WM. A. HIMES, Pres't.

NOTICE.—All announcements of concerts, festivals, picnics, ice cream and cake festivals and similar enterprises, not up to make money, whether for churches, associations, or individual nails, must be paid for at the rate of five cents per line. When orders are printed at this office a free notice of such festivals, picnics, etc., will be given in the Chronicle under the proper heading.

CHRISTMAS two weeks from next Sunday.

Mr. C. T. Zacharias is having his ice house enlarged.

LARGEST stock of Christmas goods in town at M. F. Shuff's.

In Westminster Mrs. Frank T. Shaw fell on an icy pavement and broke her wrist.

Mr. R. A. Haley sold his farm, near Mott's Station, at public sale on last Saturday, to Mr. George Smith.

At M. F. Shuff's Furniture Store is headquarters for Christmas goods.

Sister Mary de Chantal Darnal celebrated her golden jubilee at the Convent of Visitation in Frederick, on Tuesday.

THERE was great damage from Monday's storm in Talbot county and more or less damage to buildings and fencing in many counties.

THROUGH the kindness of Rev. W.
Simonton, D. D., we have received a copy of the Washington (Pa.) Reporter, a daily paper published at that place.

The sale of ice cream, by the Benevolent Society of the Reformed, as announced in these columns last week, has been indefinitely postponed.

It is possible that only three stores in town have a stock of Christmas goods for sale? It looks that way, as only three of our business men have Christmas advertisements in the Chronicle.

A cough is not like a fever. It does not have to run a certain course, or it quickly and effectively with One Minute Cough Cure, the best remedy for all ages and for the most severe coughs. We recommend it because it's good. T. E. Zimmerman & Co.

HAVE you seen P. G. King's magnificent display of Christmas novelties?
If you have not yet been to his store, it will be to your advantage to call and examine his stock of Xmas goods. He can please you in both quality and price.

Mrs. Thyas, mother of Mr. Frank Thyson, died at her home in Washington, D. C., on Tuesday morning. Mrs.
Thyson was an age and highly respected lady. She was well known in this place, being for many years one of Emmitsburg's regular summer boarders.

WHEN you have eaten too much, or when you suffer from any form of Dyspepsia or Indigestion, remember that Kodol Dyspepsia Cure digests what you eat. It cures the worst forms of Dyspepsia. T. E. Zimmerman & Co.

On complaint of Mr. F. A. Adels-berger, a warrant was issued on Monday for the arrest of Cutler R. Hale, a man who sold to Mr. Adelsberger the right to manufacture a washing machine, and sell the same in this county. Mr.
Adelsberger claims that Hale made the sale under false pretense. Mr. Hale was taken before Justice Stokes, where he waived an examination, and in default of $200 bail was committed to jail.

PLAIN TALK BY JUDGE STAKE.

In the Circuit Court at Hagerstown, on Tuesday, John R. McGraw, proprietor of the McGraw Hotel at Sharps-burg, was fined $1 and costs, amounting to $15.94. Judge Stake said he wanted it understood that saloonkeepers could not keep a room where games of chance could be played for drinks, and if more offenses of this character came before him he gave notice that he would not deal leniently with them. He said he did not know but that such parties where prizes were played for came within the spirit of the law against gambling. In the case of Mrs. Mary Stinebaugh, for cursing, Judge Stake warned her if she ever came before him again on that charge he would send her to the House of Correction, in spite of her children. He told her if she could not hold her tongue to go out in the back yard and swear at the cabbage stalks and fence posts, and not molest decent people with her shocking outbursts.

SOMETHING FOR THE NEW YEAR.

The world-renowned success of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, and their continued popularity for nearly half a century as a stomachic, is scarcely more wonderful than the welcome that greets Hostetter's Almanac. This medical treatise is published by the Hostetter Company, Pittsburg, Pa., under their own immediate supervision, employing sixty hands in that department. The issue of some 18,000 will be over eleven millions, printed in nine languages. Refer to a copy of it for valuable and interesting reading concerning health, and numerous testimonials as to the efficacy of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. The Almanac for 1899 can be obtained, free of cost, from drugists and general country dealers in all parts of the country.

