the summer of 1879, and until I used Ely's Cream Balm, I was never able to find any relief. I can say that Cream Balm cured me.—L. M. Georgia, Binghamton, N. Y. j25-4t

From the Union. The charter of the First National Bank, this city, has been extended to August 5, 1905. Sunday night the country residence of John H. Williams, Esq., at Fairview, was struck by lightning, but little damage was done. On last Saturday Burkittsville Female Seminary, a widely known educational institution, located at Burkittsville, this county, was sold at receivers' sale for $3,100. The purchasers were Messrs. L. M. and L. A. Horne, of that vicinity. The Seminary, except for the past few years, was largely patronized, and originally cost $8,000. What further disposition will be made of the property is not known, but it is rumored that the Seminary will again be opened, and the name of Rev. Mr. Wire, of Mechanicstown, is connected with the institution, as the probable coming principal.

Death of Hon. Joel B. Danner. Our community lost one of its oldest and most widely known citizens in the death of Hon. Joel B. Danner. He came from Frederick county, Maryland, about the year 1823, located in Gettysburg, and has resided here ever since. For many years he was engaged in active business, part of the time with the late David Ziegler, merchandizing, silver-plating, carriage building, &c. In his earlier career he was also actively identified with political movements in this county, co-operating with the Democratic party until the out-break of the Rebellion, when he identified himself with the Republican party. In 1839 he was appointed by Gov. Porter Prothonotary and Clerk of the Courts, which that year became an elective office by the provisions of the constitution of 1838. In 1842 Mr. Danner was elected Prothonotary, serving for three years. In 1850 he was elected to congress to fill a vacancy occasioned by the death of Dr. Nes. He also served as Treasurer to the Directors of the Poor, Justice of the Peace, Burgess, &c. During the last four years his health had been very infirm, disabling him from active business, and seeing his personal friends only as they called at his residence. He was an excellent citizen, generous in disposition, and when in active business noted for his readiness to serve all who needed counsel or financial aid.—Star and Sentinel.

Disinfectants. Good Housekeeping makes some very sensible suggestions on the subject of disinfectants, of which it sagely observes that there are many kinds, some much easier of application than others and some whose value is not disputed. For a common, cheap disinfectant, chloride of lime is good, but sulphate of iron, ordinarily known as copperas, is probably better. For those unable to purchase or apply the others, this simple direction may be of service: Put fifty pounds of copperas into a basket or some other porous receptacle, and suspend it in a barrel of water; after it has stood a day or two, use liberally of the liquid thus formed, by pouring it into vaults and drains, and over the ground about your doors, where any filth has been allowed to accumulate. If you cannot use it on so great a scale, dissolve a pound or two in a pail of water as you need it, and use freely from time to time. These suggestions heeded, the body kept clean by frequent bathing, the food plain and well cooked, all unripe fruit and stale vegetables prohibited from the table, we may almost defy those maladies, which like diphtheria, scarlet fever, dysentery, typhoid fever, consumption and cholera, destroy so many homes and desolate so many hearts. We need have no fear that too much care can be exercised to leave our homes, from cellar to garret, scrupulously clean. Until they are, we must stand responsible for the consequence that will surely follow our carelessness and neglect.—Ex.

What to Take to Pic-Nics. Several exchanges have put forth the following seasonable hints: A widely known young lady gives the following answer: "At this season of the year the question what etables to take to picnics arises so frequently that a few suggestions may be acceptable. Many people lose sight of the fact that good bread and butter and cold meats are articles of which there should be an ample supply, even at the cost of going without some delicacies. A small spirit lamp will enable one to get, with very little trouble, a cup of hot tea, coffee or chocolate. Here is a short list of good things from which to make selections for luncheon in the woods: Buttered thin bread, buttered rolls, pressed chicken, broiled chicken, tongue, ham, pressed corn beef, sardines, stuffed eggs, hard boiled eggs, broiled smoked salmon, pickles, olives, crackers and cheese, orange-marmalade, hard gingerbread, cake, cold coffee, cold tea, lemonade. There are many fruit syrups which mixed with cold water, make palatable drinks. Lemonade should be extracted at home and carried to the picnic grounds in bottles. The sugar may be put with it or added with the water when the lemonade is wanted. When ice can be transported the bill of fare may be improved greatly. For example, salads may be packed in ice and they will be found tempting when dinner is announced. Ice-cream and sherbet also will make the meal seem a hundred per cent better on a hot day, and a little ice in the lemonade will make it so much more refreshing as to repay one for the trouble of carrying the ice. But have good bread and butter anyway. It is well to distribute crackers and cheese among the party on first reaching the grounds, so as to relieve any feeling of faintness."

