THE CHILDREN HAVE GROWN AWAY

My little children have grown away, Grown away from the land of play, Grown to be men and women tall, With passions and loves and hates and all

That comes to us when we grow away From childish play.

My little children that were so dear, How can I help but wish them here With arms around my neck in the old loving way

I have not known for many a day, Not since home was my kingdom, precious and sweet, Filled with the music of pattering feet?

Those feet that led them away from me Into the world and over the sea, Leaving me here in my lonely room That even in sunshine seems full of gloom.

And so very lonely I needs must cry For the days gone by.

I thought I should be the first to go, And I cannot but wish it might have been so, But the Father of love, who dwells in the light,

Took some of my babies out of my sight, Took them away to his Home of Rest, And I know, though I cannot tell why, 'twas best.

So I'm trusting our Lord can and clearly see That in that dear land our home shall be, And though the children have gone away

We shall meet again, oh, blessed day, When He will call—to heaven we come And find once more our happy home.

—John A. Clark in Good Housekeeping.

An Old-Fashioned School Teacher.

The school was in Minnesota, and Gideon D— was the strong, unruly boy who had thus far defied every teacher.

Miss Miranda R— had undertaken to govern that school, and here the story commences:

She was a tall, angular, severe-looking woman, about forty years of age.

She wore a perfectly plain dark-brown dress, reaching to her shoes, topped only a long black silk apron with velvet ribbon trimmings, and a checked gingham kerchief around her neck with the ends crossed and fastened with an immense old-fashioned gold and glass breast-pin, with several varieties and shades of hair under the glass.

Her own hair, black, thinly streaked with gray, was combed down smooth and flat over each ear and arranged at the back in a "water-fall."

She made stiff, jerky little bows, that threatened destruction to her waterfall, as the children came in, peered at them over her spectacles, and smiled in a grim sort of a way on those who came nearest her desk.

"They never hired her for beauty," said Bryce Sheldon, a mischievous boy of sixteen.

"No; I guess they hired her 'o make such chaps as you to the mark," replied Ben Lewis, "and she'll do it, too."

"Wonder what Gid D—ll say to her," said a third boy.

"Well, I wonder what she'll say to him," replied Bryce Sheldon.

Gideon gave Miss R— a long, searching look when he came in. She returned it with interest. For the first time a teacher had looked him "out of countenance." The keen gray eyes behind the spectacles never left Gideon's face until he turned it away, and said, in a low tone, to one of his mates:

"I'm not afraid of her."

He realized, however, that the person he had to deal with this time was no common foe, and he resolved to proceed cautiously at first; but from the moment he saw Miss R— he was resolved to cut short her career as teacher of that school.

When nine o'clock came, Miss R— rang her little bell, and stood, prim and soldierlike, with arms stiff and straight at her sides, waiting for her pupils to take their seats.

When she spoke, her severe face brightened up, and her voice was a pleasant surprise, it was so clear and soft, and even sweet. Some of the children thought they might like her, after all.

They knew that they liked her when the first week came to an end. They found her to be a just and kind teacher—stern only when it was necessary for her to be so in order to enforce some rule that ought to have been obeyed without question or force.

A full month passed, and Gideon D— had not yet made what the other boys called "a bad break," and he had been questioned often as to why he had not done so.

He generally replied that he would do so when he "got a good ready."

He had been nearly ready several times, but something in those remarkably piercing eyes of Miss R— had held him in check. On two or three occasions he had put out "feelers," as he mentally called them. That is, he had disobeyed the rules in trifling things to see how Miss R— would "take it."

Her eyes had flashed ominously, and the pleasant look had died quite out of her face as she told him "never to repeat the offence," and he never had.

But, having "run out" two men teachers, Gideon did not propose being conquered and subdued by a woman.

It was on Monday morning of the fifth week of the school that Gideon decided to "make a break."

Miss R— always called the roll as soon as the school came to order in the morning. Those present at that time were to say "Present," and were to keep their arms folded during the calling of the roll.

When the teacher called the name of Gideon, he answered with a loud "Here!"

Miss R— sat up very straight in an instant; her keen eyes shone behind her glasses; she looked toward Gideon. His arms were unfolded and his hands spread out flat on his desk.

