VOL. XV.

EMMITSBURG, MD., FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 29, 1893.

THE AMERICAN FLAG.

The broad stripes proudly streaming, And thy stars so brightly gleaming.

They say, I do not love thee, Flag of my native land; Whose meteor folds above me,

To the free breeze expand;

They say, I would forsake thee,

Crouch to a foreign power;

On thee, blest flag to trample.

They say, that bolts of thunder,

Cast in the forge of Rome,

Seduced by license ample

Should some dark crisis lower;

That, recreant I should make thee;

THE FOUNDING OF BAGDAD.

The people of Bagdad have strange legend concerning the founding of their city. Once, they say. an Arabian caliph was riding along the bank of the river Tigris, when, struck by the beauty of the surroundings, he resolved to build a city there. Husbands and Wives.

Every bride knows her power; every wife comes to know her weakness. A good proportion of the heartbreak of good proportion of the heartbreak of early married life is due to the ferment of this knowledge. The poor child whose lover gave up his cigars and club with such angelic meekness finds that her husband can smoke like a chimney and leave her alone nights in order to spend the evening with his men friends. She imagines that he cares less for her than he did, which is a mistake in most cases. Seven out of ten men love their wives better than their sweethearts. It is simply that their presence is not the absorbing excitement that it was when love was new. The chances are that the wife has become a dozen times more more necessary to the man than ever the sweetheart could have been. He would feel her death far more keenly, but he does not abjure his heart to "sit still" whenever his fancy summons her image. In short, she is become the bread of existence in place of the clixir. Now, most of who have sense would prefer to have bread rather than elixir, but ther is no question that more fuss is made over the elixir.

The rude hand of man was fast destroying them until the Government tooy them under its protection, preferring to leave them to the fate kind nature should decree. They are found only in small groves on the mountain. Their foliage closely resembles the cedar, and the wood when reen is very heavy. Indeed, the parts of it nearest the ground will, when first cut, sink in water. But, once seasfirst cut, sink in water. But, once seasoned, it is quite light and dry, and is suspectible of a very fine polish. The tree from which was cut the part standing in the Government Building was about 26 feet in diameter, 81 or 82 feet in circumference, and fully 300 feet high. This was not selected because it was a very large one, but because of its regular polish. The light astonishing brilliancy of the light astonishing brilliancy of the light astonishing brilliancy.

The little boy was so surprised and delighted that he danced and substance is used. A centre lense is surprised and delighted that he danced and screamed for j y. Then he caught up the fish and started for home as fast as his small feet could go, dragging his pole behind him. If he had looked behind the elm tree, he would have seen Uncle Abel shaking with wider. The section exhibited consists of forty-six separate pieces. It had to be thus cut before it could be transported. It took eleven c rs to bring it to Chicago. It was hauled from its mount in home on sp cial built trucks by teams of sixteen mules each. It had to be thus drawn some sixty miles before shipping. Holrelics that is positively fascinating to our country's history. One case is devoted to a collection of Washington relics. A Fruit Tart.

A tart in great favor is an iced case of puff-paste with a filing of marma-lade and whipped cream. For the case roll a quarter pound of puff-paste to a thin sheet. Trim to a round with a pastry knife, and build a rim around the moistened edges with an inch strip of the paste. Slip the case on to baking-sheet, prick the center to deaden the paste, and bake in a quick oven, with more heat underneath than stop. When the c se becomes cool brush the pretty sure to have a spell of very hot crisp rim and edges with a film of icing.