Hay Fever Cured by Cream Balm. I have been a periodical sufferer from Hay Fever since the summer of 1879, and until I used Ely's Cream Balm, I was never able to find any relief. I can say that Cream Balm cured me.—L. M. Georgia, Binghamton, N. Y. j25-4t

A New Sch. of Houses. The Messrs. Annan are building a school house for the use of the Normal Institute, west of the Public Good House. Mr. John T. Long is doing the carpenter work. These gentlemen are to build something or other every day and then, just to keep in practice, the present structure promises to be a work whose results will be of lasting benefit to the community.

Apple Tree Borers, in Brief.

There are three prominent and very destructive apple tree borers in the United States. Saperda candida and Saperda crenata are much alike, live as grubs each three years boring through and through the trees, and often so weakening the trunk that the tree becomes victim to the first hard wind. The beetles lay their eggs in June and July. The bigheaded borer or grub—bore on the south, west, or southwest side of the trees; lives but one year works just under the bark which turns dark colored without the excavations: work on branches as well as trunk, and is more apt to attack trees of feeble growth, hence more to be dreaded after hard winters, and the first year after planting. These beetles also lay eggs in June and July. The remedy for all these insects—cheap, sure, and easy of application—is to glove one's hands and rub the trunks and main branches with soft-soap. This ought to be done early in June, and three or four weeks later, though one application is often effective. It is astonishing to note how the trees, by their added vigor, thrift and healthful appearance, endeavor to thank us for this excellent use of a little soft-soap. For young orchards this is especially desirable. The soap kills the eggs or prevents oviposition.—An Apple-Growing Entomologist.

Shallow Cultivation.

When sod ground has been plowed for a hoed crop the usual tendency is to cultivate deeply "to keep the grass down." But this is unnecessary. If well plowed the grass roots can only be revived by light and air penetrating to the bottom of the furrow. The very shallowest cultivation, or merely smoothing over the surface, will prevent this even more effectually than deep, or tillage, which might upturn some of the grass and thus do as much harm as good. Passing over the field once in three days with the smoothing harrow will do as effective work as cultivating more deeply. But it should be repeated as often as once a week, or more frequently, if there are rains to wash the surface and make holes through which the sod can get a breathing place. After two or three weeks of this cultivation the sod will rot sufficiently to make deeper tillage possible without injury. For killing quack or Canada thistles deeper cultivation is important, but for ordinary sod, timothy or June grass only shallow cultivation will be needed all the season.—Cultivation.

Our seedsmen are, as a rule, as honorable as any in the world, but he who becomes possessed of a fine strain of vegetable or flower may keep it so by saving seeds for his own sowing. There is so much in selecting perfect specimens from which to supply a future crop, that it is strange our gardeners do not awaken to the truth. In the tomato this careful selection should not go unheeded, as by constant attention for a few years the fruit will be greatly improved in every way. Indeed, it is difficult to name any one of our garden vegetables that is not benefited by this careful system of selection. As to the climate where seeds are grown making any perceptible difference in the character of the product, no one who has ever tested the theory can believe there is anything in it. It is of a piece with the old idle tale that northern-grown trees are best adapted for the North, and southern-grown trees for the South.—Josiah Hoopes, in Tribune.

The best feed for young chicks till two weeks old is to make a bread by the use of sour milk, salt, saleratus and molasses, out of a meal made from grain in the following proportions: Twenty pounds corn, fifteen pounds oats, ten pounds barley, ten pounds wheat bran; grind and mix, bake and crumble into scalded milk, giving no water. The milk is all the liquid needed. There is seldom a death in the brood if so fed.—Rural Home.

