OF SUMMER.

Let us sing of summer fine and suns that bake and broil!
When the plowman reareth, sweareth as the plowshare turns the soil!
Let us sing of summer time when clouds in thunder roll;
Mayhap the song will warm us, and we'll save a little coal!
Let us sing of summer time—thermometers skyhigh!
With ice cream signs on all the pines and ice carts rumbling by!
Imagine that your melting—that there's glory in your soul,
Mayhap you will perspire, and—economize on coal!
Let us sing of summer time—of daisies in the dells,
And watermelons cooling in the shaded country wells!
Just let us ask our neighbors: "Is it hot enough for you?"
And if coal keeps going higher we may save a ton or two.

COLORADO COWS PENT IN PARADISE.

In the wildest portion of the West, seventy five miles northwest of Meeker, where in 1879, the Utes massacred the Meeker family and every one at the agency, is the most wonderful cattle ranche in the world. Within a space five miles in length and three miles in width roams a herd upon whose sides the branding iron has never been placed, and around whose horns the lariats have never tightened. But a score or even fewer of them have ever seen a man or horse or other animal of their kind, and in fact their kin, except at a distance of nearly 600 feet high above them. The Ute Indians call them "p-check-up" or red buffalo. And yet if an Indian who has seen them should be asked about it he would laugh and shake his head, and all the information obtainable would be, "p-check-up; 'em red; no ketch 'em." There are more than 1,000 of this herd, and yet no man owns them, nor is there a man, white or black or copper colored, who has ever been able to possess a single hoof of these fat and tempting beasts.
The cattle are in a prison. Out of it there is one method of escape, but to travel that road means death to the adventurous one. There is no way to get in except it be by the use of a rope 1,000 feet in length. As the Indians say: "Heap see 'em; no ketch 'em." On the two long sides of the oblong space in which these cattle roam rise precipitous and even concave rocks for 500 or 600 feet—yawning black and insurmountable. At either end seethes and rushes the Yampa or Bear river. For miles above and miles below it plunges and stumbles on its headlong haste to reach the arms of its parent, the scarcely less tumultuous but deeper green river. Like the wonderful flat top mountain of Colorado, this home of the imprisoned herd has no likeness in the world. It recalls in its inaccessibility the marvelous stories of the valley of verdure into which Mayne Reid's adventurers only found their way by the assistance of the baloon.
The story of the way in which these cattle came there is as strange as their existence is curious. Over twenty years ago, when the government troops were pursuing the Mormon murderers of the innocent victims of the Mountain Meadow massacre, the Danites or Avenging Angels of the Mormons, fled for their lives into what was literally the wilderness. A few of those who had been the blindest followers of Lee, the Mormon fiend incarnate, whose hands were red with the blood of women and children, found in their wanderings a pretty valley or stream which flows from the Wasatch range into the Green river. They stuck their stakes, built their camp fires, and during the night their sagacious leader and a vision which told him there to stay. They could hardly have chosen in all Utah a more fertile or more isolated spot. They called it Ashley, and about them have since gathered more of their sect, until where the refugees posted their pickets on the lonely nights of the first summer has grown a thriving village. It is 130

TO SLOW FOR THE DOG.

There is a fallacy in the North that Southern trains are lamentably slow as regards speed. A New York drummer told a story to a newspaper man the other day in which this idea was illustrated. "I heard of a drummer said he, 'who got on the train at Atlanta to go to New Orleans. He had a dog that he was fond of, but the conductor wouldn't let him carry it into the coach. 'I suppose you'll let me tie him on to the rear coach then,' said the drummer. "'Oh, yes,' said the conductor, derisively, 'do that by all means, but,' he added, 'I shouldn't guarantee that you'd have much dog by the time we got good started.' "'Oh, that's all right; I'm willing to risk that,' he said, and he tied his prized canine to the rear coach. The conductor spoke to the engineer about it, and it was agreed that the train should do some of the swiftest running of its history. It fairly flew until the first station was reached. Then the conductor came around with a smile to where the drummer was sitting and asked about the dog. "'Oh, he's all right,' said the drummer, carelessly, and continued reading. The conductor went back and saw that the animal was trotting along behind without effort, the rope hanging slackly. He gave the cue to the engineer, and some magnificent running was the result. A few miles further down the conductor came around to the drummer and said: 'Where's your doggie now?' 'He's keeping up,' said the drummer. 'The two walked back to the rear end, but there was no dog. The rope was trailing along behind. The conductor smiled triumphantly. The drummer laughed easily. "'By jove, he's gnawed his rope and gone on ahead.' And sure enough, it was true. When the junction was reached there sat the dog patiently waiting for his master." This is the way some drummers while away the hours.—Atlanta Constitution.

MISSAPPLIED KINDNESS.

