Castoria is Dr. Samuel Pitcher's prescription for Infants and Children. It contains neither Opium, Morphine nor other Narcotic substance. It is a harmless substitute for Paregoric, Drops, Soothing Syrups, and Castor Oil. It is Pleasant. Its guarantee is thirty years' use by Millions of Mothers. Castoria destroys Worms and allays feverishness. Castoria prevents vomiting Sour Curd, cures Diarrhoea and Wind Colic. Castoria relieves teething troubles, cures constipation and flatulency. Castoria assimilates the food, regulates the stomach and bowels, giving healthy and natural sleep. Castoria is the Children's Panacea—the Mother's Friend.

Castoria.
"Castoria is an excellent medicine for children. Mothers have repeatedly told me of its good effect upon their children."
Dr. G. C. Osceola, Lowell, Mass.
"Castoria is the best remedy for children of which I am acquainted. I hope the day is not far distant when mothers will consider the real interest of their children, and use Castoria instead of the various quack nostrums which are destroying their loved ones, by forcing opium, morphine, soothing syrup and other hurtful agents down their throats, thereby sending them to premature graves."
Dr. J. F. KINCHELOE, Conway, Ark.
Castoria.
"Castoria is so well adapted to children that I recommend it as superior to any prescription known to me."
H. A. ARCHER, M. D., 111 So. Oxford St., Brooklyn, N. Y.
"Our physicians in the children's department have spoken highly of their experience in their outside practice with Castoria, and although we only have among our medical supplies what is known as regular products, yet we are free to confess that the merits of Castoria has won us to look with favor upon it."

FAREWELL!

BY FRANK CARAHER.
There the youthful exile leaves
Home and childhood's haunts with pain,
Tears are falling,
Mother's calling,
"Shall I see you again?"
"Farewell!"
Here the soldier true and brave
For his country leaves his love,
Cruel parting!
Tears are starting,
As she murmurs, "Constant prove,
Farewell!"
Lo! the bed of pain and death,
Life's drop ebbing fast away,
Dear ones leaving
Fond hearts grieving,
As the eyes for lips do say:
"Farewell!"
This is life from prime to close,
Parting 'er from those we love,
Friends are sighing,
Joys are dying,
But there's not in Heaven above,
Farewell!

ONE OF A THOUSAND.

THE WONDERFUL RESULT OF A YOUNG GIRL'S WORK.

BY EDITH B. HOUSTON.

DEAR AMOS," the letter had read "we have decided to send Allie to you without further delay, as the doctor says we should not risk keeping her here through the winter. As it is impossible for me to leave, I have placed her in charge of a young girl who has been with her a great deal through her illness. They will leave next Tuesday, and ought to reach you by the 15th. Be sure to meet them at San Mario." And that was why Mr. Amos Lawson was pacing up and down the platform at the little Texas town, looking away over the prairie at every turn to see if there were any sign of the train puffing out from the belt of woods that made a dark line against the horizon five miles away. "There she comes!" shouted somebody, and in a few minutes the train came puffing up to the platform. There they were—two girls, the very last of the crowd, one of them a pale little creature, supported partly by a crutch and partly by her companion. "Is this Allie?" asked Mr. Lawson, and when she put an arm around his neck and began to cry a little, her companion said: "She has had a hard trip and is very tired. She'll be all right in the morning, I think. My name is Kate Sullivan."

She looked younger than Allie, but taller and stronger. She was a good-looking girl, Mr. Lawson thought, but it was mainly on account of a pair of pretty gray eyes that looked straight at one, and a red mouth with a charming smile. They had little time to look at one another or to become acquainted, for the work of getting Allie home soon absorbed all their attention. Mrs. Lawson warmly welcomed the two weary girls, and urged Kate to rest while she took care of Allie, but the faithful guardian would not consent until her charge was sleeping. "You ought to know something about me," she said that night "You see I live in a tenement house. Mother does sewing. I was near Allie when she slipped on the icy pavement last spring and got that fall that crippled her. I knew where she lived, because whenever I passed their pretty home I always stopped to look in, and I had often seen her in the yard. I called a carriage and went home with her, and helped take care of her until her father came, and then he would not let me leave. I was there a great deal after that. Judge Lawson says I have common sense and always know what to do."

There was no touch of arrogance or affectation in what she said. Amos Lawson looked at her with amusement twinkling in his eyes. "I'm mighty glad that little girl came with Allie," he said to his wife that night. "She's a good wholesome girl to have around. I shouldn't wonder if she was to brighten this whole place up."

How much she brightened it up it would take another story to tell, for this child of poverty had some sunny spirit within her that filled this childless home with radiance, but it is her other work that this story must record—a work that brightened many other homes beside this. Mr. and Mrs. Lawson found her the next morning standing on the wide porch and looking out over the prairie that was blooming out with the rose color of sunrise. When she glanced around her eyes were brimming with tears. "It seems a great pity," she said simply. "What's that?" asked Mr. Lawson in astonishment. "Oh, it does seem a great pity that all these miles and miles of country should be here with not a human being on them, while there in New York we are crowded until there isn't breathing room. In that tenement house where we have two little rooms there are more than six hundred peo-

SEASONABLE SALADS.

The Way to Prepare Some Appetizing Dishes.

The salad season is upon us, and vegetable salads are better than those made of fish and fowl. To make a delicious string bean salad, string, boil and cool the beans. Slice them lengthwise, cutting each bean into four long pieces. An hour or two before serving, season with pepper, salt and three spoons of vinegar to one of oil. Just before serving drain off any superfluous moisture and serve with a French dressing.

An excellent potato salad is made by boiling and cutting into dice six potatoes. Add three medium-sized onions, cut up, salt and pepper to taste, and serve with a dressing made of three well-beaten eggs, three tablespoons of vinegar, a lump of butter the size of an egg, a pinch of salt, pepper and unmix mustard. Put on the stove and stir constantly until it is the consistency of a thin custard. Cabbage salad is made by cooking together a half cup of sugar, a teaspoon of mustard, one of salt, a half teaspoon of black pepper, three well-beaten eggs, a half cup of vinegar, six tablespoons of cream and three of butter. These should be cooked in a kettle of water as boiled custard is, and when cold the cabbage, chopped fine, should be added.

I have observed many who, by speaking, have fallen into sin; scarcely one who has fallen by silence.—Ambrose.

ple. Think of it! Why that little town where you met us hasn't that many. And it must be five or six miles to that line of woods; and see there isn't a house in sight!" "Yes, it seems pretty hard," said Mr. Lawson soberly. "There's room here for all of 'em; if they only knew enough to come." Kitty smiled a little sadly and turned away that they might not see it. It was so easy to talk of coming to Texas to people who were moneyless and friendless. They might as well talk of going to the moon. "How many are there in your family?" he asked her that day, when he saw that wifely, perturbed look in her eyes again. "Just mother and the two boys. Mother does plain sewing and Benjie sells papers and Bart is a messenger. We manage to keep the wolf from the door, but I know plenty that don't." "Oh, how hard it must be to see such suffering and not be able to help it!" cried kind-hearted Mrs. Lawson, who had never lived anywhere except on the broad, genial Texas prairies. "I'm afraid I can't stay with Allie," Kitty rejoined, tremulously. "I thought it would be a great trip for me, and I was so glad of the chance, but now it hurts me so that I can't stand it. It hurts me to look at this great world lying idle with poor mother and the boys shut up in those awful rooms!" "Never mind," my dear, never mind," said Mrs. Lawson soothingly. "Maybe times will be better. One never knows. At any rate, we can't let you go back now."

This conversation was the starting point. Mr. Lawson thought over it a great deal. One day while Kitty was walking about the porch, with Allie leaning on her arm, he said to her: "Well, Miss Kitty, what if the mother and the boys came to you instead of your going back to them?" Kitty stood still and gazed at him. "What kind of a farmer do you think Bennie would make?" he went on, with a merry twinkle in his eyes. "And fancy Bart, now, learning to ride a cow-pony and round up cattle."

Still she did not understand. He was forced to go on. "Well, my dear, I am always glad to get good tenants, and it occurred to me that your folks might come out and I would let you have a little farm, and you could take all the time you wanted to pay for it. I have been writing to my brother about it and he is glad to help—he thinks a great deal of you on Allie's account—and so if your mother likes the plan the place is open to her, Brother John will pay their traveling expenses, and I'll see that they live until a crop is made and gathered." Kitty thought of but one thing. She put her arms around the old sun-burned farmer's neck and kissed him. It was a long time before she could say anything. Her heart was too full for words, but somehow Mr. Lawson understood so as though she had spoken ever so eloquently.

What a delight it was to receive that letter from her mother—a letter just brimming with grateful tears. How she laughed and cried over the message from Bennie and Bart, who were on tiptoe with happiness. Oh, if they could only have come at once! But it would be a whole long month before they could leave the city. How was Kitty to endure that dreadful month? But after all, time had never flown quite so fast with Kitty. The little farm that Mr. Lawson had set aside for them had a small house, which had been occupied by some former tenant. The happy young girl went about the task of turning the bare house into a home, and she was so pleased and enthusiastic that every body on the place insisted on helping. With her own hands she nailed up wooden shelves, and Allie grew bright and rosy, helping her to adorn them. They brought honeysuckle wisteria to plant around the porch. Joe, the negro helper in the barnyard, went to the woods and dug up fine young sycamores and maples, which he planted around the house; and Mr. Lawson sent young fruit trees from his own orchard.

