Striking.
"Aunt," said Polly, ruefully rubbing her forehead, "that big photograph of you is a striking likeness, isn't it?"

Many animals feign illness. In military stables horses are known to have pretended to be lame in order to avoid going to a military exercise. A chimpanzee in the Zoo had been fed on milk when sick. After his recovery he often feigned coughing in order to procure dainties.

"I WONDER WHY?"

There comes a query oft to me,
From one who thinks I ought to know
The height and depth of mystery—
The "wherefore" of the "it is so."
And childish form, with bated breath,
With parted lips and pleading eyes,
Stands waiting for the "What he saith,"
In answer to "I wonder why?"

"What gives the violet its hue,
The fern its fragile form and grace?
Why doth the rivulet pursue
Its ceaseless course for us to trace?
Why bloom the flowers, why grow the trees,
And spread their branches wide and high?"

Why sing the cheerful chickadees,
On leafless bush? I wonder why?"
All these I answer as I can,
And yet the little maid asks on,
And her soft eyes my own eyes scan,
Perchance a new reply to con.

Till I am fain to ask with zeal,
For clearer knowledge than on high,
Of my own duty, God's behest,
And, like my child, "I wonder why?"

Deep problems meet us in the wood,
Afield and by the stream and sea;
We see what is not understood
About us, and that we'er can be,
Whether we wander far or stay
In cloister, hid from mortal eye;
We bide with mystery night and day,
And of it all we "wonder why?"

So 'tis not strange a child oft asks,
To know the "wherefore" of the fact;
To understand what vainly tasks
Philosophy, with all its tact.
We all are children, striving oft
To know what comes before the eye.
Childlike, we vainly look aloft,
And ask and ask, "I wonder why?"

The Indian Soldiers Go.

The Last Company Mustered Out of Service.

Omaha (Neb.) Correspondence of the Chicago Record.

The last company of Indian soldiers has been mustered out of the service of the United States army.

The department of the Platte in this city this week wiped from the records the last fragment of the organization which made the American Indian a part of the regular army, and which at one time promised the most interesting results from the experiment. This is a practical admission that the attempt to make the original Americans a part of the army which conquered them after so many bloody battles is a failure.

When the first Indian company was enlisted, six years ago, much was expected of the movement by both army officers and civilians.

Many army officers thought they saw an opportunity to strengthen the military service by the addition of men who would be especially useful for particular purposes. The reports of the commanders of the western departments for several years past have contained discussions of the question of the fitness of the Indian for permanent military duty, with conflicting testimony of the officers in charge.

The chief obstacles seem to have been that the Indians would not or could not be taught to endure discipline, and to observe the regular habits necessary to camp-life.

It was soon evident that the success of the Indian as a soldier was almost wholly dependent upon the interest taken by the officers in command of the companies. So long as the experiment was novel, considerable headway seems to have been made, but the same special attention could not be paid to the Indian soldier indefinitely, so that the moment the officers attempted to leave the Indian with about the same attention that other companies received, they began to retrograde.

The failure of the plan to thus utilize the Indian comes as a disappointment to many of the friends of the Indian, who thought they saw in it a solution of the much vexed Indian problem. If military service at once could have afforded remunerative employment and a school of instruction for a large part of the male members of the wild tribes of the Western prairies, it would have relieved the situation materially. Therefore, the abandonment of the Indian companies leaves the Indian question as complicated as it ever was, and destroys a military fancy in which some of the ablest men in the United States have indulged.

The Indian Soldiers Go.

The first tangible idea in the way of making regular soldiers of the government's wards grew out of the memorable campaign of 1890-'91, in which the Sioux at the Pine Ridge Agency were given a severe lesson in warfare. Prior to that time a strong organization, known as the Pine Ridge Indian police system had been doing excellent work in that section. It had been organized by Dr. McGillicuddy ten years before, and the force had become wonderfully proficient. It included 100 of the most intelligent and daring Indians on Pine Ridge Agency. For years they had been a terror to "bad" Indians, and incidentally bad white men in South Dakota.

Such excellent results had been secured from this body of brave Indians that when the war began in that section, and it seemed as if old Sitting Bull would be called on to head an uprising covering every Indian tribe in the United States, the Pine Ridge police were used as a nucleus, around which was formed a body of four hundred Indians to meet the unfriendly tribes on their own ground. These troops did scouting duty principally, but later, when the hostiles actually attacked the mission and threatened the Pine Ridge settlement, these four hundred Indians mounted guard, kept regular company formation and worked side by side with the veteran troops of the United States army, throwing up breastworks and toiling with spade and shovel in the trenches. This, too, in the face of the fact that they were preparing to fight their own flesh and blood.