E. ARMSTRONG, Esq., Waterloo, Culpeper Co., Va., says he used Powell's Fertilizer last fall. Wheat did as well as the fertilizer costing double. Will want ten tons this fall. These fertilizers are manufactured by Brown Chemical Co., Baltimore, Md.

Miscellaneous.

Some Characters at the Exposition.

From an illustrated paper on the New Orleans Exposition, by Eugene V. Smalley, in the June Century, we quote the following anecdotes of some of the types seen at the fair: "The odd characters at the fair are the terror of exhibitors. A Cincinnati furniture-maker discovered a countryman from Arkansas whittling a handsome mahogany cabinet to see what the wood was like. The man's knowledge of furniture was evidently limited to articles which could not be damaged by a reasonable use of the jack-knife. Another exhibitor, who had fitted up a room with the finest specimens of his art, was horrified to find an old lady eating her lunch of fried chicken seated in one of his satin upholstered chairs. 'What's the cheer good for if it ain't to set down in?' she placidly remarked, in reply to his earnest request, that she would go somewhere else with her victuals. The same exhibitor one day found that some visitor to his alcove, had left a token of approval on the polished surface of a costly mantle, in the words 'This is pretty good' scratched with a knife. 'The Turks who sell olive-wood, beads, and other trinkets from Jerusalem'—all made in Paris—are picturesque additions to the permanent personnel of the fair, though their genuineness, like that of their wares, will not always bear inspection. An amusing scene occurred one day at one of these Oriental bazaars. A tall man, with a rural air, stopped before the stand and appeared to take a lively interest, not in the goods, but in the features of one of the salesmen in scarlet fez and baggy trousers. He surveyed the Oriental in front and in profile, and then, slapping him on the shoulder, exclaimed, 'Hello, Jake, when did you come from Indiana?' The Turk from Indiana acknowledged his old acquaintance and begged that he would not 'give him away.'"

Continuing the Hairs of the Head. "To number the hairs of your head is not a very difficult task," the refiner of the New York assay office said to a reporter. "A very close approximation can be made by weighing the entire amount of hair on a man's head, and then weighing a single hair. The weight of the former, divided by that of the latter, will, of course, give the desired number. If you will pluck out a hair from your beard I can show you."

A long and straggly one was accordingly detached, the refiner put it on a scale, which was enclosed in a glass case, and graduated with extreme accuracy. With little weights of aluminum he piled up one arm, until an equi-poise was reached. The hair weighed three milligrammes. "If you reduce this to figures," he said, "it would require 8000 hairs to weigh an ounce, and supposing you have six ounces, you have 48,000."

The duties of married life, says Gail Hamilton, require the same qualities that the duties of unmarried life require, generosity, truth, patience, consideration, compromise, fidelity, large-heartedness. In married life and unmarried life alike the highest happiness and the highest blessedness require that you should often yield your own whim, taste, ease and pleasure to the pleasure of another. It requires often the still harder duty of maintaining your own stand, in opposition to the wishes of another, and it requires the wisdom of high heaven to know certainly when to do the one and when to do the other.

NEXT year Easter Sunday will fall on the 25th of April, the latest possible date. It has not been on this date since 1734, and this will not again happen until 1943. The earliest possible date is the 22d of March. On this date it fell in 1818 and will not again, until 2385. Owing to the late Easter, the next church year will have six Epiphany Sundays but only twenty-two Trinity Sundays.

An Ohio farmer claims that the use of Paris green for destroying potato beetles is unnecessary, as he has completely cleared his field of them with a single application of five pounds each of lime and copras dissolved in twenty gallons of water.

A MAN'S conscience is his sole tribunal; and he should care no more for that phantom "opinion" than he should fear meeting a ghost, if he crossed a churchyard at night.

Humorous.

"BLASTING paper" is a recent Austrian invention. It would seem as if it might be just the thing to write on when you have occasion to blow somebody up by letter.—Lowell Citizen.

