No such record can be obtained through the agency of enumeration, nor can it be obtained from official records, unless officials will agree to furnish for use in the census full replies to all the inquiries contained in the mortality schedule.

Law Varies In Different States.

The law governing the return of mortality statistics varies in different States. In some States the law provides for a general system of registration and the making of returns of births and deaths to a central office, but in others the registration is purely local, being confined to certain cities and towns. To secure a complete knowledge of the methods followed in various the health authorities of all towns injuries. That the Negro is very diers and 3,899 widows pensioned, the last census a circular asking for often unfairly dealt with in this based upon service in the Indian a description of the method employed in their city. The data thus obtained, together with the responses which are expected from the new circular, will, it is hoped, enable the bureau to devise a plan for the satisfactory collection of mortality statistics throughout the country.

Opportunity is now presented to the people of Gettysburg and the surrounding country, to visit our elegant new store, (Centre Square,) and examine the wonderful bargains being offered in Clothing, Hats, Shoes, and Gents Furnishing Goods.

We are after the trade of all who need anything in our line, and are offering "Sledge Hammer" arguments in the way of low prices, in order that you maded with us. We will not misrepresent any of our goods, all we ask of any person is a right to a share of their custom. Expenses are sure in a large establishment like ours, but profits can only be counted on goods sold. A quick profit is the best, be it ever so small. We know this and always make the "Almighty dollar" act as our agent when purchasing stock from the manufacturer, and spot eash is the watchword that guided us through ten years of almost unparalled business success. Our customers wants are always in view when we buy stock, and we always mark goods with Rock Bottom Figures, thus making a bargain of every article in our stock. If you come from a distance by rail to examine our stock the money you save in purchases will be more than equivalent to a

We do not wish to brag, but certainly our great success is the very best evidence that Square dealing, and business-like methods, have been shown in all our transactions with the public. Now, when we are asking for an increased share of patronage, it would be snicidal for us to misrepresent our stock.

We have a large and most complete line of Clothing, Gants Furnishing Goods, Hats, Shoes, and we have also added a large and most complete line of Ladies Wraps, etc., and in spite of the advance in the prices in various grades of goods, we have decided to increase our popularity by offering everything at figures that will compel all to acknowledge us as the "Leaders in Low Prices" If you need anything in our line come to see us. We are always glad to show goods. The prices marked on them will do the rest. If you trade with us, there will be no use to go

STILL MORE COUNTERFEITING. The Secret Service has unearthed another band of counterfeiters and secured a large quantity of bogus bills, which are so cleverly executed that the average person would never suspect them of being spurious. Things of great value are always selected by counterfeiters for imitation, notably the celebrated Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, nervousness and general debility. The Bitters sets things right in the stomach, and when the stomach is in good order it makes good blood and plenty of it. CONDITIONS CHANGING. 1

Man Has to Pay the Penalty for Disturbing Nature. For his luxury, convenience or profit, man is doing much to disturb the op-erations of nature and believes that he can improve on her means and ends. That he is not always successful we may conclude from the complaints of flood and drouth and insect which burden the wires and terrify our people and disturb the settled calm of in-dustrial life. We found a continent covered with forests, and nature had adjusted itself to such conditions. We ound equable winters, so far as the loose observation of earlier days at-test, the seasons observed their appointed procession, and the rain fell upon the just and the unjust. The inhabitants of the continent kept the balance in exact adjustment—the in-sect crept from its chrysalis to feed the birds which failed to find its stock necessary to replenish the supply, the bird's enemies kept his numbers with-in bounds, the fittest survived, and the march of events followed the order decided upon in the beginning.

