At the terminus of the road it will skirt the base of Little Round Top to Deaf's Den, thence through the Timbers tract to the Emmitsburg road, to Washington street, connecting with both railroad depots. The officials of the railway have purchased the old Zoigler & Hoertzly corner, 110 feet on Washington street and 180 feet on Railroad street, at $4,500. Were They Disappointed?

Affly Kennard, an old colored woman who lives at Joppa, Harford county, Md., with her little grandchild, has been sick for sometime. On Friday last she fainted, and the child thinking that she was dead, carried the news to a relative, who, on looking at the woman came to the same conclusion, and ordered a grave to be dug and a coffin from the undertaker. Friends were invited to attend the funeral on Sunday, but before the people assembled at her home, one of the neighbors notified the people whom he met on the road that Affly was sitting up in a chair, and that there was no need of a funeral just then.

A Big Time and It caused His Death.

A bird dog belonging to Mr. A. A. Annan, of this place, declared war against a lot of dogmen Saturday last, and succeeded in biting several of them. The dog had evidently gone crazy and on Sunday Mr. Annan put an end to his vicious career by shooting him. Two of his victims have also been killed and the others are being closely watched.

MT. ST. MARY'S COLLEGE NEWS.

This has been a gala week in the history of Mt. St. Mary's College, one which will long be remembered with pleasure by the faculty and students, for it has made an impression which time can never erase. Great preparations were made for the reception of our expected guest, yet there was an absence of formality which made the matter one of infinite delight. Dr. Allen went to Washington, Monday, where he met the Delegate Apostolic, who together with Dr. A. Urban, of the Catholic University, left the capital city for the college. Monsignor Satolli and his party, composed of Dr. A. Urban, Rev. Patrick Morris, of Warwick, N. Y., and Rev. Joseph P. Egan, of Tarrytown, N. Y., arrived at Emmitsburg at 5:30 p. m., Monday, having come in a special train, with the officers of the Western Maryland Railroad kindly placed at their disposal. On their arrival at the station, they were met and driven to the college in a barouche drawn by six fine black horses. The barouche, horses and trappings were gaily decorated with American and Papal colors, as were all so many of the houses along the route between Emmitsburg and the college. When the party approached the college, they were driven between two lines of students, who having greeted Monsignor Satolli, formed a procession immediately behind the carriages and with the American and Papal flags floating proudly at the head escorted the visitors to the college. Here the party was received by the members of the faculty, seminarians and college band, which played an appropriate selection. No exercises were held Monday evening, other than a ball serenade which was tendered Archbishop Satolli, who being somewhat fatigued, retired early. The buildings were finely illuminated.

Tuesday's Exercises.

The exercises in honor of Monsignor Satolli's visit began at 9 A. M., Tuesday in the Study Hall, which had been prepared Monday, when a throne was erected and the large pillars were artistically lined with festoons of American and Papal colors. American flags were placed on the walls and groups of potted plants added considerably to the beauty of the decorations. Around the throne were fragrant exotics, vases of grasses and cut flowers. The program was as follows: Hymn, "Ecce Staveris Magnus" by a choir of Seminarians under the direction of Rev. Dominic Brown and Mr. John Colari; Latin Address of Welcome, by Dennis E. Behn, '94; Jubilee Hymn, words by Eliza Allan Starr, music by Otto Bruno Klein, was sung by the College Glee Club. Theological Thesis in Latin, "The Real Presence and Transubstantiation," defender, Mr. Peter J. Walsh, objectors, Mr. John Colari and Mr. Peter Coal; "Mereing 'Neath the Starry Flag," Glee, College Glee Club. Monsignor Satolli then addressed the faculty, seminarians, and students, thanking them for his kind reception and congratulated all with being connected with so illustrious a college. He dwelt at length on the subjects of the thesis disputed and spoke of the necessity of knowing philosophy well to refute false doctrines.

The program for the afternoon was as follows: Hymn, "Vivat bonus pastor," by a choir of seminarians. Philosophical Thesis in Latin, "The Immutability of the Soul," defender, Mr. Francis Burgois, '93; objectors, Mr. William McConeil, '93, and William T. Cashman, '93. "Morning Invitation," Vaude, College Glee Club. Monsignor Satolli again addressed those present, taking up the thesis on the subjects of his remarks, and showing in a clear, concise way the beauties of philosophy, as understood by the Scholastics and the most obtaining of modern schools during both addresses.

The music for the exercises was excellent and was highly complimented by the Archbishop. Both the seminarion choir and the Glee Club had practiced faithfully, and their success was greater than had been expected. Prof. Ferrata directed the Glee Club. The defenders of both theses occupied considerable time in the preparation of their work, as did also the objectors. All showed a rising facility in the use of Latin.

Tuesday evening the college buildings and terraces were brilliantly illuminated, with Chinese lanterns, and colored lights. Red and green fire was burned to great quantities. The Glee Club serenaded the Archbishop, as did also the Band, both rendering patriotic airs in his great pleasure. Messrs. Peter J. Walsh, Francis Burgois and Dennis E. Behn were presented with gold medals, and Messrs. John Colari, Peter Coal, William McConeil and William Cashman were presented with silver medals by Monsignor Satolli, for the part they had taken in the day's exercises.

Sporting Note.

