DR. FAHRNEY'S

TEETHING SYRUP

It is safe to give to babies a few days old, and its good effects in ordinary cases, are seen in children five and six years old.

There is nothing in the drug market that gives more universal satisfaction than Teething Syrup. Thousands of physicians are prescribing it daily. A over dose is not dangerous—it will prevent cholera infantum if used in time—no better soothing syrup made—many testimonials give proof of these words—all dealers sell it for 25 cts. Sample bottle sent on receipt of 10 cents.

Made only by Drs. D. FAHRNEY & SON, HAGERSTOWN, MD.

WE THREE.

BY CARL SMITH.

The wild bird's nest dips a quaint salute to the summer wind as he passes And the half-open'd flowers dance a minnet to the rustling of reeds and grasses,
And the waves roll on in a jolly sweep to ferry him over the river,
For his path is the path of a merry heart, and he laughs on his way forever.

The green leaves bow as he hurries on,
as though they opined that he knew them,
And the long limbs scrape on the cottage roof as he cheerily whistles through them;
And he sings to me, dear brother, the songs that we used to sing together When we lay in the shade and heard the voice that came with the windy weather.

And we were three, we two and the wind, for he was a playmate merry, With his dreamy songs that he learned in the court of some woodland fairy.
And he sings them still in a gentle strain, and early faith he is keeping,
As kisses the flowers on the hillside there, where you for years have been sleeping.

And we are three, as in days of old, for the trio shall never be broken, Though the time may be when I come to you with a boyish smile as a token;
And the heart of none shall be as true, though to-day they may dearly love us,
As the one dear friend who ever will sing his lullaby sweet above us.

—CALL ON—

GEO. T. EYSTER,

—AND—

See his splendid stock of

GOLD & SILVER.

Key & Stem-Winding

WATCHES.

Every great city presents the same problem to us; a class on the edge of criminality, but not criminal, working for wages that barely keep the life in stunted bodies.

These people, as any charitable worker will tell you, have their own vicious habits or the habits of their natural providers to blame for from a third to a half of their wretchedness for another portion there come into the account sickness and such unavoidable calamity. There remain two fluctuating fractions.

One may be best named unfitnes;
some of the poor are less bright, less strong, less morally competent than the average worker. They cannot do anything but the coarsest, most mechanical work. Such work is always paid at the lowest rates. And since there are degrees in all work, the more capable and rapid workers, even at this poor work, fix the rate of wages; and the slow and awkward suffer.

Now we come to the residuum, the misery that is caused by the oppression of man.

Too many of our social reformers talk as if this residuum were the great bulk of the suffering.

Lately I read an article on the sufferings of poor women in cities.

The article was written with most pathetic art, and seemed to come straight from the heart of the writer. The picture was appalling.

I have reason, out of my own experience, to believe it mainly true.

But where is the remedy? The writer quotes with approval the preamble of the Working Woman's Society: "As the unwise, inequality and defective features of our present economic conditions inevitably tend to reduce all who live by their own labor to debasing poverty and dependence, and as the suffering and degradation resulting from this system bear most heavily upon women who support themselves by their own labor, * * * we have formed the Working Woman's Society, believing that relief and rescue for those women now oppressed and wronged cannot come without their united effort and mutual association."

Organization—that is the only remedy proposed. Now let us for a moment consider this preamble, the toilers' own view of their case.

Does our present economic system tend to reduce all labor to debasing poverty?

I happen to be interested in a manufacturing business. I speak as one of the oppressors. We employ unorganized labor. We pay by the piece, and it is our settled policy, as it has been from the beginning to encourage good work by increased wages. Last year, being a prosperous year, the wages of the best workmen were raised voluntarily by the firm.

We hope some time to give all the old workmen (of whom we have a good proportion) a share of the profits.

We are not doing this from any philanthropic motives, but on business principles. It pays us to get the best and most faithful work from our people, and it pays them to give it. It pays us to promote ability, and it pays ability, we hope, to work for us.

Now, I am acquainted with other firms that manage their business on the same general lines. Therefore, without any general discussion of principles, I say that our industrial system does not "inevitably tend to reduce all who live by their labor to debasing poverty," etc.

The preamble is more eloquent than true. In fact, it is like much of the reasoning of people who feel rather their observe, a stringing together of plausible phrases to cover the lack of thought.