IMPROVED GAS MACHINE.

We take pleasure in calling the attention of our readers to Messrs. J. T.
Hays & Son's advertisement of their Improved Gas Machine, which appears in another column of this issue. Their Sunlight Gas Machine was patented last August, but since that time they have made a number of important changes in the construction of the machine, all of which enhance the value of the working qualities of this gem of a calcium carbide gas machine. They have succeeded in making it as near perfect as it is possible to do so. Its working parts being automatic makes it so simple that any person can operate it without any difficulty whatever.
They have had one of the machines in constant operation in their establishment for about nine months and during that time it has given the greatest satisfaction. These machines will now be put on the market, and we feel confident that those who purchase them will be highly pleased with their investment. As the firm of J. T. Hays & Son is recognized for its reliability, there need be no fear but that the machines will prove just as reliable and satisfactory in every particular.

DEATH OF MRS. SUSAN WARREN- FELTZ.

Mrs. Susan Warrenfeltz, wife of Daniel Warrenfeltz, Esq., died at her residence, near Wolfsville, Thursday night, December 1, aged 75 years, 8 months and 14 days, from the effects of heart trouble. Her remains were interred in the Reformed graveyard at Wolfsville, Sunday afternoon about 1 o'clock. Her pastor, Rev. Deitzel, of Cavetown preached the funeral sermon and confided at the grave. The pall-bearers were: Messrs. John T. Harshman, Jacob G. Smith, John H. Mangan, Jacob Moser, Ezekiah Harp and Geo.
H. Barkliff. A husband, eight sons and three daughters survive to mourn their loss. The sons are, John, Josiah and Frederick, at home; Daniel T., of Wolfsville; Adam N., of near Good Hope; Jacob, Henry and George, who reside in the vicinity of Comanche, Texas. The daughters are, Mrs. James O. Bussard, of near Middletown; Mrs.
Lawson Harshman and Mrs. C. M.
Dutrow, of Wolfsville.

DEATH OF MRS. SHELLMAN.

Mrs. Katherine Jones Shellman, of Westminster, died Monday night, aged eighty-three years and sixteen days.
Mrs. Shellman was the daughter of Philip Jones, of Maryland. Her grandfather was Hon. Thos. Jones, who was a judge of the first Court of Appeals of Maryland, appointed in 1778. She was the great granddaughter of Philip Jones, a civil engineer, who laid out Baltimore town. More than a half century ago she married Col. James M. Shellman, of Louisville, Ga., a lawyer, who was one of the first to settle in Westminster after the formation of Carroll county, in 1837. Her husband was the first burgess of Westminster and the first auditor of the Circuit Court. He was also a member of the Legislature for two terms and was a leading member of the Carroll county bar.
Mrs. Shellman had lived in Westminster since she was two years of age and was beloved by every one. In her former years she was a leader in all charitable works. She was one of the original congregation of the Ascension Episcopal Church, which was organized about sixty years ago.

EXCITING RUNAWAY.

As the oil wagon of the Atlantic Refinery Company was on its way to Thurmont Tuesday morning, at the corner of Market and Seventh streets the bolt came out of the stretcher, which fell on the two front horses, causing them to turn away. The driver, John Stanton, could not control them and they ran out West Seventh street and into the wagon of Mr. E. R. Wolfe, of Yellow Springs, who was on his way to market, throwing his horse down, the other horses failing also. The front wheel and shafts of Mr. Wolfe's wagon were broken and the wagon upset, throwing out Mr. Wolfe to the ground and injuring his left arm. He was taken to the house of Ephraim Kline and had his wounds dressed. Mr. Wolfe had a lot of market truck in the wagon, which was not injured, except the eggs which were all broken.—Fred. News.

KILLED BY A TRAIN.