In actual battle at Wounded Knee the Indian company stood in regular formation and endured the fire like veterans. Their fire was accurate and delivered in company volleys as long as the officers kept their troops under command. Later, however, when the fire became so hot and rapid that the troops were firing as rapidly as their guns would work, and company formation was impossible, the Indians sunk to the ground in imitation of their wild brothers, and fought from behind anything which would afford cover.

The inclination to return to the primitive methods of warfare and ignore company formation was the worst thing Dr. McGillicuddy had to deal with. The doctor was Indian agent at Pine Ridge for many years. Secretary of War Proctor, after the Pine Ridge fighting, with the idea of making some use of the Indians in the regular service, asked McGillicuddy if he could depend upon his Indian companies to obey orders.

EXAMPLE OF OBEYING ORDERS.
"Obey orders? That is the trouble; they obey orders so closely. For instance, one of our Indian police was ordered by his commander to go after a certain Indian criminal. The officer was not very specific in his instructions, merely saying that he could bring him in, dead or alive. The next day the policeman rode into the agency with the fellow's dead body across his horse. When his chief anxiously inquired if the criminal resisted, the Indian said no, but that he had found it easier to bring him in dead than alive, so he shot him."

Secretary Proctor ordered three companies of Indians to be enlisted. There was plenty of material to select from. The best of these troops were joined to the Second Infantry and stationed at Fort Omaha. For a few weeks the new recruits did well, but as soon as they began to get accustomed to the brass buttons and the bright, new, blue cloth of their uniforms the officers saw a change. The natural instinct against work asserted itself. All the Indians brought their squaws with them. Then they were so untidy that their quarters soon resembled hog pens. First one objection and then another was found to their uniforms. The most common complaint was that they were too tight and did not permit the air to circulate.

The company tailor was unable to remedy this defect, so one more

EASTON, Md., May 18.—A clergyman, a native of New England, and who came to Talbot county, where he has been living several years, from that section says it struck him as a very peculiar fact that in this country the farms had names. It did not strike him as at all peculiar that in Massachusetts there is a Handley, a North, South, East and West Handley, a New South Handley and a West New South Handley, all in the same township.

HISTORIC AND DESCRIPTIVE.

Many of the Eastern Shore farm names are historical, some descriptive and others merely fanciful. Many of the local names have been corrupted and so changed in spelling and pronunciation that only research can determine the original name. For instance there is a creek and a farm on it that this and the preceding generation at least have known as "Fox Hole" and written and spoken it so. The name given the place in the colonial warranty is the English "Vauxhall," and in a subsequent paper it appeared as "Folks' Hall." The creek is a branch of a beautiful river which itself has several spellings in the legal papers of preceding generations, in the old local histories and on the old local maps, the most common of which are Third Haven, Tread Avon, Tread Heaven and Tread Avon.

Col. Guy V. Henry once mentioned to him the possibility of making United States troops of the Indians. It is related that old "Three Stars," as the old Indian fighter was known by his ancient enemies, because of his insignia of office, had a fit of laughter that almost killed him. He then went on record as declaring that the Indian could never become a modern soldier; that as a soldier among tribesmen the American Indian had no superior; that his valor was unquestioned; but that, reduced to accept modern conditions and modern arms, he was a failure. Now the War Department has demonstrated the truth of General Crook's prediction.

E. I. Davis, chief clerk of the Department of the Platte, has had wide and varied experience with the Indians. He was with Crook in 1879 and under Custer just previous to the great massacre. As a scout, and a soldier he has come in contact with Indians under all conditions. He was a non-commissioned officer of the Seventh Cavalry, and knows what it is to face Indians in battle. He watched the experiment in Omaha very carefully and while he agrees with other army men that the Indian cannot make a soldier in the modern sense of the word, he insists that as a soldier in his own primitive way the Indian is incomparable and unexcelled. He has witnessed charges of Indian cavalry against superior forces of United States troops, and speaks as a veteran when he says that under native commanders and surrounded by conditions peculiar to the Indian the Indian is a great soldier whose courage is natural as is his color and who has no fear of death.

But with this week the curtain drops forever over the spectacle of a troop of American Indians as a part of the military organization of their conquerors.

J. J. Chase, of Lewistown, Me., a blind veteran of the war, and son of Uncle Solon Chase, plays cards with remarkable ability. But he uses his own pack of cards and the edges are notched in a distinguished way understood only by himself. He is told what cards his competitors play, and chooses his own by running his fingers quickly along the edges.

cut and was told that Tom Biffin, a farmer of the neighborhood, wanted him to go to his house in the afternoon and "christen" his five small children. Dr. Chaplain went, and after being there some time and seeing no children he asked for them. "They're out-a-doors," said the farmer, "most likely in the corn. I'll go get 'em." He was gone a long time and returned dragging by the hand a very small weeping and unwilling victim and said, "Parson, this is the onliest one I could ketch!"

JACOB'S NOSE.

