

COLUMBUS.

In the very general celebration in commemoration of the addition of a New World to that over which civilization and enlightenment had long struggled to extend their mighty power, there is a lesson full of promise for the future, not only of this Western Continent, but of the entire world.

That the bold navigator to whom we are so much indebted, should have been for centuries unhonored and almost forgotten, is one of the strange inconsistencies to which human nature is prone, and the wonder is, rather that it should awaken at last in this exhibition of enthusiasm, than that it should slumber undisturbed, while the country whose existence he discovered, is rushing forward to the foremost ranks in the history of the world, under the name of the successful follower in the footsteps of the great explorer, who proved sharp enough to substantiate his claim to the honor of having found the land and thus obtained the right to call it after himself.

But though it is as Americans we are honoring the name and success of Christopher Columbus, we seem to have entered into the business, everything is business, now-a-days, with as much enthusiasm as we could possibly have done, if we called ourselves Columbians, and after all there is nothing in a name, anyhow, so we can hurrah for Christopher Columbus as lustily as we can assert our rights as free born American citizens.

The arrangements for Emmitsburg's share in the general celebration, have been well managed, and this bids fair to be a " gala day " not only for the school children, but the citizens generally, and our usually quiet town is full of excitement.

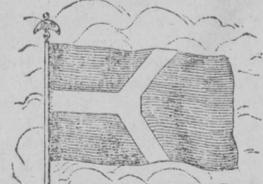

It is refreshing to have something to be enthusiastic over, in which all creeds and all political parties feel an equal interest and in which nothing is involved of either injury or benefit to any one. May it prove a success throughout, and nothing occur to mar the pleasure or detract from the honor of the occasion.

CATARH in the head is a constitutional disease, and requires a constitutional remedy like Hood's Sarsaparilla, to effect a cure.

CHICAGO'S REJOICING.

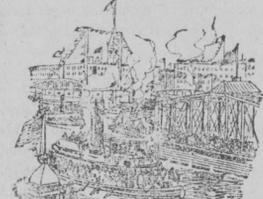

CHICAGO, Oct. 20.—The first event in the celebration of Columbus week was the celebration by the school children yesterday, and youthful enthusiasm was given the widest play. The first exercise was the reading of President Harrison's proclamation. This was followed by a flag raising and the pupils saluted the colors. They also pledged their allegiance to the flag in concert and sang "America." The next feature of the program was the reading of the words of some acknowledgment of the divine being. The school then joined in singing "Columbus Day," after which the program was varied according to the grade.

The city is gay with countless banners fluttering a hearty welcome to the thousands of strangers who elbow each other in an endless or to see as much of the city as possible while at her best. Terra cotta, which was selected for the municipal color for the Columbus celebration, is not used as extensively as had been expected. Italian and Spanish flags are much in evidence. The city hall and county buildings are resplendent with terra cotta, the national colors and portraits of Columbus, Washington and Grant, while the granite columns are gorgeously decorated with bunting, streamers and burlaps. The numerous bridges over the Chicago river and the vessels in the stream are resplendent with decorations. Of all the downtown streets State street is the gayest. There most of the merchant princes have their stores, and the display is correspondingly fine.

Chicago's Auditorium, the greatest assembly hall on the continent discovered by Christopher Columbus, was ablaze with light and beauty last night. Lovely women were there, in toilets that would put to shame the greatest creations of a Worth. And there were men who have made their imprint on the history of this and other nations—statesmen, diplomats and warriors, merchant princes, men of letters and of law, of science and of art. A thousand or more of the leading citizens of Chicago were the guests, two thousand or more of distinguished women and men of the civilized nations of the earth the guests.

It was a scene of almost indescribable brilliancy that presented itself to the vision of the vice president of the United States, when, at half past 9 o'clock, accompanied by the President of the Republic, he appeared on the floor of the ball room. The appearance of Mr. Morton was recognized by a flutter of feminine apparel, but decorum militated against any demonstration of joy and address on the part of the men. The vice president was escorted to a position in the eastern corner of the hall and the reception was at once organized. The scene passed over the floor in procession, being first introduced to the managers, then to the committee of arrangements, next to the patronesses and

BIG MILLS SHUT DOWN.

The people of the prosperous little city of Bristol, Bucks county, Pa., are in a state of intense excitement over the miniature warfare now prevailing at the Bristol Rolling Mills, the chateaus of which are now held by a force of men in the employment of the corporation owning the mills.