"That is not the way to answer, and you know it perfectly well," said Miss R— in a sharp voice.

"Fold your arms instantly, and say 'present!'"

"I've answered once, and that's enough," said Gideon, "and I ain't doing any harm with my arms unfolded."

Miss R— sprang to her feet, her face very red and eyes brighter than ever.

"Gideon," she said, slowly and icily, "if you do not have your arms folded within thirty seconds, and if you have not answered 'Present' within the same length of time, you'll be sorry for it."

With a sneer on his face, Gideon coolly clasped his hands over his head, straightened himself up in his seat, and stared at Miss R— with compressed lips that showed no sign of yielding.

Even those who were there, and saw what followed, were unable to give a very coherent account of it.

They said that the lid of Miss R—'s desk went up like a flash, that she drew from it a long, new rawhide, and seemed to fairly fly down the aisle to Gideon's seat.

He had not for one moment expected that she would dare use force with him. He had confidently expected to frighten her at the last, and seemed to think that his boldness had stricken her with terror.

Most of the other lady teachers had cried when he defied them, and he rather expected Miss R— to beat a retreat of some sort.

He was, therefore, wholly unprepared for the vigor and fury of Miss R—'s onslaught. He had not time to even leave his seat when one of Miss R—'s strong, bony hands was fastened firmly in his long, thick hair, his head was pulled forward, and the blows rained down on his back, every stroke cutting the air with a sharp, whirring sound.

In vain he writhed and struck out blindly. He could not get out of his seat nor out of Miss R—'s clutches. Never had he fallen into such hands before. Her grip was like a vise. She shook him until his teeth chattered; she whipped him until he fairly roared, and some of the little children began to cry.

"Pull her off, boys; pull her off!" roared Gideon, at last.

"Here you, Bob Green, Jed Likes, Luke Shaw, help, help!"

END OF THE GREAT CENTENNIAL.

The much talked-of, much-prepared for and much-fought over Centennial celebration is past and gone, and the agitated elements which go to make up our great national life, having united in a grand and ceremonious rejoicing over the glorious heritage so gloriously preserved are rapidly subsiding; soon the whole pageant will be a thing of the past, to be handed down to posterity as a sort of supplement to the history of the United States.

That the enthusiasm was general throughout the land there is no question, and the triumphant ringing of the bells in city, town and village, from lofty Cathedrals spires and little country churches rising in blended harmony to heaven throughout the length and breadth of this great country could not fail to thrill every heart that realized "This is my own native land."

But now the show is over, the lights are put out and the enthusiastic crowds have dispersed, "One to his farm and another to his merchandise," satisfied that the ship of State has been safely launched for another hundred years, whilst they shut their eyes to the dangers that menace it within and without. We are no doubt a great people and we could not help swelling with national and individual pride as we contrasted our brilliant position today with that we held a hundred years ago. But the honesty, purity and simplicity which made the young republic strong enough to live and grow to such immense proportions, have been nearly buried out of sight by the luxury, the corruption, the trickery and dishonesty which are growing with our growth and strengthening with our strength, sapping the very foundations of the structure of which we as American citizens are so justly proud. Can we not take time to pause in this headlong race for power, for wealth and distinction, to ponder seriously over the possible tendency of the course we are pursuing? Must we as Americans always rush and hurry, never know what peace, quiet and contentment are? Will we never acquire the dignity which comes from power and wisdom rightly used?

Intelligence, skill, industry, perseverance, enterprise, all these are traits to be honored and encouraged, and all of them belong to us as American citizens, but purity, truthfulness, and honesty with the conviction that labor is honorable and that one man is as good as another if he conducts himself aright and does his duty in the position in which it has pleased God to place him, these and these alone will keep us fit for the heritage we have received from our fathers, and enables us to hand it down to posterity undishonored.

WHERE WILL THE BOODLERS GO NOW?

The Dominion Parliament of Canada has passed a bill to extradite nearly all classes of criminals. However it provides only for the future, the reason for which as was given in the debate being that among the many boodlers were heads of families who had acquired position in society, and had "attainments and means, which, forgetting the past were an acquisition to any community." Fugitives from this country will no doubt never again be supplied with an asylum of refuge so near at hand as they have enjoyed so long in Canada. This fact alone may have a good effect upon that class of criminals.