Two women sitting side by side in a car the other day had an amusing experience. They were strangers to each other, but one happened to notice that her neighbor was having a serious difficulty with the jacket she wore, and at which she tugged, with the result that it would neither go on nor come off. "Permit me," said the woman who sat near to her, and she pulled up one shoulder and jerked up the top of the collar. Still the woman with the jacket struggled with it, and the side that the other woman had so obligingly assisted up slipped down again, to be grabbed once more and pulled into place by the considerate passenger. "Now, if you'll turn this way I'll help you on the other side," she said to the astonished wearer. "Thank you, ma'am," snapped the other woman; "if it's all the same to you, I'm trying to get this jacket off," and with a final jerk she succeeded in freeing herself from the encumbering wrap. And the woman who had tried to help her gazed into blank futurity, and recalled the example of the man who got rich minding his own business.

HAVERLY.

"Do you think there is any chance of the detectives catching the burglar who broke into your house?"
Austen—"No, not much. They only have a faint clue."
Haverly—"What is it?"
Austen—"The burglar left behind him a photograph of himself with his name and address on it."

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, March 25.—The administration has apparently entered upon an all-summer job of diplomacy. Within the last week new complications have become public, on account of the demand made upon Hawaii to recall its minister, Mr. Thurston, and of a reminder to Great Britain that its dealings with Nicaragua must be in accordance with the Monroe doctrine. Meanwhile all of the old complications remain, and there is the shadow of a new one with France, because of the unjust treatment of an American citizen engaged in business upon the island of Madagascar. Spain has not made that apology, but the president is credited with the belief that the delay is principally because of the change of ministry in that country, and with the intention to be less hasty than Secretary Gresham was in making the first demand. There are many rumors of dissensions in the cabinet, but members persistently deny them. The one glimmer in the tangle of doubt is the statement that Germany will shortly rescind the edict prohibiting the landing of American cattle.

According to the number of the citizens of the territory of Oklahoma, who have been in Washington looking after the judiciary appointments which were made last week, the collectors of the income tax in that territory will hold sinecures. They tell a story about about one of these collectors, who cornered one of the first settlers and endeavored to get pointers on the incomes of the wealthiest citizens. He was allowed to talk himself out. Then the representative of the first settlers remarked in a sort of I-am-tired tone: "Say, stranger, I've heard of this income tax, but I want to tell you right here, that a man in Oklahoma's got a income of $4,000, 'ceptin' Bill Cook, the outlaw, and I advise you to go after him fast."

The Bureau of American Republics exists solely for the dissemination of information concerning our neighbors on the other side of the Isthmus of Panama, but some of the information asked for is certainly of a kind which the originators of the bureau did not provide for. For instance, one letter recently received asks if the bureau can recommend a good recipe for Chili sauce and tabasco; while another from a missionary, asks whether there is any tariff upon a person passing from one country to another, in south and Central America. The first request could not be complied with, but the writer of the other was informed that "missionaries are free of duty."

Judge Springer, who has just donned the ermine as a reward—the silver men say—for having contrary to his own opinion championed the administration financial bills in the last Congress, has been making some political predictions. He says the democrats will be frightened into making a declaration in favor of free silver in their national platform, next year, and that he thinks that will cause the republicans to nominate Allison on an antagonistic platform; that the republicans will carry the eastern States and the democrats the South, to a certainty, leaving the real battle to be fought in the west. He predicts further that the tariff will be kept in the background by both parties, and that silver will be the only real question at issue. Few of the many political predictions made by Mr. Springer during his long Congressional career were ever verified. That prevents this one attracting the attention it might otherwise have received.

A FALSE DIAGNOSIS.

La Grippe is confounded by many persons with a severe attack of catarrh, which in some respects resembles the former. These individuals suffer severely with pain about the forehead, eyes and ears, with soreness in throat and stoppage of the nasal passages, and in fact, are incapacitated for work of any kind for days at a time. These are catarrhal sufferers. Ely's Cream Balm has been used with the best results in such cases. The remedy will give instant relief.

The experiment of raising sugar cane in San Joaquin county, Cal., is proving successful.

HALF OF HIM IS NUMB.

A singular case of loss of feeling, caused by curvature of the spine, resulting from partial paralysis, was brought to the attention of the physicians at the City Hospital, Baltimore. The name of the unfortunate person is Louis Poindeux, a colored boy, aged eighteen years. The entire right side of his body is devoid of feeling, and Drs. Blake and Orr stuck pins into his flesh without causing the boy the slightest pain. The left side of the body is as sensitive as that of any ordinary person. This loss of feeling is not alone superficial, as pins could be stuck in the right side of the boy's tongue without causing him pain. The other side of the tongue, however, is alive to the sense of feeling. The boy has a stumped finger on the right hand, which he says was injured about eight years ago, and after the wound healed he began gradually to lose the sense of feeling in the right arm, which spread over the entire right side, and curvature of the spine followed.