Mr. David Beiler, of near Lory, was struck by a train Saturday evening near Rocky Ridge, and killed, evidently instantly. The body was found Sunday morning by a track-walker, Samuel Martin. An inquest was held resulting in a verdict of death by accident. Few sears were visible. One on the back of the head was found, which was fatal.
Mr. Beiler was for a number of years manufacturing and selling a liniment known as Beiler's liniment. He leaves a wife, two sons and a daughter, all of whom are residents of Gettysburg.

PERSONALS.

Mr. and Mrs. George M. Rider, visited friends in Washington, and Prince George's county.
Mrs. Charles C. Kretzer is visiting friends in Westminster.
Mr. Lawrence Gillelan, of Baltimore, visited his parents in this place.
Mrs. Mary Myers, of Chambersburg, is visiting friends in town.
Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Stoner, of Sylvan, Pa., and Miss Mary Webb, of Crisfield, Md., are visiting Mr. and Mrs. P. J.
Felix.

LOTS OF TRAMPS.

Eighty-two tramps, including one woman, were given shelter at Montevue Hospital Sunday night. Sunday night one week ago, ninety-two applied for and were given lodging. Those who work on the stone pile are given breakfast.

When you ask for De Witt's Witch Hazel salve don't accept a counterfeit or imitation. There are more cases of Piles being cured by this, than all others combined. T. E. Zimmerman & Co.

THE CONCLUSION OF THE WORK OF THE PARIS COMMISSIONERS.

MR. EDITOR:—Does the conclusion of negotiations in Paris end the matter as to our keeping the Philippines? No.
The treaty must go to the Senate, and the House will have to appropriate $20, 000,000 to carry out the treaty stipulations. Is it likely there will be any opposition to this treaty in Congress?
There is, for we know there are indications of strong resistance on the part of leading Republicans, and Mr. Hoar has promised opposition to it; then Mr.
Dingley says he does not see his way so clear as to "the open door" feature.
Has the Senate ever rejected treaties sent to it by the President? There are "instances galore," as very lately for instance, the treaty on arbitration with England—although a popular measure at the time.
What will happen, should the treaty be rejected? It will place the question on the basis of the protocol. A new treaty will have to be discussed.
Will that begin the war again? No!
The rejection of the treaty will only compel renewed negotiations. The principle of International Law is that a treaty must be accepted as a whole or rejected as such. It is true the United States have deviated from this practice.
Should Congress propose amendments to present treaty, negotiations will be made on proposed changes.
By a rule, appropriation bills are reported to the Committee on the Whole; this rule puts great power in the hands of the chairman, and of late this power has been used to choke discussion.
Much depends on the opinion of the chairman regarding the present treaty.
INDEX.

THANKS OF REMOTE INHABITANTS.

MR. EDITOR:—Now that "Vindex" has, as he doubtless imagines, not only silenced the guns of "Frederick County," but captured and turned them against his enemy, the country at large may be considered safe, and we can turn our thoughts to our own District.
It is very pleasant indeed to notice the improvement going on and around every direction. Witness the beautiful Anglo-Norman residences to the North and East of the village, and the massive rugged English mansion on the West, the new Methodist church, etc. Notice too, the renovation of the hotel on the square, and the new hotel on the corner of Main Street pavement. Last but by no means least, the enterprise of Mr.
Adelsberger deserves attention and should be imitated. I mean in placing a number over his store, at once making it easy for intending customers to find him, and transacting on foolish superstition. Few would be so brave, it is a pity to confess, but he has started with number thirteen. May it be a lucky number for him! He has the thanks and best wishes of the remote inhabitants of Emmitsburg District at any rate. INDEXED.

MEN BLOWN TO ATOMS.

