ODE TO MOTHER GOOSE.

BY GILBERTA SINCLAIR WHITTLE.

"Little Tommy Grace Had a pain in his face, So bad that he couldn't learn a letter; When in came Dicky Long Singing such a funny song That Tommy laughed, and found his face was better."

"As Willie Snooks and Betty Brookes Were walking out one Sunday, Said Betty Brookes to Willie Snooks To-morrow will be Monday."

Mother Goose's Melodies. Oh, wonderful book! was there ever by man A volume composed on so perfect a plan, Where science, philosophy, ethics one finds Brought down to the level of infantile minds.

The ocean's bright surface, its waves capped with snow, Its roar and its motion, its ebb and its flow Charm e'en the most careless—small boys and young girls, But a diver must seek for its deep-hidden pearls.

So this volume, which open before me now lies, Its musical jingle we soon learn to prize, But the pure pearls of wisdom the rhythm conceals, The labor alone of a diver reveals.

Of the many before me I give in this place the story of Thomas, whose surname was Grace, Some physical ailment it grieves me to say, Had unfitted our friend both for work and for play.

And what cured him? No doctor with countenance long. 'Twas a jovial companion, a jest and a song. Till young Tom who before could not master a letter, Laughed aloud, and behold! he was instantly better.

Strange connection 'twixt matter and mind we detect. 'Tis difficult oft to tell cause from effect. But a laugh, when the ills we are heir to are aife, Is the great panacea, the elixir of life.

Dear friends, many troubles in this life we may find Of body and soul of heart and of mind. 'There's a purpose in pain,' this cuff we must quaff, But keep a brave heart, toss it off with a laugh.

One more piece of advice, put it, too, "in your pipe," Avoid those of whom Betty Brookes is a type. You remember how spoiled was that nice Sunday walk, By gloomy forebodings and dolorous talk.

Such people as these, social vultures, indeed, How they dote upon mis'ries and horrors to feed. Choose rather your friends from the honeybee class, And extract all the sweetness from life as you pass.

EARLY PRINTING. BY J. S. GITT. Written for the Emmitsburg Chronicle.

The following statement of facts in relation to early printing is condensed from reliable authorities—unless it be the paragraph on newspapers, which is taken from the newspapers, and they are of course reliable.

In 1430 Gutenberg left Mayence and went to Strasburg, where he remained until 1448, and while there he commenced and prosecuted his experiments in printing. He returned in 1449, and on the 22nd of August, 1450, made arrangements with Faust for printing. He pledged to Faust his machinery and imparted to him his knowledge.

They first used wooden plates, then single types. In 1452 metal types were cut with which the "42 line Bible," also called the "Mazzarini Bible," was printed. This was a work of great labor, and required seven or eight years in completing it. After many difficulties they dissolved partnership in 1455, and Gutenberg died in 1468. In 1457 a magnificent edition of the Psalter was published by Faust and Schoeffer. It was four years in the press, and was in some measure the work of Gutenberg. It was the first printed book bearing a date. (There are eight copies extant, viz: 1 in Vienna, 2 in Paris, 1 in Darmstadt, 1 in Windsor, and 2 in private libraries in England.) On the 14th of August, 1462, Faust and Schoeffer finished the so-called

"Mayence Bible," or "48 line Bible," the first Bible bearing a date.

The printers of Mayence were dispersed throughout Europe and in a few years the Art spread rapidly. It was first established in Bamberg in 1461, by Albert Phistex; in Cologne, 1467, by Ulrich Zell; Augsburg, 1468, by Gunther Zainer, who first used Latin letters; Nuremberg, 1470, by J. Senderscheidt and H. Kefer; in Spegar, by P. Drach, and in Strasberg, by J. Mentelius, in 1471; in Ulm, by J. Zainer, in Launing, and in Merteberg, 1473; Esslingen, 1475; Lubeck, Blaubeuren, 1476; Rostock, Trent, 1476; Eichstadt, 1478; Wursburg, 1479; Leipsig, 1481, by Marcus Braud; Vienna, Erfurt, Passau and Rentlingen, 1482; Magdeburg, 1483; Heidelberg, Regensburg, (Rastisbon,) 1485; Munster, 1486; Ingoldstadt, 1489; Hamburg, 1491, by the brothers Brochard; Freiburg, by R. Piscautor; Lunenburg, by J. Licht, in 1493; Oppenheim, 1495; Tubingen 1498; Munich 1,500.