ANOTHER instance of the result of an American girl marrying a foreigner for the sake of a title is brought to light by the suit against Mrs. Giovauni Danesi, formerly Miss Mary Peck. Miss Peck was born in Georgia, and was the daughter of Ira Peck, who later removed to Hartford, Conn., and became one of the wealthiest residents of that State. She was married in Paris, and her husband squandered her fortune. Now she has a suit to answer for $56,452.17, on notes with interest, which she had signed at her husband's request, he telling her that he would attend to the matter.

A GREAT CELEBRATION.

The centennial anniversary of the inauguration of George Washington as the first President of the United States was observed with patriotic ceremonies in a number of the large cities and at many points throughout the country. The chief feature was the celebration in New York, which included religious services in the church where Washington worshipped on his inauguration day, an oration by Chauncey M. Depew, a speech by President Harrison, and the reading of an ode by Whittier at the sub-treasury building, an imposing military parade with 50,000 men in line, and a banquet at night, with speeches by President Harrison, Ex-Presidents Cleveland and Hayes, Governor Hill and others. The weather was superb, and the celebration in all its details most successful and inspiring. Baltimore observed the day with religious services in the churches and exercises in the public schools, and a liberal display of the national colors. The holiday spirit was everywhere apparent. In the counties of Maryland a number of celebrations, some of them quite elaborate, were held. This was notably the case at Annapolis, Cumberland and Frederick. In Washington city special religious services were held. The feature of the celebration in Alexandria, Va., near which Washington had his home, was a centennial discourse in Christ Episcopal Church by the Rev. Philip Slaughter, now over 80 years of age. Celebrations were held in St. Louis, Chicago and other cities.—Baltimore Sun.

WASHINGTON GOSSIP.

Special Correspondence.

The attitude of Col. W. W. Dudley toward the President is just now a theme of conversation and comment. Col. Dudley pronounces the letter published in the Chicago "Herald" as emanating from him a base forgery. A portion of a letter which he did write to his friend Van Pelt is published now over his own signature and by his consent. It is as follows: "Perhaps there is no one in the country who has done as much for Gen. Harrison during the last twenty years as I have, but because our Democratic friends down in Indianapolis have started the hue and cry on me Brother Ben, does not feel that he can afford to recognize me as an acquaintance, and consequently I don't take dinner at the White House, as might be expected. I have not been inside the White House since Cleveland's inauguration, a little over four years ago."

What the outcome of this unfortunate affair will be can scarcely be divined, but the "Post" of this city voices the general sentiment of the people here with reference to Col. Dudley when it says, in speaking of his work in the election: "He may have done as thousands of others have done before him, and as thousands will do again, in exciting party contests, some things that might not bear the strictest moral analysis, on the principle that in politics, as in love and war, everything is fair; but that he ever violated the laws of his country to compass the success of even so long and staunch a friend as Gen. Harrison is sheer nonsense. The President doesn't believe so, and the Indiana Democrats don't believe it, and public sentiment does not force or demand such belief."

Sir Julian Pauncefote, the new British minister who succeeds Lord Sackville, has arrived in the city, and the massive mansion which constitutes the headquarters of the British legation is, after many months, again illuminated at night to denote occupation. War veterans entitled to compensation for the loss of limbs can have their claims settled without employing an attorney by simply writing to the surgeon general of the army. We are having a spell of dreary, unceasing rain, which bodes no good except to the grass crop. Strawberries can only be had from distant markets and at extortionate prices. Ex-Gov. Wm. B. Stone, of Iowa, who has just been appointed Assistant Commissioner of the General Land Office, has an excellent record in the military and public service, and will doubtless prove able and efficient in the discharge of the important duties to which he is now called and to the higher duties to which he will soon fall heir.

Murrell.

THE Minnesota State Legislature has passed a capital punishment law similar in some respects to the New York law. Under its provisions the prisoner is to be kept in solitary confinement and see no one but his family, his lawyers and his spiritual advisers. He is to be executed before sunrise, and may invite three persons to be present. The Sheriff invites six persons besides the surgeon. It is made a misdemeanor for any newspaper to publish anything about the execution excepting the mere facts.