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure Deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Veterans to Have a Reunion April 1.

The surviving members of the old First Maryland Veteran Volunteer Infantry Regiment of the Federal Army met Monday evening at their headquarters to make final arrangements for their annual reunion and banquet, which will take place on the evening of April 1, at Mechanics Hall, West Fayette street, Baltimore. This regiment was the first to leave the State in May, 1861, and was at that time under the command of the late Gen. John R. Kenley. It was afterward commanded successively by Col. N. T. Dushane, John W. Wilson and D. L. Stanton. Colonels Dushane and Wilson were both killed in battle. The losses of the regiment during its term of service—from May, 1861, to July, 1865—were so heavy that it is prominently mentioned by Fox, the historian, as one of the three hundred regiments of the Union army losing the greatest number of men during the civil war.—Sun.

EDWARD YOUNG, who was committed to the jail of Frederick county for breaking into a Baltimore and Ohio Railroad car, was taken to Westminster from Frederick Tuesday afternoon, and turned over to the Carroll county authorities. He is charged with complicity in the robbery of the store of Genetz & Lappen, at Mt. Airy, on the night of February 15th. The authorities at Westminster are convinced that Ralph Jones, of Franklin, O., a youth who has been held on a similar charge, is innocent, but he is detained as a witness in the case.

A Horse's Foot Out Off.

Mr. Benjamin Noah, of Highlandtown, was driving a market wagon Tuesday, in Baltimore, near Patterson Park, when in turning out of the way of an electric car the right hind foot of the horse was caught in the car track. The horse jerked his foot and the sharp edge of the rail cut the foot off as if it had been done with a knife. Later the horse was killed to end its agony.

LI HUNG CHANG, the Chinese peace envoy, while returning to his lodgings, in Simonoseki, from a conference with the Japanese ministers, was fired upon by a young Japanese and slightly wounded in the face. The attempt of assassination caused great excitement in Chinese and Japanese circles.

SINKING OF A SLOOP.

The sloop John H. Thomas, bound for Denton with a load of shells, sunk in the Choptank river off Cambridge Wednesday afternoon. James Jones, colored one of the crew was drowned, and Capt. John R. Stant and wife had a very narrow escape. After being in the water some time they were rescued by some tongs who were at work in the neighborhood and taken to Cambridge. Captain Stant said he pumped out the boat and examined her thoroughly before he left and thought that the accident must have been caused by a board leaving her bottom. The body of the colored man has not yet been found.

A Relic of the War.

One day last week Mr. Charles M. Horine, of near Bolivar, this valley, found an old Testament that it is supposed was lost during the battle on South Mountain on September 14, 1862. This book is in good condition, and on the fly leaf is written "Henry Badger, Co. E, 2nd Pa., V. Cavalry, Washington, D. C."—Middleton Register.

Catarrh

Is Common.

Few realize just how common it is. Very many people have Catarrh, or at least Catarrhal symptoms, who would laugh at the idea. It is an unpleasant disease—one of those which makes other uncomfortable as well as the one who has it. The first symptoms are: A heavy feeling between the eyes, profuse and offensive mucous discharge from the nostrils, headache and foul breath.

is recommended for both slight and aggravated cases. It will cure the worst case of CATARRH, and is good for a mere Cold—an inflamed condition of the nasal passages is the cause of both. It is also good for HAY FEVER. It is a sure cure. There is nothing marvelous about it. It is not an accidental, magical discovery, but a perfectly sensible, scientific preparation, intended to do just exactly the thing it does, and nothing else.

A LITTLE sixteen-months-old daughter of John Provand, Waynesboro, was so badly burned about the face and throat
last Thursday afternoon that she died in a few hours. Her mother had gone to a neighbor's, leaving the children in the kitchen. A small boy thrust stick against the stove igniting the end of it, which set fire to the little girl's clothing. The boy had presence of mind enough to throw water on his sister, which extinguished the flames,
but she was so badly burned that death
ensued a few hours later.

A Peculiar Freak of Nature.

On last Saturday morning, Mr. John T. Cretin, residing at Mt. St. Mary's, whilst sowing clover seed in one of the fields on his farm, he found a large hole in the ground. On investigating the matter it was discovered that the earth had caved in to a considerable depth, causing one of the most peculiar freaks of nature discovered in this section of the country for quite a while.

A ladder was secured and lowered in the hole, and Mr. Harry Manning placed a strong rope about his body and while the rope was being held by some men, he proceeded down the ladder to investigate the mystery surrounding the cave-in, but he received no information that would throw any light on the circumstances connected with the sudden disappearance of the earth.
The hole measures 4 feet in diameter,
and is 19 feet from the surface of the ground to the bottom, from which point a hole extends under the ground
about 5 feet, making the total depth of the hole about 24 feet. The hole is almost perfectly round, and looks as though it had been cut in the ground with some sharp instrument, and the ground from the top to the bottom is quite smooth.

