WE ARE ALL HERE.

BY CHARLES SPRAGUE.

We are all here—
Father, mother,
Sister, brother,

All who hold each other dear,
Each chair is filled; we're all at home
To-night let no cold stranger come,
As is not often thus around
Our old familiar hearth we've found;
Bless, then, the meeting and the spot;
For once be every care forgot;
Let gentle peace assert her power,
And kind affection rule the hour.

We are all—
We're not all here!
Some are away—the dead ones dear,
Who thronged with us this ancient hearth,
And gave the hour to guileless mirth,
Fate, with a stern, relentless hand,
Looked in, and thinned our little band.
Some like a night flash passed away,
And some sank lingering day by day,
The quiet graveyard—some lie there;
And cruel ocean has his share,
We're not all here.

We are all here!
Even they—though dead—so dear, so dear—
Fond memory, to her duty true,
Brings back their faded forms to view,
How life-like through the mist of years
Each well remembered face appears!
We see them, as in times long past;
From each to each kind looks are cast;
We hear their words, their smiles behold
They're round us, as they were of old.
We are all here.

We are all here—
Father, mother,
Sister, brother—
You that I love with love so dear,
This may not long of us be said,
Soon must we join the gathered dead
And by the hearth we now sit round
Some other circle will be found,
Oh, then, that wisdom may we know;
Which yields a life of peace below;
So in the world to follow this,
May each repeat, in words of bliss,
We are all—
We are all—
"ECONOMY IS WEALTH."

PALMETTA GOLDSMITH.

So said a pretty girl to the gentleman with whom she was walking, as she calmly drew off a pair of light evening gloves and replaced them with dark ones for street wear. I heard her explain that she had a couple of music lessons to give on the way home, and that if she wore her light gloves for two or three hours and took them off and put them on two or three times in the course of the afternoon, they would never again be able to do duty as dress gloves. She had just come from an afternoon tea, and I could not help admiring the brave spirit that was not ashamed to confess the necessity of economy.

It is just such care-taking as this that enables one woman with a limited amount to spend upon dress to be always suitably attired, while another never has anything "fit to wear." If a pair of evening gloves are drawn off as soon as one leaves a place of entertainment, or as soon as one reaches home, the fingers pulled into shape and the gloves neatly laid away wrapped in white tissue paper in a long box, so that they need not be rolled or folded, they will last four times as long as if they are carelessly rolled in a wad and tossed into a drawer among a miscellaneous collection of laces, ribbons and collars; and yet this latter is the way nine young girls out of ten treat their finery. Laces should be smoothed out, folded nicely and placed in a box by themselves. Veils, ribbons, silk stockings, handkerchiefs and white sash ribbons will keep in good condition much longer if they are folded in their proper shape, and, if possible, laid under a weight. A methodical young lady of my acquaintance has a smooth stone about eight inches square, basted in a piece of white muslin, which she keeps in her bureau drawer for just this use.

Dress shoes and slippers, when taken off, should have the wrinkles well pulled out of them and be put where they will be free from dust. A shoe box or bag is an excellent piece of furniture for a bed-room. Perhaps no other article of a lady's wardrobe so well repays extreme care as a bonnet. If allowed to lie around on pianos, tables and chairs, the frame loses all stiffness and gets out of shape; ribbons and feathers, and especially flowers, soon lose all their freshness. As soon as taken from the head, straighten the trimmings, smooth out the ends, or the

A GREAT CHINESE RIVER.

Shanghai, writes Frank G. Carpenter, is about midway on the Pacific coast between the northern and southern boundaries of China. It is near the mouth of, though not on the great river, the Yangtse-Kiang, which divides the Empire into equal portions and which forms the great central avenue of trade. This is one of the greatest and one of the longest rivers of the world, and it vies with the Nile in the rich deposits which it carries down from the mountains of Tibet and spreads over the rich plains of China. Its waters where it enters the sea are as yellow as clay, and their contents are, I am told, as rich as guano. They form a fertilizer which the Chinese use by irrigation, so that it is spread over much of the 548,000 square miles which forms its basin and makes this land produce from two to three crops per year.