It was Mrs. Lawson that made the pretty curtains and hung them at the windows. Every body had a hand in getting the place ready for the strangers, and when, on the last morning, Kitty walked over to the house to see that everything was all right and found a pretty cow and calf in the lot she thought her cup was full.

And what a sight it was to see the meeting between the immigrants and the happy girl who was waiting for them at San Mario! Mr. and Mrs. Lawson had driven over with her, on purpose to see it, and they stood off to one side and laughed as if it was the most enjoyable thing in the world. The poor, tired little mother in her shabby black dress could do nothing but cry at first, so happy was she, and, as for the two boys, why they were birds just escaped from a cage. They could scarcely stay in the carriage on the way home. It would have pleased them better to get out and run ahead, like some of the great "mule eared" rabbits they sometimes saw scurrying across the prairies. And when the carriage drew up in front of the little new home it appeared that Kitty had planned a delightful surprise for them. She had led them to believe that the house was nothing but, the merest hut, which would barely do for shelter. You may be sure she had said nothing about the shelves or the pretty curtains or the trees and vines. And when that poor, overworked mother looked all around the house and saw the garden and the cow and calf she just stood speechless a minute, and then she broke down and cried like a baby.

There was even a suspicious moisture in Bennie's bright eyes as he walked up to Mr. Lawson and said, in his manly, earnest way: "You won't be sorry for this, sir. I'm going to work like a good fellow, and so is Bart, and if you please, sir I think you're a regular trump." Mr. Lawson laughed over it all in high glee as he went home. "We did a good thing that time, wife," he kept saying. "Those boys will pay for that little place all right, but even if they never do they can have the place anyway, as far as I'm concerned. It's worth that much just to know a girl like Kitty." "Hello," said Judge Lawson, a month or two later, as he looked over them at the table. "Here's a letter from Kitty! I hope nothing wrong with Allie." "No, nothing was wrong with Allie, and the Judge's brow cleared as he read; but presently he laughed aloud. "Look here, Jeannette," he said: "what do you think of this for a modest request?" And he read aloud: "We are all so happy, so very happy! But I keep thinking all the time how happy other people might be, too. There is the whole world here for people to have homes in if they were only here; and the land is so cheap, and they can have years and years to pay for it. Don't you think you could help some others as you did us? I know some who would work hard and make good people if they were here, but there they will never do anything. What a great thing it would be, just to give them a chance!" The Judge laughed, but he and his wife had some serious talk about it afterwards, and the result was that he wrote to Kitty: "I don't know where this is going to end, Miss Kitty, and I have no doubt it is very foolish in me to listen to you; but I have decided to make you the head of a colony. You are to come on here and pick out your people—genuine working-people, mind you—and I will see that they get transportation down to your new Paradise and that they have a little help until they gather their first crops. The money that I advance them is to be paid back by degrees, as they can afford it, and you are to be my agent and collect for me. Of course I shall pay my agent a liberal commission. A few months ago I would have told you that I was doing all this for Allie's sake, but now I can truthfully say that it is for your own."

You are not to suppose that Kitty was frightened at the great responsibility that had suddenly been laid on her young shoulders. She was a wonderful girl, this Kitty, with a faculty for knowing what to do, and for doing it. Without hesitation she undertook the long trip to New York, and presented herself before Judge Lawson, calm, resolute, complete mistress of herself. Well, the colony was not so large as Kitty had expected, but it was a good one, nevertheless. Most of the party were strong and able to work, and all of them were willing. Some of them had practical knowledge of farming, and all were anxious to learn so on the whole there was promise for their future. Judge Lawson had refused to have his name known in the transaction. It was Kitty's colony; he wanted that particularly understood. But he was down at the depot to see them off, merely as a friend of Kitty's, and he looked over the group with critical eyes. "If you succeed with all these people you're a pretty good general," he said to her in a laughing aside; "and if you don't succeed with them I'll never try to do any more good with my money."

That was several years ago. When Judge Lawson saw Kitty next he had gone on a visit to his brother, taking Allie with him, and there was Allie, sound and well now, rushing rapidly into the arms of a tall and handsome young lady, who came to meet her. "What! That's not Kitty?" cried the delighted Judge in great astonishment; whereupon she dropped him a courtesy and said, her face dimpling all over with smiles: "Oh, I can hardly wait till morning I am so anxious for you to see our town. The shade trees and flowers are all at their best now, and there are the beautiful farms lying out in every direction, and the church is a perfect little beauty, and next week we're to lay the corner-stones of the brick school-house." They all stood and looked at her while she talked, so proud was she of these little homes that had sprung up in the wilderness and so unconscious of the part she had played in planting them. And while she told about it all Judge Lawson looked at his brother and said: "Amos, she is one of a thousand!" —Philadelphia Times.

ODDS AND ENDS.

Love-knots should be tied with a single beam.

He: "This shoe does not fit. Try a bigger one."
She (severely): "No, sir; bring me the same size a little larger."

Mrs. B.: "Dear me! What lovely closets this flat has!"
Agent: "Madam, those are not the closets; they are the bed-rooms."

"Hardly any money in circulation in America?" said Mme. Patti, pleasantly. "That will never do. I must run over for another little farewell tour."

Tom: "I saw a mountain this summer so high that it was in the clouds."
Jack: "That's nothing. I saw a valley so deep, it was in a lake."

She: "Horseback-riding seems to be very vigorous exercise, Mr. Sappy?"
He: "Oh, yes, indeed!"
She: "I really did not realize that it was so vigorous until—until I saw you ride."

"Waiter!"
"Yes, sir!"
"What is this?"
"It's bean soup, sir."
"No matter what it has been; the question is: 'What is it now?'"

"Pay me the six-and-eight-pence you owe me," said the Irish attorney to one of his clients.
"For what?"
"For the opinion you had of me."

"Faith, I never had any opinion of you in all my life."
"Mr. Pennersby, did you write this sentence: 'The Congressman stood speechless with amazement?'"
"Yes. Is there anything wrong with it?"
"Well, I don't know. Unless you are sure of your facts, we'd better change it to, 'The Congressman was amazed.'"

Daughter: "The clock has stopped, and I promised my music teacher to practice a full hour every day."
Father: "Well, never mind; begin your practicing, and I'll let you know when the hour is up. I'm going out."
"But if you go out, how am I to know?"
"You'll see me coming in."

Miss Daisy (who has spent her whole summer in trying to elevate the simple country people with whom she has boarded): "Good-bye, Mr. Stiles. I hope my visit here hasn't been entirely without good results."
Farmer Stiles: "Sartin not, sartin not. You've learn't a heap since you first come here; out you was purty nigh the greenest one we ever had on our hands."

A schoolmaster tells the following story: "I was teaching in a quiet country village. The second morning of my session I had leisure to survey my surroundings, and among the scanty furniture I espied a three-legged stool. 'Is this the dunce block?' I asked a little girl of five. The dark eyes sparkled, the curls nodded, and the lips replied: 'I suppose so; the teacher always sits on it.' The stool was unoccupied that term."

Agony From Dropping of Water.
A curious experiment is said to have been made on Wednesday in a place of entertainment in Vienna. An American acrobat bet a Vienna athlete a considerable sum that he could not bear a litre of water fall upon his hand, drop by drop, from a height of only three feet. The athlete has an enormous hand, and every body present believed the American must lose his bet. When 300 drops had fallen, however, the athlete's face became red, and he looked as if in pain. At the four hundred and twentieth drop he gave up, saying it was impossible to bear the pain any longer. The palm of his hand was swollen and inflamed, and in one place the skin had broken open, and showed the flesh. Only a small portion of the litre had gone to make up the 420 drops.—London Daily News.

Death of Judge Bond.

United States Judge Hugh Lennox Bond died at 4 o'clock Tuesday morning at his residence corner of Park and Belvidere avenues, Baltimore. He was taken ill last November with a dropsical affection, which kept him in bed until May. Last June he went to Deer Park, remaining until the middle of September, with apparently great benefit to his health. He was in court several times after his return to the city, occupying the bench for the last time when the Baltimore and Lehigh Railroad receivership case was heard, September 20. A cold he contracted on the 18th caused a relapse and he grew rapidly worse until he died. His wife and three sons were at his bedside when he expired.

Judge Bond was senior judge of the fourth judicial circuit and presiding judge of the Circuit Court of Appeals. The next to him in point of seniority is Judge Nathan Goff, who will be the presiding judge of the appellate court. The death of Judge Bond makes a vacancy which President Cleveland will fill with the concurrence of the Senate. The salary of the position is $6,600 a year and the appointment is for life. Judge Bond was born in Baltimore, December 16, 1828. His father, Dr. Thomas Emerson Bond, a local preacher in the Methodist Episcopal Church and a physician, was also born in Baltimore. Dr. Bond removed to New York, where the future judge was graduated from the University of the City of New York in 1848. The son returned to Baltimore for the purpose of studying law, and entered the office of Dobbin & Talbot, being admitted to the bar in 1851.

In 1860 Governor Hicks appointed Mr. Bond judge of the Criminal Court of Baltimore, in place of Judge Henry Stump, who had been removed by the Senate, and November 5, 1861, Judge Bond was elected by the people to the same position, holding the office during the civil war. Among the noted trials in which Judge Bond presided as circuit judge were the Ku-Klux cases in South Carolina, the Virginia coup cases and the Navassa murder trials. The circuit over which he presided comprises Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia, North Carolina and South Carolina.

