COAL AND IRON.

The Important Relationship of These Two

Valuable Minerals.

Statistics show that, whereas Great Britain in 1840 produced 75 per cent of the world's supply of coal, at the present time it produces only 34 per cent.

Atlantic liners no longer carry coal from Great Britain for the return journey. They now take in American coal, and no less than 1,500,000 tons of American coal were thus consumed in 1895. The condition of the iron manufacturing industries has always exercised a most important influence on the production of coal, so that a large demand for iron draws with it a large demand for mineral fuel. During the last 25 years the world's production of pig iron has increased from 12,000,000 to 26,000,000 tons, but the share taken by Great Britain has fallen from 48.8 per cent to 29 per cent, while that of the United States has increased from 14.1 per cent to 26.2 per cent, that of Germany from 11.4 per cent to 21.4 per cent, and that of Russia from 3 per cent to 4.7 per cent. Indeed, iron is now being imported from the United States into this country, and, incredible as it may seem, the railway station at Mid-dlesbrough, the center of the iron trade, is built of iron brought from Belgium.

Surely, then, the author of "Our Coal Resources at the Close of the Nineteenth Century" is hardly right in thinking that British coal and iron still hold their own. He argues that other countries of Europe are exhausting their : ** coal supplies just as Great Britain is, yet the figures he gives show that Ger- :

many has in reserve, within a depth of:

3,000 feet, 109,000,000,000 tons of coal as compared with our (England's) 81,683,000,000 tons within a depth of 4,000 feet. And this estimate does not include brown coal, of which Germany raises 25,000,000 tons annually .- Na-

It will be seen that the treaty is in danger of rejection, and that if llawaii is to become a part of the United States the union must be accomplished through a bill or joint resolution, which requires only a majority of votes in both houses.

SOME ONE MIGHT HEAR.

+ breathed my vows one evening Unto my love so fair. Her tresses brushed my forehead As I leaned above her chair. I saw her burning blushes As I whispered in her ear, But, oh, she would not answer! Said she, "Some one might hear!"

I grasped her hand and pressed it All fondly in mine own And told her that her image Was set on memory's throne. I vowed I loved her truly, That she to me was dear, "But, oh, no answer got I Save she feared "some one might hear!"

i scouted at her caution. My breath did fan her cheek. I implored in fervent language That she to me would speak. I saw her with emotion Wipe from her eye a tear, Yet still she softly murmured "Suppose some one should hear!"

My hopes began to vanish. My tears commenced to flow, And to hide from her my weakness I turned away to go, When I heard a trembling whisper Fall softly on my ear, "Oh, yes, I fondly love you, And I care not who may hear!" -Finley Johnson in New York Ledger.
