Castoria is Dr. Samuel Pitcher's prescription for Infants and Children. It contains neither Opium, Morphine nor other Narcotic substance. It is a harmless substitute for Paregoric, Drops, Soothing Syrups, and Castor Oil. It is Pleasant. Its guarantee is thirty years' use by Millions of Mothers. Castoria destroys Worms and allays feverishness. Castoria prevents vomiting Sour Curd, cures Diarrhea and Wind Colic. Castoria relieves teething troubles, cures constipation and flatulency. Castoria assimilates the food, regulates the stomach and bowels, giving healthy and natural sleep. Castoria is the Children's Panacea-the Mother's Friend.

Castoria.

"Castoria is an excellent medicine for children. Mothers have repeatedly told me of its good effect upon their children."

Da. G. C. Osgood, Lowell, Mass.

"Castoria is the best remedy for children of which I am acquainted. I hope the day is not far distant when mothers will consider the real interest of their children, and use Castoria instead of the various quack nostrums which are destroying their loved ones, by forcing opium, morphine, soothing syrup and other hurtful agents down their throats, thereby sending them to premature graves.'

DR. J. F. KINCHELOE,

Castoria.

"Custoria is so well adapted to children that I recommend it as superior to any prescription known to me."

Surely never was there more gallant skipper than Captain William Innes of the rakish freighter British Prince, and never hardier boatswain than Charles L. Lastadius. The skipper is from Newcastle-on-Tyne and has followed the sea 33 years, or since he was 16 years old. He has a fine brown beard, and the resonant voice that comes through it might be heard above the strongest gale that ever thrummed on the British Prince's rigging. The boatswain is a young of their arrival. Kadour looked at them Swede, who has suffered shipwreck more than once. But the captain and all the ship's company never thought of him as

The British Prince made good weather 460 miles east of Sandy Hook. A gale came howling out of the southwest, combing up seas that, in the picturesque "granite cliffs." Whosoever will gather the glittering had been striking out for the ship, but when I saw her going ahead I stopped all effort to save myself. But it takes a long time to stop and reverse engines, and pretty soon I saw the ship backing toward me.

"That made my heart bound, and I yelled with all my might and tried to make some headway against the seas, which sometimes turned me over and over. I was afraid that the ship would back against me, and that I would be sucked under by her propeller and drowned or killed by the blades. I saw the propeller whirling in the air whenever the ship went down into the trough always dancing like light in the blue depths of water drops. Little by little, however, the charm of blue eyes wears off; that tender charm intermingled in his mind with the first experiences of convalescence, its first walks out of doors and with the climate of France, so soft and temperate. Kadour has finally forgotten Katel. In the whole Chelif valley nothing is talked of but his approaching marriage with Yamina, the daughter of the aga of Dzen-

One morning a long line of mules could be seen on the road leading to the town. It is Kadour-ben-Cherifa, who is going with his father to select the wedding gifts. The whole day is spent in the bazaars examining burnooses all shot with silver, rich carpets from Smyrna, amber necklaces and eardrops, and as he handles all these pretty jewels, these drifts of silk and shimmering stuffs, Kadour thinks only of Yamina. The orient has completely reconquered him, but more from the force of habit and the influence of the place and surrounding objects than by any bond of the heart. At the close of the day the mules, drawn up in line, laden with closely packed hampers of finery, were descend ing one of the outer streets of the town when on approaching the Arabian office they were stopped by a crowd assembled in the street. It was a band of emigrants that had just arrived. As nothing had been made ready to receive them, the poor things had come to the office to protest and question. The more disheartened remained seated on their boxes, wearied from the journey, annoyed by the curiosity of the crowd, and over all these exiled ones, like an additional touch of sadness, shone the rays of the setting sun. Night was coming on to make still more wretched for them the mystery of this unknown land and the discomfiture mechanically. But all at once a deep emotion arose in his heart. A NOVEL RACING MATCH. Tobogganing Down a Run on Rocking

