The Exciting Race Between Kean and the Stage Hand.

A UNIQUE SENTENCE.

THE NOVEL PENALTY A JUDGE IM-

POSED UPON TWO MEN. Both Prisoners Were Condemned to Jail Until One of Them; a College

Graduate, Taught the Other How to Read and Write.

Along in the seventies the late Judge Arnold Krekel was holding court at Jefferson City, relates an old timer, when there appeared before him two men charged and indicted for a violation of the United States laws, one of whom will be called Brown. He was charged with cutting timber on the public domain. Brown was about 40 years old and had been reared on the border in Arkansas and never had any opportunities for schooling, hence was unable to read or write. In his endeavors to get a living he had cut timber suitable for making ax handles on United States lands, which led to his arrest and imprisonment. The other man will be called Jones, for the real name of both men are not known in the memory of any one who witnessed the incident.

Jones was charged with and indicted for having sold liquor to the Indians. Mr. Jones was a native of New York, educated for a lawyer. He possessed a highly cultured mind, a good Latinist and thoroughly scholarly in all I went to a native shoemaker's one sorts of books. Not succeeding in his profession in his native state, more from lack of application than otherwise, he left that country and plunged into the great west and located nobody knew where, but he drifted into the lower strata of society, and to obtain the necessaries of life he resorted "bootlegging" among the red men of the Indian Territory border. His arrest and imprisonment followed.

The two men were arraigned before Judge Krekel and the indictments read. They both pleaded guilty and threw themselves upon the mercy of the court. The court questioned both prisoners at length and drew from each his history. He recounted the wrongs they had been guilty of against society. He did this in a kindly tone and manner, suggesting in a mild form that both might have been useful members of some community had they sought honorable means and methods to secure a livelihood. The court seemed puzzled how to assess a punishment that would meet the ends of justice and protect the government, its lands, its wards and society. Finally, sitting upright in his chair, looking over his glasses as both men stood before him, in a voice little louder and more positive than usual he

"Mr. Brown, it is the sentence of the court that you be confined in the Cole county jail until you are educated to styptic to stanch its own blood when pair. When I returned, I sent back the read and write." The judge then turned his eyes upon the other prisoner at the bar and, possibly in a louder voice, said, "Mr. Jones, it is the sentence of the court that you be confined in the Cole county jail until you have taught Mr. Brown to read and write, and I enjoin upon the keeper of the jail to afford you every facility possible with the safe keeping of his prisoners." The lawyers and spectators in court looked with astonishment at each other as the sentence was concluded, and the marshal led the prisoners out of the courtroom. It was the second term of the court after this incident when the marshal conducted Brown and Jones Into court, and it was announced by the court that Brown had completed his education-ready to graduate-able to read and write. Judge Krekel looked over his glasses and asked that the prisoner give him an evidence of his being able to read. Brown stood up and read a few paragraphs from a newspaper to the satisfaction of the court, when he said, "Mr. Clerk, will you let him sit at a table and write me a letter?" Paper, pen, ink and a seat were furnished Brown, who went to work to write a letter to the court. For some time the poor fellow struggled with the task, and in the meantime Jones was very nervous, fearing he would be compelled to go back to jail and "take up school" again. Finally the clerk said, "May it please your honor, the prisoner can write, but cannot form sentences to make it intelligible."

"Mr. Clerk," said the court, not taking his eyes from the court docket he was looking at, "you will dictate a letter for him and see what bendway he makes with that." The clerk dictated a letter that the prisoner wrote quite readily, which subsequently was passed up to the court, who read the same. and after giving the prisoners a short lecture both were discharged and walked from the courtroom free men. -Jefferson City Tribune.

Fish That Change Color.

It has been found that certain prawns, common along the coasts of England, change their color at least twice every 24 hours in order to barmonize with the stronger or weaker light prevailing near the surface or in the deeper water. As evening approaches these fish lose their distinctive day colors, and all assume a transparent azure bue. The change begins with a reddish glow, followed by a green tinge which gradually melts into blue. The day and night change has become so habitual that specimens kept in per-"I am a self made man," said the petual light or perpetual darkness nevertheless undergo the periodic alteration of color.

"I think," said A. Bronson Alcott in one of his conversations, "when a man lives on beef, he becomes something like an ox. If he eats urutton, he hecomes sheepish, and if he feeds upon pork may be not become swinish?"

"That may be," said Dr. Walker, "but when a man lives on nothing but vegetables I think he is apt to be prets ty small potatoes."

It would not be surprising if the report of the finding of oil in Florida should prove to be true. That State is one of great possibilities. A FREAK OF LIGHTNING

A queer freak of lightning was witnessed on Friday last on the farm of Harold Cobb in Frederick county, Va. A flock of 60 sheep, in which there were three black ones, took refuge beneath a tree during a storm. Lightning struck the tree, splintering it, and seemingly picked out the three black sheep, in different parts of the flock, killing them, without injuring any of the white sheep. The dead black sheep were found in places 20 feet apart.

NOVEL CURES.

Unique Methods Employed to Over-

come Certain Diseases. Freezing, baking, illuminating, torturing, frightening and bruising are among the accepted ways of curing certain diseases, says a writer in the Philadelphia Times. For example, the baking cure: When one has a well developed rheumatism, he is placed in a specles of stove and the crystals of uric acid are literally melted out of his body. Another odd cure once tried for rheumatism was burial in damp, warm clay. The first rheumatic burial took place at Menominee, Mich. The treatment was not a success, and this form of cure has been given up.
