Electric Road Sold.

The Gettysburg Electric Railway was sold last Thursday at the Court-house in Gettysburg, under foreclosure proceedings by order of Judge Dallas, of the United States Circuit Court.

There was only one bid of $50,000 and the property was struck off to Horace A. Doan, of Philadelphia, president of the West End Trust Company; Max Riebenack, a director of the Pennsylvania Railroad, and Luther S. Bent, president of the Maryland Steel Company, and a certified check for $20,000 was handed to the creditor immediately after the sale.

The purchasers, it is understood, will reorganize the company. Among those likely to be interested are E. C. Feiton, president of the Pennsylvania Steel Company, and Henry Sage, of Easton, who were present at the sale.

Before the property was struck down John L. Kandlehart, Esq., attorney for the Borough of Gettysburg, gave notice that the Borough does not recognize the right of the road to occupy Steinwehr Avenue from Washington street to the Borough limits, as the right to occupy that avenue has never been granted by ordinance, and he gave notice also that the Borough would demand the fulfillment of the contract by which the Railroad Company is to keep certain parts of the streets in repair.—Compiler.

FOR CUBA RECOGNITION.

WASHINGTON, June 14.—In the area in front of the Speaker's rostrum when the House met today was a monster petition appealing to Congress to recognize the Cuban insurgents as belligerent. It contained over 6,000,000 signatures. The petition was wound about the hub of a wheel framed so as to allow it to freely revolve. It had been in circulation throughout the United States for about six months and was sent to Congressman Sulzer of New York for presentation to Congress by Franz Mayer, a resident of his district.

Closing Exercises

St. Euphemia's School.—Bishop Allen of Mobile, Presided and Addressed the Scholars.—Program Well Rendered.—Premiums Awarded to the Successful Students. Wednesday afternoon marked another very interesting event in the history of St. Euphemia's School, of this place. The occasion being the annual closing exercises of the school, and as usual, the large music hall—specieally decorated for the occasion—was crowded with the parents and friends of the pupils, some of whom had come from a distance to witness the exercises, which were of an unusually interesting nature, and the children who took an active part in rendering the excellently selected programme, acquitted themselves in a manner worthy of their instructors, and the Sisters in charge of the school, have every reason to feel proud of the good showing made by their pupils, evincing the fact that their efforts during the past year have been attended with success.

For the first time in the history of St. Euphemia's School, the closing exercises were presided over by a Bishop, in the person of Rt. Rev. Edw. P. Allen, who was recently elevated to the Bishopric of Mobile. This is also the first time that Dr. Allen has had the pleasure of presiding at the commencement exercises of a school since his commencement at the University of Notre Dame, in 1852.

The exercises began promptly at three o'clock. The pupils entered the hall during the rendition of the Entrance March from Goria, performed on pianos by Misses M. Tyson, A. K. Keim, and G. E. Green, followed by an appropriate "Welcome to His Grace, Bishop Allen," which consisted of an address read by Miss Fannie Hoke, and with choruses by the school; at the conclusion of which the Address was presented to His Grace. The next selection was a very pleasing school chorus, entitled "Come Joia in Our Holiday." Fifteen intermediate girls then recited "Soliloquy and the Bees" to the delight of the audience.

The musical selection, was admirably rendered on the piano by Misses Sallie Hoke and May Kerrigan. These came the "Little Bonnie Brownies," which was performed to perfection by the boys, with drums, swords and red sashes, nobly acquitted themselves in the role of "Playing Soldiers." The song, "All is Gladness," was well rendered by the senior girls, and the song, "Spring," was another musical selection well executed on the piano by Misses B. Tyson, S. Sweeney and L. Ott. This was followed by the recitation—"Painter of Seville," by the First Senior Class, and the song, "Merry School Home," was also a good selection. The next selection was a good one by the Senior boys showed that they were filled with patriotism from the top of their heads to the soles of their feet. Oberon, Fantasia, was well executed on the piano by Misses A. Kavanagh and A. Baker. At the close of this selection the honors of the school were awarded to the most deserving pupils, after which the programme was continued as follows: "Hail to This Happy Hour," solo and chorus; Recitation—"Silvery and Pure," by Miss M. Kerrigan with expression by senior girls, and Hymn "All for Jesus," choir chorus, brought to a close a programme well rendered.