The field was tilled last fall and nothing unusual was noticed in the condition of the ground. How long the hole has been there is not known. Since the discovery was made a large number of people have visited the scene, and many persons have given expression of their ideas regarding the cause of this phenomenon, but the direct cause is shrouded in darkness, and will in all probability, remain a mystery. Some people may advance the idea that it is the opening up of some great subterranean cavern, or it might lead to the discovery of a cave, equal in propensity to the Mammoth cave. However, a thorough investigation of the premises
should be made, as there is no telling what might be the result of such efforts.

During the past several days many persons have gone to the bottom of the hole, among whom were a number of ladies.

Exciting Game of Base Ball.

One of the most interesting and exciting games of base ball that has been witnessed at Mt. St. Mary's College in a number of years, was the game played on the diamond at that institution yesterday afternoon, between the Mt. St.
Mary's College nine, and the University of Vermont team, of Burlington, Vt.
When the game ended the score stood 10 to 11 in favor of Mt. St. Mary's College. The game was hotly contested from the beginning to the end. Each team felt confident of victory throughout the game, and some excellent plays were made by both teams, which were highly acknowledged by the several hundred spectators in the audience. This was the first game played this season by the Mt. St. Mary's with a visiting nine, and the "Mountaineers" give evidence of maintaining this season the reputation won in former years as being one of the best college teams in the State. The University of Vermont team is on a three weeks tour through the south.

Killed by a Runaway Team.

Luther Horine, of Jefferson, Frederick county, was fatally injured while attempting to stop his team, which had become frightened and was running away in Frederick city Tuesday. He had left the team of three horses standing near the Citizens' National Bank
while he stepped inside to transact some business. The horses started to run down Market street. Mr. Horine ran after the team and attempted to stop it by drawing the rubber of the wagon. As the team crossed the bridge which spans Carroll creek, on South Market street, he was jammed between the wagon and the division of the bridge. He was carried into the office of Dr. W. A. Long, near by, where an examination of the injured man revealed that he was badly hurt and that paralysis had set in the left leg. He died late Tuesday afternoon from the effects of the injuries.

Dying From Blood Poisoning.

Morris St. P. Thomas, one of the best known members of the Chicago bar, is dying, the result of blood-poisoning.
Mr. Thomas was at one time the law partner of Lyman Trumbull. His illness was brought about by a slight cut on the hand, caused by the breaking of a glass in his home. —Herald.

The above will be sad news to many readers of the CHRONICLE, as Mr. Thomas is well-known in this place, having lived here with his mother and sister
for a number of years. Mr. Thomas was a genial young man and made many friends while he resided here.

An Eager and Nipping Wind.

A continuous down pour of rain, increased, generally in winter and spring,
are unfavorable to all classes of invalids.
But warlike and activity infused into the circulation
counteracts these influences and interpose
a defense against them. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, most thorough and effective of stomach and tonics, not only enriches the blood, but accelerates its circulation. For a chill or pre-monitory symptoms of rheumatism and kidney complaint, particularly prevalent in these seasons, it is the best possible remedy. It is also invaluable for dyspepsia, liver complaint, constipation and nervousness. Never set out on a winter or spring journey without it. Elderly persons and the delicate and convalescent are greatly aided by it.

MONTEVUE HOSPITAL NEWS.

FREDERICK, March 26.—John Hall, colored, aged about 60 years, died at Montevue on the 21st, instant. The cause of death was exhaustion. The remains were taken to Frederick city and interred in St. John's Catholic Cemetery.

Last Sunday, Dr. William Lee, secretary of the State Lunacy Commission, inspected the hospital and made an inspection of the hospital, and was much pleased with the condition of the institution.

The State Lunacy Commission has just recently published its report for the past year.

This session speaks well of the general condition of the hospital, but deprecates the overcrowding that the hospital is compelled to endure, and recommends that a cottage should be built upon the grounds, and thus relieve,<
to some extent, this overcrowding.

He also recommended recreating
grounds for the insane.

Mr. Luther C. Derr, the recently appointed successor of Mr. Main, will move into the hospital next Monday,
the first of April.

FLAG RAISING AT STONY BRANCH SCHOOL HOUSE.

Large Attendance.—Interesting Programme.—Benediction by the Pastor of School.—Presentation of the Flag
and Bible.—Patriotic Speeches,
etc.