Three soldiers and a civilian were killed at Fort Independence, on Castle Island, in Boston harbor, Tuesday afternoon, by the explosion of a mine, which had been removed from the channel by a diver.
Augustus Brennan and Ryan had placed the mine on the wagon and started to take it to the place where the other ammunition was stored.
The road along which they passed was unusually smooth, having been constructed with a view to the necessity of care in transporting explosive material.
Without warning the mine burst.
The horse and cart and the three men were blown to fragments. Sergeant Mc-Grath was standing fully twenty feet away, and the quantity killed by the explosion. His body does not bear a mark of any sort.
As soon as possible after the explosion a careful search was begun by Lieutenant Raymond, who had charge of removing the mines, but not a fragment of men or clothing could be found.
Lieutenant Raymond states that he cannot explain how the explosion occurred. He says that since the order was issued from Washington hundreds of mines have been handled in precisely the same manner, and that the one and transported over the same road.

THE MODERN MOTHER.

Has found that her little ones are improved more by the pleasant Syrup of Figs, when in need of a laxative effect of a gentle remedy, than by any other.
Children enjoy it and it benefits them.
The true remedy, Syrup of Figs, is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only.

SUICIDE AT THURMONT.

About 8 o'clock last Friday morning Geo. Stitley, who resided one mile southwest of Thurmont, committed suicide by shooting himself through his head. Some days ago he cut his foot severely with an axe and he had been careful to keep it bandaged to protect it against the cold. When he arranged to shoot himself he did so by removing the old rubber overshoe and pressing back the bandages, thus freeing the great toe, with which he pressed the trigger. The gun was heavily loaded and the muzzle placed almost against his eye. The load made a small wound where it entered his head, but where it passed out back there was a large gaping wound. Justice Wm. J.
Black examined the body and decided that it was unnecessary to summon a jury of inquest. The deed was committed in the yard, but a few feet from his home. He was a laboring man and leaves a widow and a large family of children.

WORKMEN are engaged on Wolf's Hill, in the eastern suburbs of Hagerstown, in search of the bones of Confederate soldiers who were killed during the civil war. One skeleton was dug up. A bullet was found embedded in his backbone. The bodies will be reinterred in the Confederate Cemetery.

YOUR DANGER NOW.

Is from the overworked condition of the liver and kidneys which are unable to expel impurities from the blood.
This causes rheumatism. Hood's Sarsaparilla has been wonderfully successful in curing this disease. It neutralizes the acid in the blood and permanently cures the aches and pains which other medicines fail to relieve.
Hood's Sarsaparilla is the best winter medicine because it purifies, enriches and vitalizes the blood. It gives help just where help is needed. It tones the stomach, stimulates the liver, and arouses and sustains the kidneys. It wards off pneumonia, fevers, bronchitis, colds, coughs and the grip.

A SHAMEFUL CRIME.

Miss Theresa Stitley, a prepossessing young lady about twenty-four years of age, daughter of William A. Stitley, of near Woodboro', Frederick county, was brutally assaulted by a tramp near her father's home about 3 o'clock Monday afternoon. Miss Stitley had been doing some shopping in Woodboro', and as her father only lives about half a mile from the town, she started to walk home on the old Copper Mines road leading to Johnsville.
She was over half way home when she was confronted by a short, thick-set man, who, producing a revolver, threatened to kill her instant if she uttered a scream. Becoming so terrified at the man's manner and his threat, she had scarcely time to recover her senses when he dealt her a terrific blow on the side of the head, knocking her senseless to the ground. She was then dragged to the side of the road in a lonely spot and assaulted and shamefully treated. The crime was committed within one hundred yards of Milton Ruby's farm, but, as the young lady was prevented from making any outcry, the attention of the farm hands was not attracted.
As soon as she regained consciousness she went home in a half dazed condition and informed her father of what had occurred. Mournful sorrow, grief, and anger, mounted and afire, started in pursuit of the culprit.
The scene of the outrage was visited and footsteps traced, but soon lost. For miles around every barn and patch of woodland was searched.
Later in the evening a suspicious looking tramp was overtaken by the posse at Legore's line kiln and taken to Woodboro'. A report spread that the man had been captured, when a mob assembled and cries of "Lynch him!" were made, but the mob was dispersed by the officers until Miss Stitley could identify him. When taken before her she promptly said it was not the man and he was released.
He, however, was subsequently arrested, charged with larceny, and committed to jail in Frederick. Miss Stitley's assailant is described as short and thick set, weighing about one hundred and sixty pounds. His face was covered with a stubby red beard and he wore pointed shoes. Miss Stitley received a bad blow in the face, and a bruised spot on her neck shows that she was so frightened she could not escape. She can positively identify her assailant. As many of the county telephone lines were down word was late reaching Frederick, but Deputy Sheriff Robinson and a number of other deputies went in pursuit of the man. It is thought he has taken a freight train for the West, near Maryland Road, which runs in close proximity to Woodboro'.—Sun.