Upon these conditions civilized man came suddenly, and all was changed. He cut down the forests, drained the marshes and dus waterways where before there were none. He exposed the insect to light and warmth and fed him on tender crops not intended for his consumption, and then grumbled because things were not as they were. He exterminated the enemies appoint ed to keep within limit the little folk that burrow within the earth and venture forth only by stealth to destroy and then he brought in strangers like unto himself to restore the balance he had disturbed. The West complains of the locust and caterpillar; Boston declares war upon the sparrow brought over to stop their ravages, Our boards of agriculture prescribe poison place nature's agents, and still the old evils exist, though they may change in character. Is it not time that we stop to consider what we do? When the forests have disappeared the rains must rush in floods to the sea, for there are no longer delicate pumps to lift and dissipate the superabundance of moisture gently into the air; to temper the climate as nature intended when leaves were sent to serve and beautify the earth. The blizzard rushes without hinderance over wide areas which formerly knew it not, and men shiver and die with new diseases because of the sins they have committed against nature and themselves. We drain marshes for a few acres of land never designed for our use by a wiser economy than we know, and then the reservoirs cease to exist and the warmth of water in winter does not protect vegetation nor its coolness bring the summer dew. We straighten the rivers, and they rush to the ocean without winding from glade to glade to fertilize and gladden the widest possible extent of territory.
We heap under the glowing sun the refuse of our congregated life, and the scavengers nature appoints to remove it turn to rend us, and we wonder that germs mutliply and microbes of strange shape and deadly character are conceived from new conditions to rack us with gnawing pain and embitter our days with coughs and weak ness. Is it strange that man begins again to envy the savage as in the Roman day, and that a Tactitus arises on every hand to warn us the day of retribution is at hand to call us to repent-little city of Pipestone, Minn., are three freaks of nature that will well repay a visit from the lovers of the curious and the beautiful. The first is a waterfall, or cataract, which when the stream that feeds it is swollen by melting snow and spring rains is a miniature Niagara, and in point of beauty rivals many of the famed waterfalls of the East. The second is the famous Red Pipestone Quarry, the scene of the opening of Longfellow's beautiful poem "Hiawatha," and the third is a group of immense rocks—also spoken of in "Hiawatha" as the Three Maidens—that have stood for ages as a landmark to guide the Indians to the only spot in the known world where the sacred pipestone could be found.

The waterfall, quarry and Three Maidens are all located on the Indian Reservation, which is one mile square, adjoining the corporation of Pipestone on the north. The reservation belongs to the Dacotas, or what is better known by its French name as the Sidoubt has been cast on the point by sun never sets and the rest of the oux Nation, but it is claimed by the Yankton Sioux. The poem of "Hiawatha" begins:

On the mountains of the prairie, On the great Red Pipestone quarries, and any one unacquainted with the neighborhood would naturally suppose that it was hilly, to say the least. On the contrary, the country is quite level, there not being even what in Eastern parlance would be called a"small hill" in the neighborhood. The quarry lies in about the centre of the bed of what is apparently a prehistoric lake, and when first discovered the stone crop-ped out of the surface, but the continual quarrying for ages has extended the quarry about sixty rods toward the south, and it is now necessary to remove from six to eight feet of scale an dirt before the pure stone is reached. No one but the Indians are allowed to quarry it, and every summer they come in squads from distant reservations to get supplies of the stone with which to make pipes, knicknacks and ornaments that they carve out of it, both for their own use and for sale and trade to the white man. They also frequently sell the stone in the rough the white men, who, with turning lathe, can work it up much better than they can.

The stone is known to the scientific world as catlinite, being so called in honor of Catlin, the celebrated historian of the Indians, who was the first white man to set eyes on the quarry, while gathering material for his 'History of the Indians of the Northwest,"

In San Francisco there's a Chinese Individuality as it Stands Out in a Country Town.

> Individuality is lost sight of in the cities. It is swallowed up, as it were in the mob. In a village it stands out with surprising distinctness. The odd characters of the place are known to everybody, and their queer sayings and doings are told from mouth to mouth.

The Trooper Stuttered. Howard K. Brown of Syracuse, N. Y., who was in Porto Rico with Troop A, First Cavalry, tells some clever yarns about a fellow trooper who stuttered very badly.

One night while in the mountainous district it was very cold. This trooper could not find any of his outer clothes. So he went from one place to another, asking if anyone knew where they "H-h- has a-a-ny one s-s-seen m-my

The Publisher of The Eclectic Magazine begs to an nounce that the Magazine has been consolidated with the Living Age, and, beginning with the number for January, 1899 will be issued under the title of "The Felectic Magazine, and Monthly Edition of The Living Age."

The new issue of the Eclectic Magazine will be increased in size to 160 pages monthly, a change which will give to the subscribers 192 more mages of reading matter annually than hitherto. While the Magazine will sontain practically the same kind of material as formerly, some changes and additions will be made, which it is believed will largely enhance the value of the publication. To the selection from British periodicals will be added original translations of some of the most noteworthy articles in French, German, Spanish, and Italian reviews. A monthly supplement will give Readings from New Books, and an editorial department of Books and Authors will give the latest news in the liverary world.

The magazine will bear the imprint of the Living Age Company, Boston, and E. R. Pelton, New York, and subscriptions may be sent to either address. The Publisher of THE ECLECTIC MAGAZINE begs