The Working Woman's Society
in effect says to society at large:
"We are wretched, no matter how industrious we are; therefore you are to blame! We will combine together and force you to help us."

Yet the apologist for this point of view admits that in the work requiring a certain amount of brain the wages are the best and surest.
It is the most easily done work (no matter how fatal or laborious) that is the worst paid.

Why? Because, an impartial observer would say, it is overrun by workers. Because, say certain warm-hearted people, "this trade" is made "the means of the most grinding oppression that can be or is practiced on women."

For remedy, these would advise:

1. Organization on the part of the working people.

2. That consumers shall refuse to buy at starvation prices.

"Wealthy women of New York, attention!" cries one writer. "Will you give up your bargain counters —for it is the wealthy who seek bargain counters—for the sake of your suffering, starving sisters!"

The second suggestion, any one can see, will not be followed. It is an open question whether wealthy people are the most numerous at the bargain counters. There are the people of moderate means but good appearance; they come out in force on every "occasion," whether of linen or stockings. The very poor, I fancy, do not go to the bargain counters, because they do not go to the great shops; they buy even cheaper grades of goods at the dingy, moth-eaten bazaars that sprawl their overflow on the sidewalks of back streets.

It is to be considered that to every down-rodden producer of cheap goods there are hundreds or thousands of consumers who are greatly benefited.

Does any one in his sober senses expect that these consumers, many of whom would wear no shirt if they could not wear a cheap one, are going to pay higher prices to help unknown workers?

The tendency of all manufacture is toward cheaper prices; and rightly so, if we consider the greatest good of the greatest number. Does any one not a philanthropist or a professional labor reformer suppose that this tendency can be checked by any, even (let us suppose) righteous considerations of sentiment?

The Enterprise published at Walkersville, this county, by Mr. Augustus Clemm, has been enlarged and now appears as a neat and well printed seven column paper. We wish its enterprising publisher a long and successful career.

THE CHRONICLE is issued half a day earlier than usual this week to allow the employees of the office to attend the Lutheran Reunion at Pen-Mar today. Our readers will observe that we have the latest news up to the hour of going to press, despite the rush.

Children Enjoy

The pleasant flavor, gentle action and soothing effects of Syrup of Figs, when in need of a laxative and if the father or mother be too busy or too ill to give the most gratifying results follow its use, so that it is the best family remedy known and every family should have a bottle.

Mrs. BRIDGET DONNELLY died last Thursday morning at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Michael O'Connor, in this vicinity, of old age. She leaves two children, Mrs. O'Connor and Mr. Anthony O'Connor. Her funeral took place on Saturday from Mt. St. Mary's College church.

Mr. John B. Shorb of Motter's was recently appointed and has qualified as a constable of this district. Mr. J. M. Kerrigan of this place was also appointed to the same position, but he declined and Mr. H. E. Hann has been appointed in his place. Mr. Hann qualified this week.

Just as we went to press last night Mr. E. H. Rowe appeared with an excellent watermelon and two canteloupes. Gollies but the boys did get outside of them.

The Harney correspondent of the Westminster Sentinel says: "Dr. E. B. Simpson, who has been living here for some twenty odd years, left last week, and we are informed, has gone to Kansas City. Dr. S. is an excellent physician and a great many are sorry to hear of his departure. He had many friends at this place."

FRIEND GAMBLE came to the front last week with three new potatoes, the aggregate weight of which was 5 lbs. They have no name but are intended as an Ideal Potato. The dimensions by measure were, 18x11, 17x10 and 16x10 inches respectively. He also gave us some elegant apples of the Summer Rambutan variety.

Another Picnic.

Owing to the bad weather on the occasion of the picnic recently given by Fisher & Co's. Mechanics Band, the Band will hold another picnic on the same grounds, in Ephraim G. Eckenrode's grove near Motter's, on Saturday, August 29. A band of music will be present all day. For further information see posters.

The new roller mill of the Charlotte Milling Company, at the old Maxell Mill site in this district was started up on Monday morning, and turned out the first flour that day. ### The Purest and Best Articles known to medical science are used in preparing Hood's Sarsaparilla. Every ingredient is carefully selected, personally examined, and only the best retained. The medicine is prepared under the supervision of thoroughly competent pharmacists, and every step in the process of manufacture is carefully watched with a view to securing in Hood's Sarsaparilla the best possible result.