But to leave baptismal and resume geographical names. On Chester river, not far from Centerville, is a famous gunning point, with a clubhouse, and in the ducking season "Jacob's Nose," as the place is called, is often visited by the local sportsmen, not all of whom know the fact that the property once belonged to Jacob Snow, and that the gunning place was "Jacob Snow's Point." Then people went to Jacob Snow's and now to Jacob's Nose, and next it will possibly be Jaynoze. The best harbor on Kent Island is called by the boatmen who frequent it "Hollieky-snooze," a name which for a long time was a puzzle to those who, like the writer, believe there is always some reason for a name. Only by an accident, while looking up another matter, was it discovered that one of the original settlers on this harbor was an Englishman named Hollicut, and that he named his plantation Hollicut's News, in imitation, perhaps of Sir Christopher Newport's "Newport News." It is to be hoped that the people of Prince George's county will boycott any newspaper which prints more than one time "Oxen Hill" Oxon Hill. This corruption has already been begun. Let it be checked at once and forever. And the people of beautiful Westminster should tar and feather the man who calls the town "Westminster." Who writes it West Minister should be applauded.

TOWN NAMES.

The name of Kent's beautiful seat was written invariably Chester Town, which is right, until within the last fifty years. Now it is written Chestertown, which, like Towson for Towson Town, is wrong, but is at the same time made obligatory by postoffice edict. The venerable and wealthy Thomas W. Eliason, who died a few years ago, kept to the old form of Chester Town as long as he lived. The Queen Annee have been more particular about maintaining the old orthography of their shire town, Centerville, which it was, before Noah Webster changed the spelling of centre to center, and so it will remain. About twenty-four years ago Bordley and Cheezurn established a newspaper there, the first number of which bore the title "The Centerville"; but this is the only one that ever did. Remonstrances poured in thick and fast and strong that in the second issue they apologized for Centerville, explained it as an accident and promptly and properly changed it to Centerville.

HERDIER LLOYD.

There is an old family of Lloyds in Trappe district of Talbot county. The Maryland settler was a Welshman, who took up a big body of land under a provincial survey. One of the base lines of the tract was a very long straight line, and in the record paper it was written "Herdier Lloyd," or Lloyd's long line. This line has many times since been called in the deeds that followed the many subdivisions of the Welshman's original tract, and also in advertisements for the sale of real estate abutting upon "Lloyd's Long Line." After a while the question arose who was this Lloyd with the phenomenon of Herdier? And there is a letter extant from an old resident who says that in his youth he knew an old man who was well acquainted with "Hyer Dyer Lloyd."

A novel and unusual incident occurred Tuesday afternoon on the Western Maryland Railroad to the train leaving Baltimore at 4.08, connecting at Bracerville with the train for Frederick in the evening.

a little now and then, with a gentle, cleansing laxative, thereby removing offending matter from the stomach and toning up and invigorating the liver and quickening its tardy action, and you thereby remove the cause of a multitude of distressing diseases, such as headaches, indigestion, biliousness, skin diseases, boils, carbuncles, piles, fistulas and maladies too numerous to mention.

To accomplish this purpose, Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are unequalled. Once used, they are always in favor. Their secondary effect is to keep the bowels open and regular, not to futher constipate, as is the case with other pills.

AN UNIQUE CONVENTION.

A national convention of the maimed and halt, legless, armless and otherwise mutilated unfortunates from every State in the Union is to be one of the features of St. Louis' annual exposition next fall. Leading surgeons and manufacturers of artificial limbs are the promoters.

DISCUSSING TERMS OF PEACE.

A collective note, embodying the views of the powers as to the terms of peace proposed by Turkey, has been presented to the Sultan. It does not appear whether or not the powers have undertaken to lay down for the Sultan the terms he must be content with, nor whether Greece has bound herself to accept the best terms the powers can get for her.

AN ANCIENT CHURCH BURNED.

SAVANNAH, GA., May 23.—Christ Church the oldest in Georgia, where John Wesley preached before he promulgated the Methodist faith, was burned almost to the ground early Sunday morning.

The building contained all the records of Savannah since 1825, most of which are a total loss. Christ Church parish was founded early in the eighteenth century, soon after the settlement of Savannah. Its founder was Rev. Henry Herbert, who came over from England with Oglethorpe.

Smiles Irradiate the Countenance. When those atrocious bodily troubles, chills and fever, dyspepsia, kidney or humatic disorders yield, as they invariably do, to the benign action of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, it is a remedy of commendable use, pure in composition, unobjectionable to a delicate palate, and thorough in effect. Sick headache, loss of appetite, flesh, and sleep, nausea, heartburn, are among the physical annoyances obviated by the Bitters. They are in the nature of signals of distress displayed by a disordered stomach, liver and bowels, and disappear with the cause that produced them. But these signals should be heeded at once. Then the weak become loquacious, chronic ill health will speedily disappear, and vigor and comfort restore a cheerful aspect to the face. The faithful index to the condition of the system never fails to wear a look of sunshine when the Bitters is used to dispel the gloom.