PIPES FOR IRRIGATION.

Moderate in First Cost and Inexpensive to Maintain.

In fruit culture sub-irrigation is often necessary for the best results. Some of the plans for this work are expensive to maintain as well as to equip, but the following has been found not only moderate in its first cost, but inexpensive to maintain and entirely satisfactory in results. The pipes are of iron and from one to three inches

PIPE FOR IRRIGATION.

In diameter. The perforations are made on the sides of the pipes to prevent clogging, and strips of thin cloth are placed over the holes. The pipes may be laid underground at a depth of from six inches to a foot according to locality, and in a climate where the ground freezes to more than this depth the pipes must be laid at an angle, which will drain them of water completely before the winter sets in. In strawberry culture these pipes are laid between every other row, that distance apart being sufficient to give the plants on both sides all the water necessary. The perforations in the pipe are made from half an inch to an inch apart. The illustration shows the idea fully.

Notes for Beekeepers.

Do not market white honey in dirty boxes.

September is the proper time to begin feeding.

Every colony should have 25 or 30 pounds of stores now.

To prevent robbing it is usually best to feed at night.

Queen rearing is a very important part of the work in the apiary.

In extracting it is essential to lift the frames of comb out gently.

White clover honey is the lightest in color and is considered the finest made.

The thinner the honey when extracted the more evaporation it will require.

For keeping, extracted honey is much more easily cared for than comb honey.

It is important with bees in winter to provide thorough ventilation in the hive.

Natural queens can in no way be produced except under the swarming impulse.

Extracted honey will granulate and become hard on the approach of cold weather.

It is an advantage always to furnish a new swarm with a frame of young brood.

Concentrated Food Stuffs.

The experiment station at Amherst has just issued bulletin 53 on Concentrated Food Stuffs. It presents illustrations of the several parts of important seeds, from which many concentrated feeds are prepared. It calls attention, for example, to the marked variations between prime and adulterated cottonseed meal, states the difference between old process linseed meal and flax meal, and gives information concerning the various gluten products, including methods of preparation. The bulletin also contains the results of analyses of 265 samples of feeds, collected by the inspector in Massachusetts markets. Farmers can see for themselves whether the various brands on the market run even in composition, or are subject to wide variations. The figures given on page 38, showing the comparative commercial values of the different feeds, will help farmers to form correct ideas of the prices that should be paid for these materials. The last page of the bulletin contains formulas for eight distinct grain mixtures for dairy cows. This bulletin can be had free of cost by addressing the Director Hatch Experiment Station, Amherst, Mass.

Differences in Milk.

An Oregon experiment to determine the difference between the milk from a fresh and stripper cow, shows that the milk from a fresh cow gives up its cream more readily, even with a separator, than that from a cow well lactating. It also shows that butter made from milk from stripper cows is slightly inferior in quality to that from new milch cows.

The Hired Man.

A good hired man is a jewel if he is not of great price, and should be kept as long as possible. The great trouble in this country is that the good hired man soon starts out for himself and has hired men of his own, and farmers, as a rule, must be content with much inefficient help.

A Good Deal for the Money.

"Over on the east side of the town," a stroller said, "I saw the other day a sign that read: 'Two eggs on hash, 8 cents.' I thought that was cheap, and so it was, but further on I saw a sign saying: 'Five good cigars, 7 cents.' And that seemed cheaper still."

A Dainty Cabinet.