The trouble leading up to the siege of the mills commenced Saturday morning, when a squad of Deputy Sheriffs seized the mills and property of the corporation in the name and for the use of the Quaker City National Bank of Philadelphia, and levied on all the mill property under a writ of attachment to secure an indebtedness of $21,000 claimed to be due the bank from the Bristol Rolling Mill Company.

Dates for the Spellbinders.

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—The closing days of the campaign at national Republican headquarters are characterized by great activity. Mr. Hahn, in charge of the speakers' bureau, had many callers yesterday. Chauncey M. Depew called with reference to his western trip, and it was decided he should start at 4:30 in the afternoon, accompanied by Whitelaw Reid. These gentlemen will address a meeting in Indianapolis on Oct. 25. Hon. Robert T. Lincoln was assigned for three speeches in Indiana for next week. Whitelaw Reid will speak once or twice in New Jersey and two or three times in Connecticut, and will fill several engagements in New York before the close of the campaign.

Mrs. Harrison's Illness. The hopelessness of Mrs. Harrison's case is generally conceded, her vitality is still so great that regardless of the possibility of a change for the better there is no danger of an immediate crisis, save for the always possible appearance of additional complications. Her physician, Dr. Gardner, is authority for the statement that she may linger for several weeks in her present state, and that no possible complication would terminate fatally in less than forty-eight hours.

Law Breakers at Homestead. HOMESTEAD, Pa., Oct. 20.—The strike situation here is unchanged. Several assaults are reported to have been made upon non-unionists Tuesday night, and it is said more deputy sheriffs will be placed on duty at night. August Gibbs, Ludlow A. Johns and David Williamson were badly beaten, and Gibbs says $4 was taken from him. Another man was held up, but he drew a revolver and the would be assailants fled.

Mormons Cannot Vote. BOISE, Idaho, Oct. 20.—The supreme court has sustained the constitutionality of the Idaho test oath law. The plaintiff is a Mormon who offered to register upon subscribing to a oath embracing the constitutional provision and ignoring the additional qualification of the test oath law enacted by the first state legislature. This decision will prevent Mormons from voting.

A Heavy Embezzlement. CITY OF MEXICO, Oct. 20.—El Universal (newspaper) says that the general manager of a New York life insurance company had been accused of embezzling $80,000 of the company's funds and had fled. The police are actively searching for the defaulter.

Spain's New Minister to Germany. BERLIN, Oct. 20.—Count Ladistov Szogyeni has been appointed ambassador to Germany to succeed Count Szechenyi, the present Austro-Hungarian ambassador at the Berlin court.

WORKMEN'S WAGES UNPAID. In consequence of the action taken by the Quaker City Bank on Saturday it was thought advisable to shut down the mills, which was done Saturday night. That, it is said, would have happened any way, as the affairs of the corporation are known to be in a very bad condition. The men had not been paid for eight weeks, and were becoming very much dissatisfied. In addition to this the corporation is indebted to various banks in Philadelphia and Bristol to the aggregate amount of over $1,000,000.

At a meeting of the stockholders it was decided to be for the best interests of all concerned for the company to make an assignment. A bill of assignment was accordingly drawn up appointing Attorney A. Weir Gilkeson, of Bristol, assignee. This bill will be filed in the County Court of Bucks county and Mr. Gilkeson will immediately take possession of the property. It is said that this action has been approved by the officers of the Quaker City National Bank and other creditors. Just what will be done with the property is not known at present, but it is said that the mills will soon be in operation.

A meeting of the workmen was also held at which the men, after expressing sympathy for the stockholders, appointed a committee to prepare their claim of wages, which in the aggregate amounts to $8,000, and filed it with the assignee.

LACKED PRACTICAL KNOWLEDGE. Mr. Scheide, who is 60 years of age, is prostrated by the failure and was too ill to talk of the affair. One of his friends said: "The failure is an honest one, although a very bad one. I do not believe there will be sufficient assets to satisfy all claims. It was caused by lack of practical knowledge on the part of Scheide." Even since his former partner withdrew the company has been doing poor business and has never paid a dividend. Mr. Nevegold was the practical man, while Mr. Scheide was merely an office man with but little knowledge of the practical part of the iron department.