Bishop Allen addressed a few well chosen words to the scholars, thanking them for the beautiful address they had presented to him and gave them words of praise and encouragement, marking out to them the road that would lead them to success in this life and make them honored and respected citizens.

Bishop Allen was followed by Rev. H. F. White, C. M., of Germantown, Pa., formerly pastor of St. Joseph's Church, of this place, who was more than glad to be present on this happy occasion.

Gold medals and premiums were awarded as follows: Gold medal presented by Rev. E. J. Lefevre, of the Catholic Doctrine in Christian Doctrine was awarded to Miss May Kerrigan. For having attained, equally, the next highest percentage on the same subject, premiums were awarded to Misses Alice Baker and Genevieve Tyson. Gold medals were presented by Rev. J. A. Maloney, to the girls department, for the highest percentage in mathematics and composition, was awarded to Miss Gertrude Lawrence. For having attained, equally, the next highest average, premiums were awarded to Misses May Kerrigan and Alice Baker.

Gold medal presented by Mrs. James Coleman, of Washington, D. C., to the boys' department, for the highest percentage in mathematics and composition, was awarded to Master Maurice Nusser. For having attained the next highest percentage, premium was awarded to Master Frederick Walty. Gold Roll of Honor medal presented by Miss Mary Egan, was drawn for by the following pupils, for having attained an average of 90 per cent. or over, in attendance, deportment and scholarship, every grade of the scholastic year: Misses Gertrude Lawrence, Genevieve Tyson and Master Frederick Walty. Wise Men Know

It is folly to build upon a poor foundation, either in architecture or in health. A foundation of sand is insecure, and to deaden symptoms by narcotics or nerve compounds is equally dangerous and deceptive. The true way to build up health is to make your blood pure, rich and nourishing by taking Hood's Sarsaparilla.

Commencement Exercises at St. Joseph's Academy.—Cardinal Gibbons Presided and Delivered an Address.—Annals and Premiums Awarded.—Program Well Rendered.—Alumni Association Organized.—Fine Work of Art, Etc.

The eighty-eighth annual commencement exercises of St. Joseph's Academy were held Wednesday morning. His Eminence, Cardinal Gibbons, presiding. The appearance of this world renowned institution has been greatly changed since last year's closing exercises, and so much so, that probably those who have been regular visitors to their alma mater for many years did not recognize at first the old time-honored institution. This great change has been brought about by the improvements now being made on the avenue leading to the buildings. The old massive trees on either side of the avenue have been removed, and the old flag stones on the walk-ways are no more to be seen. They have found a resting place in a more secluded spot on the Academy grounds. The walks leading to the institution are now being made of the most modern pavement material, and young and prettier shade trees have taken the place of those which supplied shade for more than three fourths of a century.

The old distribution hall of the academy was crowded with parents, relatives and friends of the young lady students. And the programme rendered was of an unusually interesting nature, and every part of which was performed by the young actors in the most pleasing and satisfactory manner, reflecting great credit upon themselves and the Sister in charge of the institution.

To the melodious strains of the Entrance March, performed by Misses M. Deppen, F. Burguiers, L. Flannery, S. Young, N. Stewart, C. Kenny, on pianos; Misses L. O'Connell, L. Burguiers, harps; Misses A. Schaus, P. Flannery, Organs; Misses R. McManus, P. Seforth, J. Blanche, mandolins; Miss K. Curtin, mandola; Misses F. Seaforth, H. Redmond, guitars, the students entered the hall and took seats facing the large gallery.

This was followed by the reading of a beautiful "Greeting to Our Cardinal," in which the blessing of His Eminence was solicited, and at the conclusion of the reading of the greeting, the Cardinal bestowed his blessing upon the students. The next selection was by the vocal class, "Tis The Festival Hour," Wallace; "The Nymphs' Revel"—harp solo, Miss L. O'Connell; vocal solo—"Stella," Miss L. Mullen, after which premiums in the English Classes, Music, Languages, Art and Ornamental Department were awarded. The musical part of the programme was then continued as follows: Cantata—"Our Nation's Song," accompanists, pianos, harps, organs; Physical Culture Exercise, by advanced class; Die Lustigen Weiber Von Windsor, Instrumental Quartet, Vocal Solo, by Miss A. Schaus; Coronation; Selection from N. P. Willis, (Recitation), by Miss L. Mullen; Fleurs D'arte, instrumental selection, on piano, harp, organs, mandolins, mandola and guitars; Lost Chord, by vocal class; Academic Honors; Farewell to St. Joseph's, words by Miss Ave Kalbach, of Lancaster, Pa. Address by the Cardinal.