Last Friday afternoon marked one of the most interesting events in the history of the pretty brick school house,
erected several years ago at Stony Branch, one of the most fertile spots in Emmitsburg District. The building is well located, commanding an excellent view of that picturesque country, and is known as public school, No. 7. The occasion was the unfolding of the Stars and Stripes to the breeze, and being the first flag raising in this district under the auspices of Emmitsburg Council, No. 53, J. O. U. A. M., which was instituted in this place, last December.

The exercises connected with the occasion began at 2 o'clock in the afternoon,
and the school house was packed to its utmost capacity long before the appointment arrived, by enthusiastic patrons and spectators from every section of that community, and also quite a large number of persons from this place.

The number of people in the audience was estimated to be between three and four hundred.

The American Eagle Council, No. 96,
Jr. O. U. A. M., of Double Pipe Creek,
was also interested in the exercises.

That Council presenting a Bible to the school. Quite a number of the members of this organization were present.

The excellent manner in which the scholars of the school rendered their part of the programme elicited much favorable comment, and gave evidence
of being well trained by the teacher,
Mr. J. F. Grindler, and his able assistants.

The exercises were opened with prayer by Rev. Charles Reinwald, pastor of the Lutheran Church, in this place, and at the conclusion of which,
"America," was sung by the scholars of the school. This was followed with a recitation, by Jacob Martin.

The flag was then presented to the school by Councilor William J. Stansbury, of Emmitsburg Council, No. 53.

Mr. Stansbury in presenting the flag
said:

"We, as an organization, claiming to be patriotic,
have met here today to perform a duty or a work which we as an organization, claim the honor of performing. The raising of the national colors over every school house in the land.

FRIDAY, MARCH 29, 1895.

IN THE SHADOW OF DEATH.

O days of summer and sunshine, of roses white and red,
Is it nothing to you that he, my little boy,
Is dead?
Your daisies are bright as of old—the daisies
he'll gather no more—
And the scent of the woodbine and jasmine
comes in at the open door,
But, ah, he returns never, but forever there must lie
Under the green of the grass, under the blue
of the sky.

The Indian cross on the wall shoots daily higher
and higher,
And soon in the summer sun will shake out
flowers of fire.

"It is growing bigger than me," he would say
when he was in his now,
With his dark and wistful eyes and his broad
and open brow.
But flowers will not stay for our weeping and will blossom though he lie
Under the green of the grass, under the blue
of the sky.

He passed while the spring was bringing new life to wood and wild,
Ere the snowdrop had come or the crocus had lit the lamp of gold.
He passed into death without knowing the mother that bore him, or me,
We spoke, but in vain—he was traveling farther than we could see.
O God, I had rather now that I, not he,
should lie
Under the green of the grass, under the blue
of the sky.

But what do we know of it all? And what can we understand?
And what would the universe be if you or I had it in hand?
Be still! To our closets and weep and think of the days and the hours
We had in our darling's love—his love for us
and for ours—
And pray for a reward as blameless when we sleep, you and I,
Under the green of the grass, under the blue
of the sky.

SLOW TRAIN SERVICE.

Faith of Commercial Travelers Describing Incidents of Railway Journeys.

A group of commercial travelers in a hotel were discussing the slow train service of a certain road. Said one of the party:

"The last time I went over that road I noticed a man at one of the stations raise his hat and stand uncovered. I was interested in him, and stepping off the cars I asked him what he was doing. He told me it was the custom in New Orleans, from which city he came, to salute a funeral procession, and he had taken the train for a funeral cortege. After explaining to the man his mistake I ran down the track, overtook the train and eventually reached my destination."

After another round of refreshments a second member of the party said:

"I know that story is true. Unfortunately the road can't help the slow train service. It tried to correct it once, but failed. It was this way: Walter Hurley of New York, who represented Porter Bros. a few years ago, was in that section of country, and some one made him a present of a fine dog. Hurley was going on to New Orleans and wanted to take the dog with him to give it to a woman there."

"The train conductor would not let him take the dog in a passenger car, and he would not let it go in the baggage car."

"Hit it on behind the train," said Hurley. "The train's no good. The dog could run beside it, but for fear that something might attract its attention you might as well fasten it to the last car."

"This rather hurt the conductor's feelings, and he remarked that there wouldn't be much dog left when the train reached New Orleans. Hurley insisted, however, so the dog was tied to the last car, and the train started."

"The conductor had given the tip to the engineer, who determined to strangle the dog and in this manner got even with the passenger for his criticism of the train. So he did not pay much attention to his schedule or spare his speed. About half an hour or so after starting the conductor passed through the train. 'Well, how's that dog?' he said, with a malicious smile, when he reached Hurley. 'Oh, all right, I imagine,' replied Hurley, glancing up from his book."

"The two then walked to the rear of the train and there, sure enough, was the dog, the string loose, trotting along behind like a coach dog following a butcher's wagon. Hurley smiled, and the conductor looked dazed."