The Yangtse-Kiang has a fall nearly double that of the Nile or the Amazon. It is so wide at its mouth that when we sailed up it in coming to Shanghai for a long way were hardly able to see the banks, and this width extends up the river for hundreds of miles. It is navigable for ocean steamers to Hankow, a city of the size of Chicago, which is situated on its banks 600 miles above Shanghai, and river steamers can go 1300 miles up its winding course. Above this there are gorges and rapids which the foreigners now think can be passed, and there will then be an opening into the interior of China by this means for more than 2000 miles. The Yangtse-Kiang is so long that it would reach from San Francisco to New York and push its way out into the Atlantic if it could be stretched out upon a plane of the face of the United States. It is longer than the distance from New York to Liverpool, and it is said to be the best stream in the world as to the arrangement of its branches. Its boat population is numbered by hundreds of thousands, and it is a city hundreds of miles in length, made up of junks, ships and barges. These Chinese junks are gorgeously painted and carved. They have the same style of sails and masts that were used thousands of years ago, and their sails are immense sheets of cotton patched together and stretched on rods of bamboo which look like fishing poles. The sailors are pig-tailed men in fat clothes of cotton, who sing in a cracked gibberish as they work, and who understand how to manage their rude sails so well that they can often pass ships of more modern make. All of the Chinese boats have a pair of eyes painted on the sides of their prows, and their Chinese sailor would no more think of navigating without these than he would think of eating without chopsticks. If asked the reason he replies:

"No have eyes no can see. No can see, no can go."

Bishop Fowler, while sailing up the Pie Ho to Peking, happened to sit with his legs hanging over the boat so that they covered up one eye. He noticed that the sailors were uneasy, and they at last came to him and asked him to move his legs as the ship could not see to go.

The gathering of Coral and Sponges is an important industry on the Florida reefs. Both are frequently found in the same locality. The sponges are found wherever the bottom is rocky, generally from 10 to 30 feet beneath the surface. Two or three dozen schooners are now engaged in the work of gathering the sponges, each schooner carrying two small boats, manned by a crew of two. When the reef is reached the small boats put off, and while one sculls the other keeps an eye out for the sponges. A simple contrivance enables the watchman to see sponges on the reef 20 feet or more under the water. On the side of the small boat a long barrel sort of arrangement is built, the lower end of which is under water and closed up by a glass head. By placing his head in this barrel the watchman can see through the clear water to the bottom of the sea with remarkable distinctness. When a good sponge is detected it is brought up with an iron hook on a long pole.

The Height of Wood-Engraving.

Mr. W. J. Stillman, heart critic, writes to the New York Evening Post that M. Hebert, Director of the Academie Francaise at Rome, "one of the most thoughtful of modern French painters, and perhaps the best representative still living of the great poetic French school of art," says of Mr. Cole's engravings now appearing in the Century, "that he had never seen such work on wood, and did not suppose wood-engraving to be capable of it."

As was stated in the announcement of this series, the appearance of the engravings is in chronological order. Specimens of the work of such pre-Raphaelites as Cimabue, Giotto, Spinello, and others have already been shown; and while the reproductions of the paintings of these artists are of the highest value to art-students, the general public will be more interested in the later work, which is to include admirable specimens of the art of Perugino, Leonardo, Titian, Michael Angelo, Raphael, Paul Veronese, Correggio, Tintoretto, and many other well-known names—the masters of the world's art. Leonardo's "Mona Lisa" and "The Jeweler," Titian's "La Bella," "The Man with the Gloves," and "The Entombment," Rembrandt's "Supper at Emmaus," Velasquez's "L'Infante Marguerite," and Albertinelli's "The Salutation," are among the engravings to come.

It is said that this series of pictures is being received with great interest in Italy where are most of the originals which Mr. Cole has reproduced. All of his pictures are engraved directly from the originals, Mr. Cole doing his work in the galleries or churches in front of the paintings; and the great value of the series is in the absolutely faithful rendering which the engraver has given of the artists' work.

Hanging Doors and Blinds.

In hanging a number of doors which are of the same size, the time expended upon measuring the correct position of the hinges may be, according to the California Architect and Builders' News, saved in a very simple manner, which is as follows: Take a lath and mark upon the top and bottom the exact position where the hinges should come, drive in at these marks sharp-pointed brads, and you have a gauge which may be used in hanging all doors of the same size. In using it, all that is necessary is to place it against the edge of the door with the top of the lath on the level with the top of the door, give it a sharp tap of the hand, when the brads will mark the exact position of the hinges. The same gauge lath may be used in marking out the position of the hinges of the stile of the door frame, excepting that a nail should be driven in the bottom of it, so that there may be sufficient room left at the bottom to allow proper play of the door. The use of a gauge lath in the case referred to is an example of its use. It is of equal utility in hanging many other pieces, such, for instance, as inside and outside blinds, shutters, etc.

Utilizing a Heavy Bean.

