THE LECTURER.

We were very much amused when leaving El Paso last night. Some of us were standing on the car platorm, when a man rushed forward, begged pardon in laconic style, threw a consumptive-looking carpet bag before him and climbed up. He got his breath after a while and seemed much relieved when the train pulled out, when he took off his hat and began combing his hair. "Gents" he said "twas a close call. to ketch this train, as I'm due at Tucson to-morrow night, but I agreed to give the first half of my entertainment and demanded pay dollars, and when the rag fell at long hours. The deliciousness of the breakfast at Lamy was owing, first, to the goodness of the viands, products of a rich and healthy country; next to a good appetite since we had had no supper; third, to the fact that for three days we had been living in a Pullman buffet, eating and sleeping in not very welcome surroundings, and on food not very palatable as it was only renewed once a week, and was kept artificially, canned, etc., for three years; then for two weeks before that had been living on Mexican which are always a kind o' stale.

Jos, W. VA., May 22. To be crushed to death in the embrace of a moustrous black bear and their little bodies afterward mangled and partly devoured was the frightful fate that befell the three young children of E. P. Porterfield, a mountaineer residing about twelve miles southeast of this place. The remains were found vesterday by a since Sunday evening. The party included John Weldon, a Maryland hunter, who, within a few minutes after the discovery of the bodies, shot and killed the bear in a neighboring thicket.

The children were Mary, aged 3; Willie, aged 5, and Henry, aged 7. Shortly after noon Sunday they left home to gather flowers in a clearing near the house. Nothing more is known, but it is supposed that they wandered into the woods and, becoming lost, continued on their way until they were overtaken by the bear, three miles distant from their parents' home. DOGS ON THE STAGE.

Leaping For the Villain's Neck-A Very Sensitive Animal. Four legged animals in drama are of course a very common sight today. Although they are often of far more importance than the mere super, they have an affinity to that class, for theirs is no speaking part, unless one counts the bark of a dog as such. A little time ago the writer met an actor who was taking the part of a villain in a play wherein a big mastiff seizes him at the back of the neck just as he (the villain) was about to murder the heroine. "Nasty part, that of yours. How do you manage to escape nightly being bitten by that big brute of a dog?" "Not a nice part, it is true," he answered, "but the dog is well trained. He is kent without food for a few hours before the show. A piece of cooked liver is tied to my neck. He is held in the wings till the cue comes, then he rushes on to me for his supper, and the curtain goes down on a very effectave tableau. I don't object to the dog.

The mention of stage dogs brings to mind an amusing incident that occurred in a well known theatrical agent's office last summer. proportion of shortsighted persons. The crystalline lens of the eye is the one portion of the human body which' continues to increase with the attainment of maturity.

The smallest interval of sound can be better distinguished with one ear than with both. The nails of two fingers never grow with the same rapidity, that of the middle finger growing the fastest, while that of the thumb grows the slowest.

In 54 cases out of 100 the left leg is shorter than the right. The bones of an average human male skeleton weigh 20 pounds, those of a woman are six pounds lighter. That unruly member, the tongue of sowoman, is also smaller than that of a man, given a man and a woman of equal size and weight. It may be appalling to reflect, but it is nevertheless true, that the muscles of the human Jaw exert a force of over 500 pounds.

The symmetry which is the sole intelligible ground for our idea of beauty, the proportion between the upper and lower half of the human body, exists in nearly all males, but is never found in the female. Ben Webster, an English actor, told cornered to suit the wood. a good story of how he held his own when Sir Henry Irving happened to be absentminded. In the "Lyons Mail" there is a touching scene between Lesurques (played by Irving) and his daughter Julie, of which Didier (Mr. Ben Webster) is a perfectly silent wit-

One night Sir Henry, instead of making his long speech, appealed in trembling tones to Mr. Webster: "Speak to her, Didier; speak to her!" Didier was dumfounded. There was an awful pause. Irving, quite unconscious of his own mistake, frowned wrathfully at the young actor, but Mr. Webster, equal to the occasion, gave way to a burst of tears and exclaimed, "I cannot; you know I cannot speak!" and turned his back on the audience.

Feeding Crops on the Farm-Frozen

Wheat Valuable For Stock. It has seemed to the Utah station that farmers who are engaged in the production of hay and grain might, with advantage, add lamb feeding to their work. This would afford a home market for the products of the farm, assist in maintaining the fertility of the soil and would give profitable employment during the winter months.

During the summer of 1899 a heavy frost injured a considerable quantity of fall wheat throughout the state. In an experiment by the station frosted

From the standpoint of composition taken as a whole, the better grade of frozen wheat ranks little inferior for stock feeding to that fully ripened. The composition of both kinds of screenings shows a high feeding value, though the large percentage of crude fiber indicates that they are less digestible than any of the wheats.

On account of the numerous fine seeds the first screenings contain, they will give better results fed to sheep than to cattle and pigs.

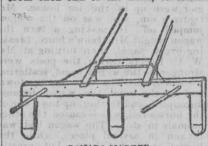

In Manitoba and other portions of Canada, where there are frequently large quantities of frozen wheat, it has been tested, ground and soaked for 12 hours before use. One hundred pounds of frozen wheat were found equal to 791 pounds of skimmilk in increasing the live weight of pigs. The pork was considered excellent, much superior to that of hogs fed on peas alone. The Slav and Woman.

Abhorrent even to the strongest "Slavophile" is the position occupied by woman in the family and in social life. To escape the charge of prejudice I shall quote a few proverbs current among the southern Slavs-a few out of many hundreds:

The man is the head: the woman is grass. One man is worth more than ten women.

A man of straw is worth more than a woman of

And the woman sings, in the Russian folksong which I have freely trans-

Love me true and love me quick, Pull my hair and use the stick. Although there are love songs of another kind, in which woman is praised for her charms, she becomes virtually a slave as soon as she marries, and the little poetry of the folksong does not accompany her even to the marriage altar. She is valued only for the work she can do in a household and for the children she can bear, and should this latter blessing be denied her her lot becomes doubly pitiable, and she often seeks release by suicide.—Outlook.

Naming the White House. Why is the president's mansion at Washington called the White House? It has been so called for years and years, and now no one thinks of using any other name, although "executive mansion" is the official term. The name White House is a reminder of the second war with England. Aug. 24, 1814, the British army captured Washington and burned the public buildings, the president's mansion being among those to suffer. It was damaged to some extent, and to hide the fire stains it was painted white, and white it has been painted every year or two since.

The home of Washington's mother may have suggested the name, but the fact that the mansion was so assiduously painted white after the war of 1812 doubtless brought the term into popular use.