Home Evidence

No other preparation has won success at home equal to Hood's Sarsaparilla. In Lowell, Mass., where it is made, it is now, as it has been for years, the leading medicine for purifying the blood, and toning and strengthening the system. This "good man at home" is "a tower of strength abroad."

It would require a volume to print all the praise which has been said in favor of Hood's Sarsaparilla. Mr. Albert Street, living at 23 East Pine Street, Lowell, for 15 years employed as boss carpenter by J. W. Bennett, president of the Erie Telephone Company, had a large running sore come on his leg, which troubled him a year, when he began to take Hood's Sarsaparilla. The sore soon grew less in size, and in a short time disappeared.

Joe Dunphy, 21 Central Street, Lowell, had swellings and lumps on his face and neck, which Hood's Sarsaparilla completely cured. Mrs. C. W. Marriott, wife of the First Assistant Fire Engineer of Lowell, says that for 15 years she was troubled with stomach disorder and sick headache, which nothing relieved. The attacks came on every fortnight, when she was obliged to take her bed, and was unable to eat any food. She took Hood's Sarsaparilla, and after a time the attacks ceased entirely. Many more might be given had we room. On the recommendation of people of Lowell, who know us, we ask you to try

That Tired Feeling Afflicts nearly every one in the spring. The system having become accustomed to the bracing air of winter, is weakened by the warm days of the changing season, and readily yields to attacks of disease. Hood's Sarsaparilla is just the medicine needed. It tones and builds up every part of the body, and also expels all impurities from the blood. Try it this season.

Smith vs. McMurray Again. The Frederick News of last Friday says:—"An order of the court in the Clerk's office to-day in the Smith-McMurray contest strikes out the decree of April 6, 1889, and decrees that the estate of Louis McMurray pay to Mr. Thos. H. Smith $5,164.04 and interest from Dec. 1, 1884, instead of $3,557.05, the sum named in the decree of April 6, 1889. It is thought that an appeal will be taken to the Court of Appeals.

Centennial Ball. A brilliant social event in this place was a grand ball given at the residence of Mr. M. Hoke on Tuesday night, when the completion of the addition to his residence was celebrated. The invited guests included a number of friends from Gettysburg, Loy's Station, Mechanistown and elsewhere, besides a large number from this place and the immediate vicinity. Dancing was the principal amusement, which was kept up until a late hour. Refreshments were served during the evening in the usual hospitable manner for which the hostess is noted.

PERSONALS. Mr. Robert C. Gingell and wife of Gettysburg made a visit to his father, Mr. George Gingell this week. Centennial Observances. Tuesday, April 30, the Centennial anniversary of the inauguration of Gen. Washington as first President of the United States, was observed in this place as a general holiday. At 9 o'clock a. m., all the Church bells commenced ringing, which was kept up for half an hour. At half-past nine a union service was conducted at the Presbyterian church by the Pastor, Rev. Wm. Simonson, D. D., at which he delivered a historical address, showing forth the advances the country had made in the past hundred years, the difficulties and dangers that had been surmounted, together with many striking features connected with the foundation of our government and its history during the past century. The choir on the occasion was composed of members of the different choirs in town, under the management of Dr. Wrigley, who presided at the organ. At the close of the services Jackson's Te Deum was rendered, followed by the Benediction, after which the choir sang "God Bless our Native Land," tune "America."

No other public demonstration was held throughout the day, but in the evening the Emmitt Cornet Band paraded the streets and gave a number of serenades. The national emblem was displayed from many of the houses in town, but none of them were decorated. The day was generally observed throughout the county, especially at Frederick. Church bells were rung in all the towns and services held at the different churches. In some places exhibitions of fire works were given at night.