George Washington Has Confessed

George Washington, a colored man, was arrested at Rockville, Montgomery county, last Saturday, charged with the larceny of several registered packages. For some time letters have been missed from the postoffice at that place but no clue could be obtained. Washington was employed as janitor in the office, and whenever opportunity afforded, pocketed a fat letter. Washington was also in the employ of Dr. Owens, who runs a drug store near the postoffice, and the doctor found some one was tapping his till, so he placed therein a number of marked bank notes. Last Saturday a colored boy appeared in the store, and presented one of the marked bills to have it changed. He claimed to have obtained the note from Washington, who was accordingly arrested. He confessed the whole affair. He will be turned over to the United States authorities, who have been notified.

Chinese Fight to Get Into America

A fight occurred Sunday morning between thirteen contraband Chinese and a settler named J. P. Doran, near Wickersham, Wash., a small hamlet near the Canadian boundary. One Chinaman was wounded in the knee and captured by Doran; the other twelve escaped. The Chinese were sneaking across the border when Doran stumbled upon them in the brush and tried to capture all single-handed. Local Customs Inspector Maloney engaged a posse and went in pursuit of the other twelve, who in their flight had left their hats, coats, luggage and all personal effects. Tuesday morning three more Chinese were run down and the posse is in hot pursuit of the rest.

The postoffice at Tuckahoe, Cape May county, N. J., was entered Tuesday night by burglars, who took all the mail, postage stamps and money, then stole a horse from the stable of Anthony Steelman and escaped from the town.

The Boulevard Project.

Owing to the financial stringency of the money market no move has been for some time toward beginning operations on the Baltimore and Washington boulevard project, though there have been meetings of the members of the company in the past few months in Washington and Baltimore, at which the route has been discussed and other matters of importance in reference to the bedding of the road, the kind and style of cars, motive power and numerous other expenses connected with the building of the road. The members of the company, when interviewed in reference to the project and when operations would commence, said they could not tell exactly, as this is a project involving large sums of money and could not be rushed into without due consideration. They said the projectors are carefully considering every step that is to be taken and do not intend to heedlessly begin the construction of the roadway until all the necessary preliminaries and contingencies have been provided for.

There was some difficulty in obtaining the right of way through Laurel for a time on account of a loosely constructed ordinance that was passed by the city council, but but which was sent back to the council by the mayor to be revised and properly drawn. After about two months' inactivity by the engineers of the company a corps of fifteen arrived at Laurel Monday and commenced surveying the Baltimore and Washington pike in both directions. After taking this survey the corps of engineers went to the Baltimore and Ohio depot and divided into two sections to prosecute other surveys. It is stated that construction of the road will not begin for three or four months yet, as the survey is not finished and the company has some important decisions to make before commencing the building operations.—Sun.

Under a Shock of Corn.

The Cashtown correspondent of the Gettysburg Compiler says: "On Monday of last week an unknown man was discovered under a corn shock in David Deardorf's corn field, near Flohr's church. He then asked permission to sleep in the barn at Jerome Keller's, Esq., which was granted, and was not heard or seen until Friday, when he was discovered still in the barn. When requested to come from the hay mow, where he had secreted himself, he remarked that he would if they would all go out of the barn, which they did, and he came from his hiding place, where he had been for four days without anything to eat that they know of. He was a suspicious looking fellow, and his actions showed that he was guilty of some bad act. He should have been arrested and made to give an account of himself. He was well dressed and young."

Closing Exercises.

A programme of exercises for the last official day of the World's Exposition has been reported to the national commission by the committee on ceremonies. It recommended that the exercises should be held in Festival Hall, beginning at 1 P. M., October 30 and timed to conclude at sunset, when the National flags will be lowered throughout the grounds.

A national salute will be fired at sunrise, noon and sunset. Part of the exercises will consist of the presentation of the list of awards to the foreign and domestic exhibitors. The national commissioners, lady managers, directors, foreign and State commissioners and executive officers of the exposition will be invited to participate.

Money-Making Hens.

In the human family we find, occasionally, physical specimens that are of more practical use on earth. The same rule applies in some ways to all animate life. It depends on the breeder whether a domestic animal or fowl is simply a thing of beauty or built for business, says the Ohio Farmer. If a fancier's aim is to have a fowl of pretty feather, of comely appearance—in other words, "a prize winner," it is not surprising that such a bird may not be an expert layer of eggs. Experience teaches that if a person wants money-making, business hens, he must keep that point in view, culling out closely all drones and loafers and doubtful characters, and breeding only those that are most prolific in money-making qualities, without so much regard for fine feathers. Fanciers may oppose this, but farmers are not raising hens to look at, but for money. We want eggs, and meat that is plump, for in these there is money, and if these requirements are filled it matters not whether they are pure blood or not.

Disappointment awaits the poultrymen that buy eggs for hatching on recommendations. Hens may do well for us under the care and peculiar conditions they are accustomed to, but to transfer to different care is not good. Hence, don't depend on others so much. Read good poultry papers (which are very hard to find), but when you get one, stick to it. Raising poultry is a business, and many improvements are yet looked for, and will come by and by. That there is money in the business we have ample proof, but the point is, how to get it out. There are many failures in the business, as in all others. This is no reason that you should get out of the business or that you should "get off the earth."

Scribner's Magazine for November opens with a picturesque and amusing travel sketch by Colonel H. E. Colville, C. B., of the Grenadier Guards, in which he describes his experiences while "in Camp with the Ketchikins." Colonel Colville made an interesting series of photographs during his travels, from which Mr. A. F. Jaccazi has produced a most striking series of drawings. Among the articles which are thoroughly American in their authorship and subject are "The Picturesque Side," by F. Hopkinson Smith—giving with pen and pencil his impressions of the World's Fair, particularly of the aspects of the Midway Plaisance. Another distinctly American article is Isaac H. Bromley's contribution to the Historic Moments series, giving his recollections of the "Nomination of Lincoln." This issue contains a number of articles which have to do with subjects of great contemporary interest. Augustine Birrel (the author of "Obliter Dicta") who is a member of the present Parliament, gives an intimate, inside view of "The House of Commons." A paper of most pertinent interest to every one interested in the education of women is Miss Katherine de Forest's account of the present conditions governing "Education for Girls in France." Mr. F. N. Doubleday concludes his "Glimpses of French Illustrators" with accounts of the work of Renouard, Kaemmerer, Berand, Flameng, Leloir, Forain, and other contemporary artists, with many effective examples of their work. In "Mr. Freeman at Home" Mrs. Delia Lyman Porter has given a new impression of his personality, which shows that behind his brusque manner was a most kindly and generous man. The article contains a portrait of Freeman by J. Carroll Beckwith. The fiction of this issue includes two short stories by Octave Thanet and Martha McCulloch Williams.

Struck by a Locomotive.

The Cumberland Valley passenger train Friday morning going to Hagerstown from Chambersburg ran into a two-horse team at the State Line crossing. The wagon was loaded with wheat. One horse was thrown a considerable distance and killed. The other escaped and the man saved himself by jumping from the wagon. The team belonged to Daniel R. Miller. Mr. Miller stopped and listened before he started to cross the track. He could not hear the approaching train and could not see up the track. He also took out his watch and it, being after train time, he thought he was safe. The crossing is regarded as a dangerous one.—Waynesboro Record.

Work in Foreign Fields.

The twenty-first annual meeting of the Baptist Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of Maryland was held Wednesday afternoon at the Memorial Evangelical Church, corner Fremont and Edmonson avenues, Baltimore. Mrs. James Pollard, president, with Miss Laura Crane as secretary. Mrs. Eugene Levering, treasurer of the society, read her report, in which she said that over $4,000 had been raised during the past year. This money will be used to supply women missionaries for foreign fields. Dr. J. R. Willingham, of Richmond, Va., made an address, in which he spoke of the high ability of the missionaries sent out by this society, and praised the work of rescuing the heathen. The most interesting address was made by Mrs. A. Brunson, the lady missionary from Japan. Mrs. Brunson has been in Japan for the last three years, and has thoroughly studied the natives and their customs. She said that as yet the Japanese were not imbued with the Christian spirit, but that many had professed Christianity and were lending their help in the great work. She showed the need of further help in Japan and mapped out the work for the coming year.—American.

The Tomato Season.

Before severe frost, gather all the large green tomatoes, and put them on a bed of straw. The straw should be six inches thick. The tomatoes may be piled six or eight inches deep or even deeper. Cover every night with straw, and uncover about ten o'clock in the morning. The tomatoes will ripen very quickly from their own heat. They may also be placed in cold frames, first putting down a layer of straw. After they are put in, cover with the sash. The sash should be taken off every day to air the tomatoes. If kept too close, they will wither and become hollow and tasteless.

The vines may also be pulled up with the tomatoes upon them and hung up in the cellar. They will ripen slower in the cellar and not have quite so fresh a taste as when ripened in the frames.

By either of these methods the tomato season may be prolonged up to the Christmas holidays. If, after the vines are killed with frost, the tomatoes are not injured—which can be told by their being sound and plump—they may be gathered and put away as described above.—American.

Dr. Hasskarl Honored.

Rev. Dr. G. H. C. Hasskarl, pastor of St. James Evangelical Lutheran Church, of Frederick, has just had a Latin certificate framed, which he received recently from the London Society of Science, Letters and Art, as a Fellow for his recognized scholarship in German, English and American Universities, as an author of a half dozen works on Science, Philosophy and Theology. The London Society, which confers this honor upon Dr. Hasskarl, is world-famous and only admits men of recognized abilities into its membership.