Horses to Decide a Wager. There is no knowing what an Englishman will not do to decide a bet. Men have jumped across dining tables, mounted upon untractable steeds-yea, and even kissed their own mothers-inlaw-in order to settle a wager. In fine. it ought to be an established maxim among us by this time that, given a certain number of impossibilities and an equal number of young Englishmen. those impossibilities will not dong remain such, provided they be made the subjects of bets. One of those incidents which go a long way toward justifying the reputation which as a nation of madmen we have earned among foreigners occurred at St. Moritz when, "in order to settle a bet," Lord William Manners and the Hon. H. Gibson agreed to go down the Willage "run" mounted on rocking horses in place of ordinary toboggans. A feature of the race was that both competitors were "attired in full hunting kit," and as elaborate preparations had been made for the contest and rumor of the affair had been industriously noised abroad the crowd which had assembled to witness it was both large and distinguished. The start was fixed for 12 o'clock, and shortly before that hour the shouts of the spectators announced that the horses were off. Unlike the custom in toboggan races, both started at the same time. In the first course Lord William Manners led as far as a centain angle of the "run" called Casper's Corners, from the fact that a hotel of that name is situated close by, but "taking it rather high Mr. Gibson passed cleverly on the inside, which he maintained to the finish," Lord William being summarily dismissed from his fractious steed's back some distance to the bad from the winning post. In the second course Lord William Manners again had the advantage as far as Casper's Corners, where Mr. Gibson again tried to pass him on the inside, but being jockeyed by his opponent his horse swung round and proceeded down the run tail foremost, but leading. The merriment of the spectators at this stage of the proceedings may be more easily imagined than described, nor did it abate in the least when Mr. Gibson, dismounting, seized it unceremoniously by the nose and turned it into the way it should go. Meanwhile Lord William Manners had suffered disappointment a second time, for in attempting to "take"-to nse a true hunting term-a paticularly vedere Corner his horse refused to respond to its rider's exertions to get at successfully over the obstacle, and horse braids and the smile of Katel. THE FIRST DAILY PAPER ESTABLISH-ED IN LEADVILLE.

Its Pathway Was Rough and Stony-Twenty Hours' Work a Day For Editor and Manager-The Job Office Was a Veritable Bonanza-Prices No Object.

In 1878 Leadville had no newspaper worthy the name, and people were gathering there by the thousands. At that time I was the foreman of the Denver Tribune, and in looking the situation over I became, in common with scores of others, possessed of a desire to fill one of the long felt wants of the new community. After talking it over with a couple of fellow printers and figuring up the cost we agreed on a local habitation and a name.

There was no such thing as a house to be had in Leadville at that time. I couldn't even find a room. Finally I secured a lot from a squatter out on Harrison avenue. It was way off in the sagebrush, and I selected it because it was cheap. After a great deal of difficulty and using what influence I could with the sawmills I got together lumber enough to build a one room house to accommodate the paper. It was almost impossible to get carpenters or people who would do any kind of labor. Everybody was in pursuit of carbonates.

However, after something of a struggle the house was put up, and I was notified of the shipment of the office appurtenances from the St. Louis type foundry. Being a practical printer and aware of our somewhat straitened financial condition, the purchasing partner had bought just enough of the various kinds of material to get out a small daily, which we called The Evening Chronicle.

One partner was made business manager, a second took the mechanical department, while I was selected to do the editing. I was managing editor, city editor, telegraph editor, set up a little type, made up forms and attended to a few other trifles. All of us worked together almost unceasingly day and

It was not "How much does it cost?" in Leadville at that time, but "How soon can I have it?" We knew how to give it, and we learned how to charge. Everybody else was doing the same thing, each in his own line of business. Our stock of job papers was limited, and correspondingly short counts were given to customers. The editor and business manager assisted with the job work at night, ran presses, sawed wood and kept up fires. As a sample of charges I will tell you of one order we

We had no particular hours of labor, but were generally on our feet from 13 to 20 hours out of the 24. After a day's work of this kind we were just shutting down one night when a gentleman came immediately. He was running some sort of a game at Tom Kemp's theater, and this game required cards with figures, one figure to a card. He said he didn't care what they cost so he had them by 9 o'clock. It was then about 7. and we accommodated him. He was waiting when the messenger, who was armed with the bill, arrived.

