LOCAL ITEMS.

When we reduced the Subscription Price of the Emmitsburg Chronicle to One Dollar a Year, it was unmistakably announced that that sum would be received for advance payments.

BLACK PILLS aid digestion. THE WAR on turkey will soon begin. The pick-pockets did a thriving business at the Hagerstown Fair.

A DRAFT and dumb man's communication is a thing that goes without saying. VOTE early and make room for others to follow you without undue crowding and delay.

BLACK PILLS prevent sea-sickness and cure headache, the result of costiveness or acid stomach. THE ONLY SON of W. P. Maulby, Jr., Esq., of Frederick, died last week of diphtheria, aged three years.

WANTED—5,000 logs at Iron Dale Saw Mill, to saw on shares, Wm. L. McGinnis, one mile west of Emmitsburg. Among those who were most desirous for rain were some of the first to grow weary of the descent in a few hours.

THE letter sheet envelope, lately issued by the Postoffice Department, has proved a failure, and its manufacture is to be stopped. A RENSIBLE man or woman will not let a slight cough or cold carry them off with consumption, but get Victor Cough Syrup and use it.

THE result of the Baltimore election on Wednesday, is considered by the politicians, as casting its shadows darkly, before coming events. I GAVE "Dr. Sellers' Vermifuge" to my child, and it expelled 75 large worms.

THE sale of the personal property of the late J. Edwin McIntire will take place on Saturday, Nov. 27th, next, at the late residence of the decedent, near Fountain Dale, Pa.

DR. J. K. WAGLEY, Homoeopathic Physician has located permanently in Emmitsburg and can be found at his office next door to Mr. Wadde's residence near the Emmitt House.

To vote is a sacred privilege conferred by our organic laws, that should be exercised with due regard for the majesty of the law. It is becoming to uncover the head in the act of depositing the ticket.

Removed. Mr. J. H. T. Webb has removed to the Bussey building on the N. W. corner of the square, the locality of his confectionery.

Insane. On Thursday last week, in the case of Mrs. Sarah Eyer, for assault with intent to kill, the jury found the prisoner insane at the time of the assault and still insane and remanded her to Montevue. Mrs. Eyer, it will be remembered, is the woman who shot Constable Barton at Rocky Ridge a short time ago.

Now and Then. Our venerable friend Mr. F. A. Black says that thirty-three years from Sunday last (Oct. 24), there was a snow storm here, and the snow fell about two feet deep, and that having gone to Washington county, he was delayed there by reason of the storm.

Dr. BULL'S Baby Syrup by its mild yet specific influence quiets the little ones. Price 25 cents. The best thing to relieve a suffering horse, cow, sheep, or hog is Day's Horse Powder. Price 25 cents.

Wedding Reception. A very pleasant reception was held at the residence of Mrs. Sweeney in this place on Tuesday evening, to greet the arrival of her son Eugene and his bride, whose marriage is noticed in this issue.

The large controlling interest which the firm of Wm. J. Hooper & Co. held in the Baltimore Herald and its plant and franchises has been bought by an organization of some friends of the present management.

THE Western Maryland Railroad on Thursday consummated a lease for ninety-nine years of the Baltimore and Harrisburg Railroad, the latter being a consolidation of the Hanover Junction, the Hanover and Gettysburg, the Baltimore and Hanover and the Baughman Valley Railroads.

Another Park on South Mountain. The Waynesboro, Pa., Gazette of Wednesday, last week, says: "The Monterey Land Company, that owns the Monterey Springs Hotel and several hundred acres of land surrounding, have inaugurated an enterprise which, if successful, will be one of the greatest achievements yet witnessed on the mountain."

The following good advice we have seen in a number of our exchanges, if you have not burned out your fire, do so when the first rain wets the roof of your chimney. "All chimneys should be attended to early every fall, if housekeepers would avoid the fright and danger of their taking fire."