Sitting on the Safety Valve. Many are they who have laughed at the story of the green steamboat fireman who sat on the safety valve to prevent it "leaking." Yet thousands are repeating his folly every day. They are troubled with blotches, pimples, eruptions, salt-rheum, boils, carbuncles, ulcers and old sores, and are contenting themselves with suppressing the symptoms without removing the cause. They sit on these safety valves by which Nature is driving out blood impurities, instead of using Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, which cures by removing the cause, which is in the blood. It is a wonderful blood purifier and invigorating tonic. Do you think the proprietors of Dr. Sago's Catarrh Remedy would offer, as they have done for many years, a standing reward of $500 for a case of Catarrh which they cannot cure, if they did not positively know that the Remedy will absolutely and permanently cure Catarrh. Sold by druggists, at only 50 cents.

AMONG the real estate transfers recorded at the Clerk's office during the past week is that of N. C. Stansbury, executor, to John R. Stoner, 175 acres of land in this district, $4,000.

Horrible Death. On Tuesday of last week Charles E. Crawford was caught in a circular saw which he was running on the farm of Dennis Dutrow near Mt. Airy, and before he could be extricated one leg and one arm were cut off, from the effects of which he died that night. Mr. Crawford was 28 years old and leaves a wife and several children.

Mont Alto Furnace Burned. The large furnace of the Mont Alto Iron Company, at Mont Alto, Franklin county, Pa., was destroyed by fire on Tuesday evening. All the buildings connected with the operation of the furnace excepting the offices were consumed. A fire engine from Chambersburg arrived in time to save an immense stack of charcoal. The fire started in the casting house during the casting hour.

Shot a Bald Eagle. Augustus Little who lives along Middle Creek, near the Gettysburg road, shot a bald eagle on Saturday morning which measured 5 feet 7 inches from tip to tip of wings. It is supposed to be about one year old. Gus says two of them have been seen in the neighborhood recently, but he hasn't been able to get a shot at the other one yet, but if he does it will be sure to come down.

Married at Washington. Mr. James V. Rider, formerly of this place, was married last Wednesday to Miss Mary C. Akers of Washington. The ceremony was performed at 5:30 P. M., at the Immaculate Conception Church, 8th and N Sts., Washington, by Rev. John M. Barry. A reception was held the same evening at their new home, 1522 N. Capitol street. The CHURCHES joins Mr. Rider's many friends in Emmitsburg, in wishing them a long and prosperous married life.

Bold Robbery. Considerable excitement prevailed throughout this community on Tuesday morning when the fact became known that Mr. Geo. T. Eyster's jewelry store had been robbed during Monday night. About 3:30 a. m., Mr. Eyster was awakened by hearing a slight noise in the store, but thinking his little dog had been left in the room over night, paid no particular attention to it, until a little later he saw the reflection of a lighted match through a pipe hole in the floor. Judging from the sound, he supposed some one was in the store and located the noise behind the counter, whereupon he seized his revolver and thrusting his arm down the pipe hole, fired in the direction of the sound. The thief who was operating from the outside, beat a hasty retreat up town, and Mr. E. on examination of the premises found that he had cut through the shutter at the side window near the fastening, opened the shutters, raised the dozen watch cases, a few of which had movements in them, but were of little value, a box containing scraps used in repairs which were of no value except to a watchmaker, two breast pins, a necklace and a pair of spectacles. The tools used in cutting the shutter were taken from Smith's carriage shop, just across the street, which was also broken open. No trace of the thief has been found, but the general impression prevails that he spent the whole of the next day kicking himself. Mr. Eyster always removes the valuable articles to his bedroom at night.

Items From Fairplay. Special to the Emmitsburg Chronicle. FAIRPLAY, Pa., May 1.—Miss Jennie White who several weeks ago was reported very ill, died at the residence of her father on Wednesday morning April 24th, aged 16 years, 7 months and 12 days. Deceased was the only daughter of Hon. A. F. White, and was beloved by all who knew her. She attended Bethany School in Gettysburg, for several months last fall, where she made many warm friends, and was very successful in her studies until called away by sickness. The family and relatives have the heartfelt sympathy of the entire community, for the sad loss of one of its members just entering up on the activities of life.

Past her suffering, past her pain, Cease to weep, for tears are vain; Calm the tumult of thy breast, For she who suffered is now at rest. Gone to rest with Angels bright, There all is joy, peace and light; Gone to dwell with God above, There more are gathered whom we love.