"Have you got them?" he said, "How much are they?"

The messenger was afraid the man would fall down if he pronounced the amount, so he handed over the bill. The sporting man pulled from his pockets a wad of greenbacks and handed over two tens and a five-$25 for 25 cards. As the messenger started to go away the 'Hold on. Now, look here, I'm a gambler-that's the way I make my living-but isn't this bill just a little high?'

You needed to know something about running a newspaper in those days. There was no lack of material, but it was not all easy sailing in a mixed crowd aggregating some 40,000 people from all parts of the world and all classes of society. There was not what could be called a large proportion of evangelists in the crowd either.

One day we were notified that we would have to move. In fact, a force of men presented themselves and declared their willingness and intention to assist us in the speedy transfer of our goods and chattels to green fields and pastures new. They didn't have furniture vans, but they had some very ugly looking guns sticking out of their pockets. We didn't see it that way, so Davis slipped out and got two or three rifles and as many more revolvers and came back.

We closed the doors and announced our intention of remaining where we were. This kind of thing was repeated several times, but finally qualt was 1estored, our title resting in our firearms. I had paid $100 for that lot, and it was now worth $10,000; hence the conten-

While Leadville at that time was pretty rough, with plenty of shooting and killing, there has never been a more generous, open hearted, honest and faithful class of people than these miners. MORPHINE'S NEW ANTIDOTE.

Dr. Moor Tells How He Made the Discovery and of His Experiments.

Dr. William Moor, whose discovery of permanganate of potassium as an antidote for morphine poisoning has made him famous, has written a paper upon the subject which has been published in a well known medical periodical. In this he treats the subject almost altogether, as might be expected, in a technical manner. He tells, however, of the investigations that led to his discovery in the following words:

"After some trials I found that the best way of administering it was to have it made up in pills with cacao butter and talcum of kaolin, and to direct the patient to drink very slowly a glassful of water just one minute after taking the pill, for the latter begins to disintegrate in one minute at the temperature of the body. By using this method I successfully combated the extremely disagreeable odor in a case of cancer of the stomach.

"About that time I treated a well known actor suffering from acute pleurisy. This gentleman was addicted to morphine, and as I had taken much interest in him I earnestly sought the best plan to break his habit. The idea occurred to me that perhaps permanganate of potash might decompose morphine, the latter being an organic substance, and that by making use of a certain method I could eventually break his habit without restricting him from taking his morphine. My patient, however, started on a professional tour just when I began to put my idea to a test. This circumstance did not prevent me from continuing my researches as to the effect of permanganate of potassium on morphine, and today I am permitted to offer to the profession what I consider to be the antidote 'par excellence' for morphine.

Then considering in detail the peculiar effects of the antidote when differently administered Dr. Moor continues

'Having gained the knowledge of these facts, it is not surprising that I could swallow with impunity toxic doses of sulphate of morphine tollowed in a few moments by a corresponding amount of the chemical body which I was justified to consider the antidote in and said he wanted 25 cards printed par excellence for morphine. Thus on ner, at a time when the stomach must have contained a great amount of soluble peptones and other organic matter, I took two grains of the sulphate of morphine in about half of an ounce of water, followed in one minute by three grains of its antidote-for safety's sake one grain more than necessary-dissolved in four ounces of water. In another instance three hours after a light supper I took in the presence of several colleagues belonging to the staff of the West Side German clinic of this city three grains of the sulphate of morphine, followed in about 30 seconds by four grains of permanganate of potassium, both in aqueous solution. I was perfectly confident that the antidote po sessed such a wonderful infinity for the morphine that it would select it instan- poker chips. taneously from among the contents of the stomach.