The attention of the voters of Frederick County is earnestly called to the following provisions of the Constitution and Code of Maryland on the subject of bribery at elections.

From the Herald and Torch Light. C. M. Johnson, the driver of Maggie Mitchell in the trotting race on Thursday, was thrown from his sulky.

"Is this all?" I thought, "and life itself—what is it but a handful of ashes strewn on the winds?"

Fortunately, however, for the meditative philosopher, whose teeth were now beginning to chatter, a second wagoner arrived to pick me up. The honest fellow extorted two ducats from me, but as a set-off lent me his thick coat to wrap myself up in and sang me two or three country songs that I thought rather pretty. In this way I got to Lubek by sunrise, and coming across my fellow-sufferers left with them for Hamburg.

Here we found waiting for us twenty thousand rubles, which the Emperor Nicholas, who happened at that moment to be on his way to Berlin, had sent by one of his equerries. There was a meeting of the male passengers, at which it was decided that this money should be handed over to the women. Our generosity did not really put us to much inconvenience, as at that time every Russian who came to Germany was allowed unlimited credit. Alas! those golden days are over!

The sailor to whom I had promised the enormous sum of money in my mother's name if he saved my life came and asked me to carry out my agreement. As I was not quite sure of his identity and as in any case he had done nothing at all for me, I gave him one thaler. He took it and thanked me warmly.

As for the poor old cook who had shown such an interest in the salvation of my soul, I never saw her again; but whether she was burned or whether she was drowned, I am quite sure that she has a special place set apart for her in Paradise.

POULTRY-HOUSES.

It is an old maxim with poultrymen that no person has been satisfied with a poultry-house after it was erected, or, in other words, if the work had to be done over again, some kind of change would surely be the result. The construction and form of a poultry-house depends largely upon climatic conditions. Among the mistakes usually made are high roofs, too much glass, and superfluous conveniences. Experience has demonstrated that the best houses are those built in a cheap but substantial manner, and for a cold climate the rear should, if convenient, not be over a foot high. Fowls are very partial to a low, warm shelter, and a house three feet high at the rear, six feet high in front, ten feet deep and ten feet wide, will not only provide ample accommodation for a flock of a dozen fowls, but give plenty of room for exercise in the winter season, when the ground is covered with snow.

A poultry-house of the dimensions mentioned, and as shown in our illustration, can be built at a small cost. The roof may be of cheap shingles or tarred paper, and, if preferred, the sides and back may be of tarred paper, on rough boards. No doors or boards are required on the front. The nests are at the rear. Over the nests is a board two feet wide, and six inches over the board is a roost made of 2 x 3 inch studding. A curtain of unbleached muslin can be arranged in front, which may be rolled up during the day, and allowed to fall down at night. Another curtain may be arranged in front of the roost also, if necessary, so as to make the roosting place warm, on cold nights. Such a house is merely an open shed during the day, and a closed shelter at night. It combines the roosting outside with the protection of the shelter, and affords plenty of ventilation and pure air. The roof being low, the bodies of the birds increase the temperature within. It can be easily cleaned, and it combines many advantages for promoting health. The floor in front of the nests allows scratching room, while the curtain can be closed during stormy days. But little glass is used, and all that is required is for a draught in very cold weather.

AMERICAN AGRICULTURE FOR NOVEMBER.

CLING to the farm, make much of it, put yourself into it, bestow your heart and your brain upon it, so that it shall savor of you and radiate your virtue over your day's work is done.—John Burroughs.

VERY LITTLE indeed is necessary for a happy life.—Marcus Aurelius.

Miscellaneous.
THE COMING FARM PEOPLE.
E. H. LELAND.

Now that farmers are getting used to seeing "city folks" among them, and are growing more and more accustomed to the fact that a fellow creature can read a book in a hammock, or climb a hill to see a sunset without being either shiftless or cranky, it is to be hoped that they will in time drop into some of the enjoyable relaxations and mind-broadenings of their summer boarders, and brighten and enrich their sober lives in a way that will mark a big difference between the farmers of A. D. 1900 and those of a recent generation.