Should know that Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription robs childbirth of its terrors and terrors for her as well as its dangers to both mother and child. Shocking Death of an Engineer.

Frederick Ginneman, aged sixty-five years, quarry engineer at the Cumberland Iron Works, was instantly killed at noon Tuesday. No one saw the accident, and the first intimation of it was given by the engine stopping. An investigation disclosed his dead body wedged to the floor by one of the spokes of a large gear wheel, causing the engine to stop. The machinery had to be reversed before his body could be pulled out. Both sides of his head and his chin were crushed. He had been complaining about his head, and it is supposed he became dizzy and fell in the wheel while trying to arrange some part of the machinery. His son, John Ginneman, was firing the boilers right below at the time of the accident.

Son-in-law Fatally Hurt.

Mr. Alvah Shank, a young married man residing near Myersville, Frederick county, arose in his sleep at 1 o'clock Tuesday morning of last week, and wandering to a high porch fell over the railing to the ground, a distance of 20 feet, and was seriously if not fatally injured. His wife heard him fall and summoned help. A physician was sent for, and upon examination found a severe wound upon his head, an ugly gash in his right side and a place near this wound where the flesh was peeled off the size of a man's hand. There were also cuts and bruises on his right arm. He suffered severe pain in his stomach, and it is feared he is internally injured.

Damaged by Lightning.

A terrific thunder storm swept over Hagerstown Monday evening and did some damage. Lightning struck the house of Mrs. Samuel Bailey, Cannon avenue, and knocked off the chimney, tore off the cornice and set the house on fire, but the fire was promptly extinguished. Mrs. Bailey was prostrated by the shock and the services of a physician were required. Her daughter, Miss Annie Bailey, was sleeping in a room near where the bolt struck and she was slightly affected. Another bolt knocked off the chimney off of W. G. Hay's house, Broadway. The rain poured in torrents, the streets resembled small creeks and the drains were overtaxed.

Horse Thief Captured.

A man charged with stealing a horse was arrested at Crystal Fount, near town, on last Sunday afternoon, by Deputy Sheriff Gatrell, of Washington county, Md. The thief is known by the name of Charles Collins, and was employed at Bloom's stable, in Hagerstown. The stolen horse belonged to Mr. George T. Gambrell, of near Hagerstown, and was taken from the stable on last Saturday night or early Sunday morning, and a hostler working for Mr. Gambrell's stable, Daniel Forsythe, manager of the farm, went to Hagerstown, and securing the services of Deputy Sheriff Gatrell, and after learning the above facts started in pursuit of the thief.

They traced him in the direction of Waynesboro, where Collins hired a buggy and a set harness, leaving the saddle and bridle, which he had also taken from Mr. Gambrell's stable, and started on his journey. A short distance from Waynesboro, a band of gypsies was encamped, with whom he succeeded in trading the horse and received some "boot" money. He then headed for Emmitsburg, arriving here about 9 o'clock Sunday morning. In a short time he made the acquaintance of two young colored men who were with him when arrested. Later in the morning Collins made another trade. This time with Samuel Overholzer, near this place, receiving another horse and a small amount of money.

The officer arrived here shortly after noon, and soon succeeded in locating his man, with the result above stated. The prisoner was brought to town and kept at the Emmit House, until the Deputy hunted up Overholzer and exchanged the horses. In this way the horses were returned to their respective owners and all were made happy. Collins, it is said, had on the missing suit of clothes when captured. The prisoner stated that he had no desire to escape the officer, and that he was under the influence of liquor when he took the horse, and was in the same condition when arrested. The officer searched Collins while at the Emmit House and found $2.74 in his pockets.

Collins was taken to Hagerstown Sunday evening, and on Monday was given a hearing, before Justice P. E. Small, on the charge of stealing a horse from George T. Gambrell. The prisoner was held for the action of the grand jury in $500 bail.

Collins was formerly employed on the farm by Mr. Gambrell.

A Great Game of Ball.

Yesterday afternoon about two hundred persons congregated at the ball field, near town, to witness a game between the Seniors and Juniors, of this place. This game had been the talk of the town for several weeks past, and as the two teams were so unevenly matched in the game, it was not expected that nearly all the Seniors had not attempted to play ball for several years, caused much interest to be centered in the game.

During the first two or three innings things looked rather blue for the Juniors, as some of the players looked equally as blue, but finally the tide turned, the Juniors possessed more confidence than at the beginning of the game, and in a short time it was evident that the Seniors were simply "not in it." At the end of the game the score stood 39 to 24, in favor of the Juniors, and they made the welkin ring with prolonged shouts of joy, while the Seniors will be subjected to the criticisms of their younger brethren for sometime to come.