The Baltimore Sunday News of this week gives a description with large illustrations, of seven of the World's Fair Buildings at Chicago. The buildings illustrated are the Administration building, Fish and Fisheries, Electricity, Agriculture, Machinery Hall, Horticulture and Illinois State building, the aggregate cost of which will be $3,200,000. With its usual enterprise, the News gives us the first illustrations of the great World's Fair, and its many readers cannot help but appreciate this effort in their behalf.

Sunday School Picnic.

The picnic at the Ridge last Saturday was largely attended. The Hon. Peter Lugenbeel from Unionville was present and delivered quite an entertaining address to the Sunday School. The Emmitt Cornet Band of this place furnished music. The good people of the neighborhood provided the visitors lavishly with the good things of this life, and every one went away feeling the better for having been there.

Ring Fight.

Two boys from the country engaged in a pugilistic encounter at the Railroad Station on Saturday night, in true Sullivan-Slaven style. It seems they had a fall out about a girl and went beyond the corporate limits to settle their differences in the ring, taking with them a large crowd of spectators. We are informed that a prominent citizen acted as referee and after making a ring and examining each of the combatants to see that they had no weapons, they fought it out in true pugilistic style.

Tune up the system of your horse by using Biggs Bros. Crown Stock Food.

A Westminster special to the Baltimore Sun says: "A surveying party have been busily engaged during the past week surveying a route for a railroad between Green Spring Junction and Westminster. The party have crossed the North Branch into Carroll county, and are rapidly pushing this way. It is supposed that they will take a short route via Beaver run. A number of surmises are made as to the probable continuance of the line to Gettysburg, and various rumors are afloat, but nothing definite is known in regard to it. The party will reach Westminster probably in a few days."

Mr. John Elower Dead.

Mr. John Elower, a well-known citizen of this place, died on Sunday evening at the residence of his niece, Mrs. Margaret Souffer, at Poplar Ridge. Mr. Elower was a well known citizen of our town, where he resided for many years, conducting the business of basket maker. For a number of years he carried on a brewery here. He had been ailing for long time. Mr. Elower leaves one son, Mr. Geo. V. Elower, of Martinsburg, W. Va., who has been here taking care of his father since last May. His funeral took place on Tuesday morning from St. Joseph's Catholic Church, Rev. H. F. White, C. M., officiating.

The Work of a Friend.

An unsuccessful attempt was made to wreck the north-bound train on the Emmitsburg Railroad, due here at 4:55 p. m., last Friday evening, by piling stones on the track. The place selected for the fiendish work was near the spot where three cows were run into the day before, between Appold's crossing and Mr. Jos. Davidson's, at which point there is a culvert. Fortunately the train men discovered the obstruction in time to stop the train. Quite a number of large stones were used and they were piled in such a way as to brace each other, thus removing all possibility of the scheme failing, had it not been discovered. We understand the Railroad officials will make every effort to discover the person guilty of this dastardly trick, and if successful he will be put away for safe keeping.

The Parent of Insomnia.

The parent of insomnia or wakefulness is in nine cases out of ten a dyspeptic stomach. Good digestion gives sound sleep, indigestion interferes with it. The brain and stomach sympathize. One of the prominent symptoms of a weak state of the gastric organs is a disturbance of the great nerve center, the brain. Invigorate the stomach and you restore equilibrium to the great center. A most reliable medicine for the purpose is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which is far preferable to mineral salts and powerful narcotics which, though they may for a time exert a soporific influence upon the brain, with it. HE WANTED TO SELL SATAN.

"Do you know any one who wants to buy a dog?" he said, sorrowfully. "He's a good dog, finely bred, well marked and a St. Bernard."

"Why do you want to sell him, then?" was asked.

"Well, keeping big dogs in New York city is a failure," and he sighed wearily. "You see, when he was a pup he was a very lively chap, but we thought it very funny to have him run against a piece of furniture and send it flying, or smash into a table and break glasses and china. That was nothing you know?"

"Oh wasn't it?"

"No because he was a pup, and we all laughed at his love of mischief. Well, that was last summer. He is a pretty big dog now, and every time he hits anything it means ruin. It's like having a cyclone in the house when he gets started. Still, we worried along by watching him carefully. My furniture bill kept getting bigger and bigger. But he's a valuable dog and I thought I ought to keep him. Now he's got to go."

