SATURDAY, SEPT. 3, 1887.

REVOLUTION IN THE AFTER TREATMENT OF CATARACT.

Dr. J. J. Chisholm, Surgeon in charge of the Presbyterian Eye and Ear Hospital of Baltimore, in an address before the American Medical Association, describes the new mode of treatment, after an operation for the removal of cataract, which has proved wonderfully successful and is such an improvement on the course of protracted torture to which the patient used to be subjected, as to entitle the men whose experiments have proven not only the success but the advantage of this humane and enlightened course of treatment, to the never ending gratitude those whose afflictions make such operations necessary. The old way of confining the patient to bed, and compelling them to remain on their backs, without movement for several days, in a darkened room with both eyes securely bandaged, must have rendered the after treatment more terrible than the operation itself. Now, the patient is allowed to use his limbs and walk about as he pleases, without any shading of the good eye, whilst the one operated on, instead of being bandaged, simply has the lids drawn tightly together and held there by strips of light isinglass. With this treatment he can have free use of the house in a week's time and in two weeks can be allowed to leave the hospital.

ONE CENT POSTAGE.

A peculiar plan, by which a portion of the government's surplus money may be used, is proposed in the suggestion that letter postage should be reduced to one cent. The postal department of the government has never produced a surplus of revenue, and has never been run for such a purpose. The policy has been to reduce postage as soon as the revenue began to approximate expenditures. The policy proposed of one cent postage would be the most extreme yet pursued by the Postoffice Department. The part which cheap postage has played in the development of the past twenty-five years is not generally realized. There can be no harm in continuing in the same direction still further. One of the chief advantages to be derived from a change to one cent postage would be to largely do away with postal cards. The extent to which these are used at present shows that one cent postage would be appreciated.

The Baltimore Sun of August 25th, concludes its editorial remarks upon "The Republican State nominations" as follows:

It is pleasant to note that the convention was sanctified by the presence of representatives of the democratic element, which has recently been engaged in the self-lotted task of preaching the gospel of purity to the democratic party. Having discovered that that organization was either hopelessly corrupt or was able to respond to popular demands without their assistance, they have turned to the republican vineyard, where it is to be hoped their efforts will be appreciated and their work result in practical good. But the republicans will do well to keep a business eye upon their grapes.

It will be remembered that Mr. Cowen's great speech on the occasion, had for its characteristics, a certain profanity of expression, and a somewhat irreverent use of scriptural quotations, all of which were loudly applauded and the Sun has well preserved the animus of the occasion.

In the absence of the usual cyclonic disturbances incident to such a heated spell as we have recently passed through, the labors of man seem to surpass for powers of mischief the convulsions of nature. Railroad hoppers are multiplying with a force and malignity that would seem to make the wrath of elements an insignificant rival. It begins to look as if the travelling public must consent to go slower if it has any regard for safety. The results of science are equal to anything except the impossible, and it seems hard to believe that there is such a thing as the impossible.

STANLEY, the African Explorer has been heard from. A letter from him dated camp at Yambuga Rapids, Arrawini River, June 19, 1887, giving account of his progress and well being has been published from the London Times of August 20, 1887.

It must be a very hard-to-suit individual indeed who can't find a political party to his liking this year. Besides the grand old party and its always active opponent, the Democratic party, there is the Prohibition party, the Henry George party, the Socialist party, the Union Labor party, the Greenback party, the Ben Butler party and now our esteemed contemporary, the Press, has discovered a new old American party, all of which goes to show that the American people are learning that the salvation of this Republic does not depend upon any one political party.—Philadelphia Times.

A Church Tower Falls.

Six men were working at Williamsport, Pa., on a scaffold inside a tower of Annunciation Catholic Church in course of erection there, on Tuesday. On the dumping of a wheelbarrow of stone upon the scaffold the timbers broke and it fell. The distance to the base of the tower was 65 feet four men were killed. Father Garney of the Church was on the scaffold a few minutes before it fell.

The biggest giant of the age has just gone over to the silent majority. He was an Austrian, Wincklemeyer by name, and was eight feet six inches high, standing a clear head taller than Chang, Bates or any of his contemporaries. Wincklemeyer was a young man, too, and had not completed his growth.—Morning Herald.

Salt Rheum

The agonies of those who suffer from severe salt rheum are indescribable. The cleansing, healing, purifying influences of Hood's Sarsaparilla are unequalled by any other medicine. "I take pleasure in recommending Hood's Sarsaparilla, for it has done wonders for me. I had salt rheum very severely, affecting me nearly my entire body. Only those who have suffered from this disease in its worst form can imagine the extent of my affliction. I tried many medicines, but failed to receive benefit until I took Hood's Sarsaparilla. Then the disease began to subside, the agonizing itches and pains disappeared, and now I am entirely free from the disease. My blood seems to be thoroughly purified, and my general health is greatly benefited." JAMES ALLEN, Sexton N. E. Church, North Chicago, Ill.

