

THE PEOPLE WILL DECIDE.

Last week's issue of the Frederick Examiner contained a lengthy editorial setting forth many reasons why the Sixth Congressional Republican Nominating Convention should select a candidate from Frederick county for congressional honors. This District is now represented in the House of Representatives by a Montgomery county man—Capt. John McDonald,—whose chances for renomination are not very bright. The Captain's own people very gracefully laid him on the shelf at the recent primary meetings in that county. According to the present condition of affairs in Montgomery, Capt. McDonald cannot consistently hope for the other counties in the district to cast their vote for him, when he considers that his own county failed to give him its endorsement. Therefore it is natural to suppose that the nominating convention will look to some other county for a candidate.

In regard to selecting a candidate from Frederick county there would be no difficulty, as this county has many illustrious sons, who would be more than willing to sacrifice their present business arrangements to represent the Sixth District in the halls of Congress. Many of whom are well qualified to fill this important position with credit and honor to the people of old Frederick county. And as this county has not furnished a republican candidate for a number of years, the aspirants from this county are justly entitled to favorable consideration at the hands of the nominating convention.

Washington, Allegany and the other counties in the District, also, have candidates, who are earnestly appealing to their constituents for recognition.

To the people at large it makes very little difference which county has the privilege of furnishing the candidates for Congressional honors, and much less do they care. But there are other things entering into the approaching contest, in which the people are vastly more interested, and will speak their sentiments in no uncertain tones at the polls on election day.

They want a man to represent them in Congress whose character is irreproachable, whose legislative abilities are unquestionable, and who will not devote his entire time in looking after fat positions for office seekers.

This country is in greater need to-day of men who have the welfare of the nation at heart, than it has been for many years. We are now entering upon a new era of national prosperity and greatness, and will soon be recognized as the foremost nation in the world, and no man should be sent to Congress who would in the least degree be a hindrance to that prosperity.

The political parties have the making of candidates, but the people will decide which candidate is to be sent to Congress.

APPROPRIATIONS MADE BY CONGRESS.

The volume of appropriations, new offices, etc., required by law to be prepared at the end of each session of Congress, under the direction of the Committee on Appropriations of the Senate and House, has just been completed for the second session of the Fifty-fifth Congress by Mr. T. P. Cleaves and Mr. J. Courts, chief clerks, respectively, of the Senate and House.

A summary of the appropriations shows the grand total to be $893,231,615.

Of this amount, $361,859,927 are to meet expenses on account of the war with Spain. In addition to the specific appropriations made, contracts are authorized to be entered into for the construction of new battleships and other naval vessels, five new drydocks and various other public works, requiring future appropriations by Congress to the amount of $24,173,656.

The total number of officers and employments specifically authorized amount to 301,383, at a cost of $53,691,911, of which number 274,909, at a cost of $43,240,380 are for the military establishment and 35,966, at a cost of $9,544,109, for the naval establishment, on account of the war. Adding other war increases of the clerical force in several of the executive departments and deducting the officers and employments abolished, 269 in number, at an annual cost of $288,580, the net result shows no substantial change in the number of officers and employments provided for the fiscal year 1898.

The number of salaries and compensations increased is 206, of which 179 are for the military establishment, and eleven for the diplomatic and consular service. The number reduced is five. A comparison of the total appropriations for 1899, excluding the war appropriations with the total appropriations for 1898, shows an increase for 1899 of $2,636,608.

A GENTLE CORRECTIVE is what you need when your liver becomes inactive. It's what you get when you take Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets; they're free from the violence and the griping that come with the ordinary pill. The best medical authorities agree that in regulating the bowels mild methods are preferable. For every derangement of the liver, stomach and bowels, these tiny, sugar-coated pills are most effective. They go about their work in an easy and natural way, and their good lasts. Once used, they are always in favor.

CAMP LIFE CURES A RICKER.