Young Mr. Banks weighs a trifle over two hundred pounds, and is somewhat sensitive about it. He was calling on a Jersey City girl the other evening when she said naively: "Oh, Mr. Banks, would you just as leave sit in this easy-chair as in that rocker?" "Certainly, certainly," replied Banks, gallantly, as he changed from one chair to the other. "Oh, thanks, thanks," she murmured, "you are very kind. I have an atlas full of such lovely ferus under the cushion of that easy-chair, and you"—"Good-night," said Banks, stiffly, as he walked away—never, never to return.

Some Curious Falls.

In a certain part of Germany the peasants delight in red waistcoats, and one poor fellow, who could boast of only one "best suit," which included a very red waistcoat, was one day hidden to a funeral. The clergyman looked disapprovingly at the bright garment, and the peasant, by way of apology, said very humbly, "Never mind, reverend sir, if only the heart is black, that is the chief thing." And another yokel, hailing from the same district, when he was advised by his friends and neighbors to abstain from wearing his red waistcoat at a funeral, fell a-mourning, and said, "Nay, if I can't wear that, all my pleasure in going to the funeral is entirely gone."—Fall Mall Gazette.

Not Difficult At All.

A sly fellow caught a party of friends napping in the Astor House rotunda a few nights ago. He offered to bet cigars for all hands that he could eat one hundred fried eggs in five minutes after they were placed before him. The bet was accepted, and the fellow proceeded to eat them all by gulping a whole egg with bacon. It is unaccountable that he won.

ANOTHER JOHNSTOWN.

Johnstown, the county seat of Fulton county, N. Y., was the scene of a terrible flood, on Tuesday afternoon which in a smaller degree served as a reminder of the terrible calamity which so recently occurred in the place of the same name in Pennsylvania.

AFTER a contest which lasted seventy-five rounds the great Sullivan-Kilrain fight was ended at Richburg, Miss., on Monday, by the seconds of the latter "throwing up the sponge."

THE EXPOSITION PROGRAMME.

Baltimore's big demonstration and exhibition, which are to make the week from September 9 to 14 a gala one of shows, holiday observance, parades, bands, floats and choral melody, has received an impetus in its formative stage.

The conference decided many important questions, heard reports and arranged a large part of the programme, so that the people might know what form the festivities will take.

On Monday, September 9, will be the civic and trades display, Capt. J. Frank Supplee was made grand marshal, with power to appoint his aids.

The order of the parade will be as follows: 1. Grand Army of the Republic and Sons of Veterans, preceded by a historical float bearing the original star-spangled banner and the battle flag of the Twenty-seventh Regiment, Jefferson Blues, which was carried in the battle of North Point.

The first day's programme will include the agricultural and manufacturing exposition, the horse show, grand massed band concert of about fifty bands led by Adam Itzel, Jr., and a vocal chorus that is expected to have 500 voices.

The second day will include, besides exposition and the daily afternoon races, a horse sale from 10 A. M. to noon. The sales will continue during the week. Live stock will be judged on Tuesday also.

On the third day, Wednesday, will be added the awarding of premiums on household and mechanical goods.

The fourth day, Thursday, September 12, will have a parade of labor organizations. In the afternoon the sham battle illustrating the battle of North Point will be given under direction of Brigadier-General Clinton P. Paine, of the military committee.

The battle will be over 50 or 60 acres in Pimlico infield. Breast-works will be erected and the British troops will in part be represented ed by the Fifth Maryland Regiment, under command of Col. Chas. D. Gaither.

After the battle the bands, numbering about 15, with 450 pieces, will march to a common point to the pyramid seating the chorus of 500, and a grand massed vocal and instrumental concert will be given.

At eight in the evening the new postoffice is to be dedicated in the presence of President Harrison and his cabinet. The 450 letter-carriers, in new suits, who are now being drilled by Captain Bradley T. Stokes, of the Fifth Regiment, will escort the President and Cabinet to the Hotel Remert, thence to the postoffice, and from there to the hotel, where the banquet will take place.

On the fifth day, Friday, 13, besides the regular Pimlico programme, the attack on Fort Melleny will be given, with President Harrison and cabinet as onlookers. The bombardment will begin at 8 p. m. Assurances from the Navy Department at Washington are given that not less than four war vessels will take part.

The oyster navy and the rebots have been applied for to add solemnity and grandeur to the scene, and arrangements will be made with the steamboat lines to give all a chance to witness the sights, which will last about three hours.

Pimlico will be under military guard. Floats will be exhibited there all the week, and owners of them may have space in the buildings to deposit movable articles on the floats.

Deafness Can't be Cured by local application, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the Eustachian Tube.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness, (caused by catarrh), that we cannot cure by taking Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

Be Sure If you have made up your mind to buy Hood's Sarsaparilla do not be induced to take any other. Hood's Sarsaparilla is a peculiar medicine, possessing by virtue of its peculiar combination, proportion, and preparation, curative power superior to any other article.