The teams were composed of the following players: Juniors—Joseph Slagie, George Keller, Leslie Maxwell, Harry Kreis, Annan Horner, Chas. Rider, Lewis Stout, Willie Rowe, C. Joseph Rowe, B. Seniors—Thaddeus Zimmerman, C. Chas. R. Hoke, Samuel Rowe, William Sellers, p., Luther Zimmerman, Ed. Rider, L. E. Higbee, Victor E. Rowe, Edgar L. Annan.

Batteries—Juniors, Willie Rowe, and George Rowe. Seniors, Thaddeus Zimmerman and Wm. Sellers.

Errors—Between 275 and 300, according to the report of one of the senior players.

Umpires—James Bouey and E. H. Rowe.

All honor to the junior boys. We suggest that these two teams play another game on July 3.

School Trustees.

Mr. George C. Pearson, school examiner for Washington county, said Monday: "I see the Cent. News and Carroll counties have appointed some women as school trustees and that Dorchester is hesitating. Talbot county raises the question whether the appointment of women is legal. For myself, I am not very seriously opposed to their appointment. It is not at all likely, though, that Washington county's school board will appoint women. If women are appointed they should be well educated and capable of raising the standard of the schools. If they cannot do this there would be little use for making a change from men to women. They should also be possessed of business tact. Ex-teachers, I believe, would make the best trustees. The women would certainly see that the schools are kept clean."

To Put On

Needed flesh, no matter how you've lost it take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It works wonders. By restoring the normal action of the digestive organs and functions, it builds the flesh up to a safe and healthy standard—promptly, pleasantly and naturally. The weak, emaciated, thin, pale and puny are made strong, plump, round and rosy. Nothing so effective as a strength restorer and flesh maker is known to medical science; this puts on healthy flesh not the fat of cod liver oil. It rouses every organ of the body to activity, purifies, enriches and vitalizes the blood so that the body feels refreshed and strengthened. If you are too thin, too nervous, too nervous, it may be that the food assimilation is at fault. A certain amount of bile is necessary for the reception of the fat foods in the blood. Too often the liver holds back this element which would help digestion. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery stimulates, tones up and invigorates the liver, nourishes the blood, and the muscles, stomach and nerves get the rich blood they require.

Owen Bowie, charged with Murder, Driven by Starvation to Surrender.

Owen Bowie, who, as charged by the coroner's jury, shot and killed Charles Smith, near Gettysburg, Frederick county, on the 10th instant, went to Frederick Sunday evening in company with two colored men and surrendered himself to Sheriff A. C. McBride. The sheriff with his deputies had been in hot pursuit of the fugitives. On Friday they arrested Lewis Smith and Columbus Thompson, colored, charged with furnishing Bowie with food in the mountains, where he has been in hiding. The arrest of the men had the effect of frightening the colored people, and consequently his supply of rations was cut off. Sunday morning, suffering with hunger, Bowie sent a note to John T. Diggs and his brother William, to come to the woods. Accompanied by several other colored men, they went to a stable on the edge of the woods, and calling to Bowie, they learned that he was nearly dead from starvation and that if food was not supplied he would die. They advised him to come and surrender himself to the law. Acting upon this, he came to the edge of the dense woods, being scarcely able to walk, and requested that he be taken to Frederick. A team was procured and the man assisted to get in, when he was driven to Frederick and given to the sheriff.

It is understood that a member of the Church, about ten miles from Frederick, Bowie looks very emaciated and despondent, and refused to speak about the shooting or of his movements since the shooting.

The Diggs brothers, to whom he surrendered, will receive the $100 reward which was offered by the county commissioners for his arrest.

Articles Recovered.

Robert Wallace, who was arrested about ten days ago by Patrolman Tankersley, of the central district of Baltimore, while endeavoring to dispose of several gold-lined silver communion vessels on Centre Market space, was Friday committed to jail for the action of the Frederick county authorities by justice Sultz.

The articles were stolen from Joseph's Church, Carroll's Manor, near Buckeystown, this county, and the fact of the robbery and the identification of the articles was brought about by the publication of an item about Wallace's arrest. Rev. Joseph Tankersley, of St. John's Catholic Church, Frederick, who serves mass at St. Joseph's Church, Carroll's Manor, read an account of the arrest of Wallace about the same time he learned that St. Joseph's Church had been robbed. He went to Baltimore Friday and identified the articles found on Wallace.

Sheriff A. C. McBride went to Baltimore Saturday and took Wallace to Frederick.

The Popular Douglas Shoes.

There is no shoe made for men's wear that has attained a greater popularity than the celebrated W. L. Douglas shoe. The fact that they combine style and quality at a low price has given them universal endorsement. The makers of these shoes has made it possible for a man in the most ordinary circumstances to keep himself provided with footwear of as good style as the market affords—the extremely low price at which they are sold placing them within reach of all.