It is strange what a difference a little military life can make in a man. There's a young private in the Eighth Pennsylvania out at Camp Alger, for example. He was in Washington for several weeks last winter, and he stayed at a big hotel, but nothing pleased him. He said the bed in his room was "the worst ever," and that the food was "the limit." He bullied the waiter and intimidated the bell boy. The water was never quite hot enough, the wine never just the right degree of chill. He wanted only decent comfort, he said, and the hotel didn't afford it. I saw him out at Camp Alger a week ago. His bed was the bare ground. He hadn't even lukewarm water to shave with. He had nobody to wait on him, and, indeed, seemed to be running errands for everybody. He showed me his dinner. It was a cold potato and bread. He was perfectly happy, he has gained six pounds in two weeks, and says that camp life is "simply great." Really, the ways of men are past finding out.

I met another young man I know out at Camp Alger, and seeing a basket in my hand he immediately wanted to know what was in it.

"Because," said he, "if its dainties you needn't mind. I know so many people in Washington, you know, and I've received testimonials of the affection of all of them. I've had chocolate cake and cocoanut cake, and walnut cake, and sponge cake, and cup cake, and pound cake, and jelly cake, and marble cake, and fruit cake, and angel food, and Washington pie. If you've got any Frankfurters or ham sandwiches, you're as welcome as pay day, but if it's cake, you'll oblige me by arranging."—Washington Post.

GAME LAW AND MILLINERY.

Mr. William H. Armstrong, of Hagerstown, deputy game warden for Washington county, has determined that the new game and fish laws passed by the last Legislature shall be enforced. He has issued an appeal to the people to observe the laws. Concerning the decimation of birds, the "guardians of fields and orchards," he says in part:

"A momentous crisis has come. Are the ways of Providence or of women to win?"

"The bonnet of the grandmother was simple, sensible and civilized. Its decorations were composed of a few ribbons and flowers. But the headgear of women to-day is a grotesque illustration of savagism; its chief elements, consisting of feathers, is sometimes so excessive that it represents a whole bird section of a zoological museum.

"Entire species of the most useful of the feathered tribe have been nearly exterminated. Weeds, seeds and harmful insects have enormously increased and not only the comfort, but the material interests of man have been seriously affected. There is a veritable repetition of the plagues of Pharaoh; 'Proud flesh,' the cause of this trouble, is not alone subject to irritation, but the whole biped and quadruped population has to be tortured by hordes of mosquitoes and Texas flies."

Under the new law a penalty of from $1 to $5 can be imposed upon persons who wear the skins, plumage, wings or feathers of woodpeckers, sapsuckers, flickers, wrens, native sparrows, bluebirds, blue jays, thrushes, robins, mocking birds, and other birds that are protected by the law, and the ladies had better look to their millinery when Warden Armstrong is around.

The Rev. W. B. Costley, of Stockbridge, Ga., while attending to his pastoral duties at Ellenwood, that state, was attacked by cholera morbus. He says: "By chance I happened to get hold of a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, and I think it was the means of saving my life. It relieved me at once." For sale by C. D. Eichelberger.

GROWTH OF PENSION LIST.

In the forthcoming annual report of the commissioners of pensions it will be shown that on June 30, 1897, there were on the rolls of the pensions bureau 976,014 pensioners. To these must be added 6,852 original claims, granted but not recorded, and 762 restorations, which were not entered at that time on the books. Commissioner Evans granted 63,648 original claims during the past year and restored 4,089 to the benefits of pensions. The pensioners now aggregate 1,040,356.

There is no means of approximating what the claims will be for the war with Spain. The pension office has done nothing with the claims that have been filed up to this time. They do not aggregate a hundred and for the most part are claims of widows and next of kin for the soldiers who fell before Santiago.

Before a claim can be perfected it must contain the full record of the soldier's service, and this information has not yet been compiled by the War Department. When this is done the claims will be speedily taken up. The majority of the claims will be for wounds and sickness, the latter leaving the soldier more or less disabled.

No additional legislation will be required to deal with the cases arising from this war. The present laws, the authorities say, cover all that is necessary, and claims will be adjudicated on the same lines as those of the civil war.

Automatic Gas Machine.

PUT THE MATERIAL INTO ME AND I WILL DO THE REST. NO LIMIT TO SIZES.

You can now be your own Gas Co.