The Art was carried from Mayence into Italy by Conrad Sneiderheim and Arnold Pannero, who printed some books at Cloister Subidco in 1465, and afterwards at Rome in 1467. Cardinal Caraffi called George Lauer from Wurzburg to Rome, in 1460, where he erected a press in St. Eusebius' Cloister. Adam Roth, who printed in Rome from 1471 to 1475, first made use of diphthongs in printing. At this time there were twenty other printers in Rome. In 1469 Johann Von Speyer established a press in Venice, his brother Vindelino followed in 1470. They were rivalled by Nicholas Jensen, who became widely known. There were many other great printers in Venice at this time, among whom was Aldus Pius Manerius, who began in 1494. He was the head of the celebrated Manucei family of printers, who flourished at Venice in the sixteenth century.

In Milan the first printing was in 1460; Folioque, 1470; Bologna, Ferrara, Naples, Pavia, Florence, 1471; Padua, Parma, 1472; Messina, 1473; Vicenza, Como, Turin, Genoa, 1474; Perugia, 1475; Lucca, Palermo, 1477.

In France the first printing was at Paris in 1470; Lyons, 1479; Caen, 1480. In Switzerland, at Munster in 1472; Basle, 1474; Geneva, 1478. In 1473 printing was introduced into Hungary, and the same year into the Netherlands, at Alost and Utrecht; Lorevain, 1474; Antwerp, Burges, Brussels, 1476.

William Caxton introduced the Art into England, and first printed in Westminster Abbey in 1474. Theodore Rood printed at Oxford first in 1478. The first printing in Spain was at Valencia, by Fernando de Cordova and L. Palmart, in 1474; Barcelona, Sardogosa, 1475; Seville, 1477; Tolosa, 1479. In Bohemia, at Pilson, in 1476; Prague, 1478. In Moravia, at Brunn, 1486; Almutz, 1499. In Portugal, by the Jews, in 1487, and by them at Lisbon in 1489. In Sweden, at Stockholm, by Johann Snell in 1483. In Denmark (Slesvig), 1486; Copenhagen, by Gottfried von Ehemann, 1493. In Poland, at Cracow, by Johannes Haller, 1500.

The first book printed in America was Escald Espiritual, tra dovida de Latin en Castellano, by Juan Pablos, in the city of Mexico, where the Art was introduced by Antonio de Mendoza in 1539. The first book printed in the English colonies of North America was the Bay Psalm Book, at Cambridge, in 1640. An Almanac printed there in 1639 was the second article printed in the colonies.

The first newspaper published in the English language was issued in England about 1622. The first in France, in 1631. The first in the United States was The Boston News Letter, in 1704. The first in New York City was The New York Gazette, in 1725. The first weekly journal issued in Philadelphia was The American Weekly Mercury, by Andrew Bradford, in 1719.

The earliest publication in England in the character of Reviews were "The Weekly Memorials for the Ingenious," 4-to, London, 1687." The Universal Historical Bibliotheque of Books in all Languages for January, 1686," 4-to, London, 1687; and "The Young Students' Library," by the Athenian Society, 1692. After these, in the next century appeared "The Old and New Memoirs of Literature;" then "The Works of the Learned," upon which was built "The Monthly Review," eclipsing every one that preceded it, and not excelled by any subsequent similar critical journal.

In 1795 Firman Didot soldered together the corrected columns of movable type, on the back, and thus secured the permanence of their form. These connected types he called stereotypes. A Hollander named J. Vander May is said to have employed cast plates in printing the Bible nearly one hundred years before, in Leyden. A Scott named Ged is said to have printed a "Sallust" in this manner in 1736, and Hoffman and Carey probably preceded Didot in France.

Letters were printed in Europe more than a thousand years before the invention of the Art of Printing by Gutenberg. Of this early printing a specimen is preserved in the University Library at Upsala, in Sweden. It is a Mosco-Gothic version of the Gospels, made by Bishop Ulfilas in the fourth century. The letters of the text are silver, with gold initials, printed on violet-colored vellum. On this they have been stamped separately, with single blocks, by hand, as may be seen in the slightly irregular arrangement of the letters in the words. Had the printer combined his type and employed machinery he would have invented printing, but these improvements were made only when the increasing demand for books made a more speedy multiplication of them necessary.

Out Walking With a Gentleman. The negro bootblack in the Palace Hotel, San Francisco, is either the wittiest or the cheekiest fellow in his line in this country. It's according to how you take him. The other day a New Yorker waited by the blacking stand for the vice president of Wells, Fargo & Co.'s Express to have his shoes shined.

"Shine, sir?" the black asked of the New Yorker.

"No, not to-day," the New Yorker replied.

"On, you better have 'em shined," said the black. "You must remember you's out walking with a gentleman."—New York Sun.

Bits of Good Advice That All Girls Should Read.

WHAT TO AVOID. A loud, weak, affected, whining, harsh or shrill tone of voice.