A Fatal Kick. A valuable mare belonging to Mr. Edward G. Morrison had one of its legs broken by being kicked by another horse on Thursday of last week. Dr. Reigle set the leg and hopes were entertained for her recovery, but on Monday she had to be killed to end her sufferings, as symptoms of lock jaw were developing.

Curious Eggs. Mr. Geo. L. Gillean brought to this office on Wednesday, two hens eggs, one of which looks like a gourd, being composed of two very small eggs connected as it were by a stem in the middle. The other was a perfectly formed egg with a rough shell, having the appearance of a wooden egg that had been roughly cut out with a pocket knife. He got both of them at Mr. Edward G. Morrison's and says he gets some of the latter kind there every week.

Terrible Accident. While several men were engaged in drilling out a hole that had been put down and loaded last fall, at the tunnel on the W. M. Railroad between Fairfield and the Summit, last Friday, the blast went off, fatally injuring an Italian and hurting several others slightly. The wounded man had one hand blown off, the other one shattered and one arm and one leg broken. He was taken to Baltimore via Gettysburg the same night and placed in a hospital, where he died on Saturday.

Our Town Election. Next Monday, the 6th inst., is the day for the annual election for a Burgess and six Commissioners of Emmitsburg, and written notices to that effect have been posted in conspicuous places by the clerk of the present board, but as yet we have heard of no nominations having been made. The present board of commissioners as far as known have fulfilled the requirements of their position, but as the usual report of the treasurer has neither been published or made public in any way, we are unable to comment on the financial condition of our town, as has been our custom heretofore. In neglecting to place this statement before the people the commissioners have been guilty of negligence.

It is reported that the Pennsylvania Railroad Company contemplates purchasing Barnum's Hotel, Baltimore, for railroad offices. The rain fall in Baltimore during April was nearly nine inches, the largest of any April since the signal office was opened in the city in 1871. M. J. W. H under on a 11 c Horse, Baltimore county, has a dog 15 years, old black in color when young, but which has now turned entirely white. It is stated that the oyster season in Worcester county has been a complete failure, while at Cambridge it is considered the most prosperous one they ever had. The mulatto woman lately found dead in Prince George's county, near the District of Columbia line, proves to have been Eliza Foster, and Nelson Thomas is under arrest for killing her. Mr. John Chew, an esteemed citizen of Carroll county, died at his residence near Carrollton, on Sunday night, in his sixty-seventh year. He held the office of county commissioner from 1861 to 1867. Capt. Jos. Kane of the dredge-boat McAllister, was sentenced at Chestertown last Thursday to four years in the Penitentiary for firing on Capt. Kerr, of the police Sloop Helen Baughman last winter. The Baltimore members of the Independent Order of Odd-Fellows last Friday celebrated the anniversary of the day when the first lodge of that organization was founded in this country, seventy years ago. Two B. O. passenger trains were in collision in Baltimore last Friday morning. Vice-President Morton, Gen. Schofield and Governor Foraker, of Ohio, were in a private car attached to one of the trains and were slightly shaken up. Expand the Mind By seeing as much as you can of the world. But ere you set out either as a tourist, commercial traveler or steamboat passenger, provide yourself with Hatcher's Stomach Bitters, which the traveling public recognizes as the finest medicinal safeguard and preventive of sickness with which any one journeying by land or water can be provided. It furnishes to the western pioneer adequate protection against malaria, rheumatism, and the disorders of the bowels, which mislead and torment. Its relative effect upon a stomach perturbed by the rocking of a ship is truly magical and it is a useful appetizer and nerve invigorator. Recollet it is for biliousness and kidney infection, and counteracts, in a remarkable degree, the effects of fatigue, physical or mental. After wetting and exposure in inclement weather, it should be used as a preventive.

We regret that a valuable communication from Mt. St. Mary's College arrived too late for publication in this issue. It will appear next week.

The Mysteries of a Pack of Cards.

A private soldier by the name of Richard Lee was taken before a magistrate recently for playing cards during divine service.

"Richard, put up the cards; this is no place for them."

"Never mind that," said Richard.

When the service was over the constable took Richard before the Mayor.

"For playing cards in church," said the constable.