"What's the trouble now?"

"The trouble is summer," he sighed dismally.

"Well?"

"I was upstairs dressing this morning when I heard a crash."

"That's that dear Satan again," said my wife, sweetly. Another crash, louder than the first, and then a volley as if a score of Gatling guns were popping away.

"You had better go down and see about Satan," said my wife. "He may break something."

"Break something? Great Caesar! When I got down stairs the dining-room and two parlors were in ruins and Satan was still going it. Tables were broken, pictures were down, legs were off chairs, the dining room floor was covered with the pieces of our breakfast service, and eportiers were simply in shreds. Just as I got there Satan made a spring for the top of the piano, and up it he went scratching it everywhere. Then he came off again with a bound and I grabbed him. If I hadn't he would have knocked the roof off the house."

"What was it all about?"

"A fly, just a cussed fly. He was chasing it. Now, if you would like to buy him—"

"No, thank you," hastily.

"He's a valuable dog."

"No, thank you."

"Got a perfect pedigree."

"No."

"If you have a big yard—eight or ten acres."

"I haven't."

"Well, I'm going to get rid of that dog, if I have to give him away. My wife and the children are all in tears about it, but he's got to go."

"I should think so."

"You don't know any one who would like a prize winner, do you?"

"I'm afraid not."

"I'm sorry. He's a fine dog, but"—and he clenched his teeth.

The Smallest.

The smallest known species of hogs are quartered at the London Zoological Gardens. They came from the southern part of Australia, and are known as "the pygmy hogs of the Antipodes." They are well formed, frisky and good-natured, and are about the size of a muskrat. They are real hogs, and are not to be confounded with Guinea-pigs, which are a species of rodent.

John J. Taylor, of Streator, Illinois, once wrote 4,100 words on the blank side of a postcard with out artificial aid. The words on that single card, if printed in regular newspaper type, would fill two and three quarter columns of any of the great metropolitan dailies.

Leuwenhook has computed that 10,000 threads of the web of a full-grown spider are not larger than a single hair of a man's beard. He calculates that when young spiders begin to spin, 400 of their threads are not larger than one from a full-sized insect. If this be a fact, 4,000,000 webs of a young spider are not as large as a single hair from a man's face.—Harper's Young People.

"Do you belong to this church?" inquired the stranger.

"No, sir," replied the wealthy member of the congregation; "this church belongs to me."

Jenny Lind and Grisi.

Somewhere in the '40s Grisi and Jenny Lind were singing in different theatres in London.

Those who went into ecstasies over Grisi's "Norma" were the next evening enraptured with Lind's "Casta Diva." Great was the rivalry between them.

Finally Queen Victoria, deeming it a shame that two such gifted women should be separated by a mean, unworthy jealousy, requested both to appear at a court concert. Of course, they both came.

The Queen warmly welcomed them together for the first time. She gave the signal for the concert to begin.

Jenny Lind was the younger, and it was arranged that she should sing first. With perfect confidence in her powers she stepped forward to begin. Chancing to glance at Grisi, she saw the Southern woman's malignant gaze fixed on her.

The fierce look almost paralyzed her. Her courage left her, her voice trembled, everything grew black before her and she almost fell. By the greatest exertion of her will, however, she managed to finish her aria.

A painful silence followed its conclusion—a silence that told her of her failure. She caught a triumphant expression on Grisi's face.

Despite the clearness of her senses she quickly realized that failure meant lost glory, disappointed hope, the destruction of happiness, grief and mortification to her family and friends. Suddenly a soft voice that seemed to come from heaven whispered to her: "Sing one of your old songs in your native language."

She caught the thought like an inspiration. The accompanist was striking his final chords. She stepped up to him, asked him to rise and took the vacant seat.

Softly her white fingers wandered over the keys in a loving prelude, then she sang. It was a little prayer which she had loved as a child; it belonged to her childhood's repertoire. She hadn't sung it for years. As she sang she was no longer in the presence of royalty, but singing to loving friends in her fatherland.

No one present understood a word of the "prayer." Softly at first the plaintive notes floated on the air, swelling louder and richer every moment.