A unique design for a cabinet for the library or sitting-room is shown in the accompanying illustration. The cabinet at the top has a drop door, with side shelves, which gives added room for the examination of any articles the little closet may contain. The drawers are convenient always and everywhere, while the top and the open shelf in the middle will hold books or ornaments, the top making an especially appropriate place for a handsome lamp.

The design is so simple that such a cabinet could easily be made in the home work-shop, barring the curved supports, and these would need only a moderate amount of skill to produce, as they are first sawed on a curve out of a piece of inch and a half stuff, then cut into the form shown with chisels and knife. Such a cabinet made of oak, with the top, shelf and panels of quarter-sawn oak, is especially attractive, though any wood can be used.

Jewish Girls.

In marriage a Jewish girl gains everything. As a wife she holds a position superior to that of most all women on earth, for in the household her word is law and she commands both reverence and respect. The old Jewish law most sternly enjoins that in choosing a wife the characteristics of her family shall be most carefully considered. "For a woman generally resembles her father and a man his maternal uncle." This old law is still obeyed among some of the Jews of Africa and many of the Jews of Asia.

When Man Is a Nuisance.

If there is one thing more than another that annoys careful housekeepers, it is to have a man sit calmly reading his newspaper, or worse yet, idle, while she is sweeping, says Good Housekeeping. He gets dusty. If nothing worse happens, and then she has to brush his clothes, for that kind of a man would never know he was dusty or think to brush himself. If he is not amenable to reason or coaxing, then one has to invent an excuse to get him out of the room.

Poison for Rats.

By mixing three parts of squills and one of sugar powder a sure poison for rats, mice, etc., may be made. However, it must be sprinkled with ketchup essence sprinkled on the sugar. Keep it in a well-closed vessel, because the powder of squills will ferment in contact with the air. Mix a pinch of this powder with the paste, cheese, butter, flour, meat or grease intended for the vermin. Rats and mice are particularly fond of it. This is harmless to dogs, cats and other domestic animals.

To Destroy Black Beetles.

Fill dishes with sweet beer, and incline a few pieces of wood against them to act as ladders. This makes them tumble in, and they are unable to get out. Another good remedy is to strew the floor with the green peel of a cucumber or rhubarb leaves, smooth side downwards, but the most reliable thing is powdered borax sprinkled on the floor.

THE WOODS POLICE.

THE WORK AND THE WAYS OF THE GAMEKEEPERS.

Men Who Watch Against Unlawful Killing of Animals in Our Forest Tracts—The Friendly War Between Them and the Gamekeepers—Attempts at Sharp Tricks.

There are two kinds of backwoods-men whom the traveller, or tourist, meets when he enters the wilds—the guide, who makes his living by conducting camping parties, and the gamekeepers or wilderness police. Of the latter the majority have been guides.

The advent of the gamekeeper began with the adoption of laws for the preservation of animal life in the forests. He corresponds closely to the foresters of Europe, being empowered by law to protect such game within his district as comes under the prohibitory act. His position is more difficult, however, than that of his fellow official in the Old World; his territory is larger, his associations with those upon whom he must keep a watch closer, and his isolation from civilization more marked.

To be a gamekeeper, just in his dealings with his fellow woodsmen, requires nerve and shrewdness; the guides must be met on their own ground in a country with which they are familiar. To circumvent them is no small undertaking, nor do the laws which make the backwoods constable necessary allow him too wide a scope in his operations.

A well-known game constable got upon the track of a camping party which he had reason to believe were shooting deer out of season. Coming upon their camp he found the cook engaged in roasting a fat haunch of venison. A complaint was entered against the party, but when the case came to a trial the lawyer for the defence asked the gamekeeper if he could swear that he roasted meat was not lamb, or a pig, or a goat.

The constable knew that to lamb or goat was to be found in that part of the woods where the party had made its camp, but he could not swear it had not been brought in with the lampers. Ninety-nine chances out of a hundred were that the meat was venison, but the defendants got off on the one remaining point.