After the academic honors had been conferred, Cardinal Gibbons made an address to the graduates. He said in part: "In the memorable year of 1876, the Centennial year, I had the happiness of listening to the national airs in this hall. The music still rings in my ears. I admire the voices that today voice the same stirring strains with equal sweetness as I did twenty-one years ago. The patriotic sentiment is as strong to-day as it was then, and, though wives and daughters must keep from the arena of politics, lest the dust of the contact tarnish the shining lustre of their feminine delicacy, still we venture to assert that in the heart of no father, patriot or patriot does the fire of love of country, second only to the love of our Creator, glow more brightly than in the noble hearts of the Catholic young ladies of our great republic. Charity and Christian education—such is the watchword which has given to our homes angles of earth. Many a home would be made desolate, many a lamp of faith would burn but dimly, if not fed by the oil of the devoted lives of mothers and daughters. I would like to impress upon all these young ladies that they have a mission to accomplish. True, you have not to preach, for St. Paul says the voice of woman must not be heard in the church; but, oh, what can you not do! De Maistre tells us woman has a voice! Give us an Aeneid or Paradise Lost, Ordinations.—Graduating Exercises.—Cardinal Gibbons, Presided.—Bishop Allen Said Farewell to Students, Faculty and Friends.—Rev. Wm. O'Hara Elected President of the College.—Fine Speeches and Good Music.

Rt. Rev. Edward P. Allen, Bishop of Mobile, celebrated solemn pontifical mass at Mt. St. Mary's College on last Sunday, and at the same time conferred orders on the following young men: Rev. Philip Gallagher, of Coaldale, Pa.; Rev. James J. Farrell, of Central Falls, R. I., and Rev. Thomas Cassidy, of Providence, R. I., were ordained priests for the Dioceses of Philadelphia, Boston and Mobile, respectively. Messrs. Joseph Wright and John Kelly, of Mobile Diocese, received minor orders, and Mr. John T. Hill, of Louisville, Tennessee. The college choir rendered a special mass. Bishop Allen was assisted by the following: Assistant priest, Very Rev. Edward F. X. McSweeney, S. T. D.; deacon, Very Rev. John J. Tierney, D. D.; sub-deacon, Rev. Peter A. Coad, A. M.; master of ceremonies, Rev. B. J. Bradley, A. M.; assistant master of ceremonies, Mr. John A. Gallagher; acolytes, Messrs. T. F. Howard and James McCafferty; mite-bearer, Mr. Aloysius Malone; cross-bearer, Mr. John O. Cotter; book and candle-bearer, Messrs. Edward F. Saunders and John C. Connolly; minister de gremial, Mr. James O'Brien; minister de baldistorio, Mr. John J. McCloskey; thurifer, Mr. P. J. Duncan.

The commencement exercises proper took place Tuesday morning. The classic buildings of the "Old Mountain," never presented a brighter, prettier and more inviting appearance than they did on that typical June morning. Parents and friends of the young students began to arrive as early as Saturday preceding commencement day, and long before the appointed hour for the exercises to begin, the spacious Music Hall was crowded with an appreciated audience—the attendance being much larger than for several years.

The hall was tastefully decorated with red, white, yellow and blue bunting, and ferns and flowers. On the wall in the rear of the speaker's stand were two large pictures, one of His Eminence, Cardinal Gibbons, and the other of Bishop Allen, who had so well and so faithfully served the college as its president for about twelve years, and the Stars and Stripes formed a pleasing background for these two pictures.

During the rendition of the Entrance March—"Aida," which was rendered by the Orchestra, under the proficient leadership of Prof. Frederick W. Isler, acting president, Rev. Wm. L. O'Hara, His Eminence, Cardinal Gibbons, and Rt. Rev. Edward P. Allen, Bishop of Mobile, entered the hall, followed by the members of the faculty.

Among those who occupied seats on the rostrum with the Cardinal, Bishop and Father O'Hara, were Rev. Edward McSweeney, S. T. D., Rev. B. J. Bradley, Rev. Dr. Tierney, Prof. Chas. H. Jordan, Prof. Ernest Lagarde, Dr. James A. Mitchell, Prof. E. J. Ryan and other members of the faculty.

