LATE COUNTY SURVEYOR FOR FREDERICK CO

A trifle wan the Summer stands Amid smooth-shaven harvest lands Where late the wheat Rocked golden billows at her feet. The praises of her bounteous reign She hears, and smiles, then sighs again;

She sees afar, in dusky dreams,

These later lights and shadows lose.

And still her idle breezes croon The tender melodies of June, Or sigh "Ah ! me, How sweet the roses used to be !"

ADVERTISING.

We are firm believers in the efficacy of printer's ink. We employ it in various ways and methods, but we only use it to tell people of the good things we have and to attract attention to us. When people once get to the store we advertise with low prices and a proper stock-this is an advertisement that strikes home, and goes farther than ink, because unless backed by facts that are indisputable, it draws but once and don't have the desired result even then. Now in the matter of low prices how is it that in a majority of cases we are below other stores? This question naturally arises. Here is the answer. We have learned the secret of owning our goods at less money than our competitors. We aim to

Buy them right and the rest is plain sailing.

When we buy a bargain we sell a bargain.

Now, these in the main, coupled with the fact that everything sold must be satisfactory, has made us the leading merchants with sales double that of any store in Adams county. Our store is now filled with the choicest of everything and the prices make the sales.