Permanganate of potassium as well as the salts of manganese are comparatively harmless, even if given in large

Dr. Moor continues: "In cases of poisoning by the alkaloid itself or by tincture of opium (laudanum), also by opium, it is advisable to acidulate the antidotal solution with diluted sulphuric acid, or in the absence of this with some white vinegar-not red vinegar-by which the insoluble morphia will be at once converted into the soluble sulphate of acetate. I have strong reason to believe that the administration of permanganate will be of beneficial effect even after absorption of the morphine has taken place."

Ages of Stone and of Bronze.

The transition from the stone age to the bronze age can be read in the disclosures of the lake dwellers of Switzerland. This wonderful people lived through the stone age and for long ages continued on until they lapped over into the bronze age. Some of their settlements disclose only stone implements, while others of a later date show the bronze chisel, the bronze winged hatchet, the bronze knife, the hexagonal hammer, the tanged knife of ornamental design, the socket knife and the bronze sickle. They show also the bronze fishbook, barbed and in exact similitude of our present device. The ornamental batpin as now used, together with other articles of utility and ornamentation, is plentiful. The stone mold for casting the copper or bronze batchet is of exceedingly ancient date, but probably the use of sand was far more common, and bence we have less traces of that method. - Hardware.

Away goes the wagon, with the balloon hanging on to its tail, while the even passing the infantry, and makes for the particular spot at which it has been determined to commence balloon operations, which is usually on the top of a

An ascent is an easy enough matter and is soon accomplished. The balloon is securely fixed to the end of the wire rope, and the two men who are to ascend take their places. At the word of command the men who have been holding down the car let go, and up shoots the balloon, unwinding the rope as it rises and allowed sometimes to ascend to a height of 1,000 feet. And suppose the officer receives instructions to move the position of the balloon, is it necessary to haul it down? Not a bit of it. A man placed at the end of the vagon who carefully guides the connecting rope so that it cannot get entangled or run risk of being cut, and away goes the wagon, sometimes at a trot across fields and up and down hill, until the balloon itself is a long distance away from its original station. Next, suppose that it is necessary to lower the balloon. Is it needful to wind in all the wire rope that has been paid out from the reels? No such thing. The balloon is brought to earth in a much more expeditious manner. A long, stout pole, in the middle of which is a pulley wheel, is laid across dral, the most important of the Catholic the rope. Half a dozen men seize the pole and run it along the rope, and their weight soon brings the balloon down to the ground. Passengers can then be exchanged, or any other operation can be carried on, and then the men run the pole back, and up shoots the balloon again many hundreds of feet into the air, without having been away from its exalted position more than a few minutes. But it is not necessary to lower the balloon in this or any other way whenever it is required that messages should be exchanged between those below and those above. There are various contrivances for doing this. Sometimes, for instance, a wire is attached, through which messages can be sent to a telephone. Another plan is to send messages down the wire cable. trotter. He became wild and ungovernable in harness and remained so for the rest of his life.

In dealing with a horse more than with most animals one ought to exercise patience, care and above all the power of the remark, 'Why, yes, window, with the remark, 'Why, yes, cert'nly—help yourself!'

"Fresh? Well, I guess so!"—New York

to his work in Portland and on his return at night. He always finds his father and mother ready to greet him. He always says "Hello" in his cheery voice, and the old man replies, "We're here, John." That is all, but 30 years of that every day is vastly more filial companionship than falls to the lot of most fathers, and fortunate indeed is the mother whose fond heart never looks in vain for the daily visit of her son!—Lewiston Journal.

coast the cliffs are high, and the beach is practically inaccessible, so that no boating traffic will be interfered with. The cars will be moved by electricity, like those now in use along the eastern foreshore of Brighton.—London News.

Modest.

Writers of comic plays are said to have, as 2 rule, a very good conceit of themselves. But one of them objected nevertheless when an ardent admirer compared him with Shakespeare.

"You Laustn't do that!" said the dramatist.

"Why not?"

"Well, Shakespeare had his way of writing, you know, and I have mine."—Youth's Companion.