Attorney Gilkeson, who will be appointed assignee, was seen at his home in Bristol and said: "I cannot say what condition the affairs of the company are in until I can examine the books and papers. Neither can I say whether the seizure of the Quaker City Bank was legal until I more fully understand the nature of its claim, which is for $21,000. I am sure that the liabilities of the company amount to $100,000 and do not what assets it has. Mr. Scheide will lose his entire fortune and is very ill. What he most regrets is that the men will be delayed in getting their wages. The failure was due to mismanagement." Philadelphia Times.

FOUND DEAD IN THE STREET. NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—An unknown man found dead on Canal street has been identified as Frederick Archer, a violinist. The Actors' Fund has taken charge of his body. Archer, it is stated, was the son of an English doctor in New York.

WANTS SICKLES TO WITHDRAW. NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—General Martin McMahon, who was defeated for the Democratic congressional nomination in the Tenth district by General Daniel E. Quaker, announced yesterday that he is ineligible for the place, as he is an officer in the United States army. General Sickles, however, does not consider himself an office holder within the meaning of the constitution, and intends to make good his claim to the office. He is much wrought up over the matter, and declares that he will run on an independent ticket if General Sickles does not withdraw.

"FAC DOCTOR BILLS MAKE LEMOY WILIS," but Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy costs less than one doctor's visit. Catarrh is a loathsome, dangerous disease, and the time has come when to suffer from it is a disgrace. No person of culture and refinement cares to inflict upon his friends his offensive breath, disgusting hawking and spitting and disagreeable efforts to breathe freely and clear the throat and nose—hence the cultured and refined use Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. And no wise and prudent man cares to run the risk of leaving his family without a protector, by letting his "slight catarrh" run into serious or fatal throat and lung troubles, hence the wise and prudent use Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. The proprietors of this remedy are so confident of its curative properties, that they have made a standing offer of a reward of $500 for a case they cannot cure.

On the Way to Paradise. Let us hope that the people who habitually disregard their health will reach that desirable place, and avoid the locality which is less desirable as an eternal residence on account of the heat and surroundings generally. But while we tarry in this vale of tears, why should we voluntarily endure the tortures of dyspepsia which a systematic use of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters will rid us of the atrocious malady which—unless physicians are very much at fault—leads to shorten the term of our existence. Heartburn, biliousness, constipation, and all these ailments, which are very much at fault, are always accompanied by indigestion, and are symptomatic of it. These are all extinguished by the Bitters, which also cures completely malaria, rheumatism, nervousness and debility. Show the appearance of "a ripple" in the complexion, a singular mastery over this formidable complaint has been carried off so many of our highest and best.

A REPORTED outbreak of cholera at Helmetta, N. J., created much excitement in that vicinity. Investigation showed that the disease was not cholera but a violent dysentery which is almost as severe and dangerous as cholera. Mr. Walter Willard, a prominent merchant of Jamesburg, two miles from Helmetta, says Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy has given great satisfaction in the most severe cases of dysentery. It is certainly one of the best things ever made. For sale by C. D. Eichelberger druggist.

Eclipse of the Sun. Yesterday proved remarkably favorable for seeing the eclipse, there was a fine opportunity to watch the shadow extending over the surface of the sun, till it was about two-thirds hidden, and those who were anxious to witness the entire spectacle, held on to their smoked glass and watched till the darkness was no longer visible. The time, from the first appearance of the shadow on its surface, till the sun was again shining in unclouded brightness was about 3 1/2 hours, and the sight from first to last, was beautiful in the extreme.

"And He Never Came Back." On last Saturday morning a man purporting to be a book agent went to the livery stable of David Horst, Hagerstown, and hired a team to drive to the country, and was to return in the evening. Saturday evening and other evenings have come and gone, but the man and the team "never came back." The man who was an utter stranger to Mr. Horst, gave his name as Johnson and wore a dark suit with light overcoat and had a sandy beard. The horse was grey and bob-tailed and lop-eared. The running gear of the buggy was nearly white. Any information regarding the team or man will be gratefully received by Mr. Horst.

The same man applied to Harry Smith for a team but Mr. Smith insisted upon accompanying him, which the man refused to comply with, thus arousing Mr. Smith's suspicions.—Herald and Torch Light.