Then came the graduates wearing black gowns and mortar-boards. They occupied seats in front of the platform. The first speaker was James Gibbons, of New Orleans, La., whose subject was "Mental Evolution." This young man is a nephew of Cardinal Gibbons, which made the occasion one of an unusually interesting nature to His Eminence. After this address the Orchestra rendered an overture entitled, "Preciosa." "Will Government by the People Endure?" was the subject of Leo A. McTigue's address, which was followed by Prayer and Chorus—"Magic Flute," by James J. Gill, Glee Club and Orchestra. Speech—"The American Poets," by Michael P. Kirby; Selection from Twelfth Mass—"Gloria," was then rendered in a very pleasing manner by the Orchestra. Speech—"The Italians, the Masters of Art," William E. Kennedy; March—"Tannhauser," Orchestra.

This was followed by recess, during which time a substantial lunch was served to the students and guests. After the recess the exercises were continued as follows: Overture—"America," by Orchestra; Conferring of Degrees; Quartette from "Uta," "The Warrior's Rest," by John J. Hurley, Joseph P. Kennedy, William R. Houghton and James J. Gill; Valedictory, John C. Kelly, Pittsburg, Pa.; Tolly—"The Pretty Mountain Maid," Orchestra; Chorus—"Faust," the Glee Club; Caprice Heroique—"The Awakening of the Lion," Orchestra.

The address to graduates was delivered by Cardinal Gibbons, who dwelt principally upon the dignity of man. He spoke of the noble mission which awaits the honest, industrious young man, and particular if he be a man of religious conviction and principle, one who follows the guidance of conscience rather than expediency. He also paid an excellent tribute to the character and worth of Bishop Allen, who occupied with him a seat on the stand.

At the conclusion of the Cardinal's remarks, Bishop Allen addressed the students, speaking feelingly of the pleasant relations which at all times existed between himself, the faculty, students and people of the neighborhood. He stated that today he would finally sever his official connection with the College, and that his successor to the presidency would be chosen, and he asked that the same generous consideration, which he had received, be given his successor.

SQUARED ACCOUNTS.

HOW DE SMITH TURNED SEVERAL TABLES ON HIS FRIEND JONES.

Started In With a Shower Bath, Followed With Several Other Annoying Pleasantries and Wound Up With a Grand Onslaught of Life Insurance Agents.

"Well, I guess I've got even with Jones all right enough for all the practical jokes he has been playing on me for the last week," said De Smith gleefully...

"Well, Jones is a great joker, you know," explained De Smith. "He thinks it's a good thing to thump and pound like the dence on a fellow's door as he goes down the hotel corridor about 2 o'clock in the morning. He never goes to bed when a decent man should, and he rather resents it if any of his friends do. He has been pounding on my door that way now almost every morning for the past week."

"Why didn't you get up and kick him?" asked one of the party. "I did try to three or four times," replied De Smith, "but he always got down the hall a little way and then laughed at me. But I'm even with him now. I was fixed for him when he came along this morning. I had a big pail of water fixed over the transom, and when old Jones came along and began thumping I pulled the string fastened to it, and I heard old Jones curse under his breath and mutter, 'Damn you, De Smith, I'll get even for this.' Then he walked down the hall and I looked out in time to see him shaking the water off his coat and hat."

"That was getting even pretty well, old man. I wish I could have seen him when the flood struck him," put in one of the party. "Oh, that was all right for a starter," said De Smith, "but it wasn't half the dose I gave him after. You see, Jones has been breaking my sleep for a week, and it took more than a bucket of water to square accounts. I anticipated his visit this morning, so last night before going to bed I left an order to call him at 6 o'clock. Old Jones didn't get to bed before 3 o'clock, so he didn't get much sleep before 6. Then a bell boy began to pound on his door and shout that it was time to get up. Jones broke back to the boy to get out or he'd break his neck, but the boy replied that he had orders to get Jones out of bed and he was going to do it. Finally Jones got up in his rage and hustled down to the hotel office to find out what in thunder they meant by breaking his sleep that way. The clerk told him there was an order for a call at 6 o'clock, and that was all he knew about it."

"Well, Jones went back to bed, but he didn't get to sleep again. I paid the bell boy enough to prevent that, and at 9 o'clock he came down to breakfast. I was down town by that time, so I rang Jones up on the telephone. My office boy got him on the wire and told him to wait just a moment, please. Well, Jones waited about five minutes and then gave the bell a vicious ring. The boy answered the ring and asked Jones what he wanted. 'I want to know who rung me up,' said Jones. 'Nobody here,' said the boy, and he said he heard Jones swear as he rang off."