To Get "In one store where I went to buy Hood's Sarsaparilla the clerk tried to induce me to buy their own instead of Hood's; he told me their's was long longer; that I might take it on ten days' trial; that if I did not like it I need not pay anything else. But he could not prevail on me to change. I told him I knew what Hood's Sarsaparilla was. I had taken it, and was satisfied with it, and did not want any other."

MEN'S SUITS.

$7.50 will buy an elegant suit in Cheviot, Cassimere or other choice fabric good enough for parlor, church or travel, and looks (and is) the equal of any $12 to $15 tailored suit. It's an elegant suit, talk as you will, and hasn't a cheap thing about it.

Then we grade lower in price towards even $4 for a working suit up to $20 and $25 for a suit fit for a prince. And it's the same with the Juvenile Department: Thousands of Shirt Waists in percales, flannels, etc., for about one-half the regular price—from 20 cents upwards to $2. Thousands of BOYS' SUITS ranging from $1.50 to even $15, but the gem in this collection is the $5 Knee Pants' Suit, whose like and equal can't be found for less than $10 anywhere else, with all the risk of disappointment thrown in.

Be Sure If you have made up your mind to buy Hood's Sarsaparilla do not be induced to take any other. Hood's Sarsaparilla is a peculiar medicine, possessing by virtue of its peculiar combination, proportion, and preparation, curative power superior to any other article.

To Get "In one store where I went to buy Hood's Sarsaparilla the clerk tried to induce me to buy their own instead of Hood's; he told me their's was long longer; that I might take it on ten days' trial; that if I did not like it I need not pay anything else. But he could not prevail on me to change. I told him I knew what Hood's Sarsaparilla was. I had taken it, and was satisfied with it, and did not want any other."

Hood's When I began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla I was feeling real miserable, suffering a great deal with dyspepsia, and so weak that at times I could hardly stand. Ball Recovered.

IT will be remembered that on Easter Sunday, 1888, Leslie, the 12-year-old son of Mr. Thos. F. Stine, residing a couple miles south of this place, had a pistol ball accidentally fired into his right breast by a comrade. At the time and place, the ball could not be found, and the wound never closed. Recently Dr. Beckley made another effort to locate the ball, and being satisfied that it had traversed from the right to the left side of the breast, made an incision just below the point he thought the ball to be located. On Saturday last the ball dropped into the opening and was recovered.—Middleton Register.

"Hunger is the Best Sauce."

As a rule, a person who has a good appetite has good health. But how many there are who enjoy nothing they eat, and sit down to meals only as an unpleasant duty. Nature's antidotes for this condition are so happily combined in Hood's Sarsaparilla that it soon restores good digestion, creates an appetite, and renovates and vitalizes the blood so that the beneficial effect of good food is imparted to the whole body. Truly hunger is the best sauce, and Hood's Sarsaparilla induces hunger.

Got "Stuck"

Mr. Castleman, the speculating Star Route contractor, through whom the compensation for carrying the mail from this point via Catoctin Furnaces, Lewistown and Adamstown to Frederick and return, has been cut down about two-thirds; finds himself without a sub-contractor this time and the mail is being carried by Mr. J. C. Fox, under a temporary contract at a loss to him (Castleman) of about $400 a year. Let him keep his hands off in the future. We trust that no one will touch it for less than $700 to $800 a year; it is worth it, according to the Government's estimate even more and home people should make the money, not speculators. The Government should not permit speculators to bid; no other than those who intend to become the bona fide carrier should be permitted to bid for these routes. Star Route contractors got an unsavory reputation sixteen years ago and in a small way the nuisance yet lives.—Clarion.

Dyspepsia

Makes the liars or many people miserable, and often leads to self-destruction. We know of no remedy for dyspepsia more successful than Hood's Sarsaparilla. Give Hood's Sarsaparilla a fair trial. It will do you good.

TWO BARNS STRUCK BY LIGHTNING.

Entirely Consumed and Two Men Instantly Killed.

Between two and three o'clock on Thursday afternoon a storm passed over this place, which, although accompanied by thunder and lightning, was not apparently as severe as many we have experienced this season, and our citizens were therefore greatly startled when news reached town, a short time afterwards, that the barns on Mr. W. W. Crapster's farm, about four miles southeast of town, near the Bruceville road, had been struck by lightning and two men killed.

HOW IT OCCURRED.