"Well, soldier, what have you to say for yourself?"

"Much, sir, I hope."

"Very good. If not, I will punish you more than any man has ever been punished."

"I have been," said the soldier, "about six weeks on the march. I have neither Bible nor Common Prayer Book. I have nothing but a pack of cards, and I'll satisfy your worship of the purity of my intentions."

And spreading the cards before the Mayor, he began with the ace, it reminds me there is but one God.

When I see the deuce, it reminds me of the Father and Son. When I see the tray, it reminds me of the Father, Son and Holy Ghost.

When I see the four spot, it reminds me of the four Evangelists that preached—Matthew, Mark, Luke and John.

When I meet the five, it reminds me of the five Wise Virgins that trimmed their lamps—there were ten, but five were wise and five were foolish, and were shut out.

When I see the six, it reminds me that in six days the Lord made the heaven and earth. When I see the seven, it reminds me that on the seventh day He rested from the great work He had created and hallowed it.

When I see the eight, it reminds me of the eight righteous persons that were saved when God destroyed the world, viz: Noah and his wife, with three sons, and their wives.

When I see the nine, it reminds me of the nine lepers that were cleansed by our Saviour—there were nine out of ten who never returned thanks.

When I see the ten, it reminds me of the Ten Commandments, which God handed down to Moses on tables of stone.

When I see the king, it reminds me of the King of Heaven, which is God Almighty.

When I see the Queen, it reminds me of the Queen of Sheba, who visited Solomon, for she was as wise a woman as he was a man.

She brought with her fifty boys and fifty girls, all dressed in the same apparel for King Solomon to tell who were boys and who were girls.

King Solomon sent for them to wash. The girls washed to the elbows, and the boys washed to the wrists; so King Solomon told by that.

"Well," said the Mayor, "you have given a good description of all the cards but one."

"What is that?" asked the soldier.

"The knave," said the Mayor.

"I will give you a description of that, too, if you will not be angry," remarked the soldier.

"I will not," said the Mayor, "if you do not term me to be the knave."

"Well," said the soldier, "the greatest knave that I know of, is the constable that brought me here."

"I do not know," said the Mayor "if he is the greatest knave, but I know he is the greatest fool."

"When I count how many spots in a pack of cards, I find that 365, as many days as there are in a year; when I count the number of cards in a pack, I find there are fifty-two, the number of weeks in a year; and I find four suits, the number of weeks in a month. I find there are twelve picture cards in a pack, representing the number of months in a year, and on counting the tricks I find thirteen, the number of weeks in a quarter.

"So you see, sir, a pack of cards serves for a Bible, almanac, and Common Prayer Book.

Miscellaneous.

Old Homes are Best.

If one runs over the list of the persons known to him he finds very few of more than forty years old living in the houses in which they were born.

There is scarcely a town in the long-settled parts of the Northern States from which a considerable portion of its people has not gone out in the course of the past fifty years to seek residence elsewhere.

Attachment to the native soil, affection for the home of one's youth, the claims of kindred, the bonds of social duty, have not proved strong enough to resist the allurements of hope, the fair promise of bettering fortune, and the love of adventure.

Uncle Sam's Whitewash Recipe.

Excursionists who travel along the seacoast are often attacked by the remarkable whiteness of the lighthouses, beacons, and keepers' dwellings, and they wonder how these guides to the mariner are kept in such a shining condition during the winter as well as the summer.

The material used is simply whitewash, and here is the United States Government formula for mixing a whitewash that when properly made and applied gives a white that does not easily wash or rub off:

To ten parts of best freshly slacked lime add one part of the best hydraulic cement. Mix well with salt water and apply quite thin.

Sylvester's process for excluding moisture from external walls consists in using two washes or solutions for covering the surface of brick walls, one composed of soap and water and one of alum and water.

The proportions are three-quarters of a pound of soap to one gallon of water and half a pound of alum to four gallons of water.

Both substances must be perfectly dissolved in water before using. The walls should be perfectly clean and dry and the temperature of the air should not be below fifty degrees Fahrenheit when the compositions are applied.