Extravagances in conversation—such phrases as "awfully this," "bestly that," "loads of time," "don't you know," "hate" for dislike, etc.

Sudden exclamations of annoyance, surprise and joy, such as "bother!" "gracious," "how jolly!"

Yawning when listening to any one. Talking on family matters, even to bosom friends.

Attempting any vocal or instrumental piece of music you cannot execute with ease.

Crossing your letters. Making a short, sharp nod with the head, intending to do duty as a bow.

WHAT TO CULTIVATE. An unaffected, low, distinct, silver-toned voice.

The art of pleasing those around you, and seeming pleased with them and all they may do for you.

The charm of making these little sacrifices quite naturally, as if no account to yourself.

The habit of making allowances for the opinions, feelings or prejudices of others.

An erect carriage, a sound body. A good memory for facts, and facts connected with them, thus avoiding giving offense through not recognizing or bowing to people, or saying to them what had best be left unsaid.

The art of listening without impatience to prosy talkers and smiling at the twice-told tale or joke. —Harper's Young People

CONSUMPTION CURED. An old physician retired from practice, having had placed in his hands by an East India missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure of Consumption, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Asthma and all throat and Lung Affections, also a positive and radical cure for Nervous Debility and all Nervous Complaints, after having tested its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, has felt it his duty to make it known to his suffering fellows.

Actuated by this motive and a desire to relieve human suffering, I will send free of charge, to all who desire it, this recipe, in German, French or English, with full directions for preparing and using. COUNTRY ROADS AGAIN.

Mr. Isaac B. Potter, of New York, has an article in the last number of the Forum on "The Profit of Good Country Roads." He considers the cost to the farmer of carting his produce over country roads, "dissolving in the rains of April, baking and pulverizing in the summer sun, drifting and disappearing in the whirlwinds of November, and presenting at all times but little more than a roughened streak of soil to serve as a highway for the great volume of internal traffic."

THE AMENDMENTS.

According to complete returns from all the counties in the State, says the Baltimore Sun, all the amendments have been ratified by the people except the third, relating to uniformity of taxation. This publication also gives the complete figures has been delayed by the indifference toward the matter in the counties. But the figures, now compiled with great care, are correct except as to some trifling variations, which may proceed from different sources.

The following is the summary of the vote in the State:

For amendment No. 1, (extension of the veto power), 49,513. Against amendment No. 1, 22,719.

For amendment No. 2, (surrender of tax exemptions by corporations), 47,141. Against amendment No. 2, 22,902.

For amendment No. 3, (uniformity of taxation), 31,825. Against amendment No. 3, 30,417.

For amendment No. 4, (extending term of county commissioners), 42,436. Against amendment No. 4, 26,188.

For amendment No. 5, (permitting sale of the State's stock in corporations), 33,476. Against amendment No. 5, 33,382.

For amendment No. 6, (providing that whenever mortgages are taxed they shall be taxed in the county where recorded), 33,475. Against amendment No. 6, 30,385.

It is gratifying to note the renewed interest manifested in the Choral Union. New members are being received and there is a revival of the old enthusiastic spirit. This society is one of the best institutions in our town and deserves the encouragement of the entire community.

THE SAYWARD CASE.

The Behring Sea Question to be Settled by Arbitration.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—The case of the Behring Sea, involving the United States, involving the settlement of important points connected with the Behring sea controversy, was called for argument before the United States Supreme court in Washington. Calderon, Chief Justice of Washington, opened the case for the British government, and contended that the supreme court had a right to go into the merits of the case, and to give an opinion on the extent of the jurisdiction of the United States in Behring sea. The case was not a political one, as claimed by the attorney general, but an international one. Solicitor General Taft followed for the United States. He contended that the case was a political one, and that the court had no authority to judge of it except on the "face of the proceedings" certified by the Alaska court.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—In the hearing before the supreme court Solicitor General Taft concluded his argument. He said it had been declared that the president could seize vessels on the high seas would enable him to involve the country in a great deal of trouble. He would contend that involve the country in a great deal of trouble in the exercise of his constitutional functions, but, as Chief Justice Taney had so well said, our system of government afforded the greatest safeguard against the abuse of the president's powers, and at all events the powers were conferred upon him by the constitution and laws of the United States, and must, therefore, be respected.

Attorney General Miller followed Mr. Taft, and contended that the argument for the United States. The other side, in its brief, insisted on many propositions that would not bear examination in the light of law. He thought the jurisdiction of the supreme court had been settled. The opposition thought otherwise. The Alaska court, he said, was not an inferior court. Authorities proved it was a superior court, and its findings were just as conclusive on the supreme court as on any other court. The citations of decisions of British courts by the other side were of mayor's courts and other inferior tribunals, and the court of kings bench had decided that they were not superior courts.