The singer seemed to throw her whole soul into the weird, thrilling plaintive "prayer." Gradually the song died away and ended in a soft sob. Again there was silence—the silence of admiring wonder.

The audience sat spellbound. Jenny Lind lifted at last her sweet blue eyes to look into the scornful face that had disconcerted her at first. There was no fierce expression now; instead a bearded glinted on the long black lashes.

After a moment, with the impulsiveness of a child of the tropics, Grisi crossed to Jenny Lind's side, placed her arm about her and kissed her warmly, utterly regardless of the admiring audience.—Milwaukee Wisconsin.

Height of the Tower of Babel.

The reputed height of this structure has at times been greatly exaggerated, some Jewish authorities fixing it at twelve miles, and Jerome quoting contemporary assertions for its being four miles high. These estimates, however, give way to the sober testimony of Strabo, who states the height at 600 feet, which is the figure generally accepted. The distinction of forming the remains of the tower of Babel has been claimed for three masses of ruins in or near Babylon; but the majority of competent antiquarians have declared in favor of Birs Nimrud, which stood in Borsippa, a suburb of Babylon, eight miles from the city. Sir R. K. Porter showed that the summit had been exposed to intense vitrifying heat, which must have been the result of fire operating from above, probably in the form of lightning, thus confirming the tradition of its destruction by fire from heaven. Sir H. F. Rawlinson discovered that it consisted of seven stages of brick work on an earthen platform, each stage being of a different color. Its ruins still rise 150 feet above the level of the plain. According to Herodotus the tower of Babel was adorned by colossal images and statues of solid gold, the value of which he rated at twenty-one millions sterling, probably as great an exaggeration of their worth as twelve miles was of the height of the structure.—New York Telegram.

Crown Stock Food will prevent all the ills that dairy cows are heir to.

Baron Strass said the American women were so popular in Mexico that they interfered with the wheels of justice in that republic.

"The American women," he said to a reporter, "go about Mexico as they would in this country, while the Mexican women are caged up like birds. The only way to make love to them is to stand off some hundred yards and stare."

The pretty senorita sits in her open window, and you can only look at her. There is one chance of getting an opportunity to speak to one while she is in church, but that is the only place.

Last summer a New York merchant and his beautiful daughter stopped for a few days in the little town where I was sojourning. The young lady was one of the handsomest that I have ever seen—light hair, eyes like bits of heaven's blue classic form and all that was lovely.

"Well, you can imagine what a stir she created among the young Mexicans, who are held so far away from the native women. The son of a wealthy planter used to stand for hours opposite the window of this American girl. One day the father went to the City of Mexico, leaving the daughter unattended for a few hours. The young lady walked to the hotel from the station and was followed by the Mexican admirer. As she was nearly home the young fellow rushed up to her and implanting a kiss upon her forehead ran away for dear life.

"When the father came home there was a little excitement. He had the young fellow arrested and the next day he was brought before the Judge, who gravely asked what the charge was.

"Assaulting a woman," spoke up the New Yorker.

"What did the prisoner do?"

"He ran up to my daughter on the street and kissed her."

"He kissed this lovely lady?" asked the Judge, as he carefully scrutinized the fair American.

"Yes sir."

"Well, who wouldn't?" remarked the Judge, as he left the court room. And would you believe it, that was all the satisfaction the New Yorker could get in Mexico."

A California Big Tree to be Shown at the Chicago World's Fair.

It has been determined to send to the World's Fair, as a feature of the government exhibit, the largest specimen that can be obtained of the famous big trees of California. A tree thirty feet in diameter, which is about the largest size that grows, will be selected, and the limbs cut off thirty feet from the ground. The trunk will then be sawed into sections and the outside piece only sent to Chicago. On arrival at the exhibition the pieces will be put together so that the outside portion of the tree, several feet thick and thirty feet high, will stand just as it did in the forest. In order to cut the tree into sections it will be necessary to have a special saw made, about fifty feet in length, which will be operated by machinery that must be taken into the forest especially for the purpose. It is estimated that eight cars will be required to carry the tree to Chicago. It is proposed at present to place it in the center of the rotunda of the government building, which will be 120 feet in circumference. The interior of the tree will be decorated with cones, leaves, and other attachments of the tree, divided into rooms, and the whole illuminated with electric lights.