We have now perfected Machine for making illuminating gas from Calcium Carbide, and claim it is the only machine made on the correct principle for the purpose generating gas from carbide and delivering to burners. For compactness, durability, neatness and effective working there is nothing equal to it. We have spent time and money to perfect machine that will be reliable and perfectly safe in the hands of the most inexperienced. We have made provision for all parts that may be neglected. No explosion could occur from any neglect which we have fully tested. All the working parts liable to corrosion are made of copper and brass, and no complicated parts to get out of order. It is so simple that it can be understood by such as have no knowledge of mechanism. As to the light produced, it should be seen to give an idea of its brilliancy, being in many respects superior to electric light and costing less than any light ever produced, and the Machine so low in price that the most humble can have gas light. We will be prepared to furnish any size machine wanted and give estimate of machine installed complete, if so desired. We ask an examination of our machine. Our long experimenting with machine and carbide has given us many useful points, which we will give by circular on application, also price, &c. We will also furnish carbide at market price. GRAPE-LEAF HOPPER.

Several Distinct Varieties of the Pests That Infest the Vineyard.

There are several distinct kinds of leaf-hoppers that work upon grape leaves. All are minute, narrow, yellowish insects about one-eighth inch long, and some have their wings crossed by blood-red bands. Among vineyardists, these insects are known as thrips; properly, however, this name belongs to an entirely different group of insects. The grape leaf-hoppers pass the winter in the adult state, hibernating under dead leaves or other rubbish, the survivors becoming active in spring, when they insert their eggs in punctures in the leaves of the vine. The yellow nymphs are hatched from these eggs during the month of June, and they resemble their parents except in size, and in having no wings. During their growth, they shed their skins (which are nearly white) several times, and a though exceedingly delicate and gossamer-like, the empty skins remain for some time attached to the leaves in a very lifelike attitude.

The nymphs feed together on the under sides of the leaves, and are very quick in their movements, hopping briskly about by means of their hind legs, which are especially fitted for this purpose. They have a peculiar habit of running sideways, and when they see that they are observed upon one side of a leaf, they will often do so quickly around to the other. Each is furnished with a sharp beak or proboscis, with which it punctures the skin of the leaf, and then sucks out the sap; this produces yellowish or brownish spots on the upper surface. At first, these spots are small, and do not attract attention; but as the insect increases in size, the spots often involve the whole leaf, which appears as though scorched, and it often drops from the vine. Occasionally, vines become so far defoliated that the fruit fails to ripen.

With the full growth of its wings, the insect acquires such powers of flight that it readily flies from vine to vine, and thus spreads in all directions. It continues its mischievous work until late in the season, when it seeks shelter for the winter.

The Clinton, Delaware, and other thin-leaved varieties suffer more from the attacks of these leaf-hoppers than do the thick-leaved sorts like the Concord. The insect is sometimes quite abundant in a vineyard one year, and comparatively scarce the next. Their preservation, doubtless, depends much on favorable hibernating conditions. One should not wait until late in the season, when the leaf-hoppers are full-grown and can fly, before beginning active warfare against them. When young, they can only hop about, and are, also, more susceptible to insecticides. As they suck their food from the interior of the leaves, the poisons can have no effect upon them. Keroseene emulsion or white-oil soap (one pound dissolved in six to ten gallons of water) thoroughly applied, and aimed at the insects on the under sides of the leaves about July 1, will check these leaf-hoppers. It will require much more than ordinary care in spraying to hit these insects. The nozzle should be arranged on the end of a short tube bent at right angles so as to form what is known as an "under-spray nozzle." One or two thorough and intelligent sprayings about July 1 will surely hold the pest in check.

In New Jersey, where the insects are often very serious pests, and especially where the vines are trained on wires, some of the vineyardists report excellent results from the following procedure: Very large palm-leaf fans are covered on both sides with gas tar, and these are swung about near the vines as one walks along between the rows, and another person walks along on the other side and jars the vines, thus disturbing the insects, and causing them to hop up for a moment. The result is that thousands of the leaf-hoppers are caught on the sticky fans. One authority states that, by repeating this operation two or three times a week for two weeks, practical exemption for the rest of the season can be secured. Much of the success of this method will depend upon how thoroughly the insects are disturbed and made to leave the vines, also upon how evenly the fans are operated. Against insects depending largely upon the intelligence and thoroughness one puts into it. There is altogether too much haphazard, guess-work kind of insect warfare carried on by our fruit growers.