After outlining the difference between the jurisdiction of superior and inferior courts, said the decision of the Alaska court could not be attacked unless a statement of want of jurisdiction was shown on its face, and he quoted Chief Justice Marshall in support of this contention.

Joseph H. Choate, of New York city, followed Mr. Miller. He made the closing argument for the British government. He contended that the British government was devoted, as he stated in beginning, to the exact questions at issue in the court. He did not understand, he said, that the question of the court getting at the merits of the case was at all disputed. The three-mile law, he said, had never been disputed until now. He outlined the points of international law. He contended that, according to it, the Sayward was fifty-nine miles from land and three miles from the coast, and was in the jurisdiction of the United States. It was the duty and power of the supreme court to search the proceedings of the Alaska district court to find what jurisdiction it had in finding that the Sayward had taken illegally.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—A case involving the same question as that in the Sayward case, as to the jurisdiction of this country over the waters of Behring sea beyond the three-mile limit, was argued before the United States supreme court. The government filed in this case the brief in the Sayward case, excepting that the name of the vessel was changed.

The case is that of the American sealer Sylvia Haney, and came to the supreme court on an appeal from the district court of Alaska. William G. Johnson opened the case for the appellant, covering the same line of argument as that taken in the Sayward case, except that the matter related to the rights of an American citizen.

Solicitor Taft made a brief argument for the government, stating that the same arguments as those made by the government in the Sayward case would apply here. He called attention to the fact that Mr. Johnson and Mr. Calderon Carlisle, who represented, with Mr. Choate, the British government, in the Sayward case, were the attorneys in the case before the court. The British government, he said, appeared to be represented in both cases. Attorney General Miller, for the United States, and Calderon Carlisle, for the appellant, closed the case for their respective sides.

HEROIC LIFE SAVERS.

Terrible Battle with the Waves and Loss of Life in England's Coast.

LONDON, Nov. 12.—Another heavy gale is in progress on the English coast, and Ireland. The White Star line steamship Majestic, from New York, was caught in the hurricane, and Captain Parsell decided that it would be too dangerous to attempt to enter Queenstown harbor. The Majestic went, therefore, kept off and proceeded on her way to Liverpool, from which place the mails and passengers were transferred to London.

It is feared that when the details of the storm begin to be received they will bring intelligence of many wrecks and great loss of life. Already a few dispatches have been received telling of wrecks. From Hythe, one of the cinque ports, in the county of Kent on the English channel, comes the report of the wreck of the French schooner Edirini. By the use of the life line the crew managed to reach the shore in safety, but the captain, his wife and son were not fortunate. The Edirini was wrecked by the high seas and all three perished.

The captain of the Edirini, however, refused to leave the vessel, and his wife and son refused to be separated from him, preferring drowning with the gallant sailor to being saved by the waves and dashed ashore. The efforts to save the crew resulted in serious loss of life. The Hythe lifeboat, which finally got adrift after over a dozen fruitless efforts, was capsized while trying to reach the vessel. Several of the life savers were drowned. A large crowd on the shore witnessed the efforts of the life savers to reach the vessel. Twenty-seven clung to the rigging.

All afternoon the Hythe and Sandgate lifeboats struggled to reach the doomed vessel. While the crew hung to the masts, the people on shore tried to make their encouraging cheers heard above the roar of the storm.

About 5:30 p. m. the Benvenue began to break up. The Benvenue, with the unfortunate clinging in the rigging, still held together. About this time the multitude on shore were thrilled by the spectacle of a seaman's daring and desperate stroke for the salvation of himself and his fellow survivors. The sailor fastened a line around his waist and leaped into the waters. He struck out boldly for the shore, but in a few minutes his body, limp and lifeless, was tossed on the crest of a wave.

The storm abated somewhat as darkness grew, and another attempt was made to launch the lifeboat. At length, after a tremendous struggle, the brave life savers brought their boat up to the rigging, and the Benvenue was towed to the shore. It was 9:45 when the lifeboat reached the wreck, and the work of taking in the poor wretches was as perilous as getting to them. The reception on shore will be remembered for many a day.

The number rescued from the Benvenue is twenty-seven. The lost are Captain Modill, of Liverpool, two apprentices, the steward and two seamen. The sea swept, as high as the mizzen top, so the struggle to hold on may be imagined.

Two of the members of the Hythe life saving crew were drowned in the accident to that boat, while attempting to reach the Benvenue early in the evening. One of the men, the mizzen top, so the struggle to hold on may be imagined.