Mills Closed Down.

The bessemer steel and rail mills at Sparrows Point closed down Saturday morning for an indefinite period, the result of lack of work. The company had finished up all the orders on hand. There were about four hundred men employed in these departments, and for several months they had been working on reduced time. It cannot be told when work will be resumed in these mills. The other departments continue as they have been working.

Twenty-six persons were killed and twenty-four were injured in a railroad wreck at Battle Creek, Mich., on Thursday last.

The Kensington Mills.

Two thousand more men were thrown out of employment Saturday in Kensington by the shutting down of the extensive woolen and worsted mills of Thomas Dolan & Co. Mr. Dolan gave as his reason for this stoppage of work the unsatisfactory condition of trade, mainly owing he believed, to the "shilly-shallying of Congress over the silver bill." Fortunately this shutting down has been more than offset by the resumption on partial time of a number of other mills.

Dropped Dead.

David H. Reese, an aged and respected resident of Adams county, dropped dead at his home near Fairfield, Tuesday evening, from heart disease, aged 70 years and 13 days. He had suffered from heart trouble for many years, and often fell over while at work. At one time he was an extensive real estate owner in Adams county, and was a man much thought of. His wife who had been confined to a broken limb, survives him, also six sons and five daughters.

Stole $65.00.

Samuel Ponceb, a lad of sixteen years from Smithsburg, Md., was arraigned before Squire Bitner of Hagerstown, on Thursday last, charged with stealing $65 from Isaiah Beard, of Chewsville, Md. The money was nearly all found upon his person and the boy sobbed bitterly when cast into jail in default of $500 bail to await the action of the court.—Record.

On Thursday last, Mr. Richard J. Hamilton, editor of the Hagerstown Mail was assaulted by a young man by the name of Harry Zellers. When Mr. Hamilton threw his assailant off, a pistol fell from his pocket. Zellers was arrested and held in the sum of $200 bail on two charges—assault and for carrying a concealed weapon.

This is from Mr. D. M. Jordan, a retired farmer, and one of the most respected citizens of Otsego Co., N. Y. "Fourteen years ago I had an attack of the gravel, and have since been troubled with my Liver and Kidneys gradually growing worse. Three years ago I got down so low that I could scarcely walk. I looked more like a corpse than a living being. I had no appetite and for five weeks I ate nothing but gruel. I was badly emaciated and had no more color than a marble statue. Hood's Sarsaparilla was recommended and I took the first bottle I noticed that I felt better, suffered less, the inflammation of the bladder had subsided. The color began to return to my face, and I began to feel hungry. After I had taken three bottles I could eat anything without hurting me. Why, I got so hungry that I had to eat 5 times a day. No. 1355 MISCELLANEOUS DOCKET.

In the Circuit Court for Frederick County. SEPTEMBER TERM, 1893.

In the matter of the Report of Sales of Real Estate consisting of 534 acres of mountain land, more or less, situated about five miles west of Emmitsburg, in Frederick county, Md., and assessed in the name of George Ridenour, as trustee by J. Wm. Baughman, Collector of State and County Taxes for Frederick County. The object of this proceeding is to procure the ratification and confirmation of a sale made on the 16th day of October, A. D. 1893, by J. Wm. Baughman, Collector of taxes for Frederick County and State of Maryland, of a tract of mountain land in Election District No. 5, of Frederick county, which in the advertisement of sale is described as follows: 354 acres of mountain land, more or less, situated about 5 miles west of the town of Emmitsburg, in Frederick county, Maryland, adjoining the lands of George W. Rowe, David Turner and others, being part of a tract of land mentioned in a deed of partition between George Ridenour and Ephraim Elyer, dated Nov. 27th, A. D. 1865, and recorded in Liber J. W. L. C., No. 3, folio 363, one of the Land Records of Frederick county.

The said Collector having made report to the Court of said sale, together with all the proceedings had in relation thereto, and the proceedings having been examined by the Court and the same appearing to be regular and the provisions of the law in relation thereto appearing to have been complied with.

It is thereupon on this 17th day of October A. D. 1893, by the Circuit Court for Frederick county, adjudged and ordered that notice be given by the insertion of a copy of this order in the Frederick Citizen and Chronicle, newspapers published in Frederick county, once a week for six successive weeks before the 9th day of December, A. D. 1893, warning all persons interested in the property to be sold to appear in this Court by the 9th day of December, A. D. 1893, to show cause if any they have why said sale should not be finally ratified and confirmed. (Filed Oct. 17th, 1893.)

The store of S. S. Shoemaker in Harney, was entered by thieves on Wednesday night of last week, and clothing, provisions, &c., were stolen. Loss about $275.

A bear, supposed to be "Prowler," which escaped from Druid Hill Park, Baltimore, some time ago, was killed near Poolesville, Montgomery county, on last Saturday, by Isaac Tyffe.

The formal opening of the Brunswick and Lovettsville Bridge, on the Potomac River will take place tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock. The programme will consist of a parade, speeches, &c., and a display of fireworks in the evening.

Cough Syrup—Yes I am tired of hearing and seeing the word; yet if you want a good, reliable, pleasant-to-take, Cough Syrup, and a large bottle for the money, ask your druggist for Dr. Fahrney's and take no other.

An unknown man, supposed to have fallen from a train while partly asleep, was run over and killed last Thursday night at Washington Junction, Metropolitan Branch Railroad. There was nothing on his person to indicate his residence or nativity.

The Fountain Head of Strength. When we recollect that the stomach is the grand laboratory in which food is transformed into the secretions which furnish vigor to the system after entering and enriching the blood; that it is, in short, the fountain head of strength, it is essential to keep this important supplying machine in order, and to restore it to activity when it becomes inactive. This Hostetter's Stomach Bitters does most effectively, sensibly, regulating and reinforcing digestion, promoting due action of the liver and bowels. Strength and quietude of the nerves depend in great measure upon thorough digestion. There is no nervous tonic more highly esteemed by the medical fraternity than the Bitters. Physicians also strongly commend it for cholera and fever, rheumatism, kidney and bladder trouble, sick headache, and want of appetite and sleep. Take a wineglassful three times a day.

Nine Times out of Ten Dr. Fahrney's Peerless Liniment will prevent Pneumonia and Croup, if used in time. So say hundreds who have used it. Sold by all druggists for twenty-five cents.

Last of Letters. The following letters remain in the Post Office, Emmitsburg, Md., Oct. 23, 1893. Persons calling will please say advised, otherwise they may not receive them: Miss Ollie Wetsel, Eli Weant, S. N. McNair, P. M.

Last Sunday morning the Holy Communion was celebrated in the Reformed Church of the Incarnation. Notwithstanding the inclement weather the attendance was quite large. Rev. A. B. Bauman, of Virginia, preached an able sermon. In the evening a large congregation again was present when Rev. I. M. Motter, of Adamstown, delivered a forcible and practical sermon.

Unknown parties recently destroyed a two-story log house near Avondale, Carroll county, with dynamite. The property had been abandoned by its owners and some years ago John Robinson took possession. He received a notice to leave and after he went the house was blown up by neighboring people. This was done to prevent any undesirable person from squatting on the property.

Wedding Dance. Mr. George Althoff and Miss Mary Sanders, who were married at Mt. St. Mary's College Church on Tuesday morning, were given a dance in honor of that event in the evening at the residence of Mr. Jacob A. Long, near town. A large number of young folks were in attendance, and the newly wedded couple received the congratulations and best wishes of their many friends for a happy journey through married life.

County Statement. The annual Levy List or County Statement of Frederick county for 1893, is published in two of the Frederick papers. The following is a summary statement: The assessment of 62 cents on the $100 produced the sum of $154,578.00. The appropriations for Montevue were $10,000.00, for the jail, $1,000.00, jurors and talesman, August and December, 1893, and February and May 1894, $5,000.00. The State witnesses piled up the sum of $1,500.00. The interest on the bonded debt is $12,972.00. To the School Commissioners was bonded over $35,500.00. New public roads and land damages cost the county the sum of $1,439.07. The bonded debt of the county is $324,324.300 divided as follows: jail bonds at 4 per cent, $25,000.00; Bridge and Turnpike Bonds at 4 per cent, $65,000.00. Alms-house and Jail Bonds at 4 per cent, $123,700.00. Flood and Bridge Bonds at 4 per cent, $100,000.00; Turnpike Bonds at 4 per cent, $100,000.00.

Catarh in the Head. Is undoubtedly a disease of the blood, and as such only a reliable blood purifier can effect a perfect and permanent cure. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the best blood purifier, and it has cured many very severe cases of catarh. Catarh oftentimes leads to consumption. Take Hood's Sarsaparilla before it is too late.

Hood's Pills do not purge, pain or gripe, but acts promptly, easily and efficiently. 25c.

Statistics of the Potomac Synod. The Potomac Synod of the Reformed Church, which had been in session in Gettysburg, for several days, finished its work and finally adjourned on Monday. Rev. W. C. Schaeffer, Ph. D., was chosen theological professor in Catawba College, N. C. The statistical committee reported as follows: Ministers, 161; congregations 308; members, 35,065; unfilled pulpits, 10,163; infant baptisms, 1,897; adult baptisms, 349; confirmed, 175; certificate, 915; communicants, 28,165; excommunicated, 272; dismissed, 700; Sunday-schools, 275; officers and teachers, 2,269; Sunday-school scholars, 25,482; students for the ministry, 57; benevolent contributions, $10,457; congregational contributions, $152,073. The finance committee made its report, showing a total account referred to them of $22,175, and that it had been disbursed as follows: Home missions, $9,000; foreign missions, $5,100; Hungarian missions, $301; church extension, $1,650; beneficiary education, $4,000; and minor matters, $2,234.