"Well, I gave him that telephone racket three times before he caught on. It was pretty hot, I guess, when he reached his office, but I had a reception for him there. I had telephoned to a lot of my life insurance friends that Jones wanted to take out a policy before leaving the city in the afternoon and advised them to send a man around to see him. There were two in the office when he reached it, and five more came in during the morning. Jones thought he was going to do a lot of work, too, but as a matter of fact he spent the day explaining that he didn't want any life insurance or anything else but a chance to tend to his own business. One of the agents finally let it out that I had recommended Jones as a good risk, and he rang me up at once. 'I've got enough,' he says. 'I'm willing to call it all square if you are. You've got the best of it, I admit,' he squaled, so I told him I was willing to call it off if he would remember not to hammer on my door hereafter when he was going by at 3 in the morning. He replied that he wouldn't rap at my door again if the hotel was atop, and so we called it off."

"Jones has beaten me out of a whole lot of sleep of late, but I guess I'm even, though. One of the Italian women in my neighborhood and my neighbor, the husband and Jewett at a crossroad, he got in unfortunately and telling her of it was so pitifully that Jewett at last said, 'Poor thing! She seems very miserable. Give her half a crown.' Sell said he had no money with him, and when the aims were forthcoming the fact was triumphantly unveiled."

The Laugh on Jewett.

Once when Professor Jowett was visiting his friend and pupil, Professor Blar, he declared that he never gave to beggars. Mrs. Sellar was an adept in "mystifications," an accomplishment popular in Scotch society since Sir Walter Scott's time. She disguised herself as a poor Highland woman and layd her husband and Jewett at a crossroad, he got in unfortunately and telling her of it was so pitifully that Jewett at last said, "Poor thing! She seems very miserable. Give her half a crown." Sell said he had no money with him, and when the aims were forthcoming the fact was triumphantly unveiled.

TORPEDO MINES.

A Deadly Force That is Used in Modern Harbor Defenses.

Modern harbor defenses are described in a treatise by Charles Rawson Thurston. He writes:

The torpedo mines are operated from mining casemates located at the entrances of harbors or bays, the exact situation and their interior arrangement being a department secret. Some mines are spherical in shape, about three feet in diameter, and constructed of steel.

These mines are intended for use in the channels that hostile ships, would have to sail through, and are formed in threes and set closely in the channel according to plans previously arranged.

If necessary, the sea off the entrance to a harbor or bay could be well filled with them. These mines may be exploded or may be perfectly harmless according to the will of the occupant of the mining casemate, who, with his important apparatus, is out of reach of shot and shell, there being tons of earth between him and the upper air.

Out from this chamber through a tunnel below low water mark, and hence safe from discovery by the enemy or shot from them, run numerous cables to the mines planted in the channel or in the sea. Within the chamber the operator has an elaborate chart with the location of every torpedo or mine area. By telegraph or other signals from observation stations near by he is kept informed of the approach of vessels, and acts as he thinks best under the circumstances. He may receive word from his stations to such effect that with his chart he knows a vessel is directly within a cluster of the sunken mines. Then he can touch a key, and a mine will instantly explode beneath or near the vessel. If the vessel is a friendly one, however, the operator can disconnect his batteries, and the ship will sail in perfect safety over the tons of explosive beneath. If the vessel is a foe, or if some other condition unfavorable for locating a vessel prevails, and enemies are known to be near, the pressing of many buttons will make every one of these mines a deadly force, and any ship that ventures to hit strike a torpedo, roll it over, and automatically close an electric circuit, which will explode the mine, and the ship will be sunk or badly shattered. There are various devices for ascertaining that the hidden mines and connections are in good working order.

President W. H. Harrison was not much of an epicure, but he had a great fancy for doing the marketing for the family. Every morning he would trudge to the market place with a basket on his arm and return an hour later carrying 40 or 50 pounds of produce.

General Grant was fond of fast driving, and he had some notable trotters in his stables during his two terms. In the evening he would play Boston with some of his army chums. He cared little for riding and was rarely seen on horseback in Washington.—Atlanta Constitution.

How a $20 Goldpiece Was Doctored by the Counterfeiters.