An eye witness reports that he saw a flash of zigzag lightning, which seemed to play around, from one point to another and then descend upon the buildings. In a shed near the barns, seven persons were engaged in unloading wheat and packing it away. They were Chas. Harner, the tenant on the farm, and his three sons, Stephen, aged about 19, Howard, aged about 8 years, another younger boy and a daughter about seventeen years old, and two hired men, Samuel Welty and Denton Reifsnider, all of whom were knocked senseless by the shock, except Welty, Chas. Harner, the father, and Reifsnider being killed outright. The building immediately caught fire, and but for the timely efforts of Mr. Welty, all would have perished in the flames.

The position of the people in the barn was as follows: Reifsnider was on the wagon pitching the sheaves to Stephen immediately over head, Stephen pitched them into the mow, where his father took them and passed them to the daughter, she in turn handing them to Welty who was packing. The lightning, it is supposed, entered at the door, striking Reifsnider first, then passed to the boy over head, and so on through the entire party, the supposition being that the forks acted as conductors.

GETTING OUT.

Welty who was farthest away evidently received the slightest shock and was not stunned. Mr. Welty's statement is in effect that immediately after the shock he ran to the assistance of the others, and found Harner in flames, but was unable to remove him, the boy Stephen had fallen from the mow on to the wagon, and Welty succeeded in dragging him and Reifsnider from the building, returning he got the other two boys out. The girl got out herself, but was in a dazed condition, and is unable to give an account of how she escaped, and Mr. Harner's body remained in the flames.

The alarm spread like wild fire and scores of neighbors flocked to the scene, a messenger was dispatched to town for a doctor, to which summons Dr. J. W. Eichelberger, Jr., responded, and a number of citizens started at once for the place, whilst another messenger also brought a doctor from Pipe Creek.

Reifsnider it was found had been killed outright, while Stephen had the skin burned on his right hand and arm, and across his body to the left side. Howard, the second boy had an arm broken, which was evidently done in falling, and the other boy was hurt about the face, while Welty and the girl seemed to suffer no inconvenience. Mr. Harner's charred remains were gotten out of the ruins about 7 o'clock, but he was burned beyond recognition. The two large barns and a shed attached were entirely consumed, together with their contents, consisting of about 300 bushels of wheat, between 15 and 20 tons of hay, and some farming implements.

At one time it was feared that other outbuildings and the dwelling would be burned, but the well directed efforts of the neighbors saved them, one of the buildings having been torn down to prevent the spread of the flames. The loss on the barns was fully covered by insurance.

A strange coincidence is that the same shed was struck by lightning several years ago, but at that time no serious damage was done. Mr. Harner was a poor man about 50 years of age, and leaves a wife and nine children. A subscription paper was started at once for the benefit of his family, which met with hearty response from those present. Mr. Crapster, the owner of the property, subscribed one hundred dollars in the start. Denton Reifsnider, the other man killed, was about 26 years of age and unmarried. He had only gone there to work at noon that day, and consequently had been at work but three hours on the premises. Reifsnider's body was brought to the residence of his father, Mr. Jno. Reifsnider in this place, on Thursday evening. His funeral will take place from the M. E. Church on Saturday morning.

Curious Adventure of a Cow.

A remarkable accident happened to a cow belonging to Jos. Barkdoll, of Leitersburg, Washington county last Friday. The cow was in the pasture field under a tree, and when switching at the flies her tail caught upon the bark of the tree. The cow began walking around the tree and would herself up so tight that she could not get loose. She finally fell down, beside the tree, and when found the tree had to be cut down before she could be gotten loose.—Sun.

It is not Mr. Wastler's intention however, to take possession of the office until the first of August.

Wednesday last was the hottest day of the season in this locality, the thermometer standing at 98° in the shade all day long and the heat being singularly oppressive, even after the thunder shower in the evening, but Thursday, with its intermingling sunshine and showers was fresh and pleasant though the mercury stood at 89° the greater part of the day.

A Hen's Brood of Partridges.

A nest of partridge eggs was found recently by Mr. S. M. Kemp on his farm a short distance from Westminster. He carried them home carefully and placed them under a sitting hen, twenty eggs in all, and has now a fine brood of young partridges. Every egg was hatched, and the little birds are cared for carefully by their hen mother, who seems as proud of her brood as if they were baby chickens.—Sun.

A Striking Example of the Difference of opinions is shown by the expressions of the different members of the press in regard to John Robinson's Circus which exhibited in the larger towns in this section during the past few weeks. The Gettysburg Truth devotes nearly a quarter of a column in explanation and laudation of the show, while the Williamsport Transcript does it up in a few lines by saying: "A humbug as was a humbug was Jno. Robinson's show."

We think it time that some move should be made towards repairing the damage done along the pike by the recent rains, or if the repairing cannot be done immediately at least let the toll gates be suspended until it can be done.