It has been highly praised by the newspaper press throughout the country, and even in England. Three hundred pages, substantially bound, embossed muslin, full gilt. Contains 125 extraordinary prescriptions for prevailing diseases, either one of which is worth five times the price of the book, while some of them are absolutely invaluable, and should be in the hands of everybody. The public school opened in this place on Thursday with 55 pupils in attendance. Miss Carrie Kefauver has resumed her position as principal, with Miss Harriet M. Johnson of Baltimore as Assistant teacher.

Our readers we doubt not will appreciate, the graphic and newsy items of our Frederick correspondent. We hope to continue them regularly, they will present in the fewest words, the doings of the county seat.

The Death of William Clifford Krise. The mystery of Life and the mystery of Death, though familiar to us all, still remain so far beyond the comprehension of the finite mind, that we fail to grasp their meaning, and though realizing the former, the latter is so shrouded in uncertainty that we unconsciously feel that we and those near and dear to us are safe from the doom to which other mortals are exposed; and thus when death enters for the first time into an unbroken household and the pride and hope of the family is stricken, and youth, strength, energy and ambition, high hopes and bright prospects all lie cold and withered by its ruthless touch, it is hard for the crushed hearts of the bereaved ones to realize that their lot is the lot of all, and to feel that He who sent the dread messenger into their happy home, still "Doeth all things well."

In the death of our young friend William Clifford Krise, this sad truth has been mournfully exemplified. He was a young man of more than ordinary ability, exemplary in his conduct, gentlemanly and courteous in demeanor, a loving son and brother and an earnest christian. His early life, spent on a farm, was calculated to develop him both morally and physically, and for several years after attaining his majority, he was engaged in teaching in the country. About a year ago he was elected to a professorship in Eaton and Burnett's Business College, of which institution he was a graduate, and filled that position at the time of his death.

Mr. Krise was a member of the Methodist church, but the building occupied by that congregation in Emmitsburg not being large enough to accommodate the great number of persons in attendance at his funeral, the services were held in the Presbyterian church, the pastor, Rev. W. Simonton, D. D., assisting the Methodist clergyman, Rev. Osborne Belt, in conducting the services, and the interment took place in the Presbyterian Cemetery.

A great many friends of the family from the surrounding neighborhood were present and some from quite a distance. Professors Burnett and Kane from Baltimore being among the number. Many beautiful floral tributes were sent from friends both at home and abroad. Mr. Eberhard Streichenberg of Baltimore sending an exquisite wreath of flowers.

The bereaved family has the sympathy of the entire community in their deep affliction, and the prayers of many friends that they may have grace and strength to withstand the sorrow, not as those without hope, believing that the Hand that wounds can heal, and that "He who giveth His beloved sleep" does not needlessly afflict his children.

The New Princeton Review for September has reached us, bringing a literary treat both varied and tempting. The opening paper on "Lord Byron" by Richard Henry Stoddard, deals so justly with the famous and unhappy poet, screening his faults with the kindly mantle of charity, whilst bringing clearly into view the good points of his character that one can but think that the like spirit shown by contemporary critics might have saved him from the depravity to which he fell; "The Origin of Life by H. W. Conn, gives us some of the scientific theories on the subject, Professor Alexander Johnston, in an article on "The First Century of the Constitution," shows clearly the indebtedness of the first framers of the constitution to the work already done by the several states. A. H. Colquitt in "Some Plain Words on Prohibition," shows the fallacy of the arguments used in opposition to prohibitory measures and advances arguments, supported by facts, in favor of these measures that could hardly fail to convince the most skeptical. Brander Matthews in an article "American Authors and British Pirates" is not very complimentary to publishers on the other side of the Atlantic, but the subject is not one to be treated lightly, and it cannot be expected that an attack of that kind could be made with gloves on. Wm. L. R. Gifford furnishes a very clear and concise history of "The Dorr Rebellion in Rhode Island in 1842." Francis N. Zabriskie discusses "The Essay as a Literary Form and Quality," and William Root Bliss tells us some interesting things about "The Town's Mind."

There is also a pleasant story by Julia C. R. Dorr, entitled "A Greek Girl's Outing," and other reading matter of the high order which belongs to this Review.

Useful and Useful Medicines.

There is a certain class of remedies for constipation absolutely useful. There are boluses and potions made in great part of podophyllin, aloes, rhubarb, senna, and other worthless ingredients. The danger they do to the stomach and the entire system. As a means of curing and preventing constipation, no medicine is so safe and so effective as the one which never injures the bowels, but always does so violently and profusely, and besides, grates the bowels.