The only change in quality in them however is the price; in all other respects they grade as high as any shoe in the market. Their lasting qualities have been fully tested and found to be unequalled. They are not only of good style when new, but retain their shape and excellent appearance until completely worn out—a very rare quality in even the highest priced shoes. They are sold in Emmitsburg by M. Frank Rowe who has just received a new invoice of the various styles.

"They are dandies" said Thos. Bowers of the Crockett, Texas, Express, while writing about DeWitt's Little Early Risers, the famous little pills for sick headache and disorders of the stomach and liver. Geo. W. Ogle & Son.

Maryland Classis.

The annual meeting of the Maryland Classis of the Reformed Church, convened in Westminster on Wednesday evening of last week, and the following is a synopsis of the business transacted during its sessions:

On Friday evening acting treasurer, Rev. Calvin S. Slagle, read his report, which showed $682 for beneficiary education; church extension, $4,501; foreign missions, $1,279; contingent fund, $826; sustentation, $471; ministerial relief, $159; church building, $151; Calvin College, $65; Spessart missions, $14; Theological Seminary, $83; Chicago mission, $42; Harbor missions, $59; miscellaneous, $1,313. Total receipts, $12,386. Paid out, $11,980. Balance on hand, $405.

The special committee to whom the disbursements of Rev. Thurmont charge was referred reported. It was decided after a lengthy and animated discussion to appoint a committee to confer with the Thurmont charge and after a careful review of the situation to propose definite plans for a classis.

Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Thomas, of Washington, gave a reception to the classis Friday night in honor of Mrs. J. M. Hood, of Frederick. It will be remembered that Mrs. Hood recently contributed $200 toward the endowment of Woman's College, Frederick, an institution within the bounds of this classis.

On Saturday the classis appointed Revs. W. T. Stewart, S. M. Roeder, H. J. McAllister, W. S. Kefauver and John Gasman the committee on the division of Thurmont charge.

Rev. Calvin S. Slagle was elected a member of the board to fill the vacancy caused by the expiration of the term of Elder Samuel Butrow, of Frederick. The appeal of Deacon Calvin R. Main from the decision of the spiritual council of the congregation at Washington, D. C., was rejected.

Classis elected Rev. A. Bateman, of Taneytown, Rev. K. G. Spessart, of Union Bridge, and Rev. Frederick W. Bald, of Baltimore, life members of the Ministerial Relief Society.

Carroll charge will receive $50 sustentation next year.

Rev. S. S. Miller, pastor of Mt. Pleasant charge, Frederick county, resigned, and asked classis to dissolve the pastoral relation. The request was granted. Rev. Mr. Miller will take charge of the Daniel Stine Memorial Home for Aged Ministers, and Widows of Ministers, at Myerstown, Pa., on Saturday.

A. Conner, Jr., S. M. Hench and Dr. E. E. Eschbach were appointed a committee of supply for the Mt. Pleasant charge.

The pastor, Rev. E. R. Eschbach, D. D., and the consistory of Frederick, of the Reformed Church at Frederick, at their request, were authorized to organize a second English congregation there as soon as the proper conditions are at hand.</

NAVAL MISHAPS.

We Make Too Much Fuss and Sensation Over Trifles. We have a good navy, and we do not appreciate it. As a matter of fact, casualties to our navy are not particularly frequent...

There is nothing in our records to compare with the capsizing of the British frigate Captain with half a thousand men in 1870, or the fatal collision of the British ironclad Vanguard and the German ironclad Kaiser Wilhelm and Grosser Kurftur...

The list of minor accidents to foreign naval vessels in the past few years would be too long to enumerate. But the stranding of the British ironclad Howe and Anson, the flagship Amphion of the cruiser Sultan were far more grave affairs than any such accidents which have occurred to any of our own heavy vessels within this period.

They had been in the habit of passing part of his time at a certain hostelry—that is all the description necessary of the place—presided over by a fat, good natured German. They had known each other well and were on excellent terms.

It came about one day, during the breakfasting of a bill, that Mr. Goodwin suggested an item of $50. In doing so he was morally certain that the indebtedness was not his. Mine host was equally sure on his side of the contrary.

The dispute waxed hot and heavy. "See here," said Goodwin, "I don't care for a trifling amount like $50. It's the principle of the thing, that's all. Just the principle of the thing."

"Der same way mit me," retorted the landlord. "I don't care for $100, $500."

"Perhaps not," doubted the comedian. "But I'd sooner throw the money away or burn it than give it to you when I don't owe it to you."

"Ah," exclaimed the German sarcastically. "You had money to burn, eh? Well, I don't believe me dot."

"Is that so?" returned Nat. "Well, now, I'll tell you what I'll do with you. I'll turn $50 right here before your eyes if you'll receipt the bill."

"By Chiminy!" said the host. "I'll receipt you voice."

Without another word Nat Goodwin took his checkbook out of his pocket, flicked out a check for $50, tore it out, and handed it to the host.