The schooner John Roberts, of Port Madiera, Wales, went ashore near Brighton, and rockets failed to carry lines to the vessel. The crew were in the rigging, and the vessel seemed about to break up. The crew, however, did not engage a tug for rescue, but were drawn to the scene by horses, reaching the spot just five minutes after the vessel went to pieces. The spectators were so angry at what they considered a lack of energy that they made a hostile demonstration against the crew. Meantime the mariners had leaped into the sea and battled while vainly struggling to reach port, and quite a number of coasting schooners have met the same fate. At Lowestoft, near Ipswich, Suffolk, a fishing smack wrecked after long and heavy seas with the storm, was just upon the point of making Lowestoft harbor, was suddenly completely overwhelmed by more than unusually heavy seas and foundered in full sight of thousands of people who were watching the vessel.

The latter, numbering seven souls in all, were all drowned.

Anti-Parliamentary Victory.

CORK, Nov. 9.—Mr. Martin Flavin, the McCarthyite candidate for the seat in parliament for Cork city left vacant by the death of Parnell, has been elected by a plurality of 1,400 over the Nationalist candidate, Mr. John E. Redmond. The result of the count is as follows: Flavin (McCarthyite), 3,693; Redmond (Parnellite), 2,157; Sarsfield (Unionist), 1161. The defeat, say the Parnellites, will not prevent the Nationalists from hanging together until the general election.

Four Firemen Killed.

CAIRO, Ill., Nov. 12.—Passenger train No. 3 on the Illinois Central railroad, collided with a northbound freight train, causing one of the most disastrous wrecks in the history of the road. The dead are: William Hillman, engineer, and his fireman, Walter Spier. Fireman Tom McGee, colored, all of Jackson, and Express Messenger James Holler, of Milan. One passenger received injuries that may prove fatal.

McMillan Must Hang.

PITTSBURG, Nov. 12.—The state supreme court has decided the case of Edward McMillan, accused of the murder of a terminer of Luzerne county. McMillan last February murdered his wife. He was convicted of murder in the first degree and sentenced to be hanged. The supreme court decision affirms the judgment of the lower court and orders the record to be remitted for execution.

Returned to Work.

PITTSBURG, Nov. 12.—The men who belong to the Amalgamated Society at Jones & Laughlin's mill, who have been on strike, returned to work this morning, pending an investigation into their grievances by the national committee of the association.

REVENUE WAR CLOUD.

Three Provinces Declared in Favor of Independence.

LONDON, Nov. 11.—On account of the strict guard kept by the Brazilian government over the telegraph cable lines it is almost impossible to obtain reliable news as to the exact state of the country. It is now generally admitted, however, that there is no room for further doubt that the province of Rio Grande do Sul has declared its independence. The president, Gracio Para, was followed the example set by Rio Grande do Sul, and yesterday it declared its independence.

Gracio Para, or as is better known, Para, is one of the most important provinces of Brazil. The capital of the province is Para. It is the great rubber port of the world.

Last night the announcement was made that at least another province—Parana, was in the hands of the rebels. The dictation of Marshal Da Fonseca and had declared itself independent of the government as now constituted. Great excitement prevails at Rio de Janeiro and throughout Brazil.

All the present indications point to a long and bloody civil war in the near future, the overthrow of Da Fonseca's dictatorship and the establishment in Brazil of a number of separate republics somewhat similar to those of South Africa.

LONDON, Nov. 12.—Dispatches from Santiago say: It is only with difficulty that Brazilian news arrives here unless it is favorable to the dictator.

It is stated that Fonseca would have little difficulty in establishing the new order of things were it not for the fact that he has a man, some of whom have been in the city, who is suffering in cancer, which, if true, would necessarily prevent him from taking the field in person should a resort to arms be necessary.

As Bad as Balbuena.

LONDON, Nov. 12.—A dispatch from Santiago says there is widespread discontent with the evident purpose of the government to suppress existing forms. The election of Admiral Montt as president, followed by the election of Silva as president of the senate, is taken as before in complete control of the government. The government is accused of espionage in Valparaiso, and no man knows when he is safe. Executions are frequent, but the newspapers are forbidden to give details of the same. At least 200 of the military officers have already been shot, and a number are awaiting execution. Some of those most hated by the junta are protected in the legations, and that is the main reason for the irritation against the Americans. Not a day passes at Santiago without several arrests on political grounds.

Three Miners Killed.

PARIS, Nov. 10.—A despatch from Nevers, capital of the department of Nièvre, gives the details of a fatal accident that occurred in a colliery near that city. While a party of eight miners were at work in a shaft, the rope by means of which the cage was raised and lowered broke, and the cage and all its occupants were dashed to the bottom of the pit. Three of the unfortunate miners were instantly killed, and the bodies of the other five were recovered. Little hope is entertained of their recovery.