AN Arizona man has stopped taking an agricultural paper. He wrote to the editor, asking how to get rid of gnats. The answer came in the next issue of the paper. "Kill them."

"Why, George, you are smoking!" exclaimed an amazed mother, who came upon her little son as he was puffing away at a cigar. "N—no, ma: I am only keeping it lighted for another boy."—Barbers Gazette.

It is a mistake to think a man has anything to do with whisky because he is a member of the bar.—N. O. Picayune. It is plain that the Picayune man has never observed what takes place just after court adjourns.—Courier-Journal.

"How is your daughter, Mrs. Gullikins?" "Oh, she's awful poorly, ma'am; awful poorly." "Does she suffer much pain?" "Indeed she does, ma'am, and the doctor has to give her an epidemic rejection of morpheus every day before she can get a wink of sleep."—Chicago Ledger.

WHY, Harry, you couldn't be so cruel as to wish to stone that poor little bird? How do you think his little ones would feel waiting all day for their father to bring him a worm?

Harry (after due reflection): Well it would be all right if I killed the whole family, wouldn't it?

"CHARLEY," said mamma, "you have been a very naughty boy; you know I told you that you mustn't, for it is gambling, and gambling is very wicked. Now, I hope you will never gamble again." Charley promised he wouldn't, and his mamma was so delighted that she took him to the parish fair, and gave him the money to take chances in almost everything there.—Boston Transcript.

THAT is a droll story about a fellow on board an ocean steamer who sat off by himself and presented such a forlorn appearance that some ladies on deck thought they ought to inquire what was the matter. So one old lady approached and asked the lonely one why he was so disconsolate. "The fact is," said he, "I didn't have money enough to bring my wife with me."

Stop tinkering with the Bible. If much more is done in that line we will soon be in the condition of the old Southern lady upon whom a colporteur called. He wanted to sell her a Bible. She said they must surely have one about the house somewhere, but after a diligent search was able to find but a dozen leaves under a pile of tobacco. "Well, I declare," said she, "I didn't know we were so near out of Bible."—Pearia Transcript.

"SUPPOSE we walk over into the cemetery," said a friend to his companion. "No, I believe not." "Come on. It's a pleasant place, for the flowers are blooming." "You'll have to excuse me. Tom Bessman is buried over there." "What difference does that make?" "Well, you see I owe him a little balance and don't care to hang around where he is. Not superstitious, you know, but Tom was a terrible hard to dun a fellow."—Arkansas Traveller.

DR. JOHN BULL'S Smith's Tonic Syrup FOR THE CURE OF FEVER and ACUE Or CHILLS and FEVER, AND ALL MALARIAL DISEASES.

The proprietor of this celebrated medicine justly claims for it a superiority over all remedies ever offered to the public for the SAFE, CERTAIN, SPEEDY and PERMANENT cure of Ague and Fever, or Chills and Fever, whether of short or long standing. He refers to the entire Western and Southern country to bear him testimony to the truth of the assertion that in no case whatever will it fail to cure if the directions are strictly followed and carried out. In a great many cases a single dose has been sufficient for a cure, and whole families have been cured by a single bottle, with a perfect restoration of the general health. It is, however, prudent, and in every case more certain to cure, if the use is continued in smaller doses for a week or two after the disease has been checked, more especially in difficult and long-standing cases. Usually this medicine will not require any aid to keep the bowels in good order. Should the patient, however, require a cathartic medicine, after having taken three or four doses of the Tonic, a single dose of BULL'S VEGETABLE FAMILY PILLS will be sufficient.

BULL'S SARSAPARILLA is the old and reliable remedy for all impurities of the blood and Scrofulous affections.

To a criminal neglect of preventive medicine may be ascribed a majority of the diseases which afflict humanity. It is a well-ascertained fact that a course of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters will put even a naturally feeble system in such a state of defence that it will be competent to resist the most prevalent causes of disease, such as the malarial influence of miasmata, and the exciting influence of heat, damp, cold, salt, and other impurities of the atmosphere.

For sale by all druggists and Dealers in the United States and Foreign.