The German, who had watched the process with bulging eyes, banged a rubber stamp on the disputed bill, removed his signature across it and said with a sigh:

"Chumping divicent! You can't get receipt of der debt acter fellows no low."—New York Journal.

SHAKING WITH 60,000. The "God Bless You" of Honest Hearted People a Benediction.

In an article describing "The Social Life of the President" in The Ladies Home Journal ex-President Harrison tells of the fatigues of handshaking and also of the benefits of being brought in contact with the good, honest hearts of the people.

"The first two weeks of an administration," he says, "the president shakes hands with from 40,000 to 60,000 persons. The physical strain of this is very great, and if the president is not an instructed handshaker a lame arm and a swollen hand soon result. This may be largely or entirely avoided by using President Hayes' method—take the hand extended to you and grip it before your hand is gripped. It is the passive hand that gets hurt. It has been suggested that a rod or bow should be substituted for the handshake, but it would be quite as inadmissible to suggest a revision of the Declaration of Independence.

The interest which presidents attach to a handshake with the president is so great that people will endure the greatest discomfort and not a little peril to their limbs to attain it. These are not the only reasons, but the good, honest hearted, patriotic people whose "God Bless You" is a prayer and a benediction. They come to Washington for the inauguration, and later with excursions, but they are mostly to be found near their own homes. They come out to meet the president when he takes a journey, and his contact with them and their unselfish and even affectionate interest in him revive his courage and elevate his purposes. Mr. Lincoln is said to have called the popular receptions his "public opinion baths."

Gladsone and the Queen. Gladstone is the one living man whose political experience stretches beyond that of the queen. His is the one name that for a longer period than that of the queen has filled the political stage. That is a remarkable position for any public man to hold. To all others the queen represents knowledge, experience and training which none of them can possibly possess. She knows more about politics, persons, movements, routine, than any man who may be one of her advisers. She began by learning from the least of them; she ends by instructing them all. No one knows so much of the private life of men and of families, and in all her life there has been from Gladstone's case, of which we yet know little or nothing, no example of any mistake or indiscretion on the part of the queen. She has hated some of her advisers, distrusted some, and merely disliked others, but every one of them has testified to her perfect faithfulness to them all.—"Yoke of the Empire," by R. B. Brett.

A MAN OF APPETITE.

AN AWFUL ORDEAL FOR A DYSPEPTIC LITTLE LAWYER.

Went into the Restaurant Just to Have a Few Oysters—Met Mr. Grump, the Brewer, Who Was Lunching a Little Before Going Home to Supper.

There used to be a famous place for these things down in Atlanta," remarked the portly gentleman as he cautiously eyed the Welsh rabbit and sipped his musty ale.

"Why, don't these suit you?" asked the man who had never traveled. "Oh, yes, fine, but I was just thinking of a little incident that occurred there."

"A story, is it? Well, let's have it." "It's not the best I can. You see, the place I spoke of was kept by a man named Beirmister and was not only famous for its Welsh rabbits, but for its oysters and hard crabs as well. Delicious they were too.

"There was a dyspeptic little lawyer around town, sharp and shrewd, but a martyr to the stomach. He used to go around with the boys until some one would suggest going over to Beirmister's and getting some crabs and beer; then you could count the lawyer out. The boys would try to persuade him by telling him how delightful were the crabs, how succulent the oysters, but the lawyer would flee from them in terror at the thought.

"About 5 o'clock one fine afternoon in the early spring a friend and myself were journeying toward Beirmister's when we met the dyspeptic lawyer. As usual, he stopped us for a little chat, and we walked down the street together. In a few moments we were in front of Beirmister's, and my friend, taking a different tack, persuaded the little lawyer to enter with us on the plea that we would find no one in at this time of day and that we were going to eat a few oysters.

"Once inside, we found the place crowded. The seats at the tables were all occupied, except at one table, over in a far corner of the room, at which there were three vacant chairs, the fourth being occupied by a fat German brewer named Grump. We knew Grump, and so went to this table. I introduced the lawyer to the brewer and ordered beer for the crowd. The lawyer protested, and we left him out.

"Mr. Grump," I remarked, "we are about to have a few oysters. Won't you join us?" "Well, you see, I have already something ordered."

"Oh, that's all right," I insisted. "A few oysters will give you an appetite."

"Is dot so? Yeah, I take me a few—chust von little dozen."

"My friend had been engaged in an earnest conversation with the lawyer while I was talking to the jolly old German, and when the waiter came with the beer he told him to bring some crabs, a 1/2 dozen oysters on the shell and a glass of hot water. He had persuaded Blakely to try some oysters.

"At Beirmister's when an order was given for crabs they invariably brought a dozen, and you paid for as many as you consumed out of that number. The waiter soon returned with oysters, crabs and hot water. In the meantime Grump, who was a great talker, had struck up a conversation with the lawyer, and they were cracking jokes at a great rate.