The first, or soap water, should be laid on when at boiling heat with a flat brush, taking care not to form a froth on the brick work. This wash should remain twenty-four hours, so as to become dry and hard before the second, or alum wash, is applied, which should be done in the same manner as the first.

The temperature of this wash when applied may be sixty or seventy degrees, and it should also remain twenty-four hours before a second coat of the soap wash is put on, and these coats are to be repeated alternately until the walls are made impervious to water.

The alum and soap thus combined form an insoluble compound, filling the pores of the masonry, and entirely preventing the water from penetrating the walls. Four coatings will render bricks impervious.—New York Sun.

Ducks are becoming the favorite poultry in our Eastern States. Many dealers are turning their principal attention to the raising of ducks and claim they realize at the very least 500 per cent as profit.

RAINING cats and dogs is surely no worse than hailing strangers.

MISERIES of trade (Druggist awakened at 2 a. m.)—What do you wish? Voice (at the door)—If you'll let me look in your directory to see how to address this letter I'll buy the postage stamp of you.

"See that young man with the team?"

"Yes."

"A year ago he was a vagrant on the streets. Now he handles large amounts of real estate."

"On commission?"

"No; at fifteen cents a load—half to the owner of the team."

LITTLE MAGGIE had walked a long distance with her papa. He thought she was too far away from home to know just where she was, and to test her knowledge asked: "Maggie, do you know where you are?"

"Yes, papa."

"Well, where are you?"

"On the sidewalk."

HARRY (horrified at seeing Kate puffing at a cigarette—Mersey! Do you smoke, Kate? Kate—Not because I enjoy it, Harry. I want to fill the rooms with smoke, so that, should a burglar break in, he'll think there's a man in the house. Harry—Well, you're only losing your time and soiling your lips. A man never smokes cigarettes—leastwise no man that a burglar need be afraid of.

APPLICANT for place—Well, I don't know mum. You have a very large family, and I'm afraid I couldn't do the work. I suppose you have great trouble keeping girls, don't you? Sharp House-keeper—Yes, indeed. There is a big factory full of handsome young men near here, and every one of my servant girls goes off and gets married. "Oh! Well, I'll try it."—Philadelphia Record.

"PRISONER," said the judge, "have you anything to say before the sentence of the court is passed upon you?" (Turning to his lawyer.) "You slick fingered, smooth-jawed puddin'-head! You billy-be-dad-slammed truck of soap-fat! You said you could clear me for $25, and took your money in advance. You hain't got sense enough to be assistant janitor to a corn-crib, you don't know as much law as a Texas horned frog, and you haven't the moral principle of a blind owl! Go ahead, Judge."

"Now, sir," said the attorney for the defense, knitting his brows and looking severely at the witness, "you say you can remember the exact time during the forenoon at which these events took place because you had been fishing in the creek for more than three hours. Is that correct?"

"It is," replied the witness.

"I'll ask you now if you can remember how many fish you had caught and what their size was?"

"I hadn't caught a fish. Hadn't had a blamed nibble."

"Well, we'll have to change our tactics," whispered the lawyer. "We can never impeach this man's testimony."

Cause and Effect.

A young man, under examination for admission to the University of Edinburgh, was asked, if he had studied logic, and replied affirmatively.

"You understand the difference between cause and effect?" inquired the professor.

"I do."

"Did you ever know an instance where the effect was in advance of the cause?"

"Yes, sir."

"Mention it," said the professor, in great amazement.

"Well, when a man pushes a wheelbarrow ahead of him."—Atlanta Constitution.

NEW YORK WEEKLY HERALD

IT IS AND WILL CONTINUE TO BE THE

Greatest and Cheapest Family Journal

IN THE UNITED STATES.

The coming year promises to be crowded with stirring events. In the United States entrance of new issues into the political arena has been followed by a change of administration. But the great economic question on which the campaign turned is still unsettled, and its solution is now committed to a Congress almost equally divided between the two great parties.

Europe is a vast camp. Army corps patrol the frontiers, and millions of men await the signal for the most titanic war the world has ever seen. The Herald's news-gathering machinery is unequalled. Its correspondents dot the habitable globe. Nothing can escape their vigilance, and no expense is spared in spreading the results of their efforts before the Herald's readers.