Fruit for Food.
The use of fruit for food has recently secured very strong advocacy from some of our leading physicians. It is now said that there is no more speedy and ready cure for liver difficulties than to make our breakfasts entirely of apples; or for a few days to eat nothing else. The effect is equally good in curing cases of constipation and other intestinal troubles. It is certain that we have so far overlooked the extraordinary value of fruits as food.

HER GUARDSMAN.

Marjorie looked in the mirror and patted a rebellious curl. "I feel excited; I can't help it. Oh, mother, I wish it were like a story, the country mouse being taken to court and a real live duke or earl falls in love with little mouse. I shall be in the midst of this great world soon. I wish something really romantic could happen."

"You'll have to take the taskmaster, Love, into your bargain with Pate, dear," said Mrs. Beauchamp. And Marjorie hid her face in her lovely bouquet of lilies of the valley, white orchids and white violets, and her heart gave a quick throb.

It was later on the same day, the carriage, in endless strings down the Mall, and a crowd pressing close to all the windows, making their remarks freely.

The sunshine coming out in a great sheaf of splendor almost dazzled Marjorie, as, looking through the glass windows, she was conscious of one of the guardsmen on duty watching her intently. His bearskin almost hid his eyes and brow.

Was she dreaming, or was there distinct recognition in that soldier's glance? The sweeping brown mustache concealed his mouth. She looked at him again; the carriage moved forward, it smiled. She bent forward and her face dimpled into a smiling response, impulsively she waved her hand.

"To whom, may I ask, were you bowing?" said Lady Hamilton severely. "I recognized some one, auntie, in the crowd," faltered Marjorie. Marjorie almost forgot that fleeting look while making her bow to Her Majesty. But the guardsman did not intend she should forget—a brilliant scheme had entered his mind.

She looked very sweet in her picture hat covered with violets as she walked into her mother's room, dressed for a walk. "Mother," she said, going over to her and turning very pale, "mother, I cannot keep my secret from you any longer."

"A secret, dear child? Why, no, of course not," said Mrs. Beauchamp tenderly, and put out her hand. "Mother, do you remember two years ago I went on a visit to our old cousin James. When I was there I met a lovely girl, Constance Ferguson. Do you remember my telling you how I adored her?"

"Well, my child, what of it?" "I was only sixteen, mother, and he said I was so young, and he had a hard life in front of him. He had quarrelled with his uncle and was practically cast off. Mother, can't you guess? I have seen him again—I love him!"

"The bright head was bowed, and hot tears were splashing down. "Read this, mother. He wishes me to meet him to-day in the park, and he says he has some great news to tell me. He is better off."

"But what is he now, Marjorie?" "He is in the guards, mother." "In the guards!" said the poor lady, bewildered. "Then he must be very well off indeed."

"No, mother, not. He enlisted. He is only a corporal!" cried Mrs. Beauchamp, clasping her hands. "In a dreadful red coat! You have been seen out with him! Good heavens, Marjorie!"

A POWERFUL PRINCESS.

Clementine of Saxe-Coburg is One of the Cleverest Women of Europe.

This stately lady is Princess Clementine of Saxe-Coburg. The princess, who was described some years ago as a distinguished statesman as one of the three cleverest women in Europe, "the nightmare of the emperor of Austria and the sleeping draught of Bismarck," has recently risen from what it was feared would prove her death-bed. Princess Clementine's career and character are alike remarkable. A daughter of Louis Philippe, she has made her influence felt all over the world almost from her girlhood. She has the brains of her family, and her father, who was very proud of her, took care that she should be developed, with the result that she has played a more prominent part in the making of history than most of her contemporaries. Not the least notable of her achievements was that her royal highness traveled to Bulgaria last June, for the sole purpose of spending her 80th birthday with her son, Prince Ferdinand. Princess Clementine has been, indeed, one of the most remarkable women of the century, and not the least active exercise of her great talents has been witnessed during the last ten years, when she has brought all her powers to bear in support of Prince Ferdinand, her youngest and favorite son, in his often difficult position.

To Have Teeth Like Pearls.