"Blakely's courage fell when the oysters were placed before him. He manfully drank the hot water and commenced to imitate Grump's heroic style of eating oysters. He managed to down two and then laid his fork gently by his plate and fastened his eyes on Grump. With the aid of a few glassfuls of beer the brewer's oysters had vanished. My friend had managed to get away with two crabs and insisted that Grump help him dispose of the remainder. I was still busy with my dozen oysters.

"Well, I help you some," said Grump, and picking up a knife he went at those crabs like a ducky shucking oyster. The dyspeptic watched him as he engaged in that and remarked in an enquiring tone that came straight from the stomach:

"You have a good appetite, Mr. Grump."

"Yah, I tink pretty good," he actively went for another crab. The dish was cleared in a few moments, and I made a mental note that Grump had eaten nine crabs, a dozen large oysters, and drank ten glasses of beer. When the crabs were no more, Grump called to a waiter:

"Here, Franz, I am waiting, and in a few moments brought in a large Welsh rabbit and deposited it before Grump. I could see the little lawyer shrink from the odor wafted across the table, but he was game and would have staid at that table until he died. Grump insisted that we share the dish with him, but all hands refused.

"With apparent relish and a fresh glass of beer he attacked the rabbit, and in an incredibly short time the dish was clear of the least particle. Grump wiped his mouth, folded his napkin, and called for another round of beer. If I had not had a reputation to sustain, I would have refused, but as it was we drained the glasses.

"Now, I must home be going," remarked Grump, rising.

"What's your hurry?" asked the dyspeptic lawyer in his most sarcastic tones. "Dey say I had to have something else."

"Neh, I must to mein supper go," answered the German.

"The dyspeptic wilted. Now, if you are looking for a fight, just tell that little lawyer that Grump wants him to eat supper with him. You'll get it quick and strong."—Washington Post.

MELTED SNOW POWER. Swiss Towns That Utilize the Mountain Streams.

Besides a considerable number of large water power installations Switzerland is full of small power plants, nearly every town in that land of mountains and waterfalls being well supplied with power from the "white coal," as the melting snow on the mountain sides has well been called.

When there are no large streams, many small ones are impounded and collected in reservoirs on the hillsides, and it is rare to find a place of any size which is not well lighted by the power of some mountain stream.

At Montreux the electric tramway gets its power in this way, and from the old Roman town of Vevey to the medieval castle of Chillon one may ride in a trolley car propelled by the power of an insignificant little stream which may or may not be noticed when climbing up the hillsides just above.

The capabilities of this general utilization of natural power are beginning to be understood everywhere, and, with the appreciation of the possibilities of the best methods of long distance transmission, the development of many mountain streams must surely come. There are innumerable streams, which, while very small, are yet very high, and these can with comparatively little difficulty be impounded and carried down many hundreds of feet, thus making up for their lack of volume by the great pressure readily obtainable, and, either by the use of electricity or compressed air, the power may be transmitted to many points of application with but little loss.—Cassier's Magazine.

A Weathercock Made by Paul Revere. In taking down the steeple of the old Methodist church in Watertown, which the Young Men's Catholic association is remodeling for its use, the historic old weathercock on top of the steeple had to be removed. He is 2 1/2 feet high, with a pewter body and copper tail, and is said to have been made by Paul Revere when about 20 years old. It is said that the weathercock was originally placed, in 1755, on the old church building, which was demolished in 1837. There is some dispute about his ownership, the Unitarians claiming that he was simply loaned to the Methodists when the latter built their church in 1847, while the Methodists claim that they bought him from the town. He will probably be presented to the Watertown Historical society.—Boston Transcript.

Dresden's Newspaper.

The city of Dresden owns a daily paper, the Dresdener Anzeiger, which was given to it by its late proprietor on the condition that all profits arising therefrom should be spent upon the public parks.

This year a large playground of nearly eight acres was purchased from Prince George, the king's brother and heir apparent, and it will be ready for use this summer. The paper continues to hold the respect of all citizens, for the trust has been carried out in its broadest spirit, and the power has never been employed to foster any school of opinions—social, political or religious.

It is not generally known that, with certain exceptions, the population of the British Isles are liable to conscription for the militia.

MELTED SNOW POWER. Swiss Towns That Utilize the Mountain Streams.

Besides a considerable number of large water power installations Switzerland is full of small power plants, nearly every town in that land of mountains and waterfalls being well supplied with power from the "white coal," as the melting snow on the mountain sides has well been called.

When there are no large streams, many small ones are impounded and collected in reservoirs on the hillsides, and it is rare to find a place of any size which is not well lighted by the power of some mountain stream.

At Montreux the electric tramway gets its power in this way, and from the old Roman town of Vevey to the medieval castle of Chillon one may ride in a trolley car propelled by the power of an insignificant little stream which may or may not be noticed when climbing up the hillsides just above.