"The train leaped forward a few moments later. It was a surprise to everybody on the road. It really went fast—that is, as compared with the schedule. The cars rocked, and the locomotive sent forth clouds of foot and smoke, showing that the fire was blazing, and the speed was at the extreme limit."

"How is your dog now?" asked the conductor of Hurley a little later. "I don't know," replied Hurley. "Let's go and see." Together they passed to the rear of the last car. The cord hung loose. The dog was not there."

"I told you so," remarked the conductor jubilantly. "I knew the dog couldn't keep up with the train."

"Don't be too sure of that," answered Hurley. "Maybe he's gone on ahead."

"And so he had. When the train reached New Orleans, there sat the dog on the platform. The train had been too slow for him. He had gnawed the rope and run on before to await his master's arrival."—New York Herald.

COPENHAGEN ATTRACTIONS.

Its Spaciousness and Dignity and Its Numerous Beautiful Women.

Copenhagen is a fine city—the finest, as a patriotic Dane declared, of the second rank capitals of Europe. The "Kongens Nytorv" (the king's new market) is a great square as large, I should think, as the Place de la Concorde in Paris, not so beautiful, though, but still very fine in its way. Its principal building is the Royal Theater, its principal adornment an equestrian statue of a Danish king trampling down evil. The Swedes have a notion that there is something personal implied in this statue, which seems to have been put up at a time when Denmark and Sweden were quarreling. So one time the Swedish colony in Copenhagen rose in its might, overturned the statue, twisted it unmercifully, and the astonished Danes had to make good the damage. But they are peaceful folk enough now, Swedes and Danes, and the little kingdom is perhaps better off than its bigger neighbor on the north. And the little kingdom has a capital that even a mightier country might be proud of. To the Danes Copenhagen is the next thing to paradise. It is amazing what a patriotic race they are and ever were. Think how in time past they conquered Britain and overran Europe! Nowadays they remain contentedly tucked away here up on the edge of things. They sigh not for conquest, they yearn not for riches and glory, but they say of themselves, and it is said of them, that they are the most contented people in the old world. That being the case, it follows as a matter of course that they are conservative. They are not consumed with a passion for change; they are a thrifty people and delightfully, genuinely polite.

Their capital, Copenhagen, is a spacious city. Some 50,000 persons inhabit it. They keep it well, they make it bright, attractive, and they have a pride in it which justifies understanding. Spaciousness and dignity—these are the characteristics of Copenhagen. The city is laid out as generously as if its projectors thought they had the whole of the northern part of the hemisphere to build on. Wide streets, big squares, broad and handsome bridges, thoroughfares well lighted, smooth as billiard tables, clean as the Paris avenues used to be, attractive shops and old-fashioned train cars, monster omnibuses, poor looking horseflesh, good looking humanity, magnificent dogs, a general aspect of orderliness, an effect of modest prosperity and an easy going way, as if time disturbs not Denmark by his march—these are characteristics of Copenhagen.

You see more pretty women during half an hour's walk in Copenhagen than in any other city that I know of except New York, Baltimore and London. Junoesque blonds, blue eyed and with complexions which would make a seashell envious; hair like spun gold, spun by fairies and in which the sunlight gleams eager to outshine the rival gleams. The Danes have a great reputation as lovers of their fatherland. No wonder! Where there are such fair daughters patriotism becomes a virtue.—From "Land of the Dane," Boston Herald.

Suggested Unpleasant Reflections.
In France the general use of morning note paper dates back no farther than the year 1830. True, it existed under the first empire, but only to a limited extent and among the elite of society. The following incident will serve to illustrate the change that has come over the spirit of the dream. On the 31st of March Napoleon I wrote to the Chancellor Cambaceres a letter in which he referred to Junot, who had recently suffered bereavement:

"He always writes to me on large black bordered note paper, which suggests unpleasant reflections every time I receive a letter from him. Give him to understand that this is a violation of good manners and the respect due to a superior who ought to be spared this parade of one's private sorrows."

Not that black edged paper suggested unpleasant reflections to Napoleon I.—Journal de Rouen.

Fortunes In Old Bottles.

Out of the bottles that you and your neighbors throw away there are four or five dealers in Pittsburgh that divide up a matter of $53,000 in profits every year. The old bottle business is not thoroughly worked in this city, but in other large cities of the country the profits are many times greater. In this city the collectors gather up something like 3,000,000 bottles a year. The profits range from half a cent to 3 cents on each bottle. According to the figures given by a dealer, the average profit on each bottle is three-fourths of a cent. There is considerable money invested in the business here, and it gives employment to a large number of men. Dealers here collect over 300 classes of bottles and have a fixed price for each grade. Half of them are sold here, and the remainder are sent to New York and Brooklyn, Hugh Quinn, in the latter city, being the largest dealer. He has 50 warehouses there, where he receives and stores bottles.—Pittsburgh Post.