The first team to represent Mt. St. Mary's College in the base ball arena, for 1893, has been selected, and we feel bound to praise the judicious selections made by the committee. The names of those securing places are the following: Laurence Gilbey, catcher; Thos. J. McTigue, pitcher; Michael Connee, first base; Wm. Cashman, second base; Moses Perant, third base; Richard Cleary, short stop; J. Frank Cashman, left field; E. J. Donohue, center field; Jas. Ince, right field; substitutes, Patrick McGinnis, John Munson and Edward Saunders. This is the best selection the committee could have made, and it certainly meets with the approval of all. E. J. Donohue, Wm. Cashman and J. Frank Cashman are the only remaining representatives of last year's team. They are good and have the advantage of experience in the business. We expect much from them. Michael Connee and Thos. J. McTigue were two of the best players on the strong second team of '92. They play well. Laurence Gilbey, Richard Cleary and James Ince are new men, who promise great things. Moses Perant was a "mooener" last year and his work now is of the phenomenal order. The subs are very strong and competent to fill all places.

The second team has been made up with the following players: Patrick McInnis, catcher; Jos. Koken, pitcher; Wm. Kerrigan, first base; Chas. Manley, second base; John O'Brien, third base; Edw. Saunders, left field; John Munson, change pitcher and fielder; Leo Carley, center field; Edw. Ferguson, right field. This team is very strong, and will keep the first team busy.

E. J. Donohue has been elected captain of the first team and Patrick McGinnis to a like position in the second.

"Tommy" Saunders' team after winning nine straight lost to the "Hobnobbers," Wednesday, by a score of 29-21.

Burned to Death.

A child about six years old, belonging to Mr. Christian Miller, who resides on the mountain west of this place, was burned to death on Wednesday. Mr. Miller was burning brush near his house and the child was playing nearby when its clothing caught fire and in a few seconds the child was enveloped in flames. It was burned so badly before the fire was extinguished that it died about 8 o'clock in the evening.

"The Kicker."

The greatest travelling musical profusion on the road, appeared on our streets for the first time this year on last Friday, and furnished our people with some fine music. The man is known here as "the kicker," he plays a bag-pipe, and on his back he has a base drum, upon which is a pair of cymbals, a triangle and other instruments, all of which are played by the continual kicking of the foot.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.

It is not a common experience to visit a woman who refers to Martha Washington as "grandma." I visited such a one lately, Mrs. Britania Kennon, whose mother was born at Mount Vernon, and whose grandfather was Martha Washington's son.

This house is in Georgetown, and in its owner is incarnated all the departed glory which once described in Georgetown the court circle of the District of Columbia. Every first family of Virginia is proud to do her honor, and the very best blood of Prince George's county is pleased to flow about her.

The success of any social venture for miles about is assured if Mrs. Britania Kennon is one of the patronesses, and to be invited to any of her functions is a seal of approval, such as an appearance at court bestows. She is one of the officers of the national society of the Daughters of the Revolution, also of the Colonial Dames.

Tall, slender and silver crowned, she moves with the delicate poise of a colonial belle dancing the minuet. To see her in her garden is to catch the thought of a dead poet. To pass her on the street is to draw a breath of something as subtly fragrant as a bride in her great-grandmother's wedding veil.

Soft surprise filled her mild eyes as she said: "I cannot fancy a woman feeling superior to her husband. I am sure I do not know how a true woman possibly could. I cannot understand that a woman would not look up to her husband."

I drew a long breath under the spell of all these marvels and looked to Mrs. Kennon: "How remarkable life must be to you when the very furniture about you is eventful!"

"I do not think of it," was the calm rejoinder. "Yes," I said, half disappointed that in human nature it must be so, "I suppose through long association it has all become commonplace to you."

Then the key-note of the old-fashioned woman was struck as she quietly made answer: "No, not commonplace. Nothing is commonplace that is identified with those I love."

Deacon Scripp. "I'm up! Think you've got to have a vacation, eh?"

Struggling Pastor. "Yes the doctor says I must go off until this cough is cured."

Deacon Scripp. "Well, I'd like to know why preachers are always getting bad coughs."

Struggling Pastor. "Well, you see, we have to visit around a good deal, and we are always asked to hold a little service before leaving, and I think our throats become affected from breathing the dust that flies from the family Bibles."

TEMPERANCE. The River of Rum. There's a river dark with a murky tide, Its banks are high and its current wide, And its circling eddies are swift and strong, Its constant roar is the siren's song.

STARTLING FIGURES. Some of the Losses Incurred Through the Lignor Traffic. 1. LOSS OF PRODUCTIVE POWER.—A drunken workman wastes time, spoils material, delays others, and demoralizes a whole establishment.

These two chair cushions grandma embroidered after General Washington died. She made twelve during the two years she survived him, to be divided among her grandchildren.

The cushions were old-fashioned worsted work, picked out oak leaves in cross stitch with wool. In one corner of the reception room was a large cabinet filled with mementoes of George and Martha Washington.

They are rose-colored satin, embroidered elaborately with silver, with pointed toes and high French heels. Through the library doors I saw the rare old mahogany desk at which Martha Washington went to sit, a great gold-framed mirror that is haunted with the memory of her form.

The Mouse Escaped. The Saunterer has a friend on the staff of a Western newspaper, with whom he often exchanges interesting clippings.

"The many friends of Mrs. E. will be pleased to learn that she is not in serious danger, as the shock is not so severe as at first supposed. The particulars of the unfortunate affair are interesting.

"It seems that Mrs. E. while going up stairs saw a mouse run behind a barrel. Her cries were heard by the hired man, who hastened to the scene, armed with his gun and followed by his faithful bulldog, Mrs. E.—then took courage and poked the barrel with her broom.

"The mouse ran out; the dog started in pursuit; the hired man fired; the dog dropped dead; Mrs. E.—fainted, and the hired man, thinking he had killed her, and that he would be arrested for murder took to his heels and has not been heard of since. The mouse escaped."—Boston Budget.