Charged with the Kester Murder.

WILMERSBORO, Pa., Nov. 12.—H. Higgins and Joseph Evelyn, together with their wives, have been arrested, charged with the murder of two old farmers named Kester, which occurred in 1883. The prisoners were lodged in jail. They were visited by reporters and others, but absolutely refused to talk of the murder or their arrest. This is considered as a good piece of detective work, and it is thought that the right parties have been approached. There is great rejoicing over the arrest by farmers.

Tried to Blow Up Good Templars.

WHITEWATER, Wis., Nov. 12.—A desperate attempt was made by unknown persons to blow up the local lodge of Good Templars while the organization was in session. Dynamite was used, and the charge was partly exploded. The lodge was destroyed, and a considerable extent, but fortunately no one was seriously injured. But a small part of the charge was exploded, which accounts for the fact that the hall and its occupants escaped unharmed from it. The dynamite was placed in a pile of wood in the auto-room and part of it was thrown into the stove. William Harrington was badly burned, and the building fired by the explosion.

The Official Count.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 12.—The official count of the election in Pennsylvania is as follows: In a total vote of 589,524 General Hancock received 249,889; Robert E. Wright 356,431, and Hagne 18,510. Morrison has 412,834, Tilden 558,618, and Drayton 18,420. The call for a constitutional convention was lost overwhelmingly. The vote cast for it was 173,819, and against it 439,395. The prohibition vote is surprisingly small, being less than 18,600.

Ohio's Population.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—The census office issues a bulletin giving the population of Ohio by minor civil divisions. The population of the state in 1880 was 8,072,316, against 8,443,052 in 1890. Of this eighty-eight per cent. in the state twenty-eight show decreases, most of them very slight.

Catarrh, Not Local, But Constitutional.

Dr. Dio Lewis, the eminent Boston physician, in a magazine article says: "Catarrh is a constitutional disease, and its medical treatment of catarrh, is not a disease of the man's nose; it is a disease of the man, showing itself in the nose—A local exhibition of a Constitutional trouble." Therefore, he argues, the use of snuff and other local applications is wrong, and while they seem to give temporary relief, they really do more harm than good. Other leading authorities agree with Dr. Lewis. Hence, the only proper method of cure for catarrh is by taking the internal remedy, Hood's Sarsaparilla, which, reaching every part of the body through the blood, does eliminate all impurities and makes the whole man healthier. It removes the cause of the trouble and restores the diseased membrane to proper condition. That this is the practical result is proven by thousands of people who have been cured of catarrh by taking Hood's Sarsaparilla.

BLUE RIDGE SUMMIT ITEMS.

Rev. Adam Roach of Brooklyn, N. Y., has taken apartments at the Clermont House and during the winter will conduct the services in the Hawley Memorial Chapel of which he is now the pastor. He preached last Sunday evening at an unusually large congregation, and if his maiden effort in this vicinity is a sample of what is to follow, the residents of this community are to be congratulated.

We regret that we are obliged to chronicle the death of Major Luther B. Kurtz of Chambersburg. He served his country gallantly as Major of the 17th Penn. Cavalry and later made a penitential and efficient Sheriff of Franklin county. He was universally popular and leaves a vast army of friends as well as a wife and two daughters to mourn his untimely death. Should all his friends attend the ceremony, his funeral will be the largest ever witnessed in Chambersburg.

Mrs. Watt, daughter of "the live rail" road man of the South Mountain," left for her home in Arizona on Tuesday.

Girls have been received at the Clermont announcing the wedding on the 25th inst. of Miss Fannie Silvey of Washington, to Mr. Frederick Desbler of New York. Miss Silvey has spent several seasons at the Clermont and has many friends in Waynesboro and Chambersburg.

The estate of Col. Wm. F. Benhoff against Mrs. Dysert will come up for trial during the December term of Court. Mrs. Dysert is an industrious, respectable widow and from her savings has built herself a comfortable home near to Monterey Station. Benhoff claims money for lumber furnished by him in the construction of the house. If what is seen and heard may be relied upon, the result will be similar to the Colonel's previous legal ventures. Mrs. Dysert has retained the Messrs. Sharpe and Hon. W. Rush Gilliam of Chambersburg.

The pleasant weather of last week prompted some of last summer's boarders to re-engage their old rooms at the Clermont for the remainder of this month. As several are now en route, it is to be hoped that old Sol will welcome their arrival with his presence.

John Brown, tollgate keeper, is confined to his room with a severe attack of neuralgia and rheumatism; but a visit to him yesterday did not show that his condition was critical as has been stated.