How They Live.

The daily income of the principal rulers is said to be: Emperor of Russia, $25,000; sultan of Turkey, $18,000; emperor of Austria, $10,000; emperor of Germany, $8,000; king of Italy, $6,400; Queen Victoria, $6,200; king of Belgium, $1,610; president of France, $650; president of the United States, $137.

MILITARY STORES IN PARIS.

The French Capital Could Not Again Be Starved Into Capitulation.

Should the fortunes of war ever again expose the city of Paris to the hardship of a siege the besieger would find the reduction of the French capital a far more difficult undertaking than did the German armies in the winter of 1870-1. It may be doubted whether the city could ever again be compelled to capitulate. The fall of Paris, as is well known, was not accomplished by the German siege batteries, but the city was starved into submission. A recurrence of such an emergency is supposed to have been made practically impossible by the development of the art of preserving and compressing a great variety of nutritious food into the smallest possible space.

Thus, for example, 40,000 rations of preserved vegetables can be placed in a cubic space measuring only 40 inches each way, and millions of these rations, together with solid soups and preserved meats, are constantly kept ready for the eventual necessity of the military provisioning of Paris. An enormous stock of flour and biscuits is always maintained by the war department, while the introduction of compressed fodder and the silo system have facilitated the storage of sufficient food for the horses required by the cavalry as well as by the omnibus and street railway companies. One of the gravest causes of distress during the last siege of Paris was the scarcity and poor quality of milk. Such quantities of this indispensable article as could then be procured were worth their weight in gold, and the mortality among infants resulting from their deprivation of this necessary food reached a frightful rate. In the next siege, however, milk will not only be plentiful, but very good, thanks to Dr. Autefage's process of "pasteurizing" milk, which has been adopted by the French government, and by which milk can be preserved almost indefinitely also lute pure and unaltered.

Twenty years ago the art of preserving meat by means of cold storage was in its infancy, but the French government has availed itself of every improvement that has been made in this direction, and at the first sign of impending danger the authorities would be prepared to store hundreds of thousands of carcasses of beefs and mutton. The military magazines are always kept filled, but at the approach of war the numerous warehouses and buildings which have been indicated for the purpose and prepared for the storage of provisions would be immediately brought into requisition. By means of the Fixary process dressed beef and other meats can be kept sweet and fresh for many months, and by new chemical methods the storage rooms can be kept cool without the use of ice. In its careful preparation for the dire emergency of hostile attack the French government seems to have overlooked nothing. Even coal, wood, petroleum, chemicals and a thousand other things have been provided in ample quantities. It seems almost impossible to believe that any future siege of Paris could be prolonged until the war department should have exhausted its fabulous accumulations of provisions, which are constantly maintained at their proper level by renewals of stock as fast as they are used up.

"The best laid plans of mice and men," however, "gang aft agley."—Philadelphia Record.

She Had No Time to Waste on Him.

"Your country has no future," said the aesthetic Englishman to the clever girl. "There is here no art atmosphere, don't you know, such as we have in London. Look at our stage, for instance—English authors and English players doing the only things worth seeing. Your painters work in Paris and your two best novelists in London or Rome. Really, don't you know, you have no future."

"A moment ago," retorted the clever girl musingly, "you said we had no past. With no past and no future, it seems to me I'd better improve the present. Do go and ask that man opposite to come and talk to me. He's an American and can teach me something about my unhappy country while yet there is time."

The Englishman afterward remarked that she was an extremely impertinent young person.—New York Press.

Prune Orchards.

"The man who owns a prune orchard in California has a better thing of it than half the miners in the state," said W. F. Long, a commercial man from Omaha. "I was in Porterville not long since when a resident named George Frost sold 10 tons of dried prunes, which had been produced on six acres, for $1,500. I understand that this sum showed a net profit to Mr. Frost of over $1,200. As this is an income of over $200 per acre, and the land is probably worth but little more, it would seem that it had paid for itself in one season at that rate."—San Francisco Call.

The Right Man to Kick.

Magistrate—Why did you assault that gentleman?

Prisoner—I went to the theater last night, paid a high price for a seat, and my view was completely obstructed by a woman's hat.

"Is he the husband of the woman?"

"No."

"Her father perhaps?"

"No."

"Then why did you attack him?"

"He's the man who built the theater."—New York Weekly.

VAGARIES OF CHARITY SEEKERS.

Men Who Try to Excite Sympathy by Posing as Reformed Criminals.