One of the most puzzled men in town is a Montgomery street restaurant keeper, who recently took in a $20 goldpiece which filled all the ordinary requirements of genuineness so far as the superficial test could reveal the true facts. But a few days ago a banker stepped into his place and saw the $20 piece which the restaurant man had received only a short time before. The banker had a queer look in his eyes as he took the coin and rapped it sharply with his knife, and the restaurant keeper had a stranger expression as he saw his supposed $20 piece break into two pieces.

PROOF OF SINCERITY.

How An Army Officer Stood the Supreme Test of Belief in Fatalism.

In the days of the "old army" on the frontier, when military posts were sometimes hundreds of miles from any civilized place, there was little to do in the way of amusement in the winter time when the post was snowbound, and it was then that the reputation of the army for card playing and drinking was gained. And it is true that a great deal of both was done at that time.

It was in these days that an event transpired that showed that the principal actor had the courage of his convictions, and that he was most certainly born under a lucky star. It was after a very "wet" stag dinner party, and all had partaken most freely of the wine, and, strange as it may seem, the subject that came up for discussion was the Mohammedan religion. The Mussulmans believe in fate. To them a man's fate is written above, and the time of his death is set, and nothing can alter it. Well, this belief had been discussed long and earnestly. The pros and cons had been gone over at length, till one officer wanted to know of what use was reason if every one was born with a tag of destiny attached. One officer finally arose and said there was no use of discussing the matter any further. The only way to make a practical test of the question, and he would give himself as a subject. Could a man willfully dispose of his life when the fatal moment had been chosen at his birth from above?

He could get no one to try the experiment on him. Finally a wager was made.

"Who will pay you if I lose?" said the subject as he drew his pistol and showed that it was loaded. He placed the pistol against his temple and pulled the trigger. The pistol missed fire.

"A joke," yelled the crowd. The fatalist smiled, and, cocking the pistol, aimed it with a steady hand at the clock on the wall. He fired, and the bullet crashed through the center of the dial.

"Apologize to me now," he said. "I have won the bet. I always believed in fate."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Dear Indeed.

"The dear, dear girls!" exclaimed Mrs. Pawkins, looking at her fashionable daughters enthusiastically.

"Yes, the dear, dear girls," muttered Mr. Pawkins despondently.—Pick Me Up.

Since the beginning of this century the use of the Italian language has greatly increased. In 1801 it was spoken by 15,070,000 people, and in 1890 it was used by 33,400,000.

PRESIDENTIAL FADS.

Our National Executives Have All Had Their Follies.

Every president since the time of Washington has had some particular pastime.

As every one knows, George Washington was a great sportsman. His greatest pleasure was in following the hounds, mounted on a tiptop hunter. He was an athlete in his youth and his love of outdoor life continued to the day of his death. When he was president, his chief diversion was horseback riding.

Thomas Jefferson sought relief from the cares of state in his love for music. He was a clever performer on the violin and whiled away many hours sending away on his beloved fiddle. He had a taste for mechanical inventions, too, and some of his happiest moments were those spent in trying to evolve some labor-saving device.

President Tyler had a deep and abiding love for the good American game of poker. Surrounded by a few chums, he spent many pleasant evenings drawing to boobyal flushes, filling against four aces and hoisting the full houses, bluffing on deuces, bucking ante. The stakes were invariably small, but history says that he was a bad loser.

Andrew Jackson was passionately fond of cockfighting, and when he left the Hermitage to run the nation at Washington he brought with him two of his finest fighting cocks. These he matched against the gamest roosters in the surrounding country, but the Tennessee article made but a feeble showing against the Virginia breed. President Jackson brought on several other pairs, but his birds invariably met defeat, and in this respect he said that his administration was a lamentable failure.

General Grant was fond of fast driving, and he had some notable trotters in his stables during his two terms. In the evening he would play Boston with some of his army chums. He cared little for riding and was rarely seen on horseback in Washington.—Atlanta Constitution.

BECHER'S ONLY POEM.

It was related by Mrs. Beecher that during their courtship Mr. Beecher had "dipped into poetry" and wrote a few lines of verse teeming with affection for his sweetheart. But the verses were always kept sacred by Mrs. Beecher, and nothing could win them from her. One day Mr. and Mrs. Beecher were in the office of Robert Denner, the publisher.

"Why don't you write a poem, Beecher?" said Mr. Denner.