It is the gamekeepers' busy season during the months of June, July and the early part of August. He must be ever on the alert for law breakers. His territory may include tens of square miles covered by the unbroken wilderness. He must make his journeys on foot, fording streams, if he finds no boat at hand, sleeping where night overtakes him, often trusting to the good nature of the guides to provide himself with a dinner, supper or breakfast. Such a life makes a good soldier, and to it is added a native cunning acquired by long months of practice. Being of the guides, it is difficult for a stranger to the wilderness to distinguish him from those whom it is his business to watch.

In appearance he is as picturesque as his native wilds; he carries everywhere with him the atmosphere of the woods in which he lives; he is bronzed, rough clad, and withal good natured, and, with few exceptions, goes about his work honestly. His reputation for fair dealing goes far to make him a successful official; the guides will try to fool him, but they know their man and understand he means to treat them square. But if the gamekeeper seeks to gain his ends through treachery and underhand dealings, he had better give up his job and seek other fields; the guides may be as cunning as he, and numerous are the tricks played upon him.

The Richest Nation.

Michael G. Mulhall, the noted English statistician, is clearly of the opinion that no other nation compares with ours in all the essential elements that go to make up aggregate wealth. He also notes the fact that while the most European countries have attained their growth, the United States is apparently on the threshold of an industrial development which it has never dreamed of before.

United States $81,750,000,000

Great Britain 59,030,000,000

France 47,550,000,000

Germany 40,260,000,000

Russia 32,125,000,000

Austria 22,550,000,000

Italy 15,800,000,000

Spain 11,300,000,000

These computations are based upon values as shown by real estate records, buildings, merchandise and railways as well as the circulating medium in each nation. As will be seen, our wealth is more than seven times greater than that of Spain, double that of Germany, two and a half times greater than that of Russia, nearly double that of France, equal to the combined wealth of Russia, Italy, Austria and Spain, and $22,720,000,000 larger than that of Great Britain.

Politician and Motorman.

A member of the Ohio Legislature named Cox is handling a motorman's trunk on a Columbia street railway.

Soon after the adjournment of the Legislature Mr. Cox sought employment with the car company and is now working the regular number of trips per diem, for which he gets $2.50 a day. His legislative term is not out till January 1, 1900, but whether he will hold on to the street car job till then or not, no one but himself knows. He is on the Democratic side of the House and occupied a very respectable station among his colleagues. In his home country Mr. Cox has been a school teacher, justice of the peace and postmaster.

Dangerous Industry.

"Indeed!" she cried, "and have you room for all of it on there?"

Then he sat still and thought and thought, And thought and thought and thought,

And went away downcast, at last— You see her name was "Dew" (J.).

WHY SHE FALTERED.

A Discovery at the Last Moment Checked Her Resolve.

Beautiful, beyond the fairest imaginings of painter or bard, she stood there on the bridge as the bells rang out the midnight. But on that fair, pale face was the imprint of sorrow and suffering and bitter grief. A wild determination and a desperate resolve.

"The time has come—"

She turned her glorious face up to the cold night sky.

"And now to end it all. I have sworn to never see the light of another day. Death, I fly to thee. Pity me, kind Heaven—and forgive."

She laid her little hand upon the cold railing. Then started back with a lost cry.

Alas! did some quickening realization of the awfulness of the step she was about to take suddenly pierce its way to her soul? Did she pause to think before it was forever too late of what it meant to her soul unannounced into the great Beyond?

Did she, in that supreme hour, catch a glimpse of her happy childhood at mother's knee?

Nay.

Then what was it that saved this maddened, wronged, world-weary woman from seeking succor of sorrow beneath the chill waters below?

This:

The rail had been freshly painted, and she saw she couldn't get over it without getting her dress all over

An Unhappy Reminder.

"There were some remarkable old carvings in that collection of bric-a-brac," remarked the art enthusiast.

"I'm glad I didn't see 'em," remarked the young man with black rimmed eye-glasses. "I have too much to interest me in that line whenever we have spring chicken at our house."