Letter from Devils Lake. Mr. Frank Click, formerly a resident of near this place, writes us that he has just returned from a pleasant trip across Devils Lake to Fort Totten, a distance of fourteen miles, and found it one of the nicest places in Northern Dakota. An Indian School is located at that place, on the Sioux Reservation and about three hundred boys and girls are in attendance, all dressed in uniform and looking quite civilized. The school is conducted by Catholic Sisters. The old log fort is still standing, but is deserted. The Indian Agency is a fine large building. When the boat landed the Indian pupils of the school took possession of it, from top to bottom. The Indians on the Reservation are farming and raising good crops, and some of them are getting rich. The government furnishes them with the implements to do the farming with, free. There are myriads of ducks and thousands of wild geese on the lake. Hunters gather there by the score, and have a good time in general. Frank left Devils Lake on the 10th inst, for Grand Forks, and desires us to remember him to all the boys.

A. Betts and William Kealhofer, of Washington county; Edward Worthington, of Baltimore county; Robert Biggs and J. Littig, of Baltimore city. A despatch has been sent to Collector of Customs Marine, at Newport, Ind., notifying him that his daughter Susie, eleven years old, died near Beltsville, in Prince George's county. The child died at one o'clock Wednesday morning. Mrs. Marine, the collector's wife, was staying with her mother, Mrs. Hall, while her husband has been in the West campaigning for Harrison. The little girl has been ill for a very long time, and died of a complication of diseases. The Collector has been much depressed lately by the illness of his daughter. A Little Girl Burnt to Death. Emma Ritz, four years old, was burnt to death last Friday, at the home of her parents, 315 North High street. The oil was scattered over her clothing, and almost instantly she was enveloped in flames. Her screams attracted persons from the street, who extinguished the flames. The child was horribly burnt. Drs. Mitnick and Belt were summoned, but the little sufferer soon died.—Sun.

The Societies. The Philomathian Literary Society held its regular meeting Sunday evening, Oct. 10th, in the Reading Room. Minutes of preceding meeting were read and adopted. The following were appointed a committee to furnish subjects for debate: Messrs. Chas. Manley, '95, Ed. J. Donohue, '95, and Wm. Rice, '95. Mr. A. Malone, '95, very creditably rendered a recitation entitled: "I am in Rome," by Rodgers. The critic then gave some very valuable suggestions, after which an impromptu debate was indulged in. The subject was one relating to the responsibility for the present condition of the negro. Mr. Edw. J. Donohue, '95, endeavored to place the responsibility upon the white people, while Mr. Donovan, '95, maintained that the negroes themselves were responsible. A decision was given in favor of Mr. Donohue. The meeting then adjourned.

On Thursday afternoon last the stable attached to Mr. L. R. Waesche's property on Church st., this place, was set on fire by two little boys who kindled a pile of fodder in the stable. A strong wind prevailed and the alarm was sounded late, so that when the firemen arrived there was no possibility of saving the building. The wind carried the burning material directly over a block of shingle roofed houses and within ten minutes seven roofs were reported on fire. The firemen worked hard and with good judgment succeeded in putting out the small blaze before any considerable damage was done and thus a big disaster was averted.—Mechanicstown Clarion.

Foot Ball.

The Foot Ball Club has been in constant practice and we expect to make the Pennsylvania boys put up the hardest game of their life. The "Mountaineers" play a scientific game, and although rather light at some points, nevertheless, there is plenty of "push." The second team was again defeated by a score of 64 to 0. Wednesday afternoon the Philomathian Society team will meet the Purcell team. They are about evenly matched and therefore the game will be very close.

An Immense Log.

One of the largest logs we have ever heard of, in this section of the country, was cut by Mr. Thomas Reiser and sawed by Mr. Edward Albaugh, last spring. The log measured 6 ft. in diameter and had to be hewn off on one side, in order to get it into the saw mill. Near the centre of the log was found an old Indian bullet sometime ago, which the saw partially cut in two. Mr. Reiser still has the bullet which he prizes very highly, as a relic, as it has evidently been in the log one hundred and fifty years.—Banner of Liberty.

In passing over a portion of the Texas frontier last February I was reminded of many wild scenes in which I was a participant forty years ago, and although there does not appear to be such an abundance of game now so near the settlements, otherwise that portion of the country seems the same, the game having merely removed further back into the wilderness.

On the upper Limpin creek, which comes through the most beautifully picturesque of all Texas canyons, I remembered an incident in which I figured some forty years ago. I was one of a large party which camped for several days on the Limpin, some sixty miles above Fort Davis and ninety miles from the Rio Grande.