"The information which we are expected to give is something astonishing," said Application Superintendent Lowbery of the Charity Organization Society. "People come in and want to find out whether John Smith or Thomas Brown has been receiving charitable help in Minneapolis or San Francisco during the last month. A woman the other day dropped in to inquire the visiting hours of the state prison at Trenton. Requests for loans of $500 and $1,000 without security are numerous. It very frequently happens that applicants for relief come in who really require help, but whom it is impossible for us to help."

"Discharged prisoners from Blackwell's island often come to us for a recommendation, and when asked if they have been discharged from the island return an emphatic negative: 'Oh, no. They have never been in prison and never expect to be.' If they admitted having been discharged from the island, we could send them to various homes for discharged prisoners and get a record of their behavior, etc., from the prison in which they have been. When, however, a man or woman with no money, short hair, threadbare clothes and veritable jailbird appearance saunters in and swears that he or she is nevertheless a perfect saint, what are we to do? People will not give them work, and pecuniary aid is worse than useless."

"As a contrast to this we sometimes have applicants for relief who claim to have been discharged from jail, but have never been inside one. Some time ago a man walked into the office and said that he had just left Detroit prison, where he had served 16 years' time for forgery. When questioned, his answers showed that he knew nothing about prison life, and a telegram to the prison brought back the reply that no such man had been inside the jail. When confronted with the answer, he admitted that he had been lying. His object in so doing was to gain sympathy from people to whom he made application. It is a curious fact that people will show compassion for a man convicted of some heinous offense when a man whose only fault was poverty would fail utterly in enlisting their sympathies. In other words, an honest man sometimes does not stand as much chance of assistance as a self-confessed criminal."—New York World.

The Bird That Wouldn't Sing.

Gabrielli once "suffered" a 12 days' imprisonment for a whimsical refusal to sing in her usual first rate style. It was the occasion of a state dinner given by the viceroy at Palermo. Gabrielli had been engaged for the function, but as she did not put in an appearance the dinner was delayed and a messenger dispatched to ascertain the cause of her absence. The messenger was promptly informed that Gabrielli was in bed, where she had become so absorbed in a favorite author that she had forgotten the engagement. Resenting the command for her appearance, the lady began by singing her very worst, and when the viceroy urged her to be less foolish she refused to sing at all.

"The viceroy may make me cry," said she, "but he can never make me sing."

For this freak Gabrielli was sent to prison, as we have indicated, for 12 days, during which time, having liberty to do as she pleased, she feasted her friends in great style and enjoyed herself in a variety of ways.—San Francisco Argonaut.

Medical Opinion on Cycling.

Dr. Solomon Smith made some extremely interesting remarks on the influence of high gear in diminishing the value of cycling as an exercise. He pointed out that cycling owes its advantages as an exercise very largely to the preponderance of limb movement over the actual labor involved. It follows that in proportion as the limb movement is reduced and the labor increased by a high gear so cycling falls into the category of exercises which have a very disturbing effect on the circulation. The use of high gear machines is therefore to be discouraged.—London Public Opinion.

Wonderful Mechanical Files.

It is not necessary to remark, especially after one reads the following, that it taxes credulity to the utmost to believe some of the old time stories:

John de Montroyal presented Emperor Charles V with an automatic iron fly which escaped, circled around his majesty's head a few times and then alighted upon his sleeve. Virgilius, bishop of Naples, made an iron fly which did not only fly, but kept all other flies out of the city.—St. Louis Republic.

Always Clean.

Missess—You ought to take cook for a pattern. She washes herself four or five times every day.

Parlor Maid—I can tell the reason why—her young man is a chimney sweep.—Ulk.

Women and Telephones.

It is said, says Cosmos, that women's voices do not give results in the long distance telephone. Their high notes, excellent in short lines, are an obstacle to clear transmission in lines of considerable length.

The price of a day's board in Athens B. C. 400 was 4 cents, or about $1.20 a month.

The Peoria Indians furnished a name to the Illinois city.

Fast Train Runs.

Among the very fast special railroad runs we find the following pretty authentic records of performance in the United States, which, so far as I know, have not been equaled in England since a run made on the Great Western in 1848 of 53 miles at 68 miles an hour, and that was not up to the best of those given here: September, 1891, on the New York Central, New York to East Buffalo, 436 miles, at 56.6 miles an hour, including three stops; 1892, same railroad, 21 1/3 miles at the rate of 72.7 miles an hour, no stops; Pennsylvania railroad, 1891, Jersey City to Washington, 227 miles, 54.3 miles an hour, two stops; New York Central, 1893, 80.4 miles at 68.5 miles an hour, no stops.—Christian Work.

Too Costly.

"Why don't you take little Johnny to the circus? He's just crazy to see that balloon and parachute jumper," said Mrs. Suburb to her husband.

"I can't afford it," he answered.

"It won't cost over a couple of shillings to get him in."

"No, but it will cost us a couple of pounds for new umbrellas afterward."—London Tit-Bits.