Catarrh

Is a constitutional and not a local disease, and therefore it cannot be cured by local applications. It requires a constitutional remedy like Hood's Sarsaparilla, which, working through the blood, eradicates the impurities which causes and promotes the disease, and effects a permanent cure. Thousands of people testify to the success of Hood's Sarsaparilla as a remedy for catarrh when other preparations had failed.

Catarrh

"I will say I have been troubled for several years with that terribly disagreeable disease, catarrh. I took Hood's Sarsaparilla with the very best results. It cured me of that continual dripping in my throat, and stunted my feeling. It has also helped my mother, who has taken it for a long time of health and kidney trouble." Mrs. S. D. HEATH, Pulask, Conn.

"I have used Hood's Sarsaparilla for catarrh with very satisfactory results. I have received more permanent benefit from it than from any other remedy I have ever tried." M. E. READ, of A. Read & Son, Wauson, O.

IMPORTANT! Salvation Oil the greatest cure on earth for pain, is only twenty-five cents.

We cannot excuse people for being cross who do not suffer from colds. They are often too mean to buy a bottle of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup, which would restore their good nature.

Union Thanksgiving Service. The usual Union Thanksgiving Services of the churches of this place will be held in the Reformed church, on Thanksgiving Day, Nov. 26th, at 10 o'clock, a. m. The sermon will be preached by Rev. W. Simonton, D. D. The Christian public is cordially invited and urged to unite in this service.

Well Equipped. Saint Joseph's Junior Fire Department has been supplied with six hundred feet of new hose and a reel. The boys practice every Thursday and are ready to quench any fire that may occur about the city.

Your friends in time of need, JOHN ZUGABLE, Capt.

List of Letters. The following letters remain in the Post Office, Emmitsburg, Md., Nov. 9, 1891. Persons calling will please say "list" otherwise they may not receive them: John I. Baker, David Coffman, Mrs. Sarah Elise J. Mulvehill.

Another Excursion. The Mechanicstown Cornet Band will run another of its popular excursions to Baltimore on the 2nd of December. The schedule has been arranged for the train to arrive at Baltimore between 9 and 10 o'clock a. m., and will give visitors a chance to attend the theatres, before leaving at night. The fare from Emmitsburg will be $1.25, from Motter's $1.15.

A Strange Occurrence. The two daughters of Mr. W. W. Zimmerman, residing near Creagers-town, were startled on Monday last while in the sitting room by the sudden intrusion of a large hawk with a chicken in its claws. The hawk flew through the large window, breaking the heavy pane of glass, and fell on the floor of the room, where he was captured, together with the chicken.—News.

A Whopper. An exchange is responsible for the following story: "There is a man near Morgantown who raised a large crop of corn last year. He had a fine field for sale for it, he stored it away in the corn crib where he kept a mule. Last week the crib caught fire, the corn began popping, and covered all the valley with a white robe, resembling new fallen snow. The mule ran out, thought it was a deep snow and froze to death."

Does Protection Protect? Certainly, in one instance, it does. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the great protection against the dangers of impure blood, and it will cure or prevent all diseases of this class. It has at all times its name of the best blood purifier by its many remarkable cures.

The highest praise has been won by Hood's Pills for their easy yet efficient action. Sold by all druggists. Price 25 cents per box.

Death of Prof. Baker. Andrew Hull Baker, A. M., Ph. D., died on Sunday last, at his residence near Germantown, aged 73 years. Dr. Baker was the founder of Calvert College, at New Windsor, Md., which, several years ago was purchased by Rev. A. M. Jelley, D. D., and converted into the New Windsor College. After resigning the presidency of Calvert College, he became a professor of mathematics at Mt. St. Mary's College, and while there published several works on the higher mathematics. After this he retired to his farm at Germantown, Montgomery county. Dr. Baker came from one of the best families in Western Maryland, and was widely known throughout the state. He leaves a widow, two sons and four daughters.—Banner of Liberty.

Improvements on the South Mountain. A number of Baltimore capitalists are about forming an association to be known as the Mountain City Traction Co., whose object is to transfer the visitors to Pen-Mar, summer guests at the hotels and the public generally to and from Blue Mountain and the other grand hotels of the neighborhood. It will be a member of the famous glass trails, the coaches to be of the modern street car pattern and to make about six miles an hour, so as not to interfere with the general view. The route has been surveyed from Pen-Mar to Germantown, and will be a fine view of Vista there is a railroad. There is also to be built an Episcopal church here next Spring on a lot at Blue Ridge Summit. The sum of $12,000 has already been subscribed. The Reformed people are collecting money for a church at Highfield.—Star and Sentinel.