ROCKY RIDGE NEWS. Miss Ida Barrick, of Monocacy Farm, returned home Saturday, after an absence of seven weeks, visiting relatives in Washington, D. C., and Baltimore, very much improved in health, and reports having a delightful visit.

Mrs. P. S. Biggs and sister, Miss H. Morrison, spent several days visiting at Baltimore and Phoenix.

The display of fruits, vegetables and flowers in the Lutheran church, recently, on the occasion of the Harvest Home Service, by Rev. J. Barb, was beautiful, rich and very artistically arranged.

The Union Sabbath School, of Rocky Ridge, has purchased a new library containing four hundred volumes, in a neat new case, and a complete catalogue of the library is given each teach and scholar, with a card attached upon which the number or numbers of books selected is attached, handed to the librarian and quickly marked and returned.

The brethren of the Dunkard congregation are busily arranging for the annual love-feast, which will be held Saturday, Oct. 28th.

Communion Services will be held next Sunday morning, at 10 a. m., at Mount Taber church, this place by Rev. G. W. Whitmore. Preparatory services on Saturday previous at 2 p. m.

A BEAUTIFUL WEDDING.

The Presbyterian Church, of Emmitsburg, was the scene of a very beautiful wedding on Wednesday morning, when Miss Anna Annan, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac S. Annan, was united to Mr. George Hipple Cook, of Highland, Florida.

The church was filled with invited guests, and Dr. J. Kay Wrigley, who presided at the organ, rendered the Wedding March of Lohengrin, as the bridal party entered. The bride, who wore a dark brown traveling gown with hat and gloves to match, was preceded by the aisle by the ushers, Dr. Ira J. McCurdy, Messrs. Robert G. Cook, Jno. Rankin and Edgar L. Annan, and accompanied by two little girls, Misses Catherine Cornell, of Philadelphia, and Luella Annan, of this place, dressed in white silk and carrying flowers. The groom entering from the rear of the church, met her at the head of the aisle and taking her by the hand, led her forward towards the officiating clergyman, Rev. Wm. Simonton, D. D., who at once commenced the simple and impressive marriage ceremony, during which the "Bridal Song" from wedding music of A. Jensen, was rendered.

The reception, at the home of the bride, was attended by a large number of friends and relatives of the young couple from abroad, as well as the large circle at home, who mingled with their congratulations and good wishes, and sincere regret at the loss of one who was dear to so many hearts.

The old Annan Homestead was beautifully decorated with ferns and flowers, and the display of gifts from relatives and friends was wonderfully attractive, embracing many that were very valuable, and will recall happy memories to the bride in her far-away southern home.

Mr. Robert G. Cook, of Philadelphia, brother of the groom, was best man, and the ushers were Messrs. John Rankin, of Philadelphia, Edgar L. Annan, brother of the bride, and Dr. Ira J. McCurdy, of Frederick.

BLUE RIDGE SUMMIT ITEMS.

After an absence of many months it is gratifying to your correspondent to find upon his return to the mountains that his earlier predictions, which the Chronicle kindly printed, had been fully verified. Should this statement be doubted, a glance at Judge Stewart's recent opinion in confirming the report of the Auditor in the settlement of the estate of the late Mrs. Margaret Zielfinger will prove more than convincing. It is far more blistering, more scathing than were any of the remarks made at the late trial of Dr. Briggs, wherein, by the way, some of the very parties figured when Judge Stewart so sternly rebuked.

With the commencement of the season just closed, the summer cottagers at this point formed themselves into a Mutual Improvement Society, and have since shown much enterprise in their endeavor to beautify this charming section and make its natural attractions and advantages more generally known. A great step in this direction was taken when the erection of a museum for antiquities and curiosities was decided upon. Many rare and valuable exhibits have already been received by the society and others have been promised. An ex-army officer proposes giving the Nebraska letter tastefully framed, and the proprietor of the Park House speaks of contributing the skeleton of the celebrated Bloom-Martin mare. The building will be an imposing structure of stone and will occupy a site opposite the Monterey hotel.

Miss Lockwood, of Annapolis, who with many others has been fascinated by the beauties of "Bramblebush" (the rustic villa of Miss Findlay), is now erecting a similar building on a charming site adjacent to the Clermont House. Mr. Wills, of Fountain Dale, is the contractor. Mr. Howard's new barn, which is also the handiwork of Mr. Wills, is a model of excellence. Other improvements of this character too numerous to mention are now in operation.

But while these city visitors have been thus occupied the natives or old time residents have not been idle. In fact, if we are correctly informed, the latter class may be entitled to the distinction of having inaugurated a new industry which for uniqueness has seldom been equaled.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Martin Breighner, formerly Miss Lizzie Bloom, are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Adam Bloom, of Charming.

Mrs. Jennie Watt, of Arizona, is visiting her father, Col. Benschoff.

Mr. William Elliott McCowan Rocky Ridge has returned from a long visit to Rocky Ridge.

It is reported that much sickness in the order of an epidemic, now prevails at Highfield, Md.

That Joyful Feeling. With the exhilarating sense of renewed health and strength and internal cleanliness, which follows the use of Syrup of Figs, is unknown to the few who have not progressed beyond the old time medicines and the cheap substitutes sometimes offered but never accepted by the well informed.

Grand Army Notes. Arthur Post No. 41, G. A. R., at their last meeting passed resolutions of thanks:

- 1, To the ladies' committee of arrangements at the Camp-fire and Bean Soup, Oct. 7.
2, To the Emmitsburg Cornet Band for music.
3, To James Dixon Post 83, Fairfield, Pa., for the use of their camp equipments and to the Drum Corps for music.
4, To the citizens of the vicinity who so kindly assisted with their donations. The members of the Post are very much gratified with their success in this direction and expect to repeat it annually in the future.

A BRILLIANT SOCIAL EVENT.

On Monday evening, Oct. 23rd, Major and Mrs. O. A. Horner celebrated their Crystal Wedding, and the occasion was one that will long be remembered by all who took part in the brilliant reception which marked the fifteenth anniversary of their entrance into wedded life.

Their hospitable residence was gay with flowers, and the halls, stairway, reception and dining rooms, which were beautifully and artistically decorated with ferns and flowers, were thronged the entire evening with the friends of the happy couple, who had reached, untouched by storm or sorrow, that point in life's journey, from which they turn towards the purer and more precious, though less brilliant period, awaiting them ten years beyond.

The Major and his wife as they stood to receive the congratulations of their friends, looked as though the cares and responsibilities of fifteen years of married life, had not rested very heavily upon them, though they had brought some gray hairs to the one, and added matronly dignity to the other, and the white silk wedding gown which graced the girl bride, sat as becomingly on the wife and mother, whose children shared so happily in the festivities of the occasion.

Mrs. Horner's niece, Miss Anna Annan honored her in receiving and shared the honors as well as responsibilities of the evening.

The presents sent in commemoration of the event, by friends at a distance as well as those at home, were numerous, brilliant and valuable, making a display well worth looking at, and the refreshments so liberally and daintily served reflected the well-known hospitality of the Major and his wife.

Among those present were: Lieut. O. D. McMillan and daughter, Mr. Wm. Vanclave and sister, Miss Agnes Barr, Miss Margaret Barr, Mr. Silas Horner and daughter, of Gettysburg; Miss Bodenheimer, Hanover, Pa.; Rev. P. Rioseco, Misses Lou Reindollar, Anna Motter and Anna Galt, of Taneytown; Elw. G. Morrison and wife, R. H. Pollock, and wife, of Mechanicsville; Paxton Bigam and wife, Marshall Bigam and Charles Bigam, of Greentown, Pa.; Mrs. Catharine M. Motter, of Baltimore; Mr. George Cook, Highland, Fla.; Mrs. Barrick, Washington, D. C. The following persons from Emmitsburg and vicinity: Dr. R. L. Annan and family, Rev. Wm. Simonton and wife, and Miss Martha Simonton, Dr. Jas. W. Eichelberger and family, E. S. Taney and wife, and Misses Laura and Bessie Taney, Misses Louise and Hallie Motter, Wm. Morrison and wife and Miss Lizzie Morrison, Rev. Chas. Reinwald and wife, E. R. Zimmerman and wife and Thaddeus Zimmerman, Isaac S. Annan and family, Rev. Alfred M. Schaffner, Mrs. J. H. Cretin and Miss Joe Cretin, N. C. Stansbury and wife, Joshua S. Motter and wife, Mrs. J. C. Annan, J. A. Helman and wife, Misses Laura and Annie Smith, Prof. B. M. West, of Mt. St. Mary's College; Dr. J. Kay Wrigley, Misses Lizzie and Fannie Fraley, Mrs. Joseph T. Gelwicks, Mrs. Pemina Morrison, Mrs. G. Meade Patterson, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel N. McNair, and Misses Ethel and Pauline McNair, Mrs. Virginia Winger, Mrs. J. B. Kerschner, Miss Constance Kerschner, Richard and Bertram Kerschner, Mr. J. H. Stokes and wife, Prof. E. B. Fockler, Misses Helen, Bruce and Mary Landers, Mrs. Louisa Agnew, W. H. Troxell, W. D. Colliflower and wife, Chas. F. Rowe and wife, E. L. Rowe, Esq., Miss Belle Rowe, Dr. J. W. Eichelberger, Jr., and wife, Misses Ruth and Bessie Hoke, J. L. Hoke and wife, Samuel L. Rowe and wife, D. H. Reiman and wife, Mr. Andrew A. Annan and wife, Mrs. W. Ross White, Misses Fonce and Hattie White, Joseph K. Hays and wife, Mrs. Mary Graham, Mr. Lewis Krise and wife, Miss Fannie Krise, Miss Julia Zeck, M. F. Shuff, Basil Gilson, Miss Sheppard, Miss Mary Gamble, Mrs. A. S. Hartman, Jno. A. Horner, Robert Groff, Capt. Geo. T. Eyster, Geo. L. Gillelan and wife, Misses Maria and Belle Helman, Mrs. Chas. S. Zeck, Misses Carrie Zeck, Mary Kerschner, Miss Lucy Higbee, Lancaster, Pa.; Francis A. Maxell and wife, Mrs. Harry Beam, Miss Sue Guthrie, and Mrs. Spenseller.