The reckless manner in which most people abuse their teeth is enough to make their worst enemy remonstrate with them. The care of the teeth should be begun in babyhood, a soft toothbrush being used twice a day by whoever has care of the infant. As soon as the first teeth loosen the child should be taken to a dentist to remove them, so the new teeth will have room. After this periodical visits should be made to the dentist. A child should never be allowed to bite bread or crack nuts with his teeth, for it is likely to chip the enamel.

The teeth, to be kept in proper order and to look white and immaculate, should not only be brushed night and morning, but after every meal in the day. The toothbrush must be rather hard and you must provide yourself with two or three of various shapes, so as to keep the teeth in proper condition, as you cannot properly clean every tooth unless you have a brush that is specially constructed to reach the back corners in your mouth. A toothbrush should be well washed in clean fresh water and either soap or ammonia used now and then to clean it with.

It must be remembered that to take too hot drinks or eat too hot food is very bad, indeed, for the teeth. The rapid transition from heat to cold is the worst possible thing that could happen to them and often causes cracks and disease of the teeth. If vinegar is taken with one's food or medicine in which is any kind of iron or steel or any acid, the teeth not only should be well brushed afterward, but the medicine taken through a glass tube.

Affecting the Health.

Do not eat very acid fruit with farinaceous food unless you have a very good digestion. Hops pillows are a great comfort to nervous people and a headache is often soothed thereby. Oranges, lemons and limes affect most directly the complexion and are especially good if taken before breakfast. Early morning exercise is denounced nowadays by the majority of hygienic teachers. At that time, they say, vitality is at its lowest ebb and needs the stimulation of food.

A French physician declares that dyspepsia is often caused by soup. He says it distends the stomach and prevents the digestion of the solids that are eaten after the soup. An excessively nervous woman, if she has a liking for onions, should gratify it. Two or three eaten with bread and butter before going to bed are a fine sedative.

Ripe peaches are easily digested and are also fattening. Strawberries, containing a larger percentage of iron than any other fruit, enrich the blood.

To Tickle Pickle Appetites.

For the capricious appetite, tired of egg and toast for breakfast in the ordinary way, comes this recipe from a notable North Carolina housewife: After toasting the bread an even, delicate brown, dip in melted butter. Boil hard with many eggs as desired; chop the whites and add to a rich cream sauce; place the toast in a warm dish, pour over it the sauce and run the yolks of the eggs through a potato masher over the whole.

THE FORESTS OF CUBA.

An Immense Amount of Valuable Timber Land in the Island.

Cuba still possesses 16,000,000 acres of virgin forest abounding in valuable timber, none of which is useful as coarse construction lumber, while nearly every foot would be salable in the United States and bring high prices. Cuban mahogany and cedar are particularly well known in the United States. The mahogany is very hard and shows a handsome grain, and is preferred by many to any other variety in common use. The moment Spain drops the reins of government in Cuba and trade relations are re-established with the States there will be a movement, both inward and outward, of forest products which will have a beneficial effect upon the industry of both countries.

First to feel the force of this movement toward rehabilitating Cuba will be the lumbering interests of the South Atlantic and Gulf coasts. Prior to three years ago they looked upon Cuba as an excellent outlet for the coarse end of the mill cuts, and since that market has been closed to permit the prosecution of a most hideous and revolting war, the coarser grades of yellow pine produced at coast points have been marketed with great difficulty and seldom at a profit. It is unfortunately true that Cuba will be unable to realize so promptly from a movement to re-establish her mahogany and cedar trade, for it is claimed by prominent operators that the industry has been so completely crippled by the ravages of war that a period of time running from twelve to eighteen months will be required before logs can be landed at ports in this country. It is hoped that all this may be accomplished without shedding an additional drop of blood. Prior to the war the annual net revenue of Cuba was $80,000,000. With peace restored it would hardly be better than $50,000,000. But under a conservative form of government she would gain strength and prestige from her closer relations with the United States.

Some New Inventions.

Shoes can be displayed to better advantage by means of a pneumatic last, which is placed inside the shoe and inflated to expand it and fill out the upper.

Metallic folding beds are being made with the horizontal bars hinged in several sections to close up and draw the footboard up to the head when the bed is not in use.

In a recently patented automatic wagon brake the thills are mounted on movable rods on the front axle, which slide backward and apply the brakes as soon as the horse holds back. To indicate when a new bottle has been tampered with a metal ball is hung from the cork by a thread, which breaks as the corks is pulled, allowing the ball to fall to the bottom of the bottle.