Real Estate Transfers. The following transfers of real estate have taken place in this county, as recorded in the Clerk's office during the last week: Michael Bennett to Matilda E. Baigis, lot of ground in Frederick, $2,500. George A. Townsend and wife to Anna V. Barbour, 16 acres, 2 roads and 6 perches, $500. Emma V. Moore and others to Thomas M. Welty and husband to Mary Ford, lot in Frederick, $42.50. Ann R. C. Kaufman and husband to Mary E. Lutz, lot in Frederick, $400.

The Western Settler's Chosen Specific. With every advance of civilization into the far West, a new demand is created for Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Newly peopled regions are frequently less salubrious than older settled localities, on account of the miasma which rises from recently cleared land, particularly along the banks of rivers that are subject to freshets. The agricultural or mining emigrant soon learns, when he does not already know, that the Bitters afford the only sure protection against malaria, and those disorders of the stomach, liver and bowels, to which climatic changes, exposure, and unaccustomed or unwholesome water or diet subject him. Consequently, he places an estimate upon the Bitters, and uses them as a preventive commensurate with his intrinsic needs, and is careful to keep on hand a restorative and prompt remedy so implicitly to be relied upon in time of need.

MT. ST. MARY'S COLLEGE NEWS.

At a meeting of the Foot Ball Association recently, President McGovern appointed Mr. Peter Walsh and Messrs. McCloskey and McDonald to form the first eleven of the College. The following players were selected:

Table with 3 columns: Names of Players, Weight, Height. Includes players like Burekhardt, Gashman, Campbell, etc.

"Nica" is exceeding by worth. An aggregation of individuals who themselves the 3rd Eleven, went down to the field Monday and polished up the Second Eleven to the tune of 18-14. "Nica," who is captain of the Second Eleven, heard a great deal about the matter but declines to take any notice of the 3rd Eleven, as he says his team played the umpire.

Nagle is hard at work strengthening his team. A good game is expected when 1st and 2nd meet.

Thus far all the practice has been good. The First Eleven winning both by scores of 48-0, and 52-0. The teams were:

This is not the first time that an effort has been made to swindle Father White. Last summer while he was away from home a stranger called at the parsonage, and on learning of his absence, went through a similar performance with Father Mandine, who also refused to advance the $5, and hit the man took the check away with him.

The name Beltzhoover was well chosen by the swindler, as a family of that name once resided in this community.

An Afflicted Family. Mr. Anthony Riley, an estimable young man of this vicinity died at the late residence of his grand-father, at Shoe's Station, Carroll county, last Saturday, of typhoid fever. He was about twenty-three years of age. His funeral took place on Monday, interment at St. Joseph's church cemetery, this place. On the 14th of October, Mr. Anthony Wivell, with whom young Riley lived, died of typhoid fever, and on October 13th, his mother, his mother died at their home in Freedom township. At this time Mr. James Riley, father of Anthony Riley, is lying very ill with the same disease. Miss Annie Riley, who has lived for a number of years with her mother, is now in the hospital. AN ATTEMPTED SWINDLE.

An Old Game Unsuccessfully Tried. Rev. H. F. White, C. M., of this place.

About two weeks ago a smooth-tongued stranger called on Rev. H. F. White, C. M., Pastor of St. Joseph's Church, this place, and attempted to swindle him out of a small sum of money on the old legacy dodge, but Father White proved too smart for him.

The stranger represented himself as Dr. Lewis Sayers, of Bellevue Hospital, New York, and showed a letter purporting to come from Monsignor Preston, of that city. He said that the executor of the estate of a person named Beltzhoover, who left bequests to a number of churches, among which was one for $2,000 to St. Joseph's Church, this place, had entrusted the same to his father, and that he had produced a check for that amount drawn in his favor, and after endorsing the same, stated that Father White would be expected to pay $5 for expenses incurred. Father White accepted the check, saying that he would try to find out whether it was good before making any advance, and that if it turned out all right he would send him the $5. The stranger then left, saying that he intended to arrange to place his daughter at St. Joseph's academy at school.

The would-be swindler drove here from Gettysburg, to which place he said he came with a party from New York to attend the dedication of a monument, and accounted for the evidence in his favor by saying, by saying that he had taken a little too much wine with the party. It is needless to add that the check proved to be of no value.

This is not the first time that an effort has been made to swindle Father White. Last summer while he was away from home a stranger called at the parsonage, and on learning of his absence, went through a similar performance with Father Mandine, who also refused to advance the $5, and hit the man took the check away with him.

The name Beltzhoover was well chosen by the swindler, as a family of that name once resided in this community.