FAIRFIELD ITEMS.

Chestnuts seem to be plentiful. The store keepers on selling them at five cents per quart. The mountain people bring them to Fairfield every day.

The time of year is coming when persons can look for bad roads. The storm of last Friday did considerable damage in this section, in the way of blowing down fruit and other trees.

Mr. Joseph Musselman, of this place, lost a fine Holstein cow by bloating on young clover.

Mr. C. P. Cream raised 63 bushels of clover seed this year. A good crop.

Mr. J. W. Kittinger had auction on last Saturday afternoon and evening. He is selling confectioneries and groceries of his son, who has gone to Baltimore. He will have auction on next Saturday evening at 6:30 o'clock. The store will be closed as soon as the goods are disposed of.

Hon. J. W. Neely, of this place, was in Philadelphia, this week. Perhaps he purchased a new stock of goods.

Mr. Wm. McIlhenny, candidate for sheriff, passed through Fairfield on last Saturday. Mr. Billy has many friends in Hamilton township.

Mr. Harry F. Shulley, of this place, has gone to Reading, where he will work in a hat factory.

Mr. B. C. Swope, of Fairfield, is improving his property by giving it a new coat of paint, which is quite an improvement.

Mr. Lewis Artzberger, of this place, has bought Mrs. Biesecker's house on Main street, in Fairfield.

Fishing seems to be a good business. Messrs. Will and George Reed made a good catch in Marsh Creek on Thursday last. They caught between 18 and 20, all of which measured nearly 17 inches. They were a fine lot of white suckers. Fairfield is noted for having good fishermen.

COSTIVENESS is the cause of the intolerable "bad breath" of multitudes. Dr. Henry Baxter's Mandrake Bitters remove the cause and prevent the evil, and cost only 25 cents. For sale by J. A. Elder.

SABILLASVILLE ITEMS.

Mr. James Koontz and wife, of Smithsburg, were the guests of Mr. Levi Lichtenberger, on Sunday.

The Misses Eyer, accompanied by their brother, Mr. John Eyer, of Gettysburg, who are visiting relatives in Middletown valley, were the guests of Mr. Sanford Harbaugh on Monday.

Rev. J. R. Lewis returned home from Gettysburg on Monday, at which place he had spent several days.

The U. B. Church, at this place, is undergoing repairs.

The store of T. F. Eyer was entered by thieves on last Thursday night, and merchandise to the value of about twenty-five dollars was taken. A large anchor was taken from the blacksmith shop of Mr. Jas. Poole, which was used to bore nearly through the panel of the door, after which the doors were burst in and merchandise taken to the amount stated above, the robbers escaping without being seen. It is supposed to have been done by tramps.

Quarterly Conference was held in the U. B. church on last Saturday, and communion on Sunday. Rev. Mr. Barger, of Hagerston, and Rev. W. L. Martin, of Mechanicstown, officiated.

The cornerstone of the new Lutheran church known as St. Mark's Evan. Lutheran church, was laid on Sunday at 2:30 o'clock. Rev. J. H. Barb, of Mechanicstown, officiated.

Mr. L. K. Morrison and wife, of Waynesboro, recently spent several days with relatives at this place.

When Baby was sick, we cried for Castoria.

When she became a Child, she cried for Castoria.

When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria.

When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.

MT. ST. MARY'S COLLEGE NEWS.

The students have just had their annual retreat. It was conducted by Rev. Fagan, S. J., who began Wednesday evening with an instruction and explanation of the word retreat taken in a religious sense, and the duties imposed on a person desirous of making a good retreat. On Thursday, Friday and Saturday there were regular instructions, meditations, prayers and visits to the Blessed Sacrament. Rev. Father Fagan, S. J., gave the students many useful instructions. On Sunday morning all of the students went to Holy Communion, and thus complied with all the duties required to make a good retreat.

On Thursday evening the Right Rev. Bishop O'Sullivan, of Mobile, Ala., came to the College and gave Holy Orders on Friday, Saturday and Sunday mornings. Nine seminarians received minor orders, and four Deacons and Sub-Deacons. Those who received Deaconship and Sub-Deaconship were Rev. Mr. F. X. Biehoff, Rev. Mr. P. A. Ooad, Rev. Mr. W. E. Ryan, Rev. P. J. Walsh.

Billiard Association. The members of the billiard Association held a meeting on Monday afternoon and elected the following officers: M. J. Perault, president; C. J. Manley, vice-president; John Cashman, Secretary; Denis Behen, Treasurer. Directors: L. Guilloy, L. Curley, J. Pendergast, M. Doorden, Frank Guilfoyle, P. McGinnis, J. Connolly, D. J. Murphy and A. Malone. President Perault intends to make billiards and pool an interesting sport this winter. There will be several match games and tournaments.

Foot Ball Game. On Wednesday afternoon, the second and third team played a game of foot ball consisting of two thirty minute halves. The second team was taken by surprise and could not score as easily as they thought. The third team was composed mostly of "green men" who depended mostly on their strength. The second team scored two touch downs in the first half and Connolly kicked one goal. In the second half they could do nothing with the third team, who kept them in their own territory all of the time, and were within one foot of scoring when time was called. Manly, Lavin, Walsh and Malone did good work for the second team, while J. J. O'Brien, A. Vilsack, Kenna and Lenahan distinguished themselves for the third team. The first team have resumed practice, and are training hard for their game with the Baltimore City College team on November 4th.

Visitors. Right Rev. Bishop O'Sullivan, Mobile, Ala.; Rev. James P. Lagan, S. J., Philadelphia, Pa.; Rev. Geo. L. Ott, Chestertown, Md.; Miss Kate Kierney, Wilmington, Del.; Mrs. L. B. McCabe, Baltimore, Md.; Miss Blanche Candon, Knoxville, Tenn.

PERSONALS. Mr. William N. Gilson has gone to the World's Fair.

Rev. A. M. Schaffner was at Walkersville this week.

Mr. Luther Zimmerman has returned home from Chicago.

Messrs. Francis P. Topper and Francis M. Hoke spent Sunday in Waynesboro.

Miss Margaret Barr, of near Gettysburg, was the guest of Mrs. Andrew A. Annan, this week.

Rev. I. M. Motter, of Adamstown, spent a few days with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Motter, in this place.

Mrs. C. M. Motter, of Baltimore, spent a few days in town this week, being the guest of Misses Louise and Hallie Motter.

Mr. O. J. Gaver, democratic candidate for sheriff of Frederick county, was in town on Thursday, looking after his political interests.

Miss Byrde Elder and brother, who have been visiting at Mr. W. Ross White's, near town, have returned to their home in Peoria, Ill.

THE CHANTANQUAS.

The Chantanooga society met at the home of Mr. E. R. Zimmerman, on last Friday evening every member being present. After roll-call, which was responded to by each member giving a quotation, the study of the lesson was commenced, and for two hours there was quite a spirited discussion in which all the members took part. Judging from the experience of the first meeting, the society will be a success the coming winter. Every member seems determined to take part in the discussions, and by so doing the chief points of the lessons will be brought out. The reading for the first part of the year, which includes Roman History and Outlines of Economics, is very interesting, and by the time they are finished, if well studied the members of the society will know more about the people who once ruled the whole world than they did before. The meeting adjourned to meet on Friday evening at 8 o'clock, at the home of the Misses Toke.

THE CARDINAL'S JUBILEE.

DISTINGUISHED PRELATES ASSEMBLED IN HONOR OF HIS EMINENCE.

The Pope Sends a Loving Message and a Precious Gift.

An ideal autumn day greeted His Eminence Cardinal Gibbons upon the celebration of the silver jubilee of his episcopal consecration. It was a perfect day, one of the golden October days, whose brilliant sun and bracing air mingle in a delightful temperature. The people knew that the pre-arranged programme would be carried out, and long before the hour appointed for the ceremonies, the streets in the vicinity of the Cathedral began to be crowded.

The scene along the line of the procession was an animated one. Not a few houses in the vicinity were tastefully decorated.