Incandescent electric light globes cannot be stolen from a new socket which has an interior metallic projection locking into a catch on the base plate when the globe is screwed into position.

An improved strap for street cars is suspended on a grooved block, which rests on a toothed horizontal bar attached to the side of a car, the grooves preventing the strap from slipping under a sudden strain.

A Pennsylvania man has patented an automatic printing attachment for paper rolls, which has the type set in a roller suspended in a heavy casing, which presses it against the paper as it is unwound.

A handy truck for moving barrels has a gripping plate secured to the front of the truck, provided with a central concave portion, which has teeth along its outer edge to catch the barrel and prevent its slipping.

Bicycles can be identified by a new protective seal, which is composed of a steel case, which covers the ends of a circular link to which it is attached to the tubing, the face of the case containing a name plate.

In a recently patented bottle filling apparatus two tubes are attached to a faucet placed in the barrel or tank, with a valve in the faucet which feeds one tube at a time, allowing the tubes to be alternately placed in a new bottle while the other one is in use.

"If I Had a Million."

Here are some people who have that much a year: Spain pays her boy king $1,400,000 per year, besides $600,000 for family expenses. In other words $2,000,000 a year, and yet her soldiers are away behind their pay, are poorly clad and fed and Spain is really one of the poorer nations. Compare with that enormous income the income of the president of the United States—$50,000. France's president gets $240,000 a year and all expenses, yet his nation is said to carry the heaviest national debt of any nation in the world. Italy's king receives $2,600,000, while the civil list of the German emperor is $4,000,000. The Czar of Russia enjoys an income of $12,000,000 annually.

Tent Pins.

Tent pins are mostly made of white oak; they must be of tough wood to stand the hard knocks to which they are subjected. They are made in lengths of sixteen and twenty-four inches. Made of hard wood as they are they are yet liable to be broken, and they are also lost. Even in peace the consumption of tent pins is considerable; a manufacturer of tents might carry in stock 5,000 or 10,000 tent pins. In war times the demand is, of course, far greater. Like many other manufactured articles of wood, tent pins are made in the West, in factories in proximity to the forests whence the supplies of wood are drawn.

Stores of Diamonds.

It has been discovered that the native African chiefs in the diamond regions have great quantities of valuable diamonds which accumulated years ago. They treasure them as charms, and are unwilling to sell them.

Don't Neglect Your Liver.

Liver troubles quickly result in serious complications, and the man who neglects his liver will care it permanently. Strength and vitality will always follow its use. Brown's Iron Bitters is sold by all dealers.

AN UP-TO-DATE YOUNG LADY.

A big and kindly policeman had a little tot by the hand, and he was followed by a crowd which pestered him with suggestions until he more than once showed signs of losing his naturally good temper.

Some one had told him that the tiny little girl who toddled by his side was lost, and a dozen or more knew that her home lay in as many different directions.

To all his questions the little one would only reply:— "Me's hungry; me want something to eat."

The bluecoat urged the baby girl to tell him where she lived, and then mamma would give her dinner, but she only dragged at his big rough hand, drawing him to the corner of the street, where there was a cake shop. When they reached this the kind-hearted fellow took her in and bought her plenty to eat out of his own pocket.

Then he again asked her where she lived, but she still cried:— "Me's thirsty; me wants a drink."

Back again the whole length of the street went the pair, followed by the crowd, until at another corner they reached a soda water fountain, and there the little tot child was regaled with a cooling drink.

Then as the policeman, failing to find any one who could tell him where the child lived, was about to march her to the police station, the little tot smiled up into his eyes and said:— "Me's sleepy now, Dooddy. Me doin' home."

She slipped into a doorway which had passed a dozen times, shouting:—"Mamma! mamma! Me's been for a nice walk with a real live great big cop!"

One of Them.

He goes about, from day to day, With downcast eyes and weary air; And yet a month ago he might Have had his pick among the fair.

He went away, with martial tread, To help set stricken Cuba free; No man among the soldier band Was more admired than he.

But they sent him home, and he's again

May he assume a warrior's part; To-day the women shun him, for Alas, he's got a cigarette heart!