After we had been in camp a couple of days, resting and grazing our mules and killing all the game we needed almost within gunshot of the camp, some of the fearless and venturesome of the party concluded to try their luck in the search for larger game. I was quite young at that day, scarcely 20, and had become as fearless as the wildest savage, in fact desperately so, brought about by many good reasons. I had left the comfortable old homestead in Kentucky seriously afflicted, and as our physician made it appear, dying from pulmonary complaint, or incipient consumption. This had the tendency to make me careless of life, and coupled with the wild spirit of adventure, caused a feeling of desperation to take possession of me, and looking at things in that light—only death anyhow—I concluded to get all the fun out of it I could while it lasted, and I had my share.

My companion was not to be seen in any direction, and I had almost come to the conclusion that the lion had swallowed him feathers and all. After looking around for some minutes without success I heard a faint cry some half mile away, and looking in that direction I discovered him perched upon a ledge of rock at least a hundred yards up the almost perpendicular side of the mountain. This was the first animal of the kind I had ever seen, and when I found he measured nine feet ten inches from the tip of his nose to the end of his tail. I felt as though a greater man than Caesar still lived and had his being. The boys brought in their goat skin with the huge head of horns, and we secured our lion skin and the saddle of venison of two deer—or what was left by the lion—and after a weary tramp of twelve miles arrived in camp. I was fully satisfied with that day's sport, so much so indeed that I did not banker after any more just like it.

On the third morning, very early, ten of the most reckless of our gang started for a day's sport in the adjacent foothills, some ten or twelve miles distant. At that day there was a considerable sprinkling of blacktailed deer and some mountain goat in that section, and the many stories of the fine sport to be had with such game aroused us to the highest pitch of excitement and anticipation. Although I was very small of stature and light of weight, I had so much improved by the balmy climate and from inhaling the pure rarefied air during my six months of roughing it on the plains that I imagined myself equal to any emergency. I had by this time gotten over the disease called "tender-foot," and when a Texan pronounced the usual question, "What brought you to Texas?" my invariable answer was, "I came to kill an inquisitive fool!"

After scouting the foot hills for the best part of the day we concentrated our forces for a parley and to dress the two black-tailed deer we had killed, one of the party perceived a mountain goat perched upon the top of a rock on the side of a hill some fifty feet above its base. Now there is no timber in this section except a straggling growth of scrub cottonwood along the margins of the Limpin creek. Where we were at that time there was nothing growing but grass and the cactus plant, so there was no escape from an attack of a dangerous foe except by a bold front and desperate defense. Myself and a companion were left to guard the venison while the others—eight in number—sallied forth to capture the goat, a feat very seldom accomplished, as that animal is one of the most wary of all the wild beasts of the wilderness. We were very near the base of the mountain where we had been in search of water, which we found in limited supply in the cups or openings of the rock on the mountain side. I had noticed seams and fissures in the rocks large enough to admit a small-sized body, and wondered if they did not form hiding places for huge snakes or snail animals of some kind.

The party in pursuit of the goat barely commenced the siege when we perceived a large mountain lion approaching us from the opposite direction not more than fifty yards distant and coming in that cat-like, cautious, crouching way that told us plainly that he meant no good. He had scented the fresh venison and being driven to desperation by hunger the bait was too tempting to resist and he was fully determined to possess it at all hazards. Our first impression was that it was a huge panther and felt as insecure as if it had been an African lion, for in case of a failure on our part to repulse the enemy on the first charge we were lost. With all my boasted courage and fearless abandon I confess I had a slight faintness of heart just at that moment and it flashed across my mind like electricity that I had best seek safety in the openings in the rocks near by and with the speed of electricity I put my thoughts into execution and was safely squeezed in between the huge rocks far enough to be out of danger—snakes or no snakes—and near enough to the narrow aperture to see what was going on. I was not long in fortifying myself, and by considerable effort getting my rifle in position. On first view of the surroundings I was anything but reassured. The lion was eagerly tearing to pieces and devouring something, and as my companion was not to be seen, I managed to work myself near enough to the aperture to rest my heavy rifle on the jagged edge of the rock, and taking deliberate aim at a distance of at least one hundred and seventy-five yards, I fired, the ball taking effect just behind the base of the skull and coming out in front just between the eyes.

I soon extricated myself from my prison and hastened to finish my job with my Colt's navy, and when within twenty steps of the dead lion picked up my companion's loaded rifle where he had dropped it in his frightened stampede. I stood where I picked up the rifle and put the contents of that gun also into the lion's head to make assurance doubly sure.