But the main decorations of the day were on the Cardinal's residence. Its front was almost hidden by masses of bunting and flags, artistically hung and arranged. Over the main entrance were the coats-of-arms of North Carolina and of Virginia, marking the States over which Cardinal Gibbons has presided as Bishop. These coats-of-arms were almost hidden in masses of oriole bunting. In the centre was a rich cluster of bunting which served as a background to the national flag, which floated proudly over the crowds that gathered beneath to admire the decorations and view the parade.

Directly opposite the Cardinal's residence is the home of the Catholic Club. The large front of this building was tastefully decorated with American flags and bunting, and its windows were thronged with spectators.

Fully two hours before the service the streets in the vicinity of the Cathedral were crowded with persons of all ages and conditions who were eager to obtain a view of the imposing procession as it wended its way through the streets to the stately Cathedral.

The clergy and seminarians who were to participate in the procession assembled at Calvert Hall, which had been selected as their headquarters.

The main procession moved north from Calvert Hall on Cathedral street past the front of the Cathedral.

During the mass Rev. Francis Z. Hooker, the messenger of the Holy Father to the Jubilee, presented the gift of the Pope to the Cardinal. He made an address to the Cardinal, after which he read the Pope's letter and presented the gift to the Cardinal.

"To Our Beloved Son, James Cardinal Gibbons, Archbishop of Baltimore.

"Health and Apostolic Benediction.

"In the month of October next occurs the auspicious day on which five-and-twenty years ago you were raised to the episcopal dignity. We, therefore, are prompted, both by your devoted attachment to us and by our affectionate regard for you, to express the feelings of heartfelt congratulation wherewith we welcome this occasion that is no less joyous for us than it is for you.

"And while we render thanks to Almighty God, who has hitherto blessed you in His holy keeping, we humbly beseech Him in His goodness to grant you the privilege which He has this year mercifully vouchsafed to us—of celebrating the golden jubilee of our episcopate.

"In the meantime we send you a memorial of this gracious anniversary, intending it likewise as a token of our earnest good-will toward you.

"We moreover invoke upon you every blessing for your happiness and welfare, and lovingly impart to you, your clergy and the faithful entrusted to your watchful care our apostolic benediction.

"Given at St. Peter's, Rome, the thirtieth day of August, 1893, in the sixteenth year of our pontificate.

"LEO XIII, Pop."

The gift itself was contained in a white velvet box, six by five inches, and two inches deep, bearing on its top the papal arms in gold and enamel. The present is a massive jewel of gold and precious stones. The centre is a beautiful piece of sardonyx in three colors, a deep red, an ash gray and pure white. On this is a profile miniature of the great bronze statue of St. Peter at St. Peter's Cathedral, in Rome. The stone is a slight oblong, being about an inch and a half long by an inch and a quarter wide. St. Peter is represented as seated upon a throne, in the act of blessing the whole world, the throne being shown in the white layer, while the figure of the Saint himself is cut out of the gray layer, which is about three-sixteenths of an inch thick. The red forms the background, and upon this in inlaid work, is a golden halo around the Saint's head. Around the stone is a wide setting of gold, wrought in the most delicate filigree and studded with sixteen small emeralds. Along the edge of the jewel eight pearls are set. The reverse side is perfectly plain, a piece of glass, backed by a bit of scarlet ribbon, being behind the figure in sardonyx. The jewel hangs from a golden shield of the size of a silver quarter, and formed of the papal coat-of-arms.

Dinner was afterwards served in the refectory of the Seminary and fully three-hundred were seated at the tables.

The Cardinal was the first speaker and made the address of welcome.

Archbishop Satolli followed, speaking in Latin. After conveying to Cardinal Gibbons an eulogy of the latter's life directly from the Pope, Archbishop Satolli cited some personal reminiscences in the year of the Vatican council, when the Cardinal was in Perugia, of which Pope Leo was at that time the Cardinal. "On a certain day," said the Archbishop,

"in company with other Parisian priests I visited Rome. As I was standing in St. Peter's with my companions drew my attention to a Bishop who was approaching. 'That prelate is an American,' said my friend. 'He is the youngest member of the hierarchy in the world.' He referred to Bishop Gibbons, now the Cardinal. I expressed my astonishment that one so young should be made a bishop, and my companion replied: 'In America they always make Bishops of men who are capable of doing great things.'

"Later, when I was professor of dogmatic theology at the College of the Propaganda, I had occasion once more of meeting the same Bishop Gibbons, who at that time, was Archbishop of Baltimore. It was at a public disputation held by my students in honor of the American prelates who were visiting Rome to arrange for the Third Plenary Council. Finally, I have the pleasure of visiting here, on this glorious occasion, the same man whom I first met as a youthful prelate in St. Peter's, at Rome and later in the halls of the Propaganda, celebrating to-day his silver jubilee, after a long period of activity and most useful labors."

Archbishop Kain, of St. Louis, responded to the toast, "The See of Baltimore." On the conclusion of Archbishop Kain's address, a chorus of the priests sang, "Maryland, My Maryland." Rev. Father Bart, rendering the accompaniment on the organ. Father Donahue, rector of the Cathedral, made the announcement that Mr. Moriarty would deliver the message to the Catholics of America which the Holy Father, Leo XIII, had sent in the photograph.

The interest displayed was real. The students of the Seminary were particularly anxious to hear the Pope's voice. But, finally, when the instrument was set in operation, only those within a few feet of the cone could distinguish the words. The following is a translation, which was read by Father McCallan, S. S.:

From the city of Rome, Leo XIII, sends to the people of America cordial and best wishes. Most heartily do we congratulate you, so splendidly flourishing in civilization, wealth and the glory of manifold industry. We take part in your joy, and in the honors fittingly rendered to that immortal man, Columbus, the Italian. We wish to all classes among you, through the blessing of Heaven copious increase of happiness and peace.

The children of the Catholic Church we embrace with special affection, and we bestow on them the Apostolic Benediction.

Archbishop Ryan responded to the toast, "Our Country."

In the evening the Cathedral was again crowded to its greatest capacity. Sch. Weppers was sung by Archbishop Redwood of New Zealand, as celebrant, at which Very Rev. Dr. Edward P. Allen, president of Mt. St. Mary's College assisted as Sub-conductor.

THE RIGHTS OF PARENTS AND CHILDREN.

Mothers and Fathers, and the Part They Play in Training Their Offspring.

There is little doubt that the rights of the parent to infringe occasionally on the rights of the child, and that, in the absence of any standard, the child becomes a creature of circumstance. He can be fed unwholesomely, kept up late at night, dressed like Lord Fauntleroy, dosed with pernicious drugs, and humored into selfish petulance at the discretion of his mother. Worse still, he can be suffered to waste away in fever pain and die, because his parents chafe to be fanatics who reject the aid of medicine to trust exclusively in prayer.

But granting all this, fathers and mothers have till their places in the world, and until we can fill these places with something better, it is worth while to call attention now and then to the useful part they play. It is perhaps a significant fact that mothers, simply because they are mothers, succeed better, as a rule, in bringing up their children than other women, equally loving and sensitive, who are compelled to assume their duties. That old-fashioned plea "I know what is best for my child" may be derided as a relic of darkness; but there is an illuminating background to it. I am not even sure that parents stand in absolute need of all the good advice they receive. I am quite sure that many trifles are not worth the serious counsels expended upon them. Reading or telling a story for instance, has become as grave a matter as choosing a laureate, and many a mother must stand aghast at the conflicting admonitions bestowed upon her. Read fairy tales. Don't read fairy tales. Read about elves. Don't read about orges. Read of heroic deeds. Don't read of bloody battles. Avoid too much instruction. Be as subtly as instructive as you can. Make your stories long. Make your stories short. Work the moral in. Leave the moral out. Try and please the older children. Try and charm the younger ones. Study the tastes of boys. Follow the fancies of girls. By degrees the harassed parent who endeavors to obey these instructions will cease telling stories at all, confident that the task, which once seemed so simple and easy, must lie far beyond her limited intelligence.—AGNES REVELLER, in NORTH AMERICAN REVIEW for August.

There is one way of telling the speed of a railway train which old travelers claim as almost infallible. Every time the car passes over a joint in the track there is a distinct click; count the number of these clicks in twenty seconds, and it is said you have the number of miles the train is going per hour, as the length of the rail is uniform.

In character, in manner, in style, in all things, the supreme excellence is simplicity.—Longfellow.

COURTSHIP IN NATURE.

Birds and Insects Do Their Best When Love Making.

The wooing of birds is most refined and graceful. Love tenses their respect and pipers, and they seek to captivate their mates by their sweetest notes and most varied warblings.

The wood-pigeon charms his lady love by a series of aerial evolutions and a curious flapping of his strong wing feathers, puffing his breast, and tenderly cooing.

At mating time, the plumage of the male birds is more handsome than at any other period—indeed, some birds assume different colors in the spring.

Yellow hammers charm their mates by displaying their tail feathers in the form of a fan; starlings chatter in the sunshine to show the metallic beauty of their breast feathers, and swallows double and circle in graceful flight before their lady-loves.

Bright shells, glasses, flowers, leathers and glasses are laid by the bower-bird at the entrance of his partner's retreat; and tiny humming-birds woo most assiduously, showing off their lovely hues and engaging in fierce combat with a possible rival; even bringing nectar from choice flowers for the delectation of their fairly and most useful labors."

Her birds exhibit all the vagaries of their sex, and pretend to be indifferent to the exertions of their admirers."

Frogs have an original way of love-making, and as soon as evening shades fall, commence to croak loudly to their mates, sometimes great numbers of them combining in one unamused chorus.