Within my memory—and my hair is not yet very white—the "summer boarder" was scarcely heard of among the beautiful New England hills, and his voice was very far from being heard by the lakes and rivers of the great West. Now the summer boarder is as much of a general and regular fact as the roses and bobolinks of June, and his coming is looked forward to with almost as much pleasure as is the general season of music and perfume. Of course, when I say "his coming," I mean the coming of the mothers and the children, the croqueting and coquetting misses, the young gentlemen with patent fishing rods, and the whole merry crowd of them. They stir up and brighten the still country world, plumpen the not always plump country purses, and grow plump and brown and happy themselves—fairly treated—and so it is a fine thing for all parties—this fashion of summer boarders.

It will take another generation, may be, to bring about more generally the bright-inspired, cheerful-hearted, healthy-bodied farmer, but he is coming as rapidly as evolution can bring him. It is not to be expected that he will fetch out an opera in haying time, or that he will settle down to progressive croquet at that busy opening of the year when earth and seeds are yearning for each other in a way that keeps the husbandman on the jump, so to speak; but it is to be hoped that in the lulls of the farm-year he will take time to breathe—to breathe and to grow in grace and mental and spiritual health. It is to be hoped that he will have time to take his family on long drives, and to meet his neighbors in enjoyable picnics by lake, or ocean, or mountain streams, or to sit down to an evening game of whist, or a neighborhood reading circle, without falling asleep from combined over-work and mental stagnation. It is to be hoped that he will subscribe for the choice magazines and scientific journals and first-class newspapers, and that he will occasionally buy a book, and know how to absorb the best in all this good reading. It is expected that his daughters will know something of music and painting, as well as of fine house-keeping, flower culture, and Jersey butter, and that his sons will find the farm so graded up to their ideas of comfortable and attractive living, that some of them will gladly stay at home. Indeed, the time is set for the cessation of that lamentable stampede that empties the country of its youth, and heaps them upon the altars of devouring cities. You may think that such cessation will be sad for the cities, but the cities will perhaps still have more than they can decently care for.

One sees the signs of the uplifting of farm-life in many directions. The more convenient and artistic houses, the improved stock; the magnificent dairies; the increasing culture of choice fruits; the almost general growing of window-plants; the more civilized country schools; the bad of promise that appears in "Village Improvement" clubs—all these things point one direction—to the beautifying and enriching of the country, and to the refining and ennobling of the country's children.

A NORTH CAROLINA guinea hen had a nest in a hedge row. A crow discovered it, and after trying in vain to break an egg with its beak, clatched one in its claws, and flying up forty or fifty feet in the air, let it fall, and thus accomplished its purpose.

There is a good way to preserve peaches for winter use. Gather on a dry day, put immediately into a tin pan and, in a cool cover, or before the fire, until dry and brittle. Rub fine and put in well corked bottles.

"I MUST have order in this courtroom," sternly demanded a Justice of the Peace. "I must and I have less noise and confusion here. I have already disposed of three important cases without being able to hear a word of the evidence."

LOWELL Citizen—"If women ruled the world," says John Boyle O'Reilly, "life would be a poem. Yes; and in the advent of such a situation of affairs there would be plenty of editors who would reject the poem." We know at least one who would.

A GENTLEMAN at table being requested to carve a dish before him, which chanced to be a loin of mutton, took up the carving knife, asking: "shall I cut it breadwise?" "You had better cut it middlewise," replied one of the guests. "For then we all may get a bit in our mouths."

A PREACHER, probably too much given to fun, was telling recently of a man who came to his city twenty years ago, bought a basket and commenced picking up rags. "How much do you suppose that man is worth this day?" he asked. "A million," said one. "Half a million," said another. Finally they all gave it up and said, "You tell us what he is worth." "Nothing," he replied, "and he owes for the basket."—Richmond Religious Herald.