"He did once," said Mrs. Beecher. "Recite it for me, won't you, Mrs. Beecher?"

But the eyes of the great preacher were riveted on his wife, and the knew that he meant leisure.

"Come," said Mr. Denner, "I'll give you $5,000 if you will recite that poem to me," addressing Mrs. Beecher.

"Why, it's—" quickly said Mrs. Beecher.

"Denner," simply said Mr. Beecher. "And although Robert Denner offered to double the sum first offered he never got the poem from Mrs. Beecher. It had been hidden away ever since by Mrs. Beecher and cherished as one of the dearest treasures her husband left her.—Boston Globe.

MAN'S MOST VULGAR HABIT.

"If men were compelled to wear skirts for a period, I think they would insist more than they now do that their fellow men should stop the nasty habit of 'spitting in public,'" writes Edward W. Bok in 'The Ladies' Home Journal.' "There is no practice of man which is more distressing to women than this disgusting habit. Women constantly complain of it, especially in our larger cities, where sometimes the sidewalks are scarcely fit for them to walk upon. They revolt at the practice, and they are right in so doing, yet year in and year out the habit not only continues but increases, and the protection of cleanliness, to which every woman walking upon our streets has a perfect right, is denied her."

INAUGURATION DAY.

When It Will Fall Upon Sundays and What Then Happens.

From the year 1917 to the year 2085 inauguration day will fall on Sunday every 28 years, but in changing from the twentieth century to the twenty-first the 40 year period comes in, and after 2085 the next inauguration Sunday will be in 2125. So, there will be a 40 year period from 2181 to 2221 and from 2277 to 2317, but only a 28 year period from 2373 to 2401, as 23 is not divisible by 4.

During any century whose number is divisible by 4 inauguration day falls on Sunday 4 times. During any century whose number is not divisible by 4, it falls on Sunday only 3 times. From 2000 to 2100, for instance, it will fall on Sunday 4 times and also from 2400 to 2500, 20 and 24 being divisible by 4, but from 1900 to 2000, it will fall on Sunday only 3 times, and so from 2100 to 2200, 19 and 21 not being divisible by 4. Observe that, in speaking of the number of a century, we do not mean the year, 20 is the number of the century—which we divide by 4—and 2000 is the year. Observe, also, that in all this we are not speaking of the recurrence of the date, March 4, but of the particular March 4ths that are inauguration days.

Here is a table showing how many times inauguration day falls on each of the seven days of the week from the year 1800 to the year 3000:

Table with 7 columns (SUNDAY, MONDAY, TUESDAY, WEDNESDAY, THURSDAY, FRIDAY, SATURDAY) and 21 rows (1800-3000) showing the number of times inauguration day falls on each day.

Perhaps it might be well to say that when inauguration day falls on Sunday, the incoming president takes the oath on Saturday, March 3, but is not formally inducted into office until Monday, March 5. This is done to prevent a lapse in the office, for the outgoing president has no authority as such after 12 o'clock, noon, on March 4, whether that date fall on Sunday or on any other day. If, therefore, occasion should arise between noon on Sunday, March 4, and noon on Monday, March 5, for the exercise of the presidential authority, the incoming president, having taken the oath of office, would be qualified to perform the duty. Such a case never has arisen, but it might arise.—Philadelphia Times.

To Make an Oyster Cocktail.

An oyster cocktail is made by putting into a glass half a dozen tiny little oysters, to which add a few drops of tobacco, a pinch of salt, a teaspoonful of Worcestershire sauce, a teaspoonful of tomato ketchup and a tablespoonful of lemon juice.—Mrs. S. T. Rorer in Ladies' Home Journal.

The Foremost Position.

When "The Philadelphia Record" annual direct on orders are to be made, the best of morning newspapers could be made and sold for one cent, but generally about 10 cents. But the world of readers was not asleep. Consequently, "The Record" was not long in reaching a commanding position, and, improving upon this, its circulation and influence were fully recognized among the foremost of American newspapers. Hence the compliment of initiation which is now paid to it in every city of note from the Atlantic coast to the Mississippi valley. Every city worth mentioning now has one or more good one-cent morning dailies, though some of them are not so good as "The Record" and "The Record" stood alone in the respect.

A paper so well read, with 16 to 24 pages for one cent, is a very property favorite. Though low in price it is never cheap, and square for its expense. It will give its readers the very best and freshest information of all that's going on around them.