Courting among insects is often a very elaborate affair. A male spider will approach a female and amuse her for some time with his antics. It is said that he twirls around and around, crosses his legs, beats his body, executes a sort of a mazy dance to excite her admiration.

She is a very vicious lady and not always pleased with his love-making, sometimes he finds himself obliged to ward her off, for she has a painful mode of showing her displeasure, and if she entirely disapproves of his intentions, will fall upon him and rend him to pieces.

One species of spider is said to have a novel way of making love, the sexes communicating by means of strands of web, stretching from one retreat to the other—a sort of telephone, so to speak.

Glow worms, according to some naturalists use their luminescence as love signals, the females of one species seat themselves among the grass, while the males, attracted by the light, dance attendance round them.

Concerning fishes, the sticklebacks occasionally resort to harsh treatment, attacking the females with open mouths and erected spines. As husbands their behavior is certainly eccentric, for after the female has deposited her eggs within the nest that he has prepared for her, her lord and master drives her away, and proceeds to hatch them himself.

THE LITTLE WHITE CLOUD.

One sunny day a little Cloud went sailing through the sky. "O, how lovely it is up here!" she said.

Way off on the wind came another Cloud, not so soft and fleecy, but cross-looking and dark. "Guess I'll chase that little white Cloud and spoil her fun," said he cross Cloud.

"O, dear!" said the little white Cloud, as she felt a shock all through her. Then she looked up and saw the cross Cloud coming right after her. She began to cry, and soon fell away in drops. A thirsty Rose looked up and caught them right in her beautiful heart.

"You dear rain drops!" said the Rose; and they nestled down deeper in her leaves, and felt comforted.

Then the Rose raised her head and said, "I would have died if you had not come."

So then the raindrops said, "It is better to be here comforting the poor Rose than sailing up there with nothing to do." And they looked up and caught a sunbeam, and sparkled so brightly that little rainbows shone all through them, and the Rose said, "I was never so beautiful before!"

THE SHAPES OF CLOUDS.

It will soon strike any one who notices weather phenomena ever so casually that clouds have a tendency to assume one of two well known forms or shapes, either a heapy or globular form or that of thin sheets or layers. Clouds in the first form are known as cumulous (cumulous, a heap) clouds. In the second as stratus (stratus, a layer) clouds. Once it is clearly understood that all clouds be divided into these two types as a starting point and belong to one or other of these types, the question of a minute subdivision becomes, comparatively speaking, easy, suggests a writer in Science, who also gives the following definition of a cloud:

"A cloud is vapor which has ascended or descended in the atmosphere from a position having a temperature or density greater than the portion of the atmosphere it ascends or descends to, which is then unable to retain it in its invisible form. According to the physical state of the position it is attracted to, so will be the form it will assume on becoming condensed." It will be seen from this that the shape of a cloud is more or less determined by its physical surroundings, and consequently it affords a valuable index not only to the state of the immediately surrounding atmosphere, but also to the weather we may expect, and this frequently some time before any instrumental warning are indicated.

WON THE WORLD'S FAIR GOLD MEDAL.

A Masterpiece of German Church Art Industry in Chicago.

Many of the visitors to the World's Fair were undoubtedly attracted by the beauty of the two immense stained glass windows, one representing "The Marriage at Cana," the other "The Death of St. Louis," which "The Royal Bavarian Art Institute, F. X. Zettler, Munich, is exhibiting at the World's Fair, Chicago. The former is truly a masterpiece of art. The undertaking was a great artistic venture, especially the carrying it out on the strict lines of the old masters of glass painting, and the window forms such a complete whole that the mosaic character of the work is scarcely perceptible. One would think it came out of a single mould. Before the window crossed the Atlantic it was on public exhibition in the Exposition Hall of the Institute. In the foreground of the picture is a servant maid ascending a beautiful staircase, and the many thousand visitors who saw it could hardly believe that her glittering blue-colored silk vesture consisted exclusively of pieces of glass of various tints, without a touch of a brush. The Saviour's cloak too, is composed of different hues of blue glass. The color gradient is reproduced in really a wonderful manner by leaded pieces of glass of different tints, each separate piece fitting perfectly into the design; only a light shading has been added.

All this is executed in a masterly manner, says the Leipzig Gertung, with an enrapturing beauty of color and wonderful fidelity to life. The Royal Bavarian Art Institute can truly be proud of this masterpiece, which has called forth most unequivocal praise at the Chicago Exposition. It is one of the chief adornments of the German section Bavaria has added another well-merited laurel to her brow in this unsurpassed specimen of glass-painting.

For these two masterpieces, the gold medal and diploma was awarded to the Royal Bavarian Art Institute, F. X. Zettler, Munich, whose sole agents for the United States are Benziger Bros., New York, Cincinnati and Chicago.

CARE OF THE SKIN.

How to Treat It at this Season of the Year.

The skin is more likely to become tanned, freckled or bronzed at the seaside than in inland places. Any one suffering from serious skin affections should avoid the seaside, as the salt air has an exceedingly irritating effect upon the cuticle when in an unhealthy condition.

An excellent means of preventing sunburn is to wash the face every day previous to going out with a solution made by dissolving ten grains of borax and one drachm of alum in a pint of water. Washing the face with buttermilk several times a day is also a good method of preventing sunburn. The following oil-fashioned decoction is not only generally successful in keeping away sunburn, but is one of the best, though simplest, cosmetics known for keeping the skin fair and clear: Take a handful of freshly plucked parsley and put it in a jar which has a lid; pour upon it a pint or more of boiling water; shut down the lid and allow the decoction to become perfectly cold. Then bathe the face, neck and arms with this. This simple and inexpensive lotion is within the reach of all. Another simple lotion is composed of equal parts of milk or buttermilk and rose or elder-flower water in which horse-radish has been steeped. This should be applied to the face.

When the skin has become burned or scorched by the sun the following wash will generally be found effective: Alum, one ounce; lemon juice, strained, two table-spoonsful; elder-flower water, one pint. Apply several times a day.

To Fit a Sewing Room.

A most desirable adjunct to a house where much sewing is done is a room set apart exclusively for a sewing room. It need not be large, and it should not be carpeted or contain more than the necessary furniture, but the convenience of such a room, where one may be sure of finding needles and thread, pieces of goods, braid and all the accessories of dressmaking and repairing, can hardly be overestimated. The floor should be stained and varnished, so that its daily brushing up will be easy to do. The sewing machine should be placed in a strong light by a window; from hooks on the wall should depend all the family piece bags, the pieces carefully sorted. Shelves should be put up to hold boxes of buttons, trimming, patterns, etc.

A cutting table or lapboard is, of course, indispensable, as is a low rocking chair without arms. A long mirror, in which the full length of one's figure may be seen, is the greatest possible convenience, and if cutting and fitting are accomplished without the aid of a professional dressmaker, a dress form saves the time and temper of some member of the family who must otherwise serve as a dummy.

Following a Good Example.

Bennie's father had been telling him the story of George Washington and the cherry tree, and Bennie was much impressed.

A few days later Bennie came into his father's presence eating a cookie. Said his father, "Who gave you that cookie, my boy?"

"I took it myself," replied Bennie, taking another bite.

"Took it yourself! Why, didn't I tell you never to help yourself to cookies?"

"Why, father, I thought you'd rather lose a thousand cookies than for me to tell a lie!"

SELECTED RECEIPTS.

SODA BISCUIT.

One quart of sifted flour, one teaspoonful of salt, one-half pint of milk, one large spoonful of lard, two heaping teaspoonfuls of baking powder or a half-spoonful of soda and one teaspoonful of cream of tartar. Put the baking powder, or cream of tartar and soda, and salt into the flour, and sift it again. Then rub into this the lard. Now see that the oven is very hot, 400 degrees Fahrenheit. Grease the pans and get the cutter and rolling pin. Have everything ready before you put in the milk, then add the milk and knead up quickly. Roll out on the board one inch thick; cut with a small round cutter, put quickly into the pans and then into the oven. Bake twenty minutes. Remember to have them a success handle as little and make as rapidly as possible.

FRIED CHICKEN.

Clean and cut the chicken the same as for a fricassee. Dredge each piece thickly with salt, pepper and flour. Put three table-spoonsful of oil or lard in a frying-pan; and when very hot, put in the chicken, and fry slowly until it is done. If young, (as it should be) it will fry in three-quarters of an hour. Watch it carefully that it may not burn. When done arrange the pieces on a hot dish. Pour all the fat, but about one table-spoonful, from the frying-pan; then add a table-spoonful of flour, mix and add a half-pint of milk or cream stir, season with salt and pepper, and pour over the chicken.

DUTCHED LETTUCE.

Wash carefully two or three heads of lettuce, separate the leaves and tear each leaf in two or three pieces. Cut a quarter pound of ham or bacon into dice, and fry until brown; while hot add two table-spoonsful of vinegar. Beat one egg until light, add to it two table-spoonsful of sour cream then add it to the ham stir over the fire one minute until it thickens, and pour boiling hot over the lettuce; mix carefully with a fork, and serve immediately.

RAGOUT OF VEAL.

For this the remains of a cold fried and an or roast may be used, cut into pieces about one inch square. To every pint of these squares allow one-half pint of stock, one table-spoonful of butter, one table-spoonful of Worcestershire sauce, one table-spoonful of mushroom cat-soup, two table-spoonsful of sherry, one table-spoonful onion juice, one blade of mace, six mushrooms, chopped fine.
